The funeral service was conducted by the Rev. Dr. Collinson, of St. Saviour's, Chelsea, who gave an eloquent address. He said:—Some there are who tell us that we should not be sorry at the departure of a Christian from this world. I am sorry for the man who cannot be sorry at the burial of a Christian man or woman. He must have the heart of a stone. But then there is sorrow and sorrow. There is excusable grief, and there is the inexcusable gloom of despair; the former has its place at the graveside of one we love, the latter no place there. When the South African War was raging I went to Southampton to see a dear friend embark for Cape Town. I bore up well until the great ship moved away from the pier, and then—I confess it—I broke down—I felt as if my heart would break, and I cried bitterly. I waited there in the gathering mist of the winter evening until no trace of that vessel was to be seen. I found that everyone had gone away. I was alone. I had come to see my friend off. It was an awful trial, and I felt it keenly. The sorrow was terrible, but it was not gloomy despair, for God told me that we should meet again before many years had passed, and I dried my tears. Well, now we are are just seeing a friend off on a long journey; but we must look forward to the day when we shall meet again. The act-drop has fallen, but—God be praised for it—not the curtain. That will never fall in the life of a man or a woman. Only one scene in the life of our departed sister has been enacted. She belonged to that noble profession whose mission it is to idealise the commonplaces of this life, to refine and educate us; that noble profession which does so much to lift London up from the grim commonplaces of this workaday world, and without which this England of ours would be very much the sadder and poorer in every way. She is now with God. "The souls of the righteous are in the hands of God, and there can no torment touch them." To-day we lay her body to rest, and what better prayer can we pray than the old prayer of our beloved Catholic Church: "May she rest in peace. May God give her everlasting light and refreshment." In all our sorrows and troubles here we may look heavenward to our dear Saviour, who died for us, and we may ask Him to hasten the day when we shall all meet again in that blessed country where there will be no more partings, where the Lamb will wipe away all tears from our eyes.

TO-NIGHT'S is the last performance of the pretty pantomime Red Riding Hood at the Coronet Theatre. Miss Beatrice Willey, fresh from her pantomimic triumph as Morgiana in The Forty Thieves at Fulham, is enacting the part of Miss Muffit, vice Miss Valli Valli, who has reverted to the Newcastle production of The Babes in the Wood. Miss Willey introduces the popular song and chorus "Under the Panama" which is most effectively rendered, and goes with unmistakable swing and sparkle. Miss Madge Vincent now sings the pretty song "Farewell, my Little Yo San," and Miss Dorothy Firmin sustains the rôle of Red Riding Hood in the evening, Miss Dora Fraser only appearing at matinées. The part of Jill also has a new exponent in the pleasing person of Miss Peggy Primrose.

CHAT WITH MR. PERCY HUTCHISON.

(BY OUR OWN COMMISSIONER.)

The system under which Mr Percy Hutchison controls the various touring enterprises sent out in his and his mother's name is one of high principles and sound business ideals. And to that, perhaps, may be attributed no small measure of the success which has attended the Hutchison enterprises.

Miss Emma Hutchison had her first taste of managerial work in 1885 with The Golden Ladder, which enjoyed a prosperous career of two years' duration. It was supplanted by that merry farce Pink Dominos, which ran for five consecutive seasons in the provinces. In 1891 two plays by Bronson Howard, namely, Brighton and Truth, were added to Miss Hutchison's répertoire, and a little later came The Great Divorce Case, Betsy, and Sauey Sally, the last-mentioned being produced by Miss Hutchison at the Southport Opera House. An arrangement was subsequently entered into with Mr Henry Arthur Jones for the provincial production of The Bauble Shop, with which Miss Hutchison toured until 1896, when she took Mr R. C. Carton's The Squire of Dames on the road. A little later Messrs Louis N. Parker and Murray Carson's delightful old-world play, Rosemary, was taken out, and was well received by country playgoers. In November, 1897, Mr H. A. Jones' famous comedy, The Liars, was produced at the Criterion Theatre, and shortly afterwards the Hutchison management sent out no less than three companies with this piece. Mr Henry Neville was specially engaged for Sir Charles Wyndham's part, which, by the way, he had played at the Criterion during the latter's illness. As might be expected with Mr Neville at the head of a good company, The Liars proved a great provincial success. Miss Hutchison also promptly secured the travelling rights of The Manœuvres of Jane, by the same author, and that piece, too, turned out to be a money-maker.

In 1899 Miss Hutchison organised three companies to present Mr Haddon Chambers's masterpiece, The Tyranny of Tears, Mr Henry Neville being again specially engaged to play the part of Parbury in the principal company. Another company started from the Haymarket Theatre with The Manœuvres of Jane, the author's clever daughter, Miss Winifred Arthur-Jones, appearing as Jane and Miss Hutchison herself playing Miss Beechinor. In the spring of 1900 a tour of The Dancing Girl was arranged under the direction of Mr Percy Hutchison, Miss Arthur-Jones taking the title-rôle. Then followed Mr R. C. Carton's Lady Huntworth's Experiment, Mr Jones's Mrs Lane's Defence (in which Mr Henry Neville took the part of the judge, Sir Daniel Carteret), Mr Isaac Henderson's comedy, The Mummy and the Humming Bird, which was travelled by four companies; The Country Mouse, by Mr Arthur Law, and The Little French Milliner. Last autumn Miss Emma Hutchison and Mr Percy Hutchison had five companies touring with plays from West-end theatres. In Mrs Gorringe's Necklace Miss Hutchison sustained the part created by Miss Marie Illington at Wyndham's Theatre, while Miss Gertrude Burnett appeared as Mrs Gorringe, and Mr Yorke Stephens in Sir Charles Wyndham's part. The Liars and Mrs Dane's Defence were other pieces that went out at the same time, the casts including such names as those of Mr Henry Neville, Miss Lilias Earle, and Miss Italia Conti. Arrangements were then made with Messrs Frederick Harrison and Cyril Maude for the provincial rights of Cousin Kate, last year's Haymarket success, Miss Hutchison securing Miss Madge M'Intosh to enact the title-role. This play is still being toured by the same management.

Mr Percy Hutchison, who, by the way, is a nephew of Sir Charles Wyndham, and was associated with that gentleman's enterprises for a period of eight years, has some original views to offer on a variety of subjects connected with the theatre. First and foremost he has a strong complaint to make anent the terms given by local managers to touring proprietors. "Not only are the terms of the contracts unfair," says he, "but the requirements of many local managers are excessive. You have a thousand different things to provide that you never had to provide in years gone by. The travelling manager has to pay for his artists, his play, his printing, and railway fares, and I do not think he should be required to dip deeper into his pocket for further expenses. Frequently he is asked to pay for advertisements on tramcars, for postage of circulars, for library commission even, and in some of the country playhouses he is debited with a £30 bill for advertisements and printing. I have been called upon to pay £35 for the latter item. In referring to the provincial theatres, I also wish to include in that category the suburban houses, which have deteriorated simply because the local manager will not give reasonable terms."

Dealing with the question of provincial representations, Mr Hutchison expresses the opinion that it is a mistake for the artists of a touring company to endeavour to give an impersonation of the London actors and actresses in the original cast. They should give an original performance of the parts themselves and not present a copy of what others have done before them. Mr Hutchison supervises all the rehearsals of his own companies, and he strongly impresses upon his people the necessity of employing their own ideas in the acting of a part.

"The actor's lot nowadays," he goes on to say, "is far better than it was even fifteen years ago; in fact, during the last eight years a wonderful improvement has taken place. I attribute this—what I may call social advancement—to the fact that we get a better class of men and women in our companies, and they certainly take a more conscientious view of their profession. There is not so much indulgence in idle pursuits, the result being a healthier tone all round. The members of my companies, for instance, go in for swimming, long walks, cycling, hockey playing, and even from the literary point of view the present day Thespian is vastly superior to the old style. He is much more intelligent, and—what I consider most necessary to the man who is supposed to represent upon the stage people of different types of character and different nationalities—he keeps himself au fait with the history that is being made in all parts of the world. I have always been a firm advocate, even during my association with Sir Charles Wyndham, of searching the provinces for talent. I feel sure it is there we can come across some of the finest actors as well as good, useful people. I think if the London managers were to thoroughly sift the provinces, it would be greatly to their advantage in casting their plays. I believe, however, in sending a London success into the provinces with a star. I have had with me Mr Henry Neville, Miss Annie Hughes, Mr Yorke Stephens, and Mr Arthur Roberts, and found that the extra money expended in salaries more than repaid me."

Speaking generally Mr Hutchison is of opinion that the provincial actor is far better off than his London confrère. "The London actor may get more remuneration, but how long does his engagement last unless he is one of the chosen few? A reliable provincial actor receives a small salary, but he can depend upon thirty or forty weeks' work, and if he be a conscientious, intelligent, and hard-working man he can make a very good thing out of a country engagement. Some of my people have been with me eight and ten years, and they obtain a higher salary and a longer contract every year. Needless to say, the longer they are with me the more they improve in their acting."

"May I be allowed to inflict on you my views as to the school of acting? My own opinion is that a school of acting may be of use up to a certain point but it will never make actors. I believe in the old saying that actors are born, not made, and, to my way of thinking, the only successful school of acting is that wide one constituted by actual experience on the stage. Of course, in the ordinary school of acting, an aspirant to histrionic honours may acquire a few rudiments of the work connected with the stage. In proof of my argument and the argument that actors are born, not made, out of all our leading actors and actresses, how many of them have been through a dramatic school? Take Sir Henry Irving, Mr Beerbohm Tree, Mr George Alexander, and Mr Cyril Maude—did they receive their training at a school of acting?"

"Then," concludes Mr Hutchison, "above all, do let us have healthy plays. We ought to try to improve our audiences and not allow degeneration to set in."

SIR HENRY IRVING'S FAREWELL TOUR.

At the Grand Theatre, Southampton, a record house welcomed Sir Henry Irving and his company on the first three nights of this week. Enthusiasm had an undercurrent of regret, for the famous actor was paying his farewell visit prior to his retirement. On Monday evening the performance opened with Waterloo, in which Sir Henry appears as Corporal Gregory Brewster. This was followed by The Bells, in which Sir Henry repeated his famous study of Mathias, the burgomaster, a portrayal in which Sir Henry is seen absolutely at his best. Mr H. B. Stanford as Christian, Mr Charles Dodsworth as Walter, and Mr James Hearn as Hans won golden opinions; whilst among the ladies Miss May Holland gave a delightful portrayal of Annette. The other characters were well sustained, and the staging was a scenic triumph. The applause was loud and continuous, and the vast audience would not be satisfied until Sir Henry had appeared two or three times after each act and bowed his acknowledgments. Finally, at the close of the performance, he addressed a few words to his auditors, thanking them for their generous and inspiring greeting. The curtain fell amidst enthusiastic applause, and it was an event which will live long in the memories of those privileged to be present.

On Tuesday another great treat was afforded playgoers, when a magnificent performance of Becket was given before a crowded and delighted audience. Sir Henry's interpretation of the Archbishop was very fine, and deeply impressed the audience. Miss Maud Fealy as Rosamund was charming, and Mrs Cecil Raleigh was excellent as Eleanor. Mr Gerald Lawrence was admirable as Henry II, and the other members of the lengthy cast all rendered capable assistance. Sir Henry was again forced to appear before the footlights in response to torrents of applause, and expressed his thanks for the cordial greeting he had received—"It was a delight to be in Southampton once more, and it was a delight for him to see them receive this beautiful play in such a spirit and with such satisfaction. He thanked them as their loyal and loving servant from the bottom of his heart."

On Wednesday The Merchant of Venice was produced with a completeness which reflected great credit on all concerned. Another splendid reception awaited Sir Henry as Shylock, one of his greatest creations. Miss Edith Wynne Mathison was conspicuously successful as Portia, and Mr Gerald Lawrence exceptionally good as Bassanio. The mounting and staging of the play were most beautiful and effective, and the incidental music was well rendered under the direction of Mr Sydney Faulks. At the conclusion of the Court scene the applause was so vociferous that Sir Henry, after repeatedly bowing his acknowledgments, stepped forward in his Jewish robes and thanked the audience in the following words:—"Ladies and gentlemen,—I always find one of the most difficult parts I have to play is that of the grateful man, and I realise that difficulty very much to-night in appearing in this peculiar guise of this not very forgiving old gentleman. It is my privilege to thank you, and it is impossible to thank you adequately for the greeting you have given us. The best of friends must part, and I am truly sorry we have to part to-night. I would like to thank many friends—many old friends—for I had many old friends in Portsmouth and Southampton, who are old friends still, forty years ago. I still have very cherished memories of their kindness, and I shall also carry away with me pleasant memories of your kindness. No players could have been received with greater favour than you have received us, and we are most grateful for your kind and gracious greeting. I would also like to thank the Press for its generous appreciation of our work, and a very old and valued friend of mine, the manager of this theatre, Mr Sydney Paxton. I have known him for many years, and I knew his father before him. He came to me as a little bit of a boy, and I told him if he wanted to be an actor he would soon have to start and try. He made a start and became an actor, and got on very well, and fortunately became the manager of this theatre, and I congratulate you [on having so conscientious a manager as you have. Sydney Paxton is a man who wants to make the theatre a place of recreation for sober-minded and intelligent people, and I think he will succeed. In leaving you I take away a fresh sheaf of happy memories, and I hope I am leaving behind me something that you will think of kindly, and with goodwill. If so, I shall count myself in nothing else so happy. I hope you will always remember me, and think of me as your most grateful and loving servant. I hope on some occasion in future to meet you again, but to night I wish you goodbye, with God bless you in my heart." Mr Sydney Paxton, the energetic manager of the theatre, and his staff worked indefatigably to cope with the enormous crowds that nightly besieged this popular playhouse, and are deserving of the highest praise for the successful manner in which the whole of the arrangements were carried out.

THE DRAMA IN PARIS.

"DARIA,"
Lyric Drama, in Two Acts,
by MM. Adolphe Aderer and A. Ephraïm,
Music by M. Georges Marty, produced at the Opéra, Jan. 27.

Daria ..... Mdlle GENEVIÈVE VIX
Boris ..... M. ROUSSELIÈRE
Ivan ..... M. DELMAS
Le Pope ..... M DINARD
Garde ..... M. CAILLOT

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

PARIS, THURSDAY, FEB. 2.—M. Georges Marty, the composer of Daria, having received a gold medal at one of the Conservatoire competitions, and being, therefore, a "Prix de Rome," was entitled to have one of his works produced on one of our lyric stages. But, as this regulation does not stipulate any special time, M. Marty had to wait five-and-twenty years before his opera saw the footlights. In one respect it came at an opportune moment, for the story deals with the sufferings of the Russian peasants at the hands of the wealthy classes. Those, however, who attended the first night in the hope of witnessing a political demonstration must have been disappointed. Paris audiences are rarely demonstrative, and the Opéra public is known for never giving way to anything in the shape of emotion. It is a pretty story, prettily told. Daria, a young serf, has been honoured by Boris, her master, with special attentions. But, having got tired of the poor girl, he has left for the capital to marry an heiress, and Daria has remained behind under the care of Ivan, a serf like herself, who has always loved her. When Boris returns and offers his former mistress a sum of money for the "services" she rendered him, the outraged girl seizes a whip and attempts to strike him, whereupon the incensed Boris orders her to be knouted. But from the crowd of moujiks a gentle voice is heard beseeching the master not to strike a woman; and Boris, recognising Ivan, tells him that if he loves her he can save her by making her his wife. In the second tableau we are in the humble dwelling in the forest where Ivan has taken his wife. They lead a peaceful, happy life, but suddenly Boris turns up. He has been hunting the forest, he has lost his way, and asks Ivan to give him a bed for the night. In reality he has bethought himself of Daria, and wants to win her back. His plan is to make Ivan drunk, and then trust to luck. And Ivan, pretending to be overcome with drink, dances and sings, and finally drops down near his axe in the corner of the hut. Boris meanwhile speaks softly to Daria, until, seeing Ivan motionless on the ground, his brutal nature takes the upper hand, and he seizes the woman roughly. Then Ivan starts up, throwing himself on Boris, and kills him; after which he places the body on the bed, sets fire to the hut, and disappears with his wife in the forest. M. Marty, in his attempt to give the so-called "local colouring," has introduced too many well-known Russian airs, which are specially striking in the choregraphic parts. Musically speaking, the second act is by far the best, and sustains well the tragic movement in the last scenes. M. Delmas gave a superb rendering of the rôle of Ivan; and in the terrible scene wherein he dances before Boris he showed himself as great an actor as he is a singer. It is not often that an ungrateful rôle is assigned to a tenor, but here is a curious instance. Boris is the villain in the piece, and it was M. Rousselière, the tenor, who impersonated him. He acquitted himself, however, well of his task, and the same can be said of Mdlle. Vix, a charming Daria.

SOMEHOW or other our allies the Russians are not in luck just now. Whilst the Opéra produced a play which is rather up to date as regards recent events, the Porte-Saint-Martin has come out with a revival of Resurrection. In being transferred from the Odéon to the Porte-Saint-Martin the work has certainly gained, although of the old cast we have met neither Dumeny, nor Janvier, nor Boutharr. They have been replaced by MM. Calmette, Maxence, Poggi, Valney, &c., who form an excellent ensemble. Only Madame Bady has reappeared as La Masloma, the part which she created at the Odéon.

WHERE there is smoke there must be fire; and although at the Odéon they deny that there is any question of a change of management I know for a fact that the Fine Arts Ministry is anything but pleased with last year's financial results at this playhouse. The Odéon being subsidised by the State, our Minister of Fine Arts has a voice in the matter, and he did raise his voice to a pretty high pitch. The rumour that M. Gémier was to replace M. Ginisty is simply absurd. Gémier, great actor as he is, has shown himself the worst of managers during his tenure of office at the Renaissance; and he would not even dream of placing himself at the head of the Odéon. The ideal man for that post would, of course, be M Antoine; but there are difficulties in the way. A few years ago, when M. Ginisty was appointed, M. Antoine was officially nominated "understudy." The two gentlemen, however, quarrelled right from the start; and M. Antoine, tired of seeing his advice never followed, threw up his position and founded the theatre that bears his name, and which has paid big dividends to its shareholders, whilst the poor Odéon kept on struggling against adversity. If, therefore, M. Antoine is placed at the head of our second Théâtre-Français, it will be M. Ginisty's turn to disappear. But, worse than that, the Théâtre-Antoine would disappear as well, a loss which all lovers of the drama would deeply deplore. And if the Paris theatre-going public had a voice in the matter they would sooner see the Odéon continue its silly career than lose the famous and popular Théâtre-Antoine.

M. GUSTAVE GRILLET (writing under the pseudonym of Jean Tabrick) has finished a play, in five acts, called Les Pierrots, which will very likely be brought out at the Ambigu.

THE next novelty at the Nouveautés will be L'Ange du Foyer, a farcical comedy, by MM. De Flers and De Caillavet.

THE Scala announces for to-night the première of Coco Barmaid, operette, in two acts and five tableaux, by M. P. L. Flers.

M. SAMUEL, the manager of the Variétés, has more faith in revivals than in new productions. Having already unearthed some of the old works by Offenbach and Hervé, he now has put into rehearsal Audran's Miss Helyett, wherein Mdlle. Eve Lavallière will appear in the rôle created by Mdlle. Bianca Duhamel. The next new operette at that playhouse will be André Messager's Les Dragons de l'Impératrice, with Mdlle. Germaine Gallois and Mdlle. Mariette Sully.

THE month of December last has been a lucky one for the Comédie-Française. Their accounts show gross takings of 276,826 francs for forty-one representations—an average of 6,751 francs per representation. The work that brought in most money during those four weeks has been M. Capus' Notre Jeunette.

M. ANTOINE has received a new play in twelve tableaux, by M. Védel, one of the translators of King Lear.

MRS T. MORTON POWELL'S company, in A Woman's Devotion, under the business-management of Mr Arthur Clifton, is at the Queen's Theatre, Swindon, this week. Miss Maude Drewry's treatment of the part of Maisie Loyale is thoroughly natural and easy; Mr T. Morton Powell must be highly commended for his clever embodiment of Gilbert Le Grande; the cowardly Philip Dangerfield and the treacherous Cora Everaleigh have capable exponents in Mr Frank R. Robertson and Miss Alwynne Ermon; Mr Geo. Davis gives a manly representation of Richard Cheaney; and Mr W. H. Somerville does well as Paul Everaleigh, also undertaking the duties of stage-manager. Messrs Edward Mervyn and E. T. Kiabey, with Misses Alice Buckland and Dot Selby, ably fill the lighter parts.

THE annual meeting of the Hyde Theatre Royal shareholders was held on Saturday, Alderman W. T. Sherry, J.P., presiding over a large attendance. A satisfactory half year's working was announced, a profit equal to a dividend of nearly 5 per cent. having been made. Councillors S. Fildes and James Kemp were elected directors, and Mr Hugh Howarth was reappointed auditor.

MR F. NORREYS CONNELL, at a recent meeting of the Irish Literary Society, was announced to lecture on "Some Irish Dramatists." He made some remarks about Sheridan and Goldsmith, and then proceeded to highly praise Mr Bernard Shaw. Some of his hearers protested that if a play were written in English, and if the characters and the scenery were not Irish it could not be called an Irish play; and an interesting discussion on this "nice" point followed.

THE George Mence Smith Scholarship for male vocalists at the Royal Academy of Music has been awarded to Joseph Melvin Nightingale. The adjudicators were Messrs Richard Cummings, William Shakespeare, and Fred Walker. The Sainton Scholarship for violinists has been awarded to Elsie Winifred Owen. The adjudicators were Messrs Frank Arnold, Josef Bláha, and A. Burnett.

THE Marlborough pantomime Aladdin finishes to-night a six weeks' run, and for the opening of his dramatic season Mr Purcell has secured that delightful comedy The Duke of Killicrankie, which will be presented by a capital company under the management of Messrs Charles Frohman and Arthur Chudleigh. Sousa and his band will appear at a flying matinée at the Marlborough on Monday.

POOLE.—Jan. 24, at Barnes, of consumption, Harry Herbert Poole, aged twenty-six.

WALLEY.—Jan. 27, at Burslem, Willie, aged seven years, the dearly beloved son of Mr and Mrs W. Walley. Gone from his broken-hearted parents and devoted Ada.

God called a little one unto Him.

IN MEMORIAM.

COLVERD.—Mr J. J. Colverd, who entered into rest, Feb. 7, 1903. Gone, but not forgotten by his beloved wife and family.

COX.—In ever loving memory of Douglas Cox, who died Feb. 2, 1904.

God rest the dear old man.

DIEY.—In ever-loving memory of my dear husband, Captain Alfred Diey (Alexander M. Aitcheson), who died Feb. 1, 1901. Never forgotten by his loving wife and sons.

FOR SYMPATHY.

THOMAS.—Allen Thomas, his daughters, Naomi Neilson and Leonora Thomas, thank the great numbers of dear friends for sympathy. Those who do not get replies, through this medium kindly accept our grateful and heartfelt gratitude.

ALLEN THOMAS.

PANTOMIME BALL AT STRATFORD.

To commemorate the very successful pantomime The Forty Thieves, at the Stratford Borough Theatre, the popular proprietress, Mrs Ellis Fredericks, invited a large number of those connected with the pantomime and personal friends to an evening party at the Stratford Town Hall on the 27th ult., about 150 being present. Dance music was provided by the full orchestra of the Borough Theatre, and at the interval a choice repast was provided. Speeches were necessarily brief, but those given were felicitous and to the purpose, it being an occasion for general upstanding and toasting when the charming hostess was prevailed upon to say a few words. Mrs Ellis Fredericks said that her enjoyment was centered in her guests, and as they were happy so was she, and she hoped to meet them again on many such future festive occasions. Among those present were Mr and Mrs A. E. Abrahams, Mr and Mrs Sam Fredericks, Mr Fred Fredericks, Miss Ethel Ashton, Miss Rosie Sylvester, Mr Dan Paulton, Mr Arthur Lingforth, Miss Daisy Webb, Mr and Mrs Allan Wye, the Misses Ethel and May Harry-Nash, Mr Spencer Darrell, Mr and Mrs Frank Rothsay, Miss Vere Gerald, Miss Muriel Vox, Mr and Mrs A. E. Barnes, Mr and Mrs Ben Barrow, Mr Charles Webb, Mr Ben Webb, Mr R. Saker-Harlow, Mr and Mrs Walter Harding, Mr and Mrs Sam Silver, Mr and Mrs Albert Lee, Mrs Symonds, Mr and Mrs Stern, Mr, Mrs, and Miss Lewis, Mr and Mrs Thomas Holden, Mr and Mrs E. F. Colverd, Mr and Mrs Arthur Boyne, Mr J. Leslie Stewart, Mr and Mrs E. Herring, Mr and Mrs T. Anderson, Mr T. S. Mayne, Mr Chas. Beecham, and Mr Bert Ashton, who successfully carried through the duties of M.C. An interesting interlude was the flashlight photographs taken by the Stratford photographers Messrs Edwards and Co. The early workers were passing to their daily tasks ere the merrymaking ceased and the company dispersed.

MISS JOSIE BELTRAM, who was so long on tour with the late Mr Osmond Tearle, and is now fulfilling her third engagement with Mr Arthur Milton, recently undertook the part of Bo-Peep at short notice, and was complimented highly by the management.—Owing to the illness of Miss Daisy Silcott, Miss Ruby Norton is playing principal boy in Sinbad the Sailor at the Gaiety Theatre, Hastings, and Miss Harlow is sustaining Miss Norton's original rôle of Prince Azon.—Mr Herbert Darnley, after concluding his engagement as Mrs Crusoe, and as stage-manager of the Camden Theatre, will join Mr Macdona's School Girl company.

MR GERALD BALFOUR, president of the Board of Trade, received at the Leeds and County Conservative Club, in the afternoon of the 27th ult., a deputation representing the Leeds Music Sellers' Association, who were accompanied by representatives of two London houses. They called attention to the extensive prevalence of musical piracy, and a case was mentioned in which a seizure had been made of 247,000 copies of printed music, the weight of which amounted to between four and five tons. In that case the cash receipts amounted to £45 a day, of which two-thirds were profits. Mr F. G. Jackson, solicitor to the Association, said that they desired that the sale of the music should be made a criminal offence. Mr G. Balfour, in his reply, said that he supported Mr Galloway's Bill of last year, and he would certainly support it again if it were again brought in. As to the Government taking up the Bill, he was not in a position to give any distinct answer.

MUCH excitement was caused in the Camberwell-road last Saturday evening, when the police seized about one hundred and fifty thousand copies of alleged pirated music, the owners being a Limited Liability Company, with offices in the centre of London. For the purposes of storing the contraband property they had hired a warehouse in Boundary-lane, Walworth, and to this they were traced by the officials of the Musical Copyright Association. The spoil was conveyed in two vans to Kennington-lane Police-station.

MISS GRACE LESTER, who concludes to-night a successful starring engagement with Mr F. B. Woulfe in the Preston répertoire company, is re-engaged for the part of Diane, originally created by her in Mr Moule's successful play Bigamy, opening on Feb. 6 at Great Yarmouth.—Owing to the unavoidable absence of Miss Alice Lloyd at the Crown Theatre, Peckham, last Saturday morning, the part of Cinderella was admirably sustained by Miss Natalie Ralph, who is to be congratulated upon her pleasing performance.—Mr Harry T. Whittaker, the musical director of the Grand Theatre, Fulham, was presented on Saturday night last with a handsome silver cigarette-case from the members of the Forty Thieves company.—Mr F. B. O'Neill, Mr Martin Harvey's courteous business-manager, is, we are sorry to hear, ill and confined to his bed, though on the high road to recovery. His place has been taken very kindly by Mr Eugene Bertram.—Mr and Mrs Frederic Jacques (Miss Minnie Rayner) have been re-engaged by Mrs Lewis Waller for her spring tour, 1905, to play Nathalie and Joly, in Zaza, and other parts in her répertoire. They now enter their fifth year under Mrs Lewis Waller's management.

PROVINCIAL THEATRICALS

SOUTH SHIELDS.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees and Managers, Messrs J. and F. Coulson.—Mr J. A. Campbell and company are here, in The Sin of Her Childhood. Little Edith artistically pourtrays Little Mary in the prologue, to afterward appear successfully as Eric Dugdale. Miss Mary Fulton displays charm and intense emotion adequate to realise the character of the girlish and unselfish Mary Hazel; Stephen Haysel is ably embodied by Mr Austen Milroy; Mr Henry Hargreaves advantageously handles the rôle of the Rev. Alan Tray; Mr Fred Elvin is an amusing and typical stage Irishman as Barney O'Reilly. Little Dot Moss, banjoist, vocalist, and dancer, who finds favour as Hannah Spry, was given on Friday night a complimentary benefit.

EMPIRE PALACE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr Richard Thornton; General Manager, Mr Frank Allen; Resident-Manager, Mr Geo. F. Thompson.—Herman Melot, the wonderful conjuror, notwithstanding his previous visits here, proves as mystifying as ever, the large audience being kept in an excellent mood by his undoubted ability. Some bright coon songs and dances are submitted by the Juma Ostoroons; Francis and Melli, in a funny musical act, are responsible for hearty laughter; the boxing feats of Ben Harris's pair of midgets are novel and enjoyable; J. K. M'Farlane is an entertaining Scotch comedian; the Larells submit a good bar act; the American Bioscope, as on past occasions, is excellent. May Tyler, comedienne, and Geo. Bernard are the remaining turns.

TIVOLI.—Proprietors and Managers, Councillor J. K. Hall and Mr Jos. Sweeney.—Downey's living pictures are admittedly the turn of the week. Barton and Franklin are entertainers of a varied and distinct style; M'Askell provides some appreciative comic juggling; and the bill also includes Cissy Curlett, Chas. Milner, Bardon, and Walker and Legg.

STAFFORD.

LYCEUM THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr Jas. Elphinstone.—Mr Gus Levaine's pantomime Sinbad the Sailor is here for the week. The title-rôle is played with dash by Miss Kitty Bishop; Miss Elsie Ide is a charming Prince Izor; Miss Flo Richardson a dainty Fatima; and Mr Ernie Clyde has a good opening for his acrobatic eccentricities as Tiabad. Messrs Charles Arnett and Tom Ashby are full of rollicking fun; Mr Edward Haswell portrays Captain Kettle capably; Mrs Sinbad is a humorous delineation by Mr Charles Howard; and the Princess Izza is played with grace by Miss Marie Harding.

ST. HELENS.

THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE, LIMITED.—General Manager, Mr M'Leod Loader.—The Moody-Manners opera company, under the management of Mr J. St. Clair, is paying a return visit here. On Monday Tannhäuser was presented with the greatest success. Elizabeth was finely played by Miss Enriqueta Crichton, her acting and vocalisation being excellent; Mr Edward Arthur scored a distinct success as Tannhäuser; Mr T. H. Wood's bass voice sounded to great advantage in the music of the Landgrave; and in Wolfram Mr Walter Barrett found a part well suited to him. The choral work, under the bâton of Mr Harrison Frewin, was enthusiastically applauded. On Tuesday Faust, with Mr Charles Carter in the title-rôle, Miss Teify Davies as Siebel, and Miss Crichton as Marguerite, was thoroughly enjoyed. Other operas included in the programme are La Traviata, Lohengrin, Carmen, Cavalleria Rusticana, Pagliacci, and The Bohemian Girl.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs Barrasford, Sley, and Willmot; Manager, Mr A. Vic Carnell.—Mr Charles Majilton and company in Round the Clock head the bill here this week. Mr George Formby, comedian, repeats his former successes. Others in an excellent programme are Mr George Neno, comedian; the Hamiltons, vocal comedy artistes; Ambey Brothers, dancers and acrobats; Mr T. W. Royal, clog dancer; and Lachie Thompson's Top-weights (Tom and Nell).

STOCKPORT.

NEW THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr Charles Revill; Acting-Manager, Mr Wm. Revill.—The Stockport Garrick Society is occupying the boards here this week, presenting The Rivals and The Merry Wives of Windsor, under the direction of Mr Ryder Boys.

OHMY'S CIRCUS.—This establishment reopened on Monday, under the lesseeship of Messrs Davenport, with an array of talent of an excellent character, which includes Tom Atroy, a clever juggler and hoop manipulator; the well-known Hanneford equestrian quartet; and the amusing acrobats, Turle and Turle, among others.

STOCKTON-ON-TEES.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietress, Mrs Weldon Watts; General Manager, Mr Sidney Bacon; Acting-Manager, Mr R. G. Elder.—Mr C. P. Levilly's company in the pretty comic opera Amorelle opened here on Monday. As Dr. Napoleon Bonaparte Crow Mr Leon Simkins is responsible for much humour; Mr Arthur Elwin's Count of Cideaux is done in a refined way; Mr Arthur Cozens as Jules acts in a pleasing style and sings artistically; Mr Arthur Granby's François is also good; and Mr George Paulton's Harpagon is marked with much realism. As Dotard Mr Fred Carrington helps a good deal to keep the mirth moving; Amorelle is daintily acted and sung by Miss Dot Stephens; and Miss Ada Grey's Lesbia is cleverly impersonated. Miss Carlotta Blondin's Marina is humorously sustained, and the rest of the cast and chorus work in a way which leaves little to be desired.

GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr J. Batty; Manager, Mr W. Batty.—Some very good turns figure in the bill here, and good business is the result. The principal items include the Mackweys, in their bustling acrobatic knockabout act; the De Breans, in a Japanese juggling and shadowgraph show; the O'Malleys, funny patterers, &c.; and Katie Laurence, who successfully renders several catchy ditties. The bill also includes Joe Humphrey, comedian; Cora Grey, a good ballad vocalist; Weston and May, in their vocal sketch Married Life; Dave M'Neil, comedian; and Payne's Bio.

STOKE.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr T. Allan Edwardes; Manager, Mr H. F. Miller.—Mr T. Allan Edwardes, of the Grand Theatre, Derby; the Hippodrome, Grimsby; and Palace, Attercliffe, the present proprietor of this establishment, is presenting that clever and accomplished artist Miss Vesta Tilley, who on Monday had quite an ovation. Miss Tilley, in a neat speech, thanked her audience for their kind reception. The Ducros Trio, in a smart aerial act, are keenly appreciated; H. O. Wills, comedian, sings a screamingly funny song; the Belmonts are track cycle riders of much daring and ability; Bayne and Hope are seen in a capital sketch, An Emperor's Divorce; Flo Varley is a smart comedienne; the Electrones, in a comedy cycle act, are both amusing and clever; and Dan Kennedy, Irish vocalist, is much appreciated.

STOURBRIDGE.

ALHAMBRA THEATRE.—Manageress, Miss Maude Lynton. — Go-Won-Go-Mohawk, the American Indian actress, and company are paying a visit here with the drama written by herself, called Wep-tonno-mah. She greatly pleased the audience, and introduced the two Indian horses which in no small degree contribute to the success of the drama. The antics of Messrs Guy D. Hackney, Dan Ryan, and Miss Jessie Hart gained rounds of applause. Miss Minnie Goepel was a pleasing Nellie Stockton, and Mr C. W. Charles was good as Colonel Stockton. Mr George Courtenay was an efficient villain in the rôle of Manual Lopes, and mention should also be made of Messrs Isaac Shawcross and Theo Alker.

SUNDERLAND.

AVENUE THEATRE. — Proprietors, Sunderland Theatres, Limited; Managing-Director, Mr Chas. E. Machin; Business Manager, Mr Percival Craig.—Mr Machin's fifteenth annual will "ring down" its final curtain to-night, after a six weeks' run. Miss Louise Willis has worked assiduously as the hero, and her various solos have all been rendered with great verve and culture. Miss Jessie Merrilees' Alice has also been pleasing, her vocalism having been favourably received. Miss Kitty Upton's Prince of China has been conspicuous as well as meritorious, and Miss Marion Scott's Princess Nicey Piecy deserves the plaudits invariably given. Miss Daisy Weston's dancing is smart and tricky, her petite personality proving exceedingly taking. Mr Wm. Vestor has during the past week successfully sustained the rôle of Idle Jack, and the Harrison Bros. also prove amusing. Considerable fun, although somewhat outside the limits of pantomime, has been caused by Zalmer, a local hypnotist. Tuesday's performance was marked for its festive character, presents of various kinds to the principals being the order of the evening.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, the Sunderland Theatres (Limited); Managing Director, Mr Chas. E. Machin; General Manager, Mr Percival Craig.—The King's Pardon is the attraction here this week. Mr Chas. Whitlock gives a vivid portrayal of Clifford Yorke, and Mr Charles Stirling makes a successful Noel Blake. Mr Charles E. Leicester is excellent as Spence Broughton, and Mr Harry Belford is most amusing as Major Dobbs. Miss Georgina V. France is pleasing as Barbara Yorke; Miss Pollie Denville is a bright and charming Phyllis; and Miss Violet B. Clarke leaves little to be desired as Marjorie Yorke.

PALACE THEATRE.—Proprietors, the Sunderland Palace, Limited; Managing Directors, Messrs Livermore Bros.; Acting-Manager, Mr G. V. Wybrow.—The principal feature here this week is Fred Harcourt, magician and illusionist, whose various tricks are deservedly applauded. An excellent turn is that of the Five Sisters Warren, acrobatic and trick cyclists. The Mezzettis, in their gymnastic act, receive a cordial welcome; Lillian Warren scores in her illustrated songs; Vasey and Ramsey contribute a clever comedy dancing act; the Sisters Olive prove themselves to be vocalists of exceptional merit; and Cliff and Kean, comedy artistes; Alf Chester, comedian; and Vernon's animated pictures also contribute to the entertainment.

SUTTON-IN-ASHFIELD.

KING'S THEATRE.—Proprietors, Sutton Theatre Syndicate; Manager, Mr Edward Gray.—Miss Frances Delaval and company are playing here The Biggest Rogue on Earth. Mr Percy Carne Waram as Derrick Knight gives a masterly rendering; Miss Frances Delaval as Naomi Belvedere, the music-hall star, succeeds in gaining applause; Miss Patty Groves portrays Mother Hawke most effectively; Mr Evan Roberts does good work in the juvenile character; and the singing and dancing of Miss Sybil Hammersley gain well-merited approval.

SWANSEA.

GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs David Allen and Sons, Limited; Lessees and Managers, Messrs E. Oswald Brooks and J. W. Woodbridge; Resident Partner, Mr E. Oswald Brooks.—The Negro musical comedy, In Dahomey, by the Negro composer, Mr Will Marion Cook, with its coloured company, has been a big attraction here during the week. Specially responsible for this are the antics, singing, and smart dancing of Mr Dan Avery and Mr Chas. Hart, who as Rareback Pinkerton and Shylock Homestead are the life and soul of the piece. Worthy of mention also are Miss Pauline Freeman (Rosetta Lightfoot) and Miss Laura Bowman (Cecilia). Mr Oscar Hanke is the musical director.

NEW STAR.—Lessee and Manager, Mr T. Morton Powell; Acting-Manager, Mr William Coutts.—The attraction at this house during the week has been Mr Lingford Carson's thrilling drama, The Heart of a Hero, played by Messrs Carson and Granville's company, under the personal direction of Mr Charles E. Johnson.

NEW EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr Albert Mitchell.—An excellent programme provided here this week includes Happy Fanny Fields, as amusing as ever; Harriet Vernon, who again charms everybody; the Alfonso Trio, in a novel and clever juggling turn; Carrie Laurie's juveniles, who are warmly applauded; O'Gust, the artistic and clever mimic; Alf Gibson, the popular and quaint comedian; Ethel Ra Leslie, a capital character vocalist; the Bohemians, clever musical and comedy artistes; Charles Deane, comic; and the Brothers Horne, in their boxing sketch.

PALACE.—Musical Director, Mr P. H. Smith.—The following are the engagements at this house for the current week:—The Bensons, American duettists; Arthur Stacey, top-boot dancer; Dora Clifford, comedienne; Minnie Dare, dainty dancer; Tom P. Carroll, comedian and dancer; the Palace pictures; Jack Hyder, coster comedian; and Augustine and Hartley, barrel jumpers.

WALSALL.

HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE, LIMITED.—General Manager and Secretary, Mr W. H. Westwood.—The pantomime Aladdin opened here last week, and is still attracting large audiences at each performance, matinées included. The company is a capable all-round one. It is a decidedly good pantomime, with plenty of fun, crisp jokes, capital songs, neat dancing, and effective scenery. The artists work hard. The music has been composed and arranged by Mr Frank Bradsell, and the dresses are bright and effective.

GRAND THEATRE, LIMITED.—General Manager and Secretary, Mr W. H. Westwood.—Messrs Preston and Doherty's company, under the direction of Sydney C. Cranston and Sidney Dench, is appearing here this week in The Rich and Poor of London. Mr Sidney Dench wins much popularity by a powerful rendering of Spider Jack, a performance in which he exhibits considerable versatility. Miss Dora Dench is prominent with a capital portrayal of May Braithwaite. Miss Marie Mamey displays skill and power as the adventuress, Ruby Redgrave. Other parts are adequately filled, and the drama is carefully staged.

WEDNESBURY.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr Harry Battersby; Acting-Manager, Mr W. J. Cranston.—Mr T. Morton Powell's company, in The Greed of Gold, is paying us a return visit here this week. Mr Carthage Caldeleugh gives an artistic rendering of Harry Wood; the rôle of Arthur Errol is powerfully portrayed by Mr Charles Coleman; Mr Walter M. Cameron as Cull Snig, a tipster, creates much amusement; the part of Conn Creamer is characteristically rendered by Mr H. Creamer; Mr B. Fox gives an able embodiment o' Tom Wolstead, the dumb man; as Dora Miss Daisy Halling proves a decided success; Miss Grace St. John as Mrs Mary Maxwell does excellent work; and the rôle of Patty Mayfield is in the worthy hands of Miss Winnie Donovan. Miss Hetty Woods wins warm applause for her interpretation of Cecil.

WEST BROMWICH.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr J. P. Moore.—Mr T. Edward Ward's company in Her Fatal Past is playing here. Mr T. E. Ward in the part of Jonathan Buckstone Nobbs displays humour; Mr Percy Brown is all that can be desired in the character of Mark Desmond; Leonard Fernside is in the capable hands of Mr Bernard Dunstan; Mr Victor Mason is very successful as Dicky Bird; Miss Helen Ingelow shows talent as Bella De Lara; and Miss Ward's Honor Symes displays that lady's talent to the utmost. Little Holly Haslewood gives a childlike rendering of the part of Little Leonard, and Miss Marguerite Thorne is excellent as Martha Springwell.

WAKEFIELD.

ROYAL OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors, Sherwood and Co.—Messrs Beaudyn and Livesey's company, in the melodrama A Traitor Prince, is appearing here this week. Mr G. M. Montanini gives a powerful rendering of Prince Rao; Mr Alex. Temple submits an able rendering of Lieutenant Frank Derrick; Mr E. Carter Livesey keeps the house in extremely good humour as Billy; Mr Austen H. Longford scores in the dual-parts of Richard Vane and Colonel Vane; and Mr William Artrand is efficient as Kara. Miss Lilian Roseberry admirably sustains the part of Lolo Vane; Miss Beatrice Western is effective as Vashti; Miss Cissie Cleveland is vivacious as Pansy; and Miss Jane Massey makes a impression as Mrs Blossom.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, the Wakefield Hippodrome, Limited; Manager, Mr Geo. S. Douglass.—Mr Herbert La Martine, eccentric dancer and bâton manipulator, meets with hearty appreciation in his smart turn; Miss Mill May is a clever protean artiste; Mr Matt Wilkinson and company present an interesting sketch entitled That French Woman; the Solari Duo, a couple of lady instrumentalists, win favour; Renson and Waite are an amusing comedy couple. Other engagements are Mr Bob Pearson, vocalist; Miss Lily Pender, comedienne; Miss Violet Beatrice, ballad vocalist; and Walter Payne's Bio-photoscope.

WALTHAMSTOW.

KING'S THEATRE.—For the current week the management rely upon a very excellent performance of Mr Sydney Spencer's drama The Stolen Birthright; or, A Father's Sin, and the company engaged in its exploitation is that of Messrs Charles Draycott and H. B. Peppin. The play, the scene of which is laid in Rome about the beginning of the nineteenth century, is of absorbing interest, incident following incident with startling effect. Mr Charles Draycott plays Count Marco Taddeo, the Prefect of Police, and, generally speaking, "the villain of the piece," in admirable style. About Mr Draycott's villainy there can be no doubt. A fine breezy interpretation of Andrea Celsi, Prince of Naples, is given by Mr Robert Watson, whose handsome presence and ringing voice make every line of an arduous part tell with effect. Mr H. B. Peppin scores all along the line as Prince Antonio, while Miss Lilian Watson Loyde as Miranda plays with mingled grace and distinction. Miss Maud Hetherington is a bright and vivacious Nita. The other characters in a long cast are carefully played by Messrs F. Aldworth, Henry Monte, Frank G. Kent, G. Forde Road, Oswald Oldham, J. H. Smith, Henry Hazell, and S. A. Sewell; and Miss Alma Henson. The costumes are particularly brilliant, and the general mounting of the play leaves no excuse for cavil. The theatre orchestra, under the direction of Mr Sheridan Gordon, does full justice to the incidental music.

WARRINGTON.

ROYAL COURT.—Proprietors, Messrs W. Johnson and J. Potter; General Manager, Mr J. Potter.—Mr Peter Thompson's pantomime company is here this week, and a hearty reception has been accorded The Babes in the Wood. Miss Maude Beaumont as Robin Hood scores well, acting with a dash and go which wins for her many admirers. She possesses a capital voice, and is nightly encored. Miss Molly Hackett is a charming Maid Marion, and Miss Katie Leon scores as Blue Bell, the good fairy. Mr J. Templar Ellis is an amusing Baron, and the Danbys as the two ruffians are eccentric in every detail. The Sisters Grahame as Bertie and Cissie, the two babes, are well received, and in several duets their voices blend admirably. Miss Fannie Humber is a dashing Will Scarlet, and Miss Nellie Hilton does well as Little John. Miss Minnie Moran as Dorothy Dimple, Miss Rosa Walmsley as Polly Primrose, and Mr Willie Barrett as Simple Pimple complete an excellent cast. The specialities are exceptionally good, including Herman Urquhart, foot equilibrist; the Yankee Quartet of vocalists; Miss Rosa Walmsley, skipping-rope artist; Little Renee, male impersonator; the Danbys, Hungarian dancers; and Fannie Humber, musical speciality. The musical director, Mr Arthur Lester, has under his control a capable chorus.

ROYAL THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietors, Messrs W. Johnson and J. Potter; General Manager, Mr J. Potter; Director of Amusements, Mr Willmot.—Good business is again done here, and a capital programme is sustained by Ward and Adams, eccentric comedians, Coram, ventriloquist; Emma Don and company, sketch artists; Alf Farrell and Harry Hilton, comedians; Bert Holmes, vocalist; Carne Curre and his remarkable dog; and the Royal Bioscope.

WEST HARTLEPOOL.

GRAND.—General Manager (for Mrs Weldon Watts), Mr Sidney Bacon; Resident Manager, Mr Fred Conneaux.—Mr Frank Macnaghten's pantomime, Robinson Crusoe, upon this, its second week, retains the reputation it gained last week. Mr Frank Cork continues to be popular in his song, and the fun of Mr Jack Foley as Dame and Harris and Worth as Sammy and Dick is maintained, and a duet by Miss Louie Hurman as Crusoe and Mr Harry Morgan as Friday finds appreciation.

PALACE.—Director-General, Mr Frank Macnaghten.—Crowded houses nightly fully appreciate the attractive fare provided this week. Heading the list are the Glenroy Troupe of national dancers, whose smart and graceful exhibition earns well-deserved applause. Selbo's club and plate manipulations are clever. The Anglo-Dutch eccentricities of Reilly and Taylor are exceedingly funny. Some well-trained terriers are put through a remarkably smart performance under the direction of Mdlle. Frederico. The triple bar act by the Walonells is clever and amusing. Well-marked appreciation is shown for Frances Haskoll's illustrated songs, and the Clarks' banjo selections are an exceptional treat. Palliser's Bioscope completes the bill.

WEST STANLEY.

THEATRE ROYAL, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr Mark H. Lindon.—Mr J. F. Elliston's company is here this week with In Old Kentucky. Miss Amy F. Hermanns is a realistic Madge Brierley, and as Frank Harley Mr George Steel is equally good. Miss Beatrice Shirley is a bright, capable Barbara Grafton; as Alethea Harley Miss Edith Halford is all that can be desired; Mr A. S. Bankes does justice to the part of Colonel Beauchamp; and as Jasper Grafton Mr Eric Hudson is well placed.

VICTORIA THEATRE. — Proprietor, Mr T. C. Rawes; Resident-Manager, Mr D. Williams.—Mr Bert Coote and company are fulfilling a six nights' engagement here in The Fatal Wedding. Mr Herbert Humber as Howard Wilson does well; and as Robert Curtis with the artistes at the Hippodrome and Spargo, the Lancashire musical athlete, gave a very acceptable miscellaneous performance at the Hippodrome in aid of the Mayor of Wigan's Poor Relief Fund.

GRAND THEATRE AND HIPPODROME. — Proprietors, the Wigan Entertainments Company; Managing-Director, Mr J. Worswick.—The Seven Savonas, musicians, and the Six Cycling Elliotts, continue their engagements for another week. Wragg and Wragg, dexterous swordsmen; Florence Platt, vocalist; Hilton and Hilton, clever and amusing gymnasts; Frank Cumminger, world's record sand dancer; and Steel and Laing, in their novel acrobatic and dancing speciality, are well received. Harry Edson's intelligent dog, Doc, performs some exceedingly clever tricks. Fatma Daird, American prima donna, sings in fine soprano voice and with excellent method. Loudoun Cameron, conjuror, and W. H. Morgan, vocalist, add to a first-rate programme.

EMPIRE MUSIC HALL.—Manager, Mr W. Birchall. —The Cedrics, in a new act; R. C. Note, character comedian; Miss Daisy Devonport, comedienne and dancer; and Miss Flo Windsor are popular. Droll and Dryan, comedians and burlesque artistes; Miss Nellie Arnold, comedienne; Geo. Raper, comedian; and Wood and West, American comedy couple, complete the list of artistes in a good all-round company.

WOLVERHAMPTON.

GRAND THEATRE.—Lessees and Managers, Mr E. H. Bull and Mr Milton Bode; Acting-Manager, Mr Percy Percival.—A second visit of Mr George Dance's company in A Chinese Honeymoon is being highly appreciated by local audiences. The representation is in the hands of an excellent company, which includes Mr Philip Haydn in an admirable impersonation of Hang Chow; Mr P. Allerton Turner, who does well as Chippi Chop; Mr Percy Yorke, who makes a capital Tom Atherton; Mr Fred Payne, a good Hi Lung; and Mr Foster Courtenay, whose impersonation of Mr Pineapple is most diverting. Miss Vera Vere takes the part of Fifi, and her delineation is both clever and amusing; Miss Nellie Wigley is a charming Soo-Soo, her singing being good; Miss Jose Collins is an attractive Mrs Pineapple, dancing in capital style; Miss Alice Drummond is an effective Mrs Brown; and the remaining parts are well filled.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Managing-Director, Mr Chas. Barnard; General Manager, Mr W. H. Lennon.—The Brothers Artois, who head the bill this week, give a clever performance on the parallel bars; Kitty Clover and company are seen in a sketch, entitled Not a Word; and the other items in the programme include Stylo, hoop manipulator; the Wedburns, comedians; Silent Tait, "komical konjuring quaker;" Hurman, unique juggler; Beatrice Bonnie, comedienne; Saxo, musician; and Mattie Crawford, skipping rope dancer.

PRINCE OF WALES'S THEATRE AND HIPPODROME. —Sole Lessees, Mr Fred Benton and Mr Fred J. Little; General Manager, Mr Fred Benton.—This week's entertainment is provided by Vesto, king of the air; Chevalier Crowther, swordsman, retained from last week; Clowns and other variety artistes; while a special attraction is provided in a representation of Dick Turpin's Ride to York, which gives occasion for a capital display of horsemanship.

WORCESTER.

NEW THEATRE ROYAL —Lessee, Mr Arthur Carlton; Manager, Mr Louis Karpe; Assistant-Manager, Mr H. Wards.—Mr James Kiddie's capital company is appearing here in Dick Whittington. Miss Bessie Willow as Dick plays and sings very well, and possesses a fine figure. Miss Leah Laurie as Alice sustains the part admirably. Knockabout fun is provided by Clifton and Gibson, and the Sisters Kilner and the La Belle Troupe of Parisian dancers win much applause in the ballet scenes. Mr W. V. Vida is an agile cat, and Miss Meta Anderson, the fairy, sings finely.

PUBLIC HALL.—Mr Arthur Carlton is experimenting with a two-shows-a-night variety entertainment at the Public Hall this week, for which he has engaged the Spanish Goldena Troupe, the Lestard Clowns, the Monas, the Mezondas, Miss Elsie Croft, Will Dalton, and other well-known performers, with a series of animated pictures.

WORKINGTON.

OPERA HOUSE.—Manager, Mr Stanley Rogers.—H. J. Callan and Wentworth Croke's company presented Florodora on Monday to a large audience. Mr C. Y. Fixett was good as Gilfain; Mr Wm. Everard sang and acted well as Frank; Mr A. Lenville was humorous as the showman; Mr F. Graus was popular as Arthur; and Miss V. Leslie was graceful as Dolores, her singing being artistic. Lady Holyrood as impersonated by Miss Cissie Sephton was charming, and her singing, acting, and dancing caused her to be loudly encored. Miss May Yates was an attractive Angela.

WORTHING.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager, Herr C. Adolf Seebold.—The new musical comedy Miss Mischief occupies the boards here this week, being successfully presented by Mr Godfrey Lamplugh's excellent company. Mr T. E. Conover as Private Harris, V.C. is the life and soul of the piece, working indefatigably from start to finish. Mr Cecil Curtiss as Captain Jack Bethune possesses a fine presence and an excellent voice, and soon installs himself a general favourite. Mr Fred Sandy as Hiram Peg, M.S.A., presents a typical American. Mr Fred Mantell as Lord Percy Fitzsherry portrays the character of a dude admirably, causing much laughter. Mr Arthur Jenner is good as Admiral Sir H. Bethune, and Mr H. Ellesmere scores as Count Von Himmelbleau. Too much praise cannot be bestowed upon Miss Evelyn Hughes as Kitty Malone, her singing and dancing being greatly appreciated. Miss Criselle Frances as Mary Ann Smith, maid to Kitty, successfully enters into the spirit of the part. The chorus, under the able direction of Mr Spencer Dickenson, acquit themselves admirably.

YORK.

ROYAL.—Lessees, Messrs Waddington; Acting-Manager, Mr T. H. Barrow.—The Milton-Rays' pantomime company opened on Monday in Beauty and the Beast. Mr Rolando Martin as Sammy causes much diversion and is an expert dancer. Mr George Rydon is a comedian of the first rank. Sir Mackintosh Mizzletoe in his hands is a most amusing personage. Mr Rydon's impersonation is of unusual excellence. Miss Maidie Scott is a great success as Silver Button. Petite and pretty, this clever little lady finds great favour. Miss Nellie Merton is a dainty Beauty whose efforts are greatly appreciated, and Miss Maude Jay looks and acts well as the Prince. Specialities are introduced by the Four Eldorados, the Hayes Brothers, Fyne and Hurley, and Wallau, who as a juggler claims first rank.

OPERA HOUSE AND EMPIRE —Managing-Director, Mr Wm. Peacock; Acting-Manager, Mr Sidney Brooks.—The Tokio Troupe are a great attraction here this week. The Smythsons in their sketch are exceptionally clever, and Cavern and Cave in their comedietta are also good. The Lannons are duettists and dancers of acknowledged merit; and Henri, the boy juggler, is received with applause. Marie Gibson sings well, the Comedy Quartet are unique in their business, and Signor and Madame Louie are somnolists of a high order.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

EDWARD CRACHY.—The song you refer to was called "La-di-da," and it was written by Mr E. V. Page We believe it was first sung by Miss Nellie Power.

B. HALDANE.—As far as we know, but we cannot say for certain, the title has not been used. A drama entitled The Seal of Silence was produced some time ago.

T. W.—Mr Harry Randall played the Widow Twankey in Aladdin, at the Camden Theatre from Boxing Night, 1902, onwards. At the end of February he played in The Babes in the Wood at the Prince of Wales's, Liverpool.

D. D.—The Notorious Mrs Ebbsmith was produced by Mr John Hare at the Garrick March 13, 1895.

PERCY.—The Light that Failed, produced at the Lyric, Feb. 7, 1903, was transferred on April 20 to the New Theatre, where it ran till June 20.

T. K.—Carlo Valerio, a tight-rope dancer, was killed while performing in Cremorne-gardens, Jan. 23, 1863.

CAMBSIDER.—Jim the Penman was produced at the Haymarket on the afternoon of March 25, 1886, and went into the evening bill at that theatre on April 3, same year

J. (WINDSOR).—See the County Court officials or the solicitor who acted for you on the former occasion.

W. K.—You must yourself make the inquiries. We cannot undertake to do so

OLD STAGER.—The event you refer to occurred at the Aston Opera House, New York, May 7, 1849

MATER.—Perhaps if you put the matter before a magistrate he will instruct an officer of the court to call upon the lady

W. MARDEN.—At a copyright performance the play must be given as it is to be presented, that is as regards dialogue and situations. You must not "multiply copies" of a novel by taking the dialogue thereof wholesale. See the case of Mrs Hodgson Burnett v Seebohm re Little Lord Fauntleroy. If the author could show that anyone had taken his material he could proceed against the taker under the Little Lord Fauntleroy decision.

A. J.—Miss Mary Anderson revived The Winter's Tale, at the Lyceum, on Sept. 10, 1887. Macready staged it in 1843. James Anderson in 1850 and Chatterton in 1878, with Charles Dillon as Leontes, Edward Compton as Florizel, and Miss Wallis as Hermione. These three revivals were at Drury-lane. Phelps gave a notable revival at Sadler's Wells in 1845. Charles Kean's revival was given at the Princess's in 1856.

MR C. D. LEIGH, the popular acting-manager of the Royal Opera House, Leicester, who has worked so hard in making the Saturday afternoon matinées at that establishment such a success, has been visiting the larger country towns in the shire in order to bring to the attention of country families the fact that by travelling a very few miles they can attend a first-class theatre, see a first-class show, and be at home again for tea. The idea of Mr Leigh's seems to have worked wonders, as the Opera House is now gaining a big county matinée clientèle of the very best people, many of whom have expressed their thanks personally to Mr Leigh for the trouble he had taken. Leicester, which at one time was a "heart-breaking" matinée town, now promises to become one of the best in the provinces.

SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 4, 1905.

IN THE LIONS' DEN.

The grand old showman who is now lying painfully ill at his fine farm at Finchley has the sympathy, not only of his brethren "on the road," but of many in the dramatic and variety professions. To Lord GEORGE SANGER the nomadic, out-door life, with all its hardships, is, so to speak, the very breath of his nostrils. With all his wealth, GEORGE SANGER is ever uneasy in summer-time unless he is travelling. As the spring days lengthen the veteran showman, like the hero of Le Chemineau, hears the country "a-calling;" and he has to answer to the call or mope and pine. There is a fascination about the showman life which is felt even by outsiders. As we stood not very long ago in the immense shed in which Lord GEORGE SANGER stores his wild animals in the "off-season," we were keenly sensible of the spell. In the centre, round a blazing fire, stood in a circle a magnificent group of elephants. A grand old lion lay in a cage almost at our elbow; shaggy, indistinct shapes were dimly perceived in the distances; quaint goats and strange sheep wandered and browsed amongst the wheels of the vans; and, in the dim light in the interiors of these, pairs of green eyes glowed mysteriously. The methods of training wild beasts, too, are full of interest; and each creature has a character and an individuality of its own. One animal may be of a heavy, phelgmatic disposition; another may be slow and stupid; a third subject to fits of unreasonable and ungovernable rage; another curious and inquisitive, making him incessantly restless; another nervous and timid; and yet another will show a fussy and irritable nature, and refuse to perform unless all the circumstances are just as he considers they should be.

All sorts of ideas are current as to the "cruelty" used in training lions to perform in public. As a matter of fact, for six weeks the trainer devotes himself entirely to winning the confidence of the animal. The trainer, and the trainer alone feeds him, and attends to his little comforts. When a certain entente cordiale is established, the cub—if it is a cub born in captivity—is rubbed and stroked with a stick till he comes to take a delight in the caress. Then the hand is used to pat and stroke the young lion. If, however, the animal is full-grown, he is collared and chained after a preliminary process of conciliation, and the trainer enters the den and "improves the acquaintance." It will surprise many who have read of the use of "red-hot irons" &c., that the only weapons of defence which the trainer uses when he comes to deal with the lion unchained are a stout oak stick and a chair. Should the lion spring on the trainer, the latter turns the legs of the chair towards him.

The next stage is to edge the chair over until the man is near the beast, and to rub him with the stick, and then pat him. This goes on until all alarm and overt enmity have been eradicated. Then comes the instruction in his performance, obedience in which is rewarded with a small piece of raw meat. By first laying a stick on the floor, getting the lion to walk over it, and gradually raising it each time till he is obliged to jump, the foundation of his leaping lessons is laid; and so he is led on till he becomes an accomplished public performer. If a lion seize a keeper or a trainer, the best way to make him let go is to turn a hose on him. It stops his breath for a time, and he loosens his hold to gasp.

It will amuse most of our readers to be told that after a few appearances in public wild animals become "stage struck." They are stimulated by the applause of an enthusiastic house, and perform indifferently before a cold audience. They are also subject to "stage fright" before they become accustomed to the sight of the audience; and they then lose "their cues." They particularly dislike any change in the apparatus or the routine of their "acts," and resent it strongly. They do not, consequently, oppose "long runs."

The influence which the trainer has over his pupils depends entirely on the fact that they are kept in ignorance of their own power. So strongly do animal teachers realise this, that, should a wild beast, in play or by accident, seriously injure his master, the latter never lets him know what he has done. On one occasion, for instance, a lion named Wallace struck at Mr FRANK C. BOSTOCK, the celebrated animal trainer, in pure playfulness; and the claws went through high boot and clothing and became stuck in the thigh. The lion got frightened and pulled the claws out, together with a good-sized piece of flesh, causing intense pain. Yet the trainer showed no signs of being hurt, and quietly sent the lion back to his cage before summoning assistance. The lashes laid on the animal with the whip during performances are mere pretences, parts of the daily programme; and the growls and snarls they evoke are protests against being made to do something when the animal feels lazy. If, by accident, one of these light blows "lands" on some sensitive part of the body so that the animal is really hurt, it is very possible that he may be completely spoilt as a performer, may "strike work" permanently, or "go bad"—that is, become dangerous.

The resource shown by animal trainers is extraordinary. In 1889, when Mr BOSTOCK'S menagerie was at Birmingham, a very rebellious African lion jumped from his own cage into another to which he was being transferred with such force that he caused the waggon to move away upon its wheels. Then, seizing his opportunity, he sprang out and took to the streets. In his flight he passed the opening of a sewer, and jumped down it. As he made his way along the sewers of Birmingham he stopped at each man-hole to roar, driving some of the inhabitants almost crazy with terror. In order to avoid the riot which seemed imminent, Mr BOSTOCK conveyed a tamed lion to the mouth of the sewer, in a waggon covered with canvas. A pretence of capturing the fugitive was then made; the canvas was removed; and the harmless animal was taken back to the menagerie followed by a procession of thousands of reassured people, 40,000 of whom visited the show.

The real "Simon Pure," however, was still at large in the sewer, though luckily he had stopped roaring. Mr BOSTOCK, with three trusty henchmen, his big boarhound, and hundreds of policemen and sewer-men armed to the teeth, assembled at dead of night for the hunt. A cage was placed at the entrance of the sewer, and Mr BOSTOCK and his three men descended. In order to protect himself from a blow from the lion's paw, Mr BOSTOCK placed over his head a large iron kettle. This fell off, and made such a terrific noise when rolling and crashing down that the lion, who just finished a desperate fight with the boarhound, in which the latter was vanquished, turned tail and ran away. As he fled, he came to an eight-foot "drop," in falling down which he caught his hind legs in one of the slip-nooses which had been lowered from the various manholes to entrap him, and became suspended by his hind legs. Thus handicapped, he was still further bound, and was dragged by force to the cage.

On another occasion Captain BONAVITA, a well-known trainer, was exercising his lions in the arena in private, when the electric light went out, and he was left in darkness. He could hear the animals creeping nearer to him in the dark, ready for a spring. All he could do was to swing his stick round his head steadily, and when he hit something soft he knew that a lion had been close upon him. He kept the stick whirling till his arm ached, and he felt that he was on the point of fainting. Just as he was about to give up, the light "came on" again, and showed the animals about to attack him. The sudden glare, however, confused them. He had just strength to order them back to their cage and fasten the door, and then he collapsed entirely.

Lion-trainers smoke and drink very little; and positively dare not lead dissipated lives. In some curious, incomprehensible way, wild animals detect the loose-liver, and will not recognise his authority. If he loses the magnetic power called "nerve," his career as a trainer is better ended.

All must have admired the fine physique of animal trainers; but few, perhaps, realise the moral power which they have to exercise. If a trainer degenerates below a certain very high standard of coolness and courage, his life is at once in jeopardy. He is perforce a "very perfect knight;" and he must have that instinctive penetration into character which was the Napoleonic gift, so as to realise the complex nature of his pupils and act upon his perceptions. Animal trainers are born, not made. They are like artists; they adopt their vocation urged by a natural instinct. Mr FRANK C. BOSTOCK—to whose admirable information on the subject, adroitly compiled by Miss ELLEN VELVIN, we are indebted for the facts in this article—was brought up by his father for the Church of England, and was educated at Kelvedon College. But the hereditary gift was too strong, and he became one of our greatest lion-tamers and trainers. Modern wild beast training is both an art and a science; and one in which there are few proficients, because, besides intelligence, complete courage is one of the requisites of success. There can be no strain upon the nerves greater than that which is placed upon the man who, night after night, has to dominate a crowd of carnivora. Yet, considering the number of trainers, fatal accidents are remarkably few; and the percentage of death from this source is very much smaller than that from falls in the hunting-field.

Ein Gendarm	BRUNO WIBURGER

The performance for the first time in London of a drama by Gerhart Hauptmann is a theatrical event well calculated to interest a large number of English playgoers. The author of Rose Bernd has made a reputation as a dramatist by his powerful plays, illustrating for the most part the lives of the lower middle and the lower classes. The scenes in his plays are often sordid and repulsive, it is true, but their realism cannot be denied. He presents intensely vivid pictures from life; and though opinions may be divided as to whether certain subjects are suitable for stage treatment, the ability displayed by the author is generally acknowledged. The story unfolded in Rose Bernd is unpleasant, but the tragic elements in the life of a peasant girl are revealed with masterly power and perfect sincerity. Rose Bernd is engaged to be married to a bookbinder named Keil, who is respectable and religious, but does not shine as a young girl's lover. Rose, however, has been courted by Flamm, the hereditary "headman" of her village, and he would marry her but for the fact that he has a wife who is a hopeless invalid. The girl has a third admirer in Streckmann, a mechanician, and he, knowing of Rose's relations with Flamm, exercises such a terror over her that she becomes his mistress. But one day he loses his temper and insults the girl, and this leads to a quarrel between him and Keil. Streckmann strikes Keil, and is summoned for the assault. Rose takes a false oath, but both Flamm and Strickmann admit their relations with the girl. The painful story concludes with the confession made by Rose that not only has she sworn in court falsely, but that she has also murdered her child. The performance by the excellent company of German actors under the direction of Herr Hans Andresen and Herr Max Behrend was in all respects admirable, in spite of the fact that the important part of Frau Flamm was sustained at short notice by Fräulein Ida Weiss, owing to the sudden indisposition of Fräulein L'Arronge. She played the part with much charm of manner. The title-rôle was embodied by Fräulein Else Gademann, who scored a genuine artistic triumph in the part of the simple country girl. Herr Hans Andresen did well as Flamm, and Herr Adolf Walther admirably depicted Auguste Keil, the unfortunate lover, who was to have become the husband. Hauptmann's play will be performed every night until next Thursday evening, when Ludwig Fulda's Maskerade will be given for the first time in London.

MR. FRANK ROTHSAY'S BENEFIT.

The Stratford Borough Theatre presented quite a gala appearance on Thursday afternoon, the occasion being the annual complimentary benefit to the popular acting manager, Mr Frank Rothsay. All the higher-priced seats were well filled, and the pecuniary results must have been extremely gratifying to the bénéficiaire. The theatre was kindly lent for the occasion by Mrs Ellis Fredericks, and the whole of the staff at the back and front of the house, together with the orchestra, volunteered their services, as well as the artistes, with two exceptions, of this year's highly successful pantomime, The Forty Thieves. The first half of the entertainment was provided by the pantomime, and advantage was then taken by the bénéficiaire to say a few words of thanks to the artists for their services, and to those in front for their attendance. He told the audience that the enthusiasm with which they had received him filled him with diffidence as to how to express his feelings. He had been in Stratford eight years, and he told them that on remarking this fact to Mrs Ellis Fredericks on a previous occasion she expressed the happy wish that he would be with them another eight years. To use an appropriate quotation, he, like Myles-na-Coppaleen, could only say, "I'm a proud man to-day." As far as the pantomime was concerned they would be pleased to know that it was essentially a Stratford pantomime, all the scenery and properties having been designed and created in Stratford, and it was produced by a Stratford man, in the popular general manager, Mr Fred Fredericks. At the conclusion of Mr Rothsay's speech Mr Sam Fredericks appeared on the stage, and in the name of several of the pantomime artists and one or two friends, presented Mr Rothsay with a very handsome tea and coffee service as a token of esteem and regard. The following contributed towards the entertainment provided:—Band of the 4th V.B. Essex Regiment, conductor, Mr Thos. Bidgood; Miss Dolly Harmer, whom many remembered from previous Stratford pantomime triumphs; Mr Bransby Williams, who gave two well-contrasted poems; Miss Elsie Leslie, Miss Ethel Ashton, Mr Harry Paulton, whose drollery simply convulsed the audience; Mr Kennedy Allen, Miss Ethel Harry-Nash, Miss May Harry-Nash, Mr and Mrs Allan Wye, who presented an entirely new farcelet, What Happened to Watt, of which more will be heard in the future; Miss Muriel Vox; Miss Vere Gerald, who accompanied herself at the piano in two entertaining items; Miss Nellie Gladwell; Mr Edgar Romaine, in a new ditty, which has all the elements of success; Miss Rosie Sylvester, as dainty as ever, in "Johnny Number Two; Miss Daisy Webb, who had the able assistance of "Herr" Linforth, in "Sammy;" Messrs Condon and Preston; Mr Austin Melford, whose recitation was vociferously received; Mr Henri Cazman; and Master Avery. Much praise is due to Mr Arthur Linforth for his smart stage-management, and the front of the house was well looked after by Messrs Sam Fredericks, Bert Ashton, A. E. Barnes, Sam Silver, and G. N. Finlay.

THE Bandmann-Dallas opera company, which left England on Oct. 8 for the West Indies under the personal direction of Mr Maurice E. Bandmann, has met with great success at each place it has visited. Mr Bandmann has augmented the company to the strength of sixty, and it is now on its way from New York to open at the Teatro San Martin, Buenos Aires, on March 15. This will be the largest English company that has ever visited South America.

"HIS MAJESTY'S COASTGUARDS"

An Original Dramatic Sketch, by Edward Ranier. Produced at the Bow Palace on Monday, Jan. 23.

Harry Briant	Mr FRED MONTI
Tom Wilton	Mr ARTHUR BARNES
Stephen Helston	Mr HENRY WATSON
Warder King	Mr CECIL BARCLAY
Marie Helston	Miss ALICE MAUDE
Mat Marden	Mr EDWARD RANIER

The plot of this new sketch is briefly as follows:—Harry Briant and Tom Wilton, fast friends, fall in love with Marie Helston, who marries Harry. Tom, however, bears no malice. The sketch opens with Stephen Helston (Marie's father), who is living with his son-in-law, Harry Briant, meeting on Rockford Beach Mat Marden, a notorious smuggler and forger, with whom he had been connected in former days. Influenced by fear of Marden, he consents to help him steal some of the cargo from Harry's vessel. Tom Wilton, hearing a false account of the loss, as good as accuses his old friend Harry of being the thief, and the latter, in a sudden burst of temper, rushes at Tom. In the struggle Mat Marden, who has picked up Harry's knife, stabs Tom unseen, and Harry is accused of the murder. In the next scene—on the way to the prison—Stephen Helston and Marie contrive to free Harry from his handcuffs, and he very cleverly slips them on to Marden's wrists whilst the latter is taunting him with his misfortune. In the confusion Harry escapes with some of his shipmates, and the warders rush off with Marden in mistake. In the last scene, Mat Marden's house, justice is done by Stephen Helston denouncing Marden, and the latter is almost torn to pieces before being finally secured by the warders. The sketch was well acted throughout, and received, what it deserved, an unqualified approval from the packed audience. Mr Fred Monti was manly and earnest as the hero, a hasty tempered but good hearted sailor. Mr Arthur Barnes as Tom Wilton, his chum, deserved all praise for a piece of good acting, and Mr Henry Watson as Stephen Helston must be highly commended for his study of a repentant wrongdoer. The other parts were all well filled, and a special word must be given to Mr Edward Ranier, who contributed a very powerful delineation of the villain, and whose acting was one of the chief features of a very successful production.

NEXT week, the pantomime of Cinderella, so successfully produced by Mr Isaac Cohen at the Crown Theatre, on Christmas Eve, is to be the attraction at the Pavilion Theatre, Mile-end.

MR. HARRY TATE'S BENEFIT.

There was a crowded audience at the Marlborough Theatre, Holloway, on the evening of the 27th ult., when the clever and popular favourite comedian Mr Harry Tate, who plays the part of Abanazar in Aladdin, took his benefit. Besides giving his well-known imitations of Joe Elvin, George Robey, R. G. Knowles, and Harry Lauder, Mr Tate introduced three of his amusing sketches. First, he was the amateur golfer with a small "caddie" whose solid, half-contemptuous expression of face is alone responsible for much merriment. Next Mr Tate appeared as the "josser" fisherman who is in difficulties from the very beginning, and finally upsets the fishing punt, attendant and all. In this sketch much fun is caused by the man from whom a fly has been ordered, and by the youth who has a distinctly original, not to say primitive, method of catching fish. Finally Mr Tate caused renewed laughter by his impersonation of the gentleman whose motor breaks down, and is accused of furious driving by a policeman. The progress of the pantomime was frequently interrupted by extra turns. From Mr Purcell's Stoke Newington Theatre—the Alexandra—came Miss Winifred Hare who sang "Anona," assisted by the Canadian Comedy Four, with her usual charm of manner. Another visitor from the Alexandra was Mr Neil Kenyon, who gave his topical ditty, "Tra-la-la," with much success. Miss Vesta Victoria made a hit as the riding girl, and Miss Lottie Collins also scored with a song and dance. Kelly and Gillette, appeared in their clever act, "Fun on a billiard table," and were much applauded. Other special turns included Messrs Joe Elvin, Harry Lauder, and Phil Ray, each of whom met with a most enthusiastic reception. Every lady artist who appeared was presented with a bouquet of flowers. Miss Simeta Marsden played the part of Aladdin with much spirit, and Miss Nancy Langtyre was charming as Princess Badroulbador. Excellent work was done by Miss Elsie Roby as Cheekee, Miss Vera Marshall as Pekoe, the Vizier's son, and Miss Lizzie Daniels as Nicee. Mr George Brooks was comical and alert as Mrs Twankey, Messrs Rich and Rich were alert as the two policemen, and valuable assistance was given by Mr W. Fullbrook as the Grand Vizier and Mr J. W. Wilkinson as the Emperor of China. Miss Maisie Crichton and Miss Aubrey Ashton as the Genii of the Ring and the Lamp deserve mention. The grand jewell ballet was much admired, as was also the grand porcelain procession. Miss Lottie Stone's Royal Troupe of dancers came in for special recognition. There was a loud call for the beneficiaire at the final fall of the curtain, and he briefly thanked the audience, the company, the extra turns, the orchestra, and all who had contributed to the success of the benefit performance. Last night Messrs Rich and Rich took their benefit, when extra attractions were forthcoming. The pantomime finishes its successful run to-night, and is to be transferred in its entirety to the Crown, Peckham, for a fortnight.

GUILDHALL SCHOOL OF MUSIC.

The concert in the theatre on Wednesday evening was a good specimen of a students' concert and reflected credit upon those who took part in it. The pianoforte playing in particular deserved special commendation, beginning with Miss Dora Beeson, who in the famous Polonaise in E flat of Chopin proved herself a player of high merit. Few students would have done so well, either in mastering the graceful style of the composer or in executing the many difficult passages with which the polonaise abounds. Miss Gertrude Forrester was another Chopin player, but a few suggestions may be made in her case, chiefly respecting her future endeavours rather than with the idea of blame. Every performer naturally has a certain idea of style and tempo, but we think Miss Gertrude Forrester erred in taking Chopin's lovely Ballade in A flat so slowly. The composer himself used generally to condemn the pianists of his time for playing his works too fast, but Miss Forrester's tempo was slower than ordinary, and in consequence the ballade lost much vitality. Miss Florence Nightingale, who was heard in Chopin's Nocturne in C minor, played with considerable taste, and in "La Campanella," by Liszt, displayed much command of the keyboard. The violinista were to be commended. Miss Blanche Kettle produced a good tone, and her execution was neat and finished in the Romance of Max Bruch. Miss Maud Davidson gave the Adagio from the Suite in G, by Ries, the excellent violinist who for so many years assisted at the Monday Popular Concerts, and who wrote clever pieces for the instrument. The Adagio was given with taste and skill by Miss Davidson. Some excellent vocal contributions have to be chronicled. Miss Lilian Tooley succeeded well in "Beloved, it is morn," by Miss Aylward. Miss Nellie Major in "Che Faro," the famous air from Glück's Orpheus, sang carefully, but needed a little more dramatic expression. Mr Byndon Ayres, in his treatment of "Mary of Allen Dale" and "Phyllis," displayed a good voice and an unaffected style, and Miss M. Arnold deserved praise for her rendering of Bohm's "Still is the night." "From wave to wave," Edward German's clever song, was effectively rendered by Mr W. J. Dryden, and Miss Maud Kennedy did herself credit in "Peace and Rest," by Batten. A duologue, by James Dale, called A Lesson in Patience, concluded the concert. It describes a discussion between a youthful wife and her husband, the cross purposes of the young couple causing no little amusement. The author and Miss Ethel Gannon, pupils of Mr Allen Beaumont, played cleverly. Mrs Charles P. Smith exercised her customary care with the young ladies, and Miss Kate E. Ward accompanied admirably. The concert was warmly appreciated by a large audience.

HISTORY OF THE DRAMA.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

Sir,—Mr Louis N. Parker opened a discussion at South-place in the February of 1901, taking for his subject, "Should the Drama Instruct?" In the course of the discussion which followed I asked, in view of the fact that, in the absence of books, Elizabethan audiences looked to the play for instruction in history, if similar teaching could be supplied by our own dramatists. In his reply Mr Parker said he considered that this should be done by our best playwrights. He himself was willing, if an audience could be secured, to write a drama dealing with a historical London subject. Now we hear of the Sherborne pageant-play, written by Mr Parker, which will be performed in June, in celebration of the founding of that town 1,200 years ago. I congratulate the dramatist upon the redemption of his promise, but I am selfish enough to long for a London subject. A masque of the seventeenth century would, I believe, be certain to secure an audience.

Yours faithfully, ROBERT LAWSON,
62, Beaconsfield-road, Tottenham. Jan. 31.

MR EDITOR.—Sir,—With reference to Thomas Price, a young American, who was found in the flies of the Hyde Theatre, permit me to say that he was not a member of my Uncle Tom's Cabin company. He had been working on the stage as a scene-shifter during our stay at Warrington.

Yours faithfully, CHARLES HARRINGTON.

BROWN'S BRONCHIAL TROCHES.—All suffering from irritation of the throat and hoarseness will be agreeably surprised at the almost immediate relief afforded by the use of Brown's Bronchial Troches. People troubled with a hacking cough, a slight cold, or bronchial affections cannot try them too soon, as similar troubles, if allowed to progress, result in serious pulmonary and asthmatic affections. See that the words "Brown's Bronchial Troches" are on the Government stamp around each box. Sold by Chemists everywhere, 1s. 1½d. per Box.—[ADVT.]

MUSIC HALL GOSSIP.

The solution of the sketch question is still vexing the souls and trying the tempers of proprietors in the area of London theatredom, but a "way out" has been discovered in the outer Metropolitan district. At Richmond Theatre, which quite recently became a music hall worked on the popular plan of two houses a-night, The Belle of the Orient was presented by Mr J. Peterman and company without let or hindrance, because the house is being worked under a double licence. That for music and dancing has been granted by the Surrey County Council, and that for the drama by the Richmond Borough Council.

Thus a sketch for the production of which the Oxford was heavily fined can be quite legally given at a place ten miles away. At Walthamstow Palace, too, a legal status similar to Richmond obtains, and Mr A. J. Barclay, endowed with a dramatic and music hall licence, produced a pantomime during the Christmas season. To Mr Henry Gros, Mr J. L. Graydon, Mr G. A. Payne, or Mr Henry Tozer the plan of a double licence might commend itself in any future drafting of a bill to alter the present licensing system, and what is possible at Walthamstow and Richmond ought to be feasible at Fulham or Brixton, or even in the Edgware-road.

Miss Malie Lloyd, her many friends will be glad to hear, is a little better. On Monday Dr. Jackson Lang was called in, and he stated that the invalid would have to keep her bed another six or eight days, and have very careful attention. The popular little lady is more cheerful now that she knows that her enforced imprisonment in her room is not to last very much longer. There have been numerous inquiries concerning her from friends in all parts of the country, and among the callers last Sunday were Miss Vesta Tilley, Miss Lily Burnand, and Mr J. L. Graydon.

An extraordinary general meeting of the shareholders of the National Palace of Varieties, Croydon, will be held on Monday at Hummums' Hotel, Covent-garden, at half-past eleven when a resolution to confirm an agreement, dated Jan. 20, 1905, between the company and Mr Gardiner Hales and Mr Walter Gibbons for the purchase of the building by the latter gentleman will be put.

Mr Gus Elen, who will star at the Empires, Birmingham and Leeds, during the next fortnight, will motor to the Midland metropolis on Sunday, starting from his residence at Balham at about ten o'clock. The route will be viâ St. Albans, Dunstable, Fenny Stratford, Daventry, Coventry, and then Birmingham (about 120 miles). The popular comedian, who will be accompanied by Mrs Elen, hopes to arrive in Brum at 4·30 or 5·0 o'clock. He has driven his motor some 9,000 miles without mishap, and naturally hopes that the same good luck will continue for his next 9,000. It will not be for want of care.

The death is announced of Miss Sophie Burlette (Mrs W. Bryant), who passed away at Windsor, on Friday, the 27th ult. The deceased artiste, when in her teens, was one of the Oxford Four, principal dancers in the ballets produced there by Mr Paul Valentine in the eighties, and was one of Mrs Conquest's pupils, her contemporaries being Kate Vaughan and Alice Dunning, better known in the theatres as Miss Lingard, the original representative of Sister Mary, in the play of that name, and also of Pauline March, in Called Back, produced at the Prince's Theatre, May 20, 1884. Later in her career Miss Burlette became associated with principal parts in sketches produced at the halls by the late Mr Ambrose Maynard.

In these trifles Miss Burlette had as fellow-players Minnie and Dot Marlo, Johnny Hanson, Fred Williams, Annie Lyall, and Kate Seymour. She and Miss Lyall succeeded to the parts of the two servants originally represented by the Sisters Mario in the "Dromio" sketch, entitled Pepper and Salt, originally written round the twin Brothers Wems, who bore a striking resemblance to each other. The deceased lady was a most capable artiste and an excellent dancer. The remains were interred on Wednesday in Windsor Cemetery, and among those present to pay a last tribute of respect to her memory was Mr Henry Joyner. Much sympathy was shown by tradespeople of Windsor, where the deceased had resided for twelve years past.

Mr Fred Bowyer, the well-known pantomime writer, and part-author of The New Barmaid, has rewritten The Little Stowaway, the popular sketch which in his salad days he adapted from the late Mr Arthur Matthison's story. It was produced with a splendid model of the deck of an Atlantic liner at the Paragon in the late eighties by Mr G. A. Payne. Miss Jenny Hill scored one of the triumphs of her artistic career in the title-rôle. After a few nights it was found necessary to secure a good actor for the part of the Captain, the rôle being played in turn by Mr W. Farren, jun., Mr W. C. Day, and Mr A. C. Lilly.

Other actresses who have played the part since Miss Hill was taken from us in 1891 have been Miss Alice Maydue and Miss Claire Romaine. A grand production of the new version has been arranged for an early date in March at the Canterbury and Paragon, the scenery, dresses, and properties being all new. The sketch will be under the management of Mr George Abel and Miss Ethel Arder.

Giant Machnow, who will appear at the London Hippodrome, owing to the difficulties of transport, has been delayed on his journey from Berlin. He will arrive at Queenborough at 6·10 a.m. on Tuesday next, and, after two hours' rest, will be entrained for London. A special pantechnicon van has been chartered to convey him to the Hippodrome, where he will appear for the first time at the afternoon performance. The management of the Hippodrome have deemed it necessary to engage a staff consisting of twenty-one private detectives to keep a watch from the moment of his arrival until his departure from England. The precautions are very necessary, as the giant, being a Russian, may be subjected, at some opportune moment, to an unlooked-for indignity in the neighbourhood of Soho. Mr William Pierrepont, of 27, Chancery-lane, W.C., has been deputed chief of the surveillance party. The Brobdingnagian will hold a reception in the buffet, and, through his manager, will be pleased to answer all questions that may be put to him.

The monthly meeting of the Music Hall Sick Fund was held on Wednesday at the York Hotel, Lambeth. Mr Pat Carey (president) occupied the chair, and there were also present Messrs Frank Heath (hon. treasurer), W. J. Walnrath, Tom Carney, and J. Mulcaster. The secretary submitted a list of new rules, which, after some discussion, were approved, subject to their being passed by the registrar. The secretary reported that since the abolition of the compulsory medical examination of candidates and the extension of the age limit several new members had joined, and applications from music hall professionals for particulars of the society were coming in at a much increased rate. The chairman expressed his confidence in the future of the society, which he said stood upon a sound financial basis, and was becoming better recognised amongst the members of the profession as a going concern. It was to be hoped that in due time the society would receive the cordial support of some of the leading London and provincial music hall managers. The meeting closed with a vote of thanks to the chairman.

Selma Braatz is not at the Birmingham Gaiety this week, Mr Oswald Stoll having served an injunction. Tina Clementine, with her clever animal act, is retained from last week in her stead.

Mr J. C. Whiteman, general manager of the City Varieties, Leeds, took his annual benefit on Thursday and Friday last week, when the company was augmented by a formidable array of talented artistes from the local pantomimes and halls. One monster programme only was submitted each evening. The benefit at each performance was a huge success.

The Local Government Board have declined to sanction the application of the Brighton Town Council to borrow £12 000 in order that the Brighton Aquarium might be put into thorough repair and let on lease. In their letter to the Council the Whitehall authorities say that they cannot avoid the conclusion that the financial aspect of the matter was not sufficiently considered. The Council should seriously consider whether it would not be wiser to sell the undertaking. On Thursday the Council decided to ask Whitehall for sanction to borrow £16,000 in order to carry out the amended scheme, and emphatically refused by vote to sell the institution.

Dr. Walford Bodie has commenced his triumphal provincial tour, after his phenomenal success in London, at the Empire, Wolverhampton, where for the last two weeks he has been packing the large building twice nightly. On Saturday night at the conclusion of his performance he was recalled again and again, and the stage was literally strewn with flowers thrown by the audience. Despite the fact that it was his eighth visit he has again broken all records, and was offered two weeks' return; but could only accept one. This week he is playing to record business at the Queen's Theatre, Longton.

The Great Rubie (Mrs Walford Bodie), who is making a great hit in the London halls, had to cancel several of her engagements owing to an accident to her right shoulder, the ligaments being torn while she was introducing the electric duel with one of her mediums. She has gone to her Highland home in Macduff, where she will rest for a while, and will open again, as soon as she is well, in London at the West-end halls, with a big provincial tour to follow.

Mr Charles Coborn convened a meeting on Friday, 27th ult., at the Small Lecture Hall, Brown's Library, Liverpool, and explained the objects of the Music Hall League. A resolution sympathising with the new society's aims, and pledging the support of the artistes present at the meeting, was eloquently moved by Mr Harry Mountford, and seconded by Mr G. Jimson. Several well-known artistes were added to the provisional committee. Mr Charles Baldwin occupied the chair.

Fred Harcourt is meeting with phenomenal success in the provinces with his remarkable illusion, "The Mysterious Lilith," which is proving a big drawing card everywhere. The climax of the bewilderment of the audience is reached when this mysterious lady skips in mid-air. Fred Harcourt remains in the provinces till July, when he returns to London, opening at the Colliseum.

Mr Walter Stockwell, who is now starring as mine host of Thompson's Hotel, Bridge-street, Bristol, tenders his sincere thanks to the following for their kind telegrams and letters on his opening day. Among the Terriers good wishes were sent by Messrs W. Norman, Wright, Parsons, Olrac, Woodger, Lawrence, Woodrow, Rudolph Whiteley, Ben Whiteley, Softley, Flakey, King, Harvey, Maisner, Hough, Cornish, F. Neiman, Humphreys, Henderson, Spot, Katto, Packer, Nyman, A. Simmons, Harry Lester, Burnham, Hopter, Tom Tinsley, D. White, Tom Barton. The artistes and friends who joined in the congratulatory chorus were Hardeen, Mack, the Wedburns, Joe Elvin, Harry and Flora Blake, Horace Livermore, George Nelson, Fred and Clara, Nellie and Peggy, Fox, Hilda Maud, Heely, Mrs Wilson, Alice and Frank Haldyne, Donne, the Sivronis, D. Bentley, Horace Simms, and Ho'z.

The Hippodrome, Accrington, has become the property of Messrs Willmot, Vandy, Potter, and Weisker. After being closed for extensive alterations, it will reopen on the 13th with a strong company. The bookings are in the able and experienced hands of Mr Willmott.

The complimentary benefit accorded Mr George Dobler, the energetic acting-manager of the Belfast Imperial Hippodrome and Circus, on Wednesday, the 25th ult, was a great success. The crowded audience included the Lord Mayor and Lady Mayoress of Belfast and many officers of the West Yorkshire Regiment. A fine programme was provided of no less than twenty-five turns, including several local performers, and by kind permission of Messrs F. W. Warden, Charles Brock, and H. T. Downs the following artistes appeared:—Booker and Narbis, Stylo, Charles Diamond, Harry Lawson, Herbert Halpin, and Mr H. Keith. Mr Dobler (who, by-the-way, is a son of the late lamented Herr Dobler, the famous magician) has every reason to feel proud of his popularity in the Northern Capital.

The Tivoli announces a number of changes in the programme for next week, the chief novelties being Ovida and Ludine, a new and effective illusion, and Drawee, in an original comedy juggling act.

Mr Fred C. Ewing, on the occasion of h's leaving the position of acting-manager at the Tivoli Theatre, Glasgow, was the recipient of a handsome present in the form of a valuable dressing case. The presentation took place at the close of the performance on Thursday evening, the 26th ult., in presence of a large attendance of the staff of the house. Mr Walter Macdonald handed the gift to Mr Ewing, and made a few kind and complimentary references to that gentleman's ability, tact, and courtesy, and wished him continued prosperity. We understand Mr Ewing, who was deeply touched by the kindness of his Glasgow friends, has given up theatre management for the present, having been appointed to a good commercial position in the metropolis.

Mr Quinton Gibson, who has been running the Hippodrome, Scarborough, had an excellent benefit at that house on the 25th ult. For the first time in the history of the popular Yorkshire health resort, variety entertainments have been given nightly for nine months, and Mr Gibson has won a measure of success hitherto quite unknown in the town. Until he took the direction of the place it had always been closed during the winter months, and there is widespread regret that his tenancy has now ceased—through no fault of his own.

His bespeak drew an immense house, and the compliment was paid to Mr Gibson was thoroughly deserved. Further evidences of his popularity were forthcoming in valuable gifts—tokens of friendship showered upon him by Mr George Bernard, who spoke for Mr Gibson's kind friends in front and behind. A gold watch, suitably inscribed, came from Scarborough friends and artists; a very valuable claw-set diamond ring from Mrs Edward Earlsmere, Scarborough; a silver cigar-case from the staff; and a case of fish carvers from some lady friends. Mr Gibson, in his speech of thanks, said the presents would be a happy reminder of a successful and enjoyable tenancy of the Hippodrome, in which his efforts to meet the popular taste had been so eminently successful.

Mr Harry Bawn has been appointed the general manager for all Mr Walter Gibbons's music halls. No better man could have been entrusted with so responsible a position, and Mr Bawn's long experience both as variety entertainer and manager will stand him in good stead in the fulfilment of his new duties.

Mr H. Ketteman, the acting-manager of the Royal Music Hall, will say good-bye to his Holborn friends to-night, as the house is to be closed until October in order to allow of structural alterations. Mr Kettemann will be found installed as manager of the Grand, Clapham, on Monday.

Mr Edward William James, who has just been appointed to the management of the Duchess Palace, Balham, and started on his duties at that hall on Monday, was, until Saturday last, the acting-manager of the Grand, Clapham, under Mr Bawn. Mr James has been a comic singer in his time, and his commercial experience includes seven years with Messrs Spiers and Pond, Ltd. He was for some time the assistant manager of the White Hart Hotel, Windsor.

Mr Sam Mayo produced a new song entitled "Programmes" at the Royal on Wednesday. In this he has the assistance of a boy selling programmes among the audience. Just as Mr Mayo arrives at the pithiest part in each verse the youth cries out "Programmes!" Finally, in apparent disgust, the comedian buys the three remaining programmes from the boy; but shortly afterwards the lad reappears with his arms full of a fresh batch. The idea struck the audience as decidedly funny.

Miss Vesta Tilley made her first bow to a Potteries audience at the Stoke Hippodrome on Monday. She was evidently much touched at the exceptional warmth of her reception, and she voiced her thanks in the following words:—"Ladies and Gentlemen,—Allow me to thank you very much for your kindness, and to say how delighted I feel to think that on this my first appearance here you treat me to such a grand reception. I am very proud of your reception of me. During the week I trust I shall have the pleasure of introducing more songs to you, and I shall vary my programme as much as possible during my stay. Once more let me thank you, and may I remain ever your humble servant."

A committee has been formed to arrange a matinée at the Hackney Empire early in March next, in aid of the North-eastern Hospital for Children in the Hackney-road, of which Mr Leslie J. Stewart has been elected chairman. The handsome theatre has been placed at the service of the committee by Mr Oswald Stoll for the occasion entirely free of cost. Very generous assistance is being offered by the profession, and the event, being under the most distinguished patronage, promises to be a distinct success. The hospital has lately been in straitened circumstances, so much so that it is announced that some of the wards will have to be closed, and poor sick children turned away from its doors, unless substantial aid is immediately forthcoming.

A final reminder of the M.H.A.R.A. dinner an dance to-morrow at the Trocadero. Members and friends are requested to apply for their tickets at once, so that their seats can be reserved. Mr Harry Randall, the chairman, will "receive" at 7 30.

Miss Carlotta Levey, who has been making a hit as Dick Whittington at the Broadway Theatre, New-cross, had a very successful benefit there on the last night of the pantomime. Her niece and godchild little Dolly Levey made a highly favourable impression on her début as a toe soloist, her dancing being quite of the classic pattern of Taglioni. Miss Carlotta, by special request, sang her old success "Bill Bailey," and had to acknowledge the gifts of many beautiful bouquets and baskets of flowers from warm-hearted friends. She was also very much gratified by the receipt of a very handsome present from Miss Maudie Noel.

Mdlle. De Dio, the famous danseuse, leaves to-day (Saturday) by the s.s. Kenilworth Castle for South Africa, under the management of Messrs Hyman. She has just returned from a most successful three months' tour in Germany, having visited Dresden, Berlin, and Hamburg. She will return to England in June to play the Moss and Stoll tour, and also a special starring engagement at the Palace Theatre, after which she will return to the Continent. Mdlle. De Dio is booked solid until the end of 1908. She will also take to South Africa her latest enterprise, one of her now famous albums "A Ba-Bé's Picture Postcards."

Miss Lizzie St. Quentin, the well-known actress and vocalist, will shortly produce at a leading West end hall an entirely new and original dramatic "episode," in one scene, entitled Her Dearest Friend, which has been specially written and composed for her by Messrs John P. Harrington and George Le Brun. In this dramatic and musical morceau Miss St. Quentin will impersonate two characters—those of a volatile French actress and a young English married woman, "her dearest friend."

Messrs C. W. Murphy and Dan Lipton have just provided Mr Barney Armstrong with a budget of new songs, with which he purposes returning to the music-hall stage, after a retirement of three and a half years. Mr Edward Lewis has also secured some of their latest humorous efforts; and Mr J. T. Macmillan, who so long played the part of Mr Pineapple, in A Chinese Honeymoon, at the Strand Theatre, will, on the completion of his pantomime engagement, also exploit in London several songs by the same firm.

We regret to announce the death of Mrs Jones, mother of Mr Glanmore Jones, of the New York Comedy Four, which took place on Friday, the 28th ult. The sad news was conveyed to Mr Jones just as he and his colleagues were about to open the evening performance of Dick Whittington at the Shakespeare Theatre, Clapham. The funeral, which took place on Monday, was attended by many sympathisers and friends.

Mr J. E. Nolan, for many years so honourably known as the leading spirit in the firm of Nolan and Jackson, is to be the recipient of a complimentary benefit on the evening of the 13th inst., at the Athenæum, Goldhawk-road, Shepherd's-bush, W. Advancing age and practical retirement from music hall agency entitle this much-respected gentleman to such acknowledgment, for among the most popular artists of the day are to be found many who date their success from the time Mr Nolan exerted his power on their behalf. Prominent among these is Miss Louie Freear, who has very naturally volunteered a graceful compliment by promising to appear for the benefit of an old friend in his declining business years. On behalf of an esteemed friend and colleague, Mr Ben Nathan, the smart agent, witty raconteur, and popular artist, has promised to give his services, as also has Mr Victor Buziau, the celebrated violinist, of His Majesty's private band. Other willing assistance will be afforded by Mr Richard Temple, the famous Savoyard; Mr Kelson Trueman, tenor; Mr Robert Ganthony, Miss Bessie Coleman, and Mr H. T. Lea. The hon. stage-manager will be Mr Guy Waller. It is to be hoped that many, at least, of those artists who can remember the good services of the veteran will, by purchasing tickets, proclaim their thanks for the efforts of Mr Nolan in the past. Tickets can be obtained of Mr B. Soane Roby, 14, Whitcomb-street, Pall Mall, W.

"The Fighting Parson" has been protected in all countries. Mr George Gray has not disposed of any rights. The piece will be run in conjunction with The Road to Ruin, and will have the advantage of a most elaborate mounting and a combination of a hundred people.

Mr Maskelyne intends to commence a series of "magical matinées" at the St. George's Hall in about a month's time. The entertainments will be similar to those given at the old Egyptian Hall, and Mr Maskelyne informs us that Mr David Devant will appear at these matinées in his famous conjuring performance.

The Empire announces next week an almost entire change in the variety part of the programme. While The Dancing Doll fairy divertissement, with Mdlle. Genée, remains the principal attraction, new turns will include Miss Marquis, assisted by Mr Dassie, who, with the aid of six little trained cobs, will give what they term an equestrian carnival, Briano's monkeys, Stelling and Revell, Bud Snyder, a trick cyclist, and Carlotta, "the human dragon."

A new sketch, entitled Blackmail, will be presented next week at the Surrey. It has been written by Mr John Douglass, the author of A Dark Secret, No Man's Land, and other plays which have been classed under the generic term "tank drama." There will be a real water sensation, and the chief parts will be played by Miss Ida Millais (who excels as a swimmer), Mr Henry Herne, and Mr Julian Cross.

It is with regret that we have to record this week the death of two European artistes in India. Augustus Elliott, of the original troupe of coster acrobats, and Mokana, the young handcuff performer. Mr Elliott had been some forty-five years in the profession. While performing with his son, Gus Le Dial, and his three daughters at Warren's Circus he was taken ill suddenly, and died at Calcutta on Dec. 18. There was an impressive funeral, as the old gentleman was highly respected. Mr Warren has kept the family on under a new contract with Gus Le Dial, the son, in his father's place.

Mokana, the handcuff monarch, only arrived in Bombay in October last with the Coronation Circus, and, after a successful season, went up country on a tour. He was taken ill with fever at Asansol, but kept at work till he was sent on to Calcutta. He seemed to rally, but the day after Mr Jenkins, the proprietor, visited him he quietly passed away. He was very popular.

Duse Mohamed, the Egyptian actor-author, who has made a name for himself on the legitimate English stage, is now turning his attention to the halls. His tragic costume sketch, The Jew's Revenge, which was produced with such éclat at George Conquest's benefit at the Surrey Theatre last July, will be done by him and his company at Portsmouth next month, where he makes a four weeks' stay. Duse Mohamed, being "the only English-speaking actor the East has ever produced," should prove a novel and interesting acquisition to the halls.

The 391st meeting of the executive committee of the M.H.A.R.A. was held on Tuesday afternoon, Mr Joe O'Gorman, chairman of the committee, presiding. The secretary reported that sixty new members had joined during the past week, making a total number enrolled since the commencement of 11,231.

The London Pavilion has paid an average dividend of 11 per cent. during the last eighteen years. At the meeting of the shareholders on Tuesday, when a dividend of 9 per cent. for the year was agreed to, Mr Hugh Astley, the chairman of the company, paid a tribute to the late Mr R. E. Villiers, a valued colleague, and spoke very feelingly concerning the loss of Mr Dan Leno, whose engagement at the hall extended over twenty-six weeks in the year. A matter which was inimical to large dividends was, he said, the enormous increase in salaries. One artiste who was glad to sign contracts with the London Pavilion at £8 per week lately refused to accept an engagement at a town which is two hours' journey from London under £175 per week. Mr Sutton, in seconding the motion for the passing of the report and accounts, said that they had good reason to expect better times. The sum of £325 was voted to the directors as extra remuneration.

In pursuance of a policy of quick-change editing Mr Dan Leno was secured in 1902 for one day for the editorial chair of the Sun, with a very favourable result. If a comedian can edit a newspaper, why cannot an editor manage a music hall. Why not? says in effect the Daily Mirror. So it has come about that Mr Thomas Barrasford is to surrender next week the control of the new and splendid Lyceum, and the reins of management will be held by the journal mentioned. A revised tariff of admission will reduce the stalls to 2s. 6d. and the gallery to 3d. The two entertainments nightly are timed to commence at 7 0 and 9 15, and there will be matinées on Monday, Wednesday, and Saturday. Mr George Alexander will recite on the two last-mentioned afternoons. Eleven hundred free seats have been reserved for Monday afternoon. Mr Barrasford has agreed that any profits on the week will be given to charity.

Mr Charles Wilmott, the well-known author, has been an invalid since he wrote the successful pantomime Babes in the Wood for the Brothers Luck, and this will explain his silence and apparent inactivity to some of his correspondents.

Mr Oswald Stoll invited 700 boys of the Duke of York's School to attend the noon performance at the Coliseum Theatre yesterday. The band of the school was to perform a selection of music.

Under the patronage of her Royal Highness the Princess Christian, a special matinée performance was given on Thursday afternoon at the Bedford (kindly lent by Mr B. Pearce Lucas), in aid of the North-West London Hospital, Kentish-town. During the proceedings Lord Rathmore, chairman of the hospital, proposed from the stage a vote of thanks to the Mayor and members of the St. Pancras borough council for their presence and support. The net proceeds amounted, it was stated, to £250.

There was a large audience, and it was evident that the leading tradesmen of St. Pancras had taken the affair in hand, and were putting much enthusiasm into their exertions. The stewards included Mr Widdicomb, a prominent local journalist, and programmes, prettily designed by Mr Harold Trill, were sold at fancy prices by some of the nurses at the hospital. Among the entertainers were Houdini, the handcuff expert; Mr Charles Bertram, with card tricks and his envelope mystery; Madame Clare Palmer, who accompanied herself on the harp in "Kathleen Mavourneen" and "The Minstrel Boy;" Will Edwards, a local comedian; Little Thomas, late of the Mohawks; and Bosanquet, with his wonderful instrument. Other names on the special bill were Lill Gorman, the Haywards, Harry Gray, Marie Blythe, Frank and Free, Tom Leamore, Bros. Lang, Little Carmen Sylva, Gilbert Girard, Frank Coyne, Edith Etherley, Montague Biggs, Al Lawrence, Sam Mayo, Ivy Dawn, Bernard Russell, Hayman and Franklin, Sydney Leigh, Terry and Bentley, the Harmony Four, Alma Gray, Corporal Mayes, Miss Georgina Morriss.

THE HIPPODROME.

Though in the beautiful spectacular production, Butterflies in Fairyland, at the Hippodrome, Mr Frank Parker has provided for his patrons an attraction sufficient in itself to draw the public to that most comfortable and well-managed place of entertainment, the management here is always on the alert to improve and strengthen its programme, and several interesting alterations have been recently made in it. The Chamberlains are a couple of expert lassoo performers, who swing the rope in many graceful circles, and exhibit much skill in noosing and knotting it, the male performer also wielding a bull-whip very cleverly. Alexandra and Bertie perform on a "see-saw" placed across a trapeze. From one end of this see-saw a smaller trapeze is suspended; and on this the male artiste in ordinary morning dress, hangs inverted, the lady standing, in evening dress, on the other extremity, keeping the balance. Then both suddenly change their costumes, and appear in acrobatic attire, the female artiste showing in the act which follows much strength as a "bearer." Marcelline is as lively and active as ever, and his leaps are as astonishing as his drollery is diverting. The O'Brien Brothers perform six different double somersaults on the triple bar. A most astonishing feat is achieved by one of them, who turns a somersault from the first bar, passes the second, and alights on his hands on the third bar. A sensational turn is done by Mdlle. Louise and Robert Cottrell. It is called "American sport on horseback." Both the lady and the gentleman are in fashionable walking dress. Standing on the backs of a pair of white horses, they go through some daring and difficult evolutions, the lady eventually sustaining her comrade, who stands upon her shoulders as the steeds career round the circle. The Cottrells are first-rate in their line; and the female artiste is both vigorous and skilful. Mr Leon Morris introduces his six lively and well-trained ponies, including the redoubtable "Bannerman," with whom the funny and athletic "Nigger," John Hedge, has such amusing bouts of burlesque wrestling. Vasco, the "mad musician," performs on twenty-five instruments in the course of fifteen minutes with a versatility and musical accomplishment which secure for him hearty applause, some of his comic business creating much laughter. An important engagement at the Hippodrome is that of Chung Ling Soo, the Chinese conjuror, whose sensational feat of catching half-a-dozen bullets fired from guns loaded in sight of the audience brings down the house. Six assistants, dressed as Chinese soldiers, are drawn up in line in the arena, and at the word of command they "let fly" at Chung Ling Soo as he stands on the stage holding a plate in his hands. Simultaneously with the explosions the plate turns upwards, and the six bullets, which have been marked by members of the audience, are seen rolling upon it. Chung also has a well-managed illusion, in which a little girl is put into a huge gun, a big cannon ball being pushed in afterwards. On the gun being fired, the ball is impelled into the arena, and the girl comes running out from the back of the auditorium. Several other ingenious and effective items are included in this week's entertainment at the Hippodrome. The Tourbillon Troupe of acrobatic cyclists do some smart things, one of the ladies, seated on her "bike," bumping up a long flight of steps. Woodward's seals and sea lions are marvels of training, and the accuracy of eye possessed by them is extraordinary. To have brought these strange creatures to the point of dexterity in balancing, &c., which they exhibit must have required remarkable patience and a rare gift for such teaching. There apparently inert amphibia are capable of the most startling adroitness. Our notice would not be complete without reference to the orchestra conducted by Mr Clarence Corri. Amongst the selections which it performs is a serio-comic fantasia, by Tobani, called "A Trip to Coney Island." All the incidents in a visit to the Southend of New York are illustrated in music. In this way are symbolised the rush to the boat, the voyage, and the landing on the island. A heavy thunderstorm comes on with thunder and lightning. Sunshine follows. The train arrives at Manhattan Beach just in time to hear Gilmore's Band perform the Anvil Chorus, and a signal for Paine's fireworks is given, followed by cannon shots and an imitation of skyrockets. In the realistic details of the fantasia the members of the orchestra freely assist with imitations. The name of Mdlle. Marguerite, with her equestrian fantasy, is also on the Hippodrome bill.

Chevalier T. H. Crowther, who concludes to-day his second week's contract at the Hippodrome, Wolverhampton, had to refuse upwards of 500 roubles offered him to give his marvellous display of swordsmanship before the officers of different regiments at St. Petersburg, Monsieur Ciniselli declining to give his permission. However, in Warsaw Crowther gave several private exhibitions, his most enthusiastic admirer being Prince Carlos, son of Don Carlos. The Chevalier is now negotiating with both Japanese and Russians for a natural heating apparatus for the field.

At the Cosmopolitan Sporting Club, on Sunday, the American artistes who are members of the Club gave their first entertainment, which was voted a huge success. Their second concert takes place next Sunday, Feb. 5, when all American artistes are invited to attend. The club is under the management of Bert A. Dorman, well-known in sporting and variety circles.

At the Islington Empire on Friday, the 27th, Mr Bobbie Hall, who recently made quite a hit as Master Goosey in the pantomime of Little Red Riding Hood, at the King's Theatre, Walthamstow, produced, as an extra turn, a new and original scena entitled The Postman. He was supported by Mr R. B. T. Williams and Miss Nellie Charters. At the end of the scena Mr R. Williams gave an exhibition of sword exercise, from the time of the Romans to the present day, and was loudly applauded for his grace and dexterity. The Postman should be heard of again before long.

Messrs Rich and Rich, who have largely contributed to the unprecedented success of Mr F. J. Elliston's pantomime Aladdin at the Marlborough, Holloway, definitely arranged to take their grand complimentary benefit yesterday (Friday), when they were supported by Mr Sam Mayo and numerous other first-class turns.

The only Willie Clarkson was responsible for the design and manufacture of the dress, "The Persian Garden," that gained the first prize for ladies at the recent fancy dress carnival at the Horns, Kennington.

The committee of the M.H.A.R.A. have decided, on the proposition of Mr Albert Voyce, seconded by Mr Douglas White, to forward cheques of £20 each to the two railway and the two music hall charities—namely, the Railway Benevolent Institution, the Railway Servants' Orphanage, the Music Hall Benevolent Fund, and the Music Hall Home Fund. At the annual general meeting of the Association held last October it was found that there was a total of £200 available for charitable purposes; but at the time only £30 to each of the four charities named was voted, the balance of the money, amounting to £80, being held in hand for an emergency fund. With the good reserve fund now standing to the credit of the Association, it was not thought desirable nor necessary to retain the sums of money which have now been voted to the benevolent institutions connected with the railway companies and the variety profession.

THE LONDON MUSIC HALLS.

THE PALACE

An important item in the programme of the Palace Theatre at present is Coco; surnamed the "Human Baboon." This animal is certainly an extraordinary example of natural aptitude developed by careful training. His trainer, who is a quaint comedian, enters, grotesquely made up, followed by the baboon, in miniature male attire. They seat themselves at a table; and Coco, while his master's attention is engaged by the menu, slyly kisses the pretty waitress. His master lights match after match for his pipe, each being adroitly extinguished by the mischievous but amusing animal. Then some food is brought upon a plate, and is abstracted by Coco, when his trainer is not looking. These and many minor antics are done with a very diverting appearance of impulse, and with a most comical resemblance to humanity. Coco is certainly a clever baboon. All he does is done well; and he might even, we think, easily be taught to do even more. A decided hit is made at the Palace by Mr Horace Goldin, who has some startling illusions to present to his patrons here. Mr Goldin's feats are done with exhilarating rapidity. A young lady is placed on a big cannon, which is fired; whereupon a couple of boxes, one within the other, come sliding down, on ropes, from the upper part of the house to the stage. In the inner box is found the lady in question, Miss Jean Fransiola. She is subsequently seen sitting on a trapeze which hangs from a balloon at the back of the stage. A pistol is fired; and she disappears only to "turn up" in a receptacle on the stage. Then there is that famous trick in which a number of ducks are marvellously extracted from a tub full of water, together with many other surprising items, all of which evoke hearty plaudits. Mr Goldin is warmly recalled at the Palace, and makes a neat and humorous speech, in which he remarks, with significance, that he is "not a Chinaman." That really extraordinary ventriloquist, Mr Arthur Prince, is high in the estimation of Mr Alfred Butt's patrons, with whom he is an established favourite. His patter is funny, his appearance is excellent, and his ventriloquism is carried to a point very near perfection. The Dumonds present a pleasing variation on the "Parisian minstrel" idea. They first appear in a Quartier Latin garret; and then the scene is changed to a handsome salon, where they play on mandoline and violin, greatly to the delight of the audience. The New Macs are particularly good as dancers; and the audacious absurdity of their dialogue evokes very hearty laughter. Miss Rosie Lloyd has a bright and refined appearance, and delivers her songs with a distinct enunciation which is very agreeable. Wieland, with his ear-boxing machine and other "oddments," brings down the house; and his turn is deservedly applauded. His burlesque juggling with a small cannon, made of indiarubber, is extremely droll; and the variety and quaintness of his entertainment ensure its success. Mr Lew Wells, in a musical comedy act, performs with credit on the saxophone and the flute; and Miss Mary Thorne sings two American ditties. The Follies repeat their amusing "Bill Bailey" medley. The preliminary remarks by the supposed manager of the panto. are now omitted. We miss them, as they prepared the audience for the fun which follows. The gaiety and go of the Follies is unquenchable, and their "skit" on the second-rate "annual" is excruciatingly funny. Amongst the interesting items shown here by the Bioscope are pictures taken in a slate quarry in North Wales; "Curling," and views of a travelling caravan passing through the celebrated Khyber Pass on its way from Cabul to Peshawar, a most interesting film with its camels, asses, and Oriental wayfarers. Also in the list are a panoramic view of Paris from the Seine, and some coloured depictions of fireworks. The music for the Bioscope has been well composed by Mr Herman Finck, who conducts the capital orchestra at the Palace in its performance of his own "Monte Carlo" march, and of Luigini's "Ballet Egyptien," both of which are admirably executed.

THE ROYAL.

Much water has flowed under the bridges since the Royal, reconstructed, beautified and much enlarged, was re-opened under the auspices of a limited company, with the late Captain Purkiss as managing-director and Mr Sam Adams as manager. We never were able to discover the name of the architect who designed the then new building, but like the old London Pavilion, rebuilt two years later, it left much to be desired. Mr Walter Gibbons, who in April last added the Royal to the music halls he controls in the metropolis, is by way of reforming the house altogether. The area of the site is very extensive, and the new entrances will take in the supper rooms next door. Mr Frank Matcham's services have been retained, and we may be quite certain that the designer of the Coliseum will put up a house that will answer every requirement of modern luxury, and that will form an addition to metropolitan variety houses of which Holborn will be proud. The seating accommodation is to be 2,500, and the policy of two houses a night will be continued. It is hoped that it will be possible to open the new house in October next.

Previous to the lengthy cloture a gala week is being given, and two very large houses on Monday listened to an excellent programme, to which several extra turns contributed. Early in the evening Hill and Lane, miniature duettists, showed considerable promise in their short comedy scenes, and rapidly ingratiated themselves. Coon impersonators are as thick as blackberries in September; but Stirtevant Swift asserted his claims to public approval as a swell coon, and quite succeeded in winning it. Mr R. Knox is one of the large contingent of mimics, and rapidly hit off the peculiarities of various stars of the music halls, being especially successful in his treatment of the mannerisms and voice of Mr Will Evans. Mr George Fairburn, in his earlier career, was also a mimic; but he made his appearance on Monday as a barber, and described with a decided touch of humour his various customers. The "tonsorial artist" should be an excellent student of human nature, and Mr Fairburn can easily add to his portrait gallery of characters. An impersonation of the Chadband or Stiggins type came from Mr Hal Chapter, who gave eloquent advice in his song, "Oh brothers and sisters do." Miss Cissie Dryden, a natty little girl, gave an impersonation of a jockey, in a song descriptive of the pleasurable excitement of riding to win. A jockey dance followed, and in this the lady especially distinguished herself. Mr Will Percival, an exponent of clog dancing, stepped forth in all the bravery of a silver champion belt, which he stated was won by him in a contest some years since. Mr Dan Leno on his first appearance at the Oxford was similarly accoutred, and for versatility and eccentricity his terpsichorean exhibition has never been equalled. Mr Percival takes the art quite seriously. He beat out his single and double shuffles very perfectly on a small pedestal, and the clang of the wooden shoon rang out in pleasant rhythm. Miss Mab May was another dancer who won a hearty reception for her legmania, which included the kicking of a tambourine above the head. Acrobatics were represented by four youngsters—three girls and one boy—known as the Arizonas. Their act is a pot-pourri of hand balancing, contortionism, club and ball juggling, and foot equilibrism, so that there could be no complaint of lack of variety. The quartet are smart, and in their numerous feats won hearty recognition of their merits. "Alien immigration," which is one of the burning questions of the day, was cleverly illustrated on Ruffell's Bioscope, and on Monday considerable feeling was displayed when the pictures of immigrants landing were shown on the screen. A vivid contrast to this series of films was the departure of English emigrants from Liverpool, and one sees the embarkation of British manhood with no little regret. A most attractive turn of the bill was found in the Royal Six, German girls, who, after manœuvring on bicycles, appeared with drum and cymbal, and sang "Oh, listen to the band" in their native language. The programme was wound up by the Deer Family of American Indians who speak English exceedingly well. One of the ladies sang a character song with no little ability. On Monday Mr Fred Higham, the well-known agent, assisted in the superintendence of the stage.

THE PARAGON.

Mr Charles Beecham is fortunate this week in being able to present Miss Annie Abbott, the little Georgia magnet. She invites members of the audience to come upon the stage and match their collective strength against her own, unaided. The result is remarkable, to say the least. Miss Kate Carney is as lively as of old in her new episode, which goes by the name of Our Laundry, whose authors are Messrs George Arthurs and Harry Castling, the overture and incidental music being by Mr Geo. Le Brunn. The scene is laid in the Blue House Laundry, which, we are told in a song, is situated somewhere in Camberwell. Into this abode of starch and linen and flat irons there enter various ridiculous personages. One elderly female brings her husband's "dickey" for the wash; another has a Russian handkerchief which the laundry forewoman (Miss Kate Carney) advises the owner to send to St. Petersburg to be cleansed; and a third curious character divests himself of his shirt and awaits unrobed while it is receiving the attentions of the wash-tub. Miss Kate Carney has some entertaining repartee for each of her customers, and the little sketch is intensely funny throughout. Her songs, "At our Laundry" and "Martha," accompanied by rollicking choruses, go with a fine swing, and are heartily taken up by the audience. A word of praise is due to the composers of the charming melodies with which the episode is interspersed. Mr Jack Camp sings in a quaint style and with quaint patter his popular number about a policeman and a jolly Jack Tar, his turn receiving enthusiastic applause. The New York Nippers appear in their laughable pantomime Bedtime, and although this is not the first time the Nippers have been at the Paragon, their performance is as much enjoyed as at its first presentation. Miss Ray Wallace gives her interesting series of imitations of well-known music hall artistes. Her impersonations of Miss Kate Carney in "'Liza Johnson," Miss Lil Hawthorne in "I'm a girl of Tennessee," Miss Vesta Victoria, and Miss Victoria Monks are quite artistic in their way, especially as Miss Wallace plays her own accompaniment. Mr Harry Freeman contributes three songs in his racy style, his "I'm not a man who seeks notoriety" and "That's him, that's him, that's him," proving most popular. Mr Charles Stevens, on the other hand, appeals to the more serious and sentimental emotions of his hearers, his verses on "Music, lovely music," telling in a graceful manner how different thoughts and different remarks—some of them commonplace enough—come as the sweetest of melodies to human ears. The Abdullahs, Arabs of pyramid and tumbling fame, execute some astonishing evolutions to the accompaniment of deafening "whoops." Their turn is a very exciting one to witness, the continuous side-to-side jumps of Fatima, appropriately termed "the child wonder," exhibiting marvellous agility. The various feats of the troupe are simply bewildering, rapidity of movement characterising their doings throughout. La Belle Nello provides something of a sensation in the direction of a contortionist and hand-balancing act, her series of non-stopping somersaulting being specially commendable. Mr Joe O'Gorman can always rely upon a good reception, his diverting Irish patter and his description of the whimsicalities of one O'Reilly creating roars of laughter. The Two Errols present a smart comedy leaping act; Miss Ruby Aston nightly adds to her reputation as a chic comedienne and dancer; and the instrumental, vocal, and dancing entertainment of the Imperial Boys' Orchestra is proving a welcome item in the programme. These "Kilted Kiddies" still have in their midst those talented young performers, Master David Williams, solo cornet player; Master Morgan, the boy soprano; and Master George Macfarlane, the champion Highland dancer and winner of forty gold and silver medals. Mr George Gray and his company in The Fighting Parson bring a highly satisfactory bill to a happy conclusion.

HAMMERSMITH PALACE.

Mr J. C. Coe has many interesting numbers in his current scheme, and the varied character of his scheme of amusement shows that he has a real perception of the needs of a popular and up-to-date entertainment. The bill is blessed with a sketch, and the name of Mr John Lawson is a guarantee that the domestic episode of martyrdom, A Bride for a Living, for which he is responsible, will be distinguished by sensationalism and just a little polemics. Our exhaustive review of the piece on its first production, and the notice given to it last week at the Granville, absolve us from any further analysis of the plot. Suffice it to say that Mrs Lawson, whose dramatic aptitude has been shown so conspicuously in many of her husband's previous triumphs, wins a great artistic success by her portrait of Louie Faber, the slatternly, pale-faced wife who may be seen any day in any of the mean streets of our metropolis. The character is quite Ibsenlike in its fidelity to uncompromising realism, and the young actress is entitled to the highest compliments on her achievement. Mr John Lawson is an earnest representative as David Faber, the inventor, whose speeches on the abuses of instalment systems and wrong mission methods he delivers with much conviction. Mr E. S. Vincent, accustomed as he is to the rôle of the stage villain, has done nothing better than his Lucas Paulton, who is called on the programme the universal provider. Mr Bailey Cohen completes the cast as Josephus Faber. The chief comedian of the bill is Mr Gus Elen, who sings of the cabby with a college eduction, and praises, in his own quaint way, the virtues of ale. Mr Elen is a favourite at Hammersmith, and his songs strike quite a new vein of humour. An interesting item on the bill is the clever exhibition of animal training given by Max Gruber, whose pets, a horse and an elephant, perform entirely at liberty. The pachyderm is as gentle as his equine companion, and the two walk round the stage together, both animals keeping pace. The horse then lies down, apparently dead, and the elephant most carefully walks over his body, never once touching him. He also carries off Max Gruber in his trunk, and this final display of complete concord between the animal and his trainer brings down the house. Early in the evening Miss Sadie Simpson, an alert and intelligent little comedienne and dancer, has a warm reception for her song, "Farewell, my pretty Angelina," the "good-bye" of a sailor man who has to answer to duty's call. Linden and Howard, in A Quiet Rehearsal, submit an amusing burlesque of melodrama, the gentleman distinguishing himself as a pianist, dancer, and humourist. Miss Hettie Chattell—whose long engagement at the Hippodrome has considerably enhanced her reputation—as an impersonator of the sterner sex, appears perfectly groomed in the swallow tail of civilisation, and looking very handsome. Miss Chattell very cleverly set forth in song the different ideas of love held by a soldier, a fireman, and a mother—the last being enshrined in a tender verse. In her comedy item she enlarges on the difference in a man's beheaviour when courting and when married. Miss Rose Cabani, a smart comediennne, sings with much point "Why don't you make the girl your wife?" and "Is this the first time?" Mr Harry Anderson sings with heartiness "Toasts,' and "Let's have a holiday to-day, boys;" Lea and Lovell have appreciated numbers in "Day by Day" and "A picture no artist can paint." The Sisters Redfern contribute a banjo song and dance, and their medley of popular airs on that instrument is most popular. Harry Calvo, vocal mimic, possesses a falsetto voice of remarkable clearness, and sings the air of "Killarney" both as a soprano and as a baritone. In his imitations of children's voices he is quite realistic, and his command of dialect is shown in the replies of lasses of various towns to the request for a kiss. Bonnie Goodwin's piccaninnies are wonderful dancers, and one of them possesses a voice of singular sweetness. Larolo, besides being a juggler of smartness and originality, is a real humourist and a fine acrobat, as is proved by his backward and forward somersaults. His efforts are untiring, and his reception is most flattering. The Edisonograph presents a series of most entertaining films. Other turns in the programme are Carr and Rose and Jack Lorimer.

DUCHESS, BALHAM.

The handsomely appointed variety theatre on Balham-hill seems to have gained quite a settled place in the affections of the inhabitants south of Clapham-common. The convenience of two performances nightly may have something to do with this happy state of affairs, but even that advantage is of secondary consideration to the all-round excellent programmes that are presented. The first turn on the bill is that of Miss Edie King, whose attractive mixture of singing and dancing always secures high appreciation wherever she appears. Very neatly does she perform dances representative of Scotland, Ireland, and England. Verno and Voyce, who are favourites here, are presenting an interesting little scena, Capital and Labour, which teaches a lesson that might well be taken to heart by working men. No better advice than that which passes between Verno and Voyce, one as the employer and the other as the servant, could be given to the labouring artisan class. Labour leaders might take the hint. Our old friend, G. H. Chirgwin, is also here this week. The Kaffir tuft of hair on the crown of the head, the white eye, and the chimney-stalk shaped white silk hat are in as good a condition as ever, and the white-eyed one's comicalities are as laughter-forcing as anything upon the stage. His references to the Russian fat girl who precedes him are very diverting. Then he causes some commotion amongst his audience by telling them to choose the title of the song he is to sing. The majority—at least, we presume they are the majority, for they make the most noise—give their vote in favour of "The Blind Boy;" ergo, "The Blind Boy" is sung as only Chirgwin knows how to sing it. His deliciously quaint patter, in which he deals with a variety of topics and individuals, notably one "Rottenwhisky," whose identity it is not difficult to establish, creates huge merriment. Eccentric acrobatic dancing has two able exponents in Forrest and King, who seem to possess most extraordinary powers of contortionism, and whose equilibristic evolutions are an amazingly neat exhibition in themselves. Ventriloquism in different languages and in tones of the human voice representative of the different stages of life is made attractive by that master of the art, Lieut. Travis. He disguises one of his figures so that it shall assume a variety of characters, including those of a little boy, a girl, a Frenchman, and, lastly, a Chelsea pensioner — the last-mentioned quite an artistic portrayal. Mr Warden-Reed and Miss Dora Glenny contribute a cleverly written and amusing duologue, entitled Married or Photographed? The sketch, for such it is, concerns the complications which arise from a young lady calling at a wrong address to be photographed. The man whose flat she enters by mistake has been advertising for a wife, and he at first imagines that his fair visitor is one of the selections sent to him by his matrimonial agents. The situation becomes rather complexing, but, in the end, all ends happily, and the would-be photographed becomes the bride-elect. The appearance of Clark and Hamilton is always the signal for a burst of applause, and the patrons of the Duchess are not slow to recognise the entertaining absurdities of the ragged, dishevelled "millionaire." In a surprisingly short time the two talented artistes change into Japanese costume for the song "My Yokohama Queen," which is one of the most enchanting melodies ever written. Phantom shapes who come and go, and who appear and disappear with that mysterious suddenness which is the birthright of every well-bred phantom, are the heroes in a novel entertainment entitled The Mystic Ship. The good folk who are responsible for this pantomimic diversion by white-robed ghosts appropriately call themselves the Phantos, and they are not unknown to fame as apparitions. However, the way in which human skulls roll about the floor is not as gruesome as one might think. On the contrary, there is real fun to be derived from the antics of these frolicsome phantoms. From the shadowy and supernatural we come to the material—the very material—as embodied in the physical fulsomeness of Miss Lucie, the Russian fat girl. This young lady is sixteen years of age, and weighs 350lbs. Mr Charles Norton in his imitations chooses such well-known variety stars as R. G. Knowles, T. E. Dunville, Wilkie Bard, and Harry Lauder, and he is an admirable substitute for the originals.

THE SURREY.

With an ever-varied programme Mr Frank Macnaghten is giving his clientele here a most delightful entertainment "twice nightly," while his locum-tenens, Mr Chris Wordsworth, has the satisfaction of seeing this splendid house filled with a Saturday's audience the first five nights of the week and a holiday one on Saturdays, who follow with keen enjoyment the dozen turns that fill in with pleasurable excitement the two hours allotted to each house. The principal items this week are the dramatic episode Anarchy and the uproariously funny equestrian novelty Ginnett's Remounts. The most absorbing of these is the former, and just now with such stirring times in Russia Anarchy, with its violent methods, is of more than ordinary interest. Mr Frederick Maxwell and company are responsible for the representation of the many stirring incidents. As De Verney Mr Frank Carlile is duly malignant, wily, and sinister. Mr Frederick Maxwell as Gilbert Newton is excellent. His manly earnestness makes itself felt, and in the duel with the villain De Varney in the billiard-room the excitement becomes intense. As the heroine, Ellen Gray, Miss Lois Du Cane is not only pretty, but acts throughout with a charming grace and power. Mr Gerald Blake understands perfectly his responsibilities in the part of Leonard Gray. The other characters are carefully handled by Mr George Kempt as Karl, an Anarchist, and Mr Sam Harcourt as the detective Morris. The staging deserves a special word of praise. In strong contrast to Anarchy are Claude Ginnett's clever troupe of performing horses in Rejected Remounts, an interlude that creates an abundance of genuine merriment. Their intelligence reflects the highest credit on their trainer. Mr Claude Ginnett, jun., as Mr Gudgeon, the retired fishmonger in want of a steady nag, displays remarkable horsemanship in trying the capriciousness of the buck jumpers Merry Legs and High Flyer. As Sam Sly, the horse dealer, Mr Claude Ginnett invests the character with a horsey wit that provokes constant merriment. Miss Ginnett as Sally has little to do, but does that little well; and the same may be said of Mr Richard Hall as Captain Coe and Mr Alf Jephson as Bob, the groom. Rita and Roma afford much amusement and wonderment, Rita for her marvellous acrobatic dances and contortions, and Roma, for his puritanical horror of his fair companion's antics, so powerfully and amusingly depicted by his facial expression. Billy Williams, an Australian comedian, has soon established himself a warm favourite, his songs "They're all alike to me," with its whistling chorus, and a parody on "A girl wanted there," being full of unctuous humour. The Balsanos are a merry and mirth-provoking quartet of clever triple bar performers, their happy combination of comedy and acrobatic skill winning favour. Kittee Corrie sings and dances charmingly; Edie Gray and her White Coons create harmony in a series of coon and plantation melodies; Kit Keen, a coloured coon, sings well, dances well, and gives an admirable bone solo—"The Anvil Chorus" from Il Trovatore; and Miss Amy Russell's rendering of "Queen of Love" and "Good Night Beloved" wins her a well-merited recall; Miss Minnie Wren, in her sentimental song, "The boy that looks after his mother," touches the hearts of her hearers, and her topical ditty, "What price a girl like me?" is full of vivacity. Edwards and Espinosa are clever banjoists and dancers. Their manipulation of this difficult instrument in a series of popular airs is not only a severe tax on their physical and musical powers, but tests the undeniable efficiency of the Surrey orchestra, whose director, Jacques Bruske, deserves a special word of praise.

ROYAL ALBERT.

Canning-town continues to be well served by Mr Charles Relf, who is unremitting in his efforts to provide constant attractions, and whose long experience enables him to satisfy in every particular the wants of his numerous patrons. The dramatic sketch is of the greatest importance in the scheme of amusement, and the current week's bill contains one well calculated to keep the audience in a state of continual excitement. The playlet is enacted by Mr G. V. Brooke and company, and is entitled The Scum of the Earth, one of its chief characters being Britton Royal, a ne'er-do-well who gives the sketch its title. When we first make his acquaintance, however, at a fancy dress ball, he has apparently made up his mind to turn over a new leaf, for we see him a smart, alert young fellow, who quickly determines to help virtue in distress. He has come to the ball as the Duke of Enfield, and the first person he encounters is Alice Chester, heiress to the Crawford estates, who has been the victim of a scoundrelly solicitor, Bernard Conway, and a scheming couple, Stuart Henderson and Sybil Austin. Sybil passes as Alice Chester, and Henderson as her father. When the real Alice comes on the scene to make good her claim to the estates, she is denounced as a wanton by Conway, in whose service she has acted as typewriter, and who has made dishonourable proposals to her, and when she produces her proofs this heartless villain, with the aid of Sybil and Henderson, manages to steal them and to place banknotes in their place. It is then that the "scum of the earth" comes to her assistance. He recognises Sybil as the woman he believes to be his wife, but it transpires that she had been previously married. He is also able to produce proofs that he is young Crawford, and that a will was made at the last moment in his favour, and after frustrating the trio of evildoers in most determined and effective fashion, the way is cleared for his union with the sweet and sorely-tried Alice, who is, under the circumstances, in no way disturbed that another has a right to the wealth she supposed should have been hers. The playlet, which is decidedly better written and more interesting than the majority of lurid fragments of melodrama that are known as sensational sketches, was exceptionally well enacted by Mr Fred G. Brooke and his company, and was tastefully mounted and dressed. An entertaining interlude was the humorous monologue of Ben Lloyd and Harry Elvin, entitled The Black Valet, in which one of the duo enacts a "star" music hall artiste who is in a fix owing to his inability to find a partner to work with him in an important engagement he is offered. His valet, as a last resource, offers to take the place of the required Negro comedian, and as an evidence of his ability for the rôle gives a coon song and a well-executed sand dance, his companion gaining approval with a sentimental item. Miss Evie Hamilton, a smart and dainty little comedienne, was especially successful in "La Belle Parisienne," the popular number from The Belle of New York, her accompanying dance being marked by much grace and finish, and her comedy selection "I'm a bachelor girl" and her concluding song and dance, "Just a chain of daisies," were also keenly enjoyed items. Will Pinchin secured approval for his dexterous step and clog dancing, the latter being especially skilful; and the pathetic song of Miss Kitty Clay, "If you should see your sister," won for her loud approval. Her ditty in lighter vein, "She wanted to be one of the girls," likewise earned for her applause, and her concluding Terpsichorean effort was appreciated at its true worth. Other attractive items in Mr Relf's varied and excellent programme were contributed by the Casino Girls, brass and string instrumentalists; Ella and Rose, comedy artistes; Mdlle. Fillis, in her clever globe-walking act; Howard Baker, drummer and comedian; and Rex and Ford, comedians. Walter Payne's Bioscope continues to supply a series of interesting and amusing films; and the courteous and genial Mr Walter Leaver occupies the chair with his usual watchfulness and tact.

THE METROPOLE.

In spite of the strong competition in the variety world this cosy little theatre has evidently established itself in the favour of Camberwell pleasure-seekers. The best of the dozen turns in Mr Jack De Frece's current programme is a bright and amusing scena written by Chris Davis, and set to charming music by Mr Julian H. Wilson. It is entitled The Water Nymph, and is presented by Miss Peggy Lennie and Mr Walter Hast. The slight plot concerns the adventure of a naval officer. Lost on the shores of an island he, to while away the time away, indulges in song. Much to his astonishment an immense shell opens, and discloses a beautiful sea nymph, Coraline, a daughter of Neptune, awakened after a slumber of a thousand years by the sweet cadences of the young officer. Coraline plies him with a series of questions about the world she has just awakened to, and what may be termed the Galatea idea is humorously worked. Naturally, the mere mate falls madly in love with his nymph, but she tells him she will be imprisoned in her shell again should any earthly creature give her anything. Carried away by his passion for her, he kisses her. She instantly goes back to her shell, which closes over her, and she is lost to him for ever. The success of this little musical comedy was instantaneous and well merited. The Beckwith lady swimmers, who include Miss Agnes Beckwith, the champion lady swimmer of the world, give a graceful and interesting aquatic entertainment in the limited space of an immense glass-fronted tank. In this Miss Beckwith and a fair young companion indulge in sewing, gathering shells, and acrobatic tricks under the water, and win enthusiastic applause and a double recall. Mahatma, a mystical lady, gives some clever demonstrations of thought-reading. Seated blindfolded in view of the audience, she casts up with marvellous rapidity and correctness an addition sum chalked on a black-board by a member of the audience. Mahatma invites anyone to play nap with her, and forecasts the winner of a game between two members of the audience. Harry Hughes, a quaint little comedian, has two amusing ditties in "A little bit out of shape" and "I'll open the door for you." His clever dancing brings him an abundance of honours in the shape of tumultuous applause. The Sisters Edwards, charming and youthful comediennes, sing a coon song—"My Starlight Queen"—which, with its accompanying dance, is notable for displaying their untiring activity and vivacity. Mr Harry Lane gives due effect to his song, "Good-bye, little girl, good-bye;" Leo, the Australian variety picture artist, introduces a novelty in demonstrating the artistic effects that may be produced by the manipulation of a bundle of coloured rags and smoked glass. Under his active and skilful hands are produced, with marvellous accuracy and rapidity, portraits of Admiral Togo and General Nogi; and landscapes, seascapes, and river views also add to the variety of his most interesting turn. Mr Ted Saunders is a mimic of no mean merit. His reproductions of Mr Lawson, in Humanity, Mr R. G. Knowles, and Mr Harry Lauder are good. Mr J. R. Val in his song "Oh that box of cigars!" tells an amusing story; and the pictures on the Royal Metrograph graphically depict "The Merry Coalheavers," "Oh, My Little Mary," "The Amorous Militiaman," "Tramps in Clover," and "A Raid on a Thieves' Den." Mr A. F. Parnell, the acting-manager, looks after the comfort of all comers with unfailing courtesy and attention.

LONDON ON THE BIOSCOPE.

FINE SERIES OF PICTURES AT THE ALHAMBRA.

A triumph of cinématography! Not one person who witnessed the production of the magnificent series of pictures descriptive of "Living London," as the title tells, will disagree with our verdict. Mr Charles Urban has before shown us what wonders his ingenuity and enterprise can lay open to the public, but on Monday he excelled all his previous efforts, for these scenes of metropolitan life form the finest set of Bioscopic views that has yet been presented to an audience. In his selection of London's most interesting places and phases of life, Mr Urban has had the valuable assistance of Mr George R. Sims, and the result is an unequalled assortment of magnificent photographs. The opening picture bears the title of "London Sleeps," and depicts a couple of benches on which are seated a ragged man and woman representative of the derelicts of this great city, to whom the cares and worries of existence are lost in the unconscious state of the human mind which Lord Byron once described as "a sweet forgetfulness of life." The next view, "London Awakes," brings us to Knightsbridge, just above Hyde-park, where we see some of the early traffic, and the road-repairing gang starting upon the duties of the day. Then there follow in succession—and looking even more attractive in their counterfeit presentments than in their solid reality—Buckingham Palace, the Mall, St. James's-park, the Change of the Guard outside St. James's Palace, and the King and Queen riding in State to Open the Houses of Parliament. A typical scene of London life is that representing the Victoria Embankment, with individuals of all classes of society promenading thereon. Equally vivid and lifelike are the views of London Bridge, the Customs House, the Tower Bridge rising and closing, the Tower of London from Tower-hill, and the Battery. Going further east we arrive at the Docks, where the spectacle of the labourers carrying all manner of heavy loads, while others are engaged in dumping refuse, is one of extreme animation. The Minories and Whitechapel are next visited, and perhaps the most amusing pictures are those which are given of Ghetto-land on a Sunday morning. Business in Petticoat-lane — Middlesex-street, to give it its proper and more dignified name—is in full swing. And what a "swing" it is! Here on one side is the "Kosher King," one Mr Barnet, whose fat figure and partially bald head are of themselves a distinct personality in the East-end. But what a motley crowd does the Ghetto bring forth on a Sabbath morning! The faces of many of these Yiddisher folk remind one forcibly of the pictures of Biblical scenes and people one admired so often in childhood's days. There is your recently deported alien, of rugged feature, dishevelled hair and ill-kept beard. He looks like a bit of old history beside your Jew of the clean-shaven chin and the perfect command of English. We turn down a side street. "Eels, tuppence a handfull!" And how they are scrambled for! What keen bargainers are these Jewish women! How intently they survey every portion of the anatomy of the different species of poultry on sale at the stalls! Trusts Jewess for getting at the truth where a fowl of doubtful age is concerned. From Whitechapel we are taken to Deptford, where a temperance procession, with its many-coloured and many-mottoed banners, is wending its way along one of the principal thoroughfares. The clerical figure on horseback, leading the demonstrators, is that of the Rev. Dr. Mantell. Costers with their barrows are next brought before our notice. Into one scene a touch of humour is imparted, for "the moke's down" and she doesn't feel particularly inclined to get up very quickly. The concluding pictures are the result of a 'bus ride from the West-end to the heart of the City. Trafalgar-square appears more beautiful and noble on the screen than it does at this period of the year, when winter's gloom tends so much to belittle our London. Eastwards down the Strand we go, past the Law Courts into Newspaper Land—Fleet-street, the buildings on either side of which look like tremendous advertisement hoardings, with all the multi-coloured and multi-sized signs attesting to "largest circulations"—and from thence up Ludgate-hill, where we are treated to a magnificent view of St. Paul's Cathedral, and onwards to the Mansion House and the Bank of England, stopping by the way to get a glimpse, and a good glimpse too, of the little ceremony which was performed last year when the King was presented at Holborn Bars with a handsome pearl-mounted sword.

It was only to be expected that when Mr George R. Sims and Mr Charles Urban joined forces, the outcome of their united efforts would be something surprising in novelty and interest. Perhaps it is wrong to use the word novel in speaking of London, at any rate when addressing Cockneys who know their city. But even to many Londoners some of the pictures in "Living London" will come, if not as a revelation, at least a surprise. There are many people in this Metropolis who have never been farther east than Temple Bar and to whom the Ghetto is an unopened book. No less than 280 different photographs were required to make up this delightful collection.

In a museum in Cologne can now be seen a Finnish giantess, aged twenty-four, whose height is 7ft. 2⅜in. She is well proportioned and intelligent.

Mr Charles Cunningham and company will produce their new and elaborate production, entitled The King's Hat, at the London Pavilion on Monday next. The other new turns will be Walter George, Madge Mayfield, Francis, Hermance Bros., Vermetti and Dionne, Maynard Daykin, and Dora Clements.

The Stavordale Quintet, who finish a most successful starring tour to-night at the Tivoli, Manchester, open at the Canterbury and Paragon on Monday next. During their provincial engagements they have secured return dates all along the line.

Presentation.—As a memento of his recent visit to the Falkirk Grand Theatre and Opera House, Dr. Walford Bodie has presented Mr Horace W. Ebbutt, the popular resident-manager of the theatre, with a beautiful gold cigarette case, in the clasp of which there is a pretty torquoise stone. On the case is the inscription, "From Dr. Walford Bodie to Horace W. Ebbutt as a mark of esteem."

THE COLISEUM.

In Mr Oswald Stoll's first programme at the spacious pleasure house in St. Martin's-lane, no more exhilirating contribution is to be found than Barney in Connemara. If the doings in the typical Irish village, so artistically painted by the artist in distemper, are an example of the Hibernian behaviour under the much-reviled English rule, then there can be no injustice to Ireland. Barney is quite as much of a broth of a boy as Boucicault's Conn, the Shaughraun, and he is most coquettishly wooed by that sweetest of colleens, Miss Decima Moore, who sings with lilting gaiety and abandon the song of the title. Other gossoons and colleens fill the stage, and the hearty jollity, the infectious vivacity of the whole thing is very enjoyable. The Last Load is redolent of country life in the thirties, and though in the limits of a scena there can be but faint adumbrations of character, still the bucolic types introduced into the village add to the vraisemblance of this picture of rustic rejoicing. The scene by Mr R. C. M'Cleery is a very pretty one, and the Squire is represented in robust and hearty style by Mr J. C. Piddock, who sings extremely well. Miss Sylvia Sablanc, the Squire's daughter, looks pretty in the quaint Victorian dress, and gives pleasant emphasis to her song. She further delights the house as "The Pickle Girl" among the pickle jars at Brosse and Clackwell's. There is nothing "jarring" in the harmony or in the costumes of this scene, and the dancing girls who assist are full of life, enery, and sparkle. Mr N. Lambelet's music is most effective, and Mr Bruce Smith's scene is as ingenious as it well can be. My Fancy, who is one of the latest acquisitions to the first programme, has won a name in all parts of the world as a sand dancer. We know of no rival to this very attractive young lady, whose marvellous celerity of step and rhythmic movements keep the attention of the Coliseumites quite absorbed. In an elegant brown satin knickerbocker costume she foots it with untiring agility, with unerring precision and with a charm all her own. She has eight young ladies to assist, but they only emphasise her own deftness and skill. In the early portion of the programme a pretty series of transformations is unfolded under the title of Theodor Hugo's "Fata Morgana." A lady in diaphanous garments of white, standing on a platform, draped in black, is the "medium" of many chaste and beautiful chromatropic effects. She flutters as a gorgeous butterfly; at times she is a parterre of beautiful blooms; and an entrancing final picture is the apotheosis, "Polar Star."

The acrobatic feature is the performance of the marvellous Lukens, four well-set-up gymnasts, who give a fine exhibition of muscular skill and activity from a specially constructed platform, at each end of which are steel uprights with fixed bar and platform. Two of the Lukens hang head downwards, and the two lighter men, swinging between the uprights, accomplish a series of pirouettes and single and double somersaults—to catch—with an ease and grace that move the audience to enthusiastic applause. Acrobatism figures largely in a "huge joke," presented by Manning's entertainers. The scene is the steam room of a Turkish bath, kept by an American gentleman, who "makes it hot" for a gouty patient in more ways than one. The attendants, just to show their agility, somersault from a table, and take a clean leap over the guv'nor's head. He seeks refreshment at the telephone, and is disappointed to find that other and weightier things besides beer are "on tap." He finally "takes the flure" in a series of bewildering feats, in which the element of eccentricity is never lacking, and the generous applause meted out to the trio is well deserved. The Mayvilles (Harry and Elsie), in presenting their original Lilliputian novelty act, are heartily encouraged in their clever character duets; and items in the bill that meet with the heartiest applause are the trapeze business of Pitt and Cute, who have a strong sense of the humorous, and the song, "Blue Bell," so well rendered by Mr Allan Morris, who is assisted by the Coliseum choir. The Derby is the grand musical spectacle that winds up each of the performances.

The fresh numbers in the second performance include the Andos, happy little Japs, who perform with wonderful coolness a series of equilibristic feats that demand the greatest nicety of balance. The performance by a little girl on a long pole balanced on his shoulder by the chief member of the troupe is a very remarkable exhibition of skill, and the tension is much relieved when the performer slides down to the security of the stage. One of the youths does a remarkable rope-climbing feat, by ascending the hempen causeway by means of his toes, without any other aid to balance than a Japanese umbrella. He concludes the performance with a rapid slide down the rope—a feat that brings down the house. The Andos wear the richest and most gorgeous vestments, and their show is novel, curious, and interesting. They do not forget that their kindred are our allies, neither do the audience. The Florenz Troupe of Continental acrobats seem to have sounded "the last word" in shoulder tumbling. The youth who plays the part of top-mounter does a marvellous upward single somersault on to the shoulders of a column three men high, and this fine feat is followed by the human column toppling to the stage. We could give no adequate idea in pen and ink of the doings of the Florenz Combination, and it would be therefore useless to attempt further description of a show that is of the highest class. Of Mr R. A. Roberts as Dick Turpin we spoke last week, and the scenas The River Girl, The Bells' Parade, and other items have all been previously described. Mr Harry Lamore's slack wire-walking act is an eccentric exhibition that we believe is also new since our last visit.

Will the collectors for Mr Thomas Barrasford's appeal for the Music Hall Home Fund kindly send in their lists to The Era Office to the hon. treasurer, Mr F. H. Pedgrift. They will be duly announced in our next issue. Those artistes who desire a collecting card please apply to Mr J. T. Fruin, secretary, 31, Wilson-road, Camberwell, S.E.

Mr Fred Sinclair and Miss Gracie Whiteford are very gratified at their success in Leicester this week in their comedy duologue Getting Even.—Mr W. F. Frame will introduce his showman's song, with a performing bear, at the Hippodrome, Norwich, on Monday.—Mr Harry Burns is still rapidly improving, and hopes soon to be in harness again.—Henderson and Williams have just produced a new absurdity entitled The Troubles of a Photographer, introducing trick cycling, mandoliner, and their own trick scenery.

At Sadler's Wells on Monday and through the week an interesting feature will be a singing competition in connection with Miss Lottie Lennox. Prizes to the value of £20 will be given. Mr Julius Simpson, manager here, is making this historic house more popular than ever. Next week he has arranged for the reappearance of a sketch, entitled The Lost Woman, by F. G. Brooks and company, which twelve months ago was very successful here.

A CHAT WITH "MY FANCY."

(BY OUR OWN COMMISSIONER.)

The charming lady who has bestowed upon herself the stage name of "My Fancy" has seen summer's sun and winter's snow in many different climes. She has experienced a heavy storm in a Michigan village, which blew her travelling waggon off its track and caused it to become submerged. She has danced on gold quartz in Western Australia; she has sat under the shadows of the domes and minarets of Cairo and Alexandria; she has gazed in admiration at the scenic splendours of Ceylon and Colombo; she has marvelled at the sublime beauty of an Indian sunset, and has listened to the Brahmin priest calling the faithful to prayer from an Indian mosque; she has witnessed the South African sky become blackened by legions of locusts; and—she is now in the greatest city in the world, delighting audiences with her exquisite sand-dancing at a hall of wonders known by the name of the Coliseum. And yet, after a multitude of doings in a multitude of places, the lady has years of youth still in front of her.

My Fancy was born in St. Louis, U.S.A., and commenced her stage career at the early age of eight, when she joined a travelling company, which had its fair share of the vicissitudes of theatrical life during a tour through America. My Fancy was then one of the Macumber Sisters—the other lady wasn't really a sister, but that didn't matter—their business being singing and sand dancing. And here My Fancy tells us that she never received a lesson in dancing, so that the daughter of Jupiter and Mnemosyne must have been the muse that presided over her birth. That the mythological genius known as Terpsichore has favoured My Fancy there seems little doubt—the clever artiste's audiences have always borne willing testimony to her remarkable talents. Of course, she admits she has practiced her art, and, for the matter of that, still practices it every day. In an American comic opera company she, while little more than a child, introduced some speciality dances in the different scenes. Very thoroughly did My Fancy experience what it means to "go through the mill." She has shared the joys and sorrows of the caravan-dweller, and if you are lucky enough to get her into a talkative mood you will hear many amusing yarns about the Romany of the New World. When she was with a travelling circus company, it was her duty in the daytime, along with other members of the troupe, to take part in what was described as a "grand processional parade." And My Fancy laughs as she recalls that the imposing pageant, with a goodly space between each unit, stretched out to a distance of some twelve yards. At that period she learned to do everything, including bar-walking, trapeze acts and general acrobatics, and illusions after the style of the "sleeping beauty" order.

Some people may not be aware that My Fancy is not known in her native country by that name. She came over to England eleven years ago making her first appearance in London—and in this country for the matter of that—at the Pavilion, Piccadilly-circus, where she performed her sand and buck dances. She stayed for six weeks at the Pavilion, and was immediately engaged for a similar period at the Oxford. The late Mr Charles Morton, who witnessed her turn at the latter house, gave her a month's contract for the Palace Theatre, but the lady proved such an attraction at the Shaftesbury-avenue hall that she remained there for sixteen weeks. Up to the time of appearing at the Oxford she was known as Mae Rose Baker, and it was on the programme at that establishment that she first assumed the nom de guerre of My Fancy. After London she went into the provinces and into Ireland, appearing later for a couple of months at the Folies Bergere in Paris. This was followed by a short stay at Liverpool, at the old Alexandra Theatre (now known as the Empire), and then came a trip to New York for the opening of Hammerstein's Olympia, supposed to be the finest place of amusement in the world until the London Coliseum was built. She returned to England for a few days in order to prepare for her voyage to South Africa, where, at the Johannesburg Empire and Royal Theatres, she delighted large audiences with her wonderful dancing. Back again to this country for a long provincial tour, then to Australia, under the management of Messrs Garner and Harry Rickards, it will be seen that My Fancy was kept pretty well on the move. At Coolgardie, in Western Australia, she danced on gold quartz, there being no sand obtainable at the time. She tells us that she enjoyed playing before the rough and ready gold-digging crowds that used to assemble wherever a programme of entertainment was organised.

Upon her later adventures it is scarcely necessary to touch. Of course, she came back to England. One night she was performing at the Grand Theatre, Clapham. A Mr Harry Bawn was in the same company of artists appearing that week. He and My Fancy had met before, and at the very same place of amusement. They now met again, and it seemed to Mr Bawn that the lady's stage name flowed rather naturally from his lips. He thought that the two words, "My Fancy," fitted in rather well with his own ideas as to the lady. He came to the conclusion that there was more in the cognomen than most people imagined, and a few years ago he helped My Fancy to fulfil her name in a way it had never been fulfilled before—at the altar of Hymen. They have an interesting little son, who is fast threatening to become a dangerous rival to his mother, for in their pretty home at Clapham the youngster has taught himself quite half a-dozen steps in dancing, and, by the way, makes his own music.

After leaving the Coliseum My Fancy starts upon the Stoll tour, at the conclusion of which she hopes to pay a visit to America.

MESSRS. PACEY AND REEVES.

THEIR NEW ADDRESS.

The scene that met our eyes on Wednesday morning was quite an animated one. The venue was a large room at 186, Brixton-road, S.W., and some half-dozen people were engaged in the troublesome duty of putting things to rights in a new office. There was the arrangement and hanging up of pictures, for instance, and all the irritating details connected with the placing of furniture in suitable positions, refixing of books and photographs, &c. Curiously enough, Mr Sam Mayo, the well-known comedian, was the busiest of all. He had determined that the pictures in Messrs Pacey and Reeves' new offices should be hung in an artistic manner. And there was humour in his hanging. Hammer in one hand, cord in the other, and tin-tacks stuck in his cigarette as a sort of convenient pin-cushion, he tumbled over chairs and other obstacles in a way that was comical to behold. Of course, such scenes are a rarity in a variety agent's office, where, in the ordinary course of things, strict attention to business is as much insisted upon as in any commercial establishment. But a little gaiety at an opening celebration could be forgiven; and, after all, Mr Mayo did work hard.

During an interval in a heated argument, in which a cruel allegation of cock-eyed picture-hanging was hurled against Mr Mayo, we succeeded in getting into conversation with Mr Tom Pacey. "I regard Brixton as an admirable neighbourhood for a music hall agency," said that gentleman. "Seventy-five per cent. of our variety artists live round about here. York Corner is played out, and the telephone has to some extent rendered it unnecessary for agents to conduct their business in one specified area, as was the custom years ago. In the long ago proprietors had to visit agents in the Waterloo-road, but now agents must run round to see managers. And how much more agreeable it is for us to be able to look out upon a pleasant thoroughfare than to be cooped up in one of the dingy and old-fashioned buildings of York-corner. Only part of this house is set apart for the purposes of our agency, and the other portion I use as a residence. The advantage of this lies in the fact that it is possible for me to receive telephone messages at any time of the day and night. I feel certain that an agent can transact as much business in Brixton as in the Strand. The managers do not come after you; you have to go after them."

Nothing, we should imagine, could be more convenient than the establishment which Messrs Pacey and Reeves have fitted out at 186, Brixton-road, and the change they have made will doubtless be appreciated by many of the artistes whose names are upon the books of the firm. As Mr Pacey remarked—What cannot be done by means of the telephone can be effected by personal calls; and there need be little fear that the success which has attended the well-directed energies of these two gentlemen will be continued, and even improved upon, in their new premises. Mr Pacey has had some nine years' experience as a music-hall agent; while his partner, Mr Fred Reeves, has been performer, proprietor, manager, and agent. A combination of two gentlemen, who have had a first-class commercial training, and, moreover, are intimate with theatrical affairs and with the requirements of variety audiences, cannot but be productive of good in the interests both of performers and proprietors. Mr Reeves will probably be best remembered as the late manager of the Hammersmith Palace of Varieties, and everybody in the profession knows what an extremely profitable undertaking that hall became under his capable directorship. It was Messrs Pacey and Reeves who arranged the six days' record contracts for Mr Sam Mayo, whereby the latter performed nine turns a night for a week. It was through their agency, too, that Datas, "the man of memory," secured a twelve months' engagement at the Palace Theatre without a break. We are sure their innumerable friends will join with us in wishing Messrs Pacey and Reeves even greater prosperity in the future in their Brixton home than they have enjoyed in the past down Waterloo way.

Owing to the closing of the Royal, Holborn, Mr Frederic D. Wood, musical director, and his orchestra have been transferred by Mr Walter Gibbons to the Duchess Palace, Balham, during the rebuilding of the Holborn house.

Mr Walter George, with songs and musical sketches at the piano, will return to the London Pavilion on Monday next.

Miss Kate Carney has again secured the services of clever Mr Fred Malcolm, comedian and dancer, in her new musical episode, Our Laundry.

The Sisters Bartholomew (Violet and Daisy) are opening at the Chelsea Palace on Feb. 13, after a most successful three months' tour in the provinces.

Miss Ronalds had a party at the Lyceum last Wednesday night, which included Prince Arthur of Connaught, Mr Marconi, who has just become engaged to a charming Irish girl, and Mrs Ritchie.

The Preston family are winning many triumphs in pantomime this season. Miss Jessie, who has played for several Yuletides at the Pavilion, Mile-end, is giving a vivacious embodiment of Sinbad in the pantomime of that name that is being run by Mr G. Brydon Phillips. Unfortunately the production was "burnt out" at Crouch-end, but it has been most successfully presented at Dalston, and is this week at the Brixton Theatre, where the staff in front of the house on Saturday last paid Miss Preston a high compliment by presenting her with a beautiful bouquet. Her sister Joey is touring as Dick Whittington in Mr C. Morris's company; and the Brothers Preston (George and Jock) have made a big hit at the Princess's Theatre, Glasgow, in Goosey Gander, Jock being principal Scotch comedian.

Mr Will Newman, music hall comedian, has just passed away at a nursing home in Westbourne-square, the cause of death being congestion of the lungs, which supervened on Bright's disease.

Miss Gabrielle Hope, who read our interview with Mr Harry Lyons last week, in which he stated that he was of opinion that the music hall audiences of to-day would listen to classical music, was encouraged thereby to write to Mr Lyons, with the result that she has been engaged to play a classical solo in a piano sketch at Collins's to-night. We do not think Miss Hope is the first lady to play a pianoforte classic on the variety stage. Miss Jennie Gabrielle (now Mrs Latona) introduced such works at the Metropolitan and other halls some ten years ago.

Mr Sidney B. Smith, late of 7, St. Ambrose-grove, Liverpool, has removed his headquarters to London—viz., to 34, Cleveland-mansions, Brixton-road, S.W.

At the World's Fair in the Agricultural Hall, on Saturday, 6,000 union children, who were the guests of the lessees of the exhibition, enjoyed themselves to the utmost. Among the multiform amusements were free roundabouts, free railway trips, free views of the excellent circus, and, perhaps, most important of all, opportunities of "slipping the slip." It was a pleasure to witness the keen enjoyment of the youngsters, each of whom was presented with oranges and buns, as, seated on mats, they zig-zagged down the narrow corrugated way from the tower to the ground.

THE SHOWMAN WORLD.

(COPYRIGHT.)

(SPECIAL TO THE ERA.)

One remarkable outcome of the annual meetings of the Showmen's Guild this year has been the number of enquiries as to its work and methods which have come from all parts of the country. A gentleman of Devonshire writes to the hon. chaplain:—"I should be glad to have particulars of the Showmen's Guild, as I am much interested in the Showmen travelling Devon and Cornwall. I should be glad to meet you in London in February some time, to discuss the education of the traveller's children. Anything done for that little understood (and I must say misunderstood) class has my warmest sympathy, and I am glad to think that a priest of my own church is connected with the movement."

It is such communications as these that encourage the executive of the Guild in its many-sided enterprise for the well-being of the men, women, and children who travel the fairs to earn their daily bread. It has also been very gratifying to take note of the unanimous chorus of approval and sympathy sounded by the entire Press of the British Empire. How different this is to the state of affairs fifteen years ago, when showfolk were regarded as a sort of upper caste of Gipsydom. We have changed all that, and to-day, as a necessary and integral portion of the great world of entertainers, dramatic, equestrian, mystic, musical, and mimetic, showmen hold their own, never a day behind the fair, but always two days before the morrow.

It is a curious comment on the action of the City Fathers of Wigan (not its people) in their crusade against pleasure fairs that America, the land par excellence of State education and universal enlightenment, is actually now paying a premium to showmen—English showmen most of them—to develop show business and establish fairs in its towns and states. In a conversation with Mr George H. Kemp, president of the Showmen of the British Empire, we were told of the encouragement given to showmen in the United States. First, the great states fostered the movement to establish fairs known as "state fairs." Some great centre was fixed upon, with the special regard to railway accessibility. Then some great show, say for instance, the Barnum-Bailey Combine, the Forepaugh Aggregation, or James W. Bostock, with Wombwell's Menagerie, and other shows and roundabouts brought over from the old country, formed the nucleus of a fair. It was not a question of how much the showmen would pay for ground-rent, but how much they would want to come. This offer of the State was accompanied in most cases by proposals on the part of the great railways to convey the whole of the show paraphernalia to the fairground free.

Let us clearly accentuate this startling fact and its bearing upon the discussion now going on between the people and their rulers in Wigan. America, a new country, arrives at the conclusion to foster shows, not on the strength of sentiment or time-honoured tradition, but entirely and only because it pays and that it encourages trade, commerce, and social advancement; and is seeking now to establish not only State fairs, but the equivalent of our minor fairs, feasts, and wakes.

In a further conversation with Mr Fitts, of Coney Island renown, who is at present in this country, to establish a branch of a fairground mechanical novelty syndicate, we obtained strong confirmation and still more startling facts and figures with regard to the phenomenal growth of showman enterprise in the United States, very largely engineered by British showmen, like the Bostocks and President Kemp.

The Misses Mitford and Bond, after an absence of four years, opened their well-appointed portable Bijou Theatre at Melton Mowbray this week. The répertoire company has been well selected, and is playing with success to large audiences.

Messrs J. Barker and C. Thurston this week conclude their Winter Carnival at the Agricultural Hall, Norwich, having had a most successful season. Their gondolas have been well patronised, and the Cinématograph entertainment has been entertaining and pleasing. The guessing competition for valuable prizes has excited the keenest interest in the crowds nightly assembled. The side shows have also done well. They include H. Westrop's, Abbott's, and John Holmes's doll saloons; Geo. Hurn's, H. Westrop's, and R. Holmes's shooting saloons; T. Bond's switchback board; J. Holmes's cokernut shoot; W. R. Rudd's ring competition; Osborne's and R. Holmes's fancy stalls, and Mackintosh's toffee saloon, giving plenty of amusement to all visiting the hall.

Mr Jacob Studt's World's Fair is still going very strong at the Victoria Hall, Southampton, the various attractions being well patronised.

In a recent article of ours on "British Shows and Showmen" we attributed to the late William Sanger the honour of being the inventor of the steam roundabout. We were slightly in error. Mr William Sanger was the inventor of "Sea on Land," a vast improvement on the earlier type of steam-driven roundabouts, and the germ idea, in its "roller" motion, of switchbacks and Venetian gondolas. We are, however, in receipt of a communication from Mr Thomas Hurst, secretary of the British Roundabout Proprietors and Showmen's Union, and hon. secretary of the Showmen's Guild, to the following effect:—"The inventor of steam roundabouts was my father, the late Mr Wm. Hurst, of Bolton. He, in conjunction with Mr Thomas Bradshaw, also of Bolton, made and worked the first set of steam horses that were run. They were set up on the site of the present Town Hall at Bolton."

We should be glad to receive from showmen and roundabout makers any useful information they may have with regard to the development of the roundabout business.

In a conversation we had with Mr Hurst at Bolton Fair, he furnished the following interesting particulars:—His father had been to Blackpool where he saw upon the sands a small set of hobby-horses driven, as most of our midget sets of horses now are, by a crank handle, the owner supplying the motive power by hand. Mr Hurst, on his return to Bolton, consulted a brother mechanic as to the possibility of moving a set of hobby-horses by steam. They set to work and planned and made the first set of steam horses.

It is curious that Mr Thomas Hurst, the son of the inventor, is the organiser of the Roundabout Proprietors' Trade Society, and their actual leader in the movement for the defence of British fairs and of show traders' rights and privileges.

We also again draw attention to the importance of insurance against fire and other risks. Mr Pope, of Abingdon-on-Thames, is rapidly coming to the front in this connection.

STAGE STAFF GOSSIP.

(SPECIAL TO THE ERA.)

THE first annual dinner of the working staff and friends of the Britannia Theatre, Hoxton, took place on the stage, by kind permission of the proprietors, on the 27th ult., at midnight. Mr J. E. Stubbs presided, and was supported by Mr E. Abbott, Mr J. M. East (general-manager), and Mr Brian Daly. About sixty sat down, among whom were Miss M. Barber, Miss Daisy James (principal boy in the pantomime), Miss Gracie Taylor, Mr. A. Hyman, Mr Geo. Lupino, Mr Tom Wallace, Mr Charles Jerome, and other members of the company.

AFTER dinner a concert was given, during which Mr J. Deveraux, on behalf of the members of the company, presented Mr J. M. East with a travelling bag, a silver snuff box, and silver cigar holder. In thanking them for the presents Mr East paid some compliments to the working staff. He said it was the best staff he had ever worked with, and that he would do his best to make them contented, but it was a case of "give and take," and he hoped in the future the old staff would do their best to help him to uphold the old flag of the "Brit." At the conclusion of Mr East's speech the company sang "For he's a jolly good fellow."

THE arrangements for the dinner and concert were highly satisfactory, and the chairman proposed a hearty vote of thanks to Mr J. Summerfield, flyman; Mr W. F. Holloway, master carpenter; and Mr G. T. Webb. Mr J. Summerfield responded, and said he had worked at the "Brit." for sixteen years, and that in that time he had seen five changes in the management. He hoped that the present management would prosper. What pleased him was to see several present who had been members of the staff for the past twenty years. Mr Holloway, the master carpenter, said, in responding, that he had worked with many different staffs, but his present staff was the best he had ever had, and he hoped they would stay with him as long as he was master carpenter.

AMONG those who contributed to the concert programme were Messrs G. Stray, J. Summerfield, G. M'Leave, G. Leach, A. Penny, W. T. Holloway, C. Nevill, A. Wright, W. Williams, H. Smith, A. M'Leave, W. Yates, T. Norris, and C. Lowden. The chairman proposed "Success to the Proprietors of the Britannia and to Mr J. M. East and Artists of the Pantomime." Mr E. Sagrott was the accompanist. The stewards were Messrs C. Lowden and J. Riley. Mr E. Sagrott was treasurer, and Messrs W. F. Holloway and G. T. Webb secretaries.

THE annual dinner of the staff of the Grand Theatre, Islington, will be given at the Nag's Head Hotel, Covent-garden, on Sunday evening, Feb. 12 Mr J. Davey, proprietor of the theatre, will preside.

MR FRED COLLINS, who was formerly property master at the Britannia Theatre, and later at His Majesty's Theatre, is now property master for the New Theatre.

MR H. PORTER will be master carpenter and Mr L. R. Chantrell property master at the Avenue Theatre.

MR A. E. WOOD has resumed his old position as master carpenter at the Royalty Theatre.

MR A. ERNOTT, who was for many years property master at the Lyceum Theatre for Sir Henry Irving, and who has recently been on tour with Miss Ellen Terry, is now property master at the Savoy Theatre.

THE annual general meeting of the No. 1 Branch, N.U.T.S.E., will be held on Feb. 19 in the St. George's Hall, Westminster-bridge-road. Nominations for office and notice of resolutions to be submitted to the meeting should be sent at once to the secretary, 29, Wellington-street, Strand.

A MEETING of theatrical stage employees will be held in Glasgow to-morrow at 11, Maitland-street. All employees are invited to attend.

A MEETING of stage employees will be held to-morrow evening at 8·0 o'clock at the Royal Standard Hotel, Flemming-street, Kingsland-road, E.

AT a committee meeting of the Scenic Artists' Association, to be held at 8·0 o'clock on Monday next at their offices, 5, Robert-street, Adelphi, W.C., the balance-sheet of the association to Dec. 31, 1904, as audited, will be presented.

THE secretary of the Scenic Artists' Association (Mr H. Lawrence Harris) notifies us that he is issuing a limited number of season tickets at 5s. each for admission to the private Press view, the opening ceremony of the exhibition, and daily for the week of April 10, including the entertainments every afternoon. He thinks that when the programme and catalogue of the exhibition are published these season tickets will command a premium. 1s. admission tickets may now be had of the secretary either singly, 1s. each, or in books of twenty-one for £1.

At the Scenic Artists' Benevolent Fund Dinner, to be held on Sunday fortnight, 19th inst., at the Imperial Restaurant, Regent-street, W. The chair will be taken by Sir Lawrence Alma Tadema, R.A., supported by the Count Max Hollander, the Hon. C. N. Lawrence, and Messrs George Alexander, Oscar Asche, Edmund G. Banks, Dion Boucicault, Arthur Bourchier, Arthur Chudleigh, W. L. Courtney, Geo. H. R. Dabbs, M.D., Leslie Douglass, Richard Douglass, Gerard Duckworth, Chas. Frohman, Albert Gilmer. S. Goldmann, E. Marshall Hall, M.P., K.C., Ernest Hann, Walter Hann, Gilbert Hare, William Harford, Phil Harker, Frederick Harrison, Herman Hart, W. T. Hemsley, M. Henry, Robert E. Howell, G. P. Huntley, George Herring, Julian Hicks, R. G. Legge, Charles Lewis, J. N. Lyons, R. C. McCleery, Jas. W. Matthews, Cyril Maude, Carl Meyer, Joseph Mordecai, Alfred Moul, Lewis Nathan, H. W. Owen, Louis N. Parker, T. Wigney Percyval, A. Wing Pinero, Ambrose Poynter, Harry Potts, W. Raphael, E. Vivian Reynolds, Paul A. Rubens, T. E. Ryan, W. B. Spong, Oswald Stoll, J. G. Symes, W. Telbin, Geo. Tweddell, Lewis Waller, C. Wilhelm, and Sir Philip Burne-Jones, Bart. (honorary secretary to the Benevolent Fund Dinner).

THE secretary begs that members and friends of the Association who propose to take tickets for the Benevolent Fund Dinner will send in their applications immediately, as the accommodation at the Imperial Restaurant is limited to a certain number.

NOTICES and reports of meetings, &c., are invited from the various societies with which stage employees are connected.

DR. CARL HERRMAN, hypnotist, electrician, and vitapathic healer, has arrived in England, after an absence of more than ten years in America and the Colonies. He opened his first engagement at the Hippodrome, Coventry, where he created the healthiest kind of impression, every house being filled to overflowing. He commences a tour with Mr Broadhead, of Manchester, on Monday.

MR EDITOR.—Sir,—In your notice last week of the Prince of Wales Theatre, Southampton, you stated that it was the part of "Mrs Woodruff" which was played by me. It should have been "Mrs Montrevor." Yours faithfully, AMY VENIMORE. When Darkness Falls company, Stratford, Feb. 1.

COUNTY COUNCIL AND AMUSEMENTS.

(SPECIALLY REPORTED FOR THE ERA.)

The usual weekly meeting of the London County Council was held on Tuesday at the County Hall, Spring-gardens.

DUKE OF YORK'S THEATRE.

The Theatres and Music Halls Committee reported that they had considered a plan, submitted by Messrs T. W. Coffin and Sons, showing the proposed method of fitting hurricane doors in the passage which leads to the stage door at the Duke of York's Theatre, St. Martin's-lane. There appeared to be no objection to the proposal, and they recommended accordingly. Agreed to.

LYCEUM THEATRE.

The committee had considered a plan, submitted by Mr B. Crewe, showing the positions of boilers and heating apparatus in connection with the Plenum heating and ventilating system proposed to be installed at the Lyceum Theatre, Wellington-street, Strand. They recommended "That Mr B. Crewe be informed that the Council has no objection to the arrangements shown on the plan submitted by him provided the following conditions be complied with:—(1) That the separation between the apartments containing the apparatus and the other parts of the theatre be constructed of fire-resisting materials to the satisfaction of the Council. (2) That the cover protecting the terminals on the motor in connection with the ventilating fan be lined with insulating material to the satisfaction of the Council." Approved.

ST. JAMES'S THEATRE.

The committee had considered a plan, submitted by Mr C. T. Helmsley, on behalf of Mr George Alexander, showing how it is proposed to divide up, by means of arms, the pit seating at St. James's Theatre. They recommended "That Mr C. T. Helmsley be informed that the Council has no objection to the arrangements shown on the plan submitted by him with regard to the proposed division of the pit seating at St. James's Theatre." Agreed to.

SOUTH LONDON MUSIC HALL.

The committee had considered plans, submitted by Messrs Wylson and Long, showing how it is proposed to give effect to Nos. 1, 24, 51, 68, 69, 70, and 86 of the suggestions made by the Council for the improvement of the South London Music Hall, London-road. The suggestions in question involve alterations in respect of the exit arrangements from the gallery and balcony, refreshment rooms on the o.p. side of the stalls, and the stage exit and openings between the dressing-room staircase and the stage. The committee recommended "That Messrs Wylson and Long be informed that the Council has no objection to the arrangements shown on the three plans submitted by them with regard to the proposed method of dealing with the suggestions made by the Council for the improvement of the South London Music Hall, provided the following conditions be complied with:—(1) That all recesses and projections be properly defended. (2) That the private rooms and offices be separated from the public portion of the hall by means of fire-resisting materials and door. (3) That the gallery staircase be entirely separated from the balcony staircase by fire-resisting materials. (4) That the stage be separated from the dressing-room staircase by means of a fire resisting door." Approved.

FIRE-PROOFING SCENERY.

The committee reported:—The Council on March 1, 1904, adopted new rules to be observed by the licensees of premises licensed by the Council for public entertainments. One of these rules provides that all scenery, [wings, sky borders, cloths, draperies, gauze cloths, floral decorations, properties, hangings, curtains, &c., whether on the stage, in the auditorium, or in other parts of the premises, must be rendered and maintained non-inflammable. The amended regulations issued on Nov. 1, 1904, by the Lord Chamberlain for the theatres in his Lordship's jurisdiction contain a similar provision. A considerable time has elapsed since the rule in question came into force, but we are informed that it is as yet by no means generally complied with. We have, therefore, caused a letter to be sent to the managers of theatres licensed by the Council calling their attention to the necessity of complying strictly with the rule in question. The Lord Chamberlain has taken similar action with regard to the theatres in his Lordship's jurisdiction. It is unnecessary to dwell upon the danger of fire caused by large quantities of highly inflammable scenery on the stage where, even apart from the scenery, the risk of fire is naturally greatest, and we feel that the Council will wish that the strongest possible action should in future be taken to secure compliance with the rule requiring scenery to be made and maintained fire-resisting. We report the facts for the information of the Council and with a view to giving publicity to the matter.

GAIETY THEATRE.

The Improvements Committee reported:—It is provided in an agreement between the Council and the Gaiety Theatre Company, dated May 6, 1901, supplemental to the agreement dated June 23, 1899, referred to in the Council's Improvements Act of 1899, that the company shall build upon the site therein referred to a new theatre according to plans, elevations, &c., to be approved by the Council, and, further, that if the Council should require such elevations, or any of them, to be of a different and more elaborate or more costly character, design, or materials, the company shall comply with the Council's requirements, on condition that the increased cost, if any, thereby entailed shall be paid by the Council. We have now to report that Mr A. T. Franklin, of the firm of Messrs Franklin and Andrews, quantity surveyors, the arbitrator to whom the matter was referred, has awarded that the requirements of the Council did properly entail on the company increased cost, and that the amount of such increased cost is £17,217. This amount, together with the costs (£716 7s.) of the arbitrator in making his award, is, in accordance with the agreement, payable by the Council, and we have therefore forwarded the accounts to the Finance Committee, with a view to payment being made. We may add that the company's claim amounted to £28,000.

Mr HUNT considered that this was an appalling figure, as it was only for the embellishment of the building, so, as it was said, to make it worthy of the site. As regards the architectural features of the theatre, he did not wish to indulge in any comments, but he did not regard it as a thing of beauty and a joy for ever, and if nearly £18,000 had been expended on architectural improvements, he failed to discover the point where it could be shown on the building. He regarded the proposal as absolutely throwing away the ratepayers' money for the purpose of enriching an already rich company.

Mr DAVIES, the chairman of the committee, in reply, said the point was that this was not letting land to the Gaiety people whereon to build a theatre, but it was the purchasing of the company's interest in the old theatre and the land on which it stood, and reinstating them in a new site. There was a feeling both inside and outside the Council that the class of property to be erected on this site should be worthy of London. The Council was not in a position to compel these people to put up a building that would be a credit to London, but they had succeeded in doing so by the means reported on by the committee. The claim by the company was about £28,000, but the Council had been released by payment of something under £18,000, and the committee were advised that these were the best terms the Council were likely to obtain. The subject then dropped.

ON Saturday last, at the Pavilion Theatre, Winter Gardens, Southport, was produced for copyright purposes, a military sketch, entitled Valiant of the 9th, by Harry C. Robinson.

WALTHAMSTOW PALACE.

With that keen appreciation of the advantages of perpetual variety invariably marking the weekly arrangements with which Mr Arthur J. Barclay tempts the public into the cosy and luxurious house under his management, the present programme at the Walthamstow Palace contains quite a number of items eminently calculated to afford pleasure to the spectators. The natural result of this wise and liberal policy is that at every performance the large house is full to repletion, while ripples of laughter and roars of applause testify to the general enjoyment. For absolute popularity with the Palace patrons, from the front row of the stalls to the back of that part which an artiste last week spoke of as "the top-shelf," the palm must be awarded to the Japanese wrestler, Yukio Tani, the fame of whose deeds had preceded him. The interesting and wonderful achievements of the alert little man are watched with breathless attention. A particularly pleasing entertainment is that of the Imperial Boys' Orchestra, otherwise the "Kilted Kiddies." This band of happy-looking youngsters, resplendent in Highland dress, play their various instruments in fine style, and in a manner that suggests most careful training. Miss Nelly Lewis is a good burlesque actress, with a fine presence and an excellent voice. In an amusing duologue, The Revolt of Man, in which are shown the dire straits to which poor man may be reduced "a hundred years hence," and how he is finally "emancipated," Phillips and Terry play with much drollery, delivering their humorous lines with point and energy. The little sketch is played to a running accompaniment of laughter. Mr Johnnie Dwyer sings two songs with all his old force and distinctness. The Two Whites—one of whom is a "darkie"—sing with spirit and do some clever sand dancing. Miss Elsa Joel, a handsome lady, exquisitely apparelled, gives some very artistic imitations of different styles of singing—French, Italian, and English. The Brothers Lloyd are loudly applauded in their original and sensational double-rope act, which is accomplished without the aid of balance poles. Their various feats are rendered with a neatness, dexterity, and precision that quite entitle the performers to their hearty reception. Ruffell's Imperial Bioscope is still popular, and the pictures this week are well calculated to maintain their reputation.

ROYAL COLLEGE OF MUSIC.

The concert of Friday, Jan. 27, opened with the beautiful quartet for strings, Op. 18, No. 3 of Beethoven, which was played with much taste and a creditable balance of tone by Vera Warwick Evans, Herbert Kinze, Frank Bridge, and Charles Warwick Evans. The Ballade in G minor, of Chopin, enabled Miss Eva Rowe to display real gifts, as an interpreter of the Polish composer, not at all common in a student. Generally students altogether fail to realise the qualities of the poetical pianist, whose music kept alive the national feeling so long that when the brutal Cossacks wrecked Chopin's house in Warsaw they smashed his piano and threw the broken fragments out of the window to their comrades below, who made a bonfire of them, aiding the flames by tossing on scores of his charming letters. The Chromatic Fantasia and Fugue of Thiele, for the organ, though vastly inferior to Bach, has some merits, justice being done to it by Mr Harold Rhodes. This fine organ might be heard more frequently, especially as the Royal College has several students amply qualified to display the fine qualities of the instrument which Sir Hubert Parry so generously presented to the college. The vocal music was generally interesting. "Murmuring breezes," by Jensen, was given with good expression by Mr Frank Smith; Spohr's "Rose softly blooming" was rendered with grace by Miss Ina Hill; and a song of Grieg was interpreted with considerable effect by Miss Maggie Kirkbride. A Quintet in E minor, for piano and strings by the Scandinavian composer Sinding, although not, perhaps, one of his most inspired compositions, pleased owing to its careful rendering. The accompanist was Mr J. H. Bannister, who fulfilled his duties carefully and artistically.

THE London County Council have had to defray the cost of the additions to the approved plans of the new Gaiety Theatre to the amount of £17,217, the sum which has been awarded by the arbitrator, and also £716 7s. costs. The company's claim, however, amounted to £28,000.

MISS ISABEL JAY, who has just returned from a week's stay at Brighton, in order to recuperate from a nervous attack, is, we are glad to see, once more back again playing her old part in The Cingalee, at Daly's.

MR RUSSELL ROSSE will commence a two weeks' engagement at the Royalty Theatre, Glasgow, on Monday, when he will produce the Strand comedy Facing the Music, by arrangement with Mr Gerald Alexander. This will make Mr Rosse's sixth visit with his own companies to Glasgow within six months.

MR PERCIVAL CRAIG, the popular manager of the Avenue Theatre, Sunderland, was last week the recipient of a benefit. The occasion was marked by a bumper house, and quite a host of old and new friends journeyed to the Wearside borough to testify their appreciation of the bénéficiaire and to assist in an entertainment given, in addition to the pantomime, in his honour.

"PIGGY MACHREE" will open next week at the Theatre Royal, Brighton, and then will commence a tour of six weeks round the London suburban theatres, with Mr Denis O'Sullivan and Miss Marie Dainton in the cast.

THE annual contest between Mr F. R. Benson's company hockey team and that of Queen's College, took place at Malone Park, Belfast, on the 25th ult. The scores at the conclusion of the game were:—Queen's College, four goals; Mr Benson's Company, one goal.

MR LAURENCE GRANT AND MR MALCOM BARRINGTON will begin their tour of Joseph Entangled at the Coronet Theatre on Monday, with a company including Mrs Mouillot, Miss Claire Cavendish, Miss Evelyn Maxwell, Mr Guy Lane, Mr Leveson Lane, and Mr Grant. In the course of the tour they will produce two new pieces, one a three-act farce by Judge Parry, at Dublin; and the other a new one-act play, of strong dramatic interest, by Miss Beatrix De Burgh and Mr Lawrence Grant.

AT Mr James Macready Chute's theatre, the Prince's, Bristol, the annual theatre collection in aid of the local hospitals was made on Saturday last, and £35 18s. 4d. was added to the Lord Mayor's Hospital Sunday Fund.

MR ALFRED MANNERS, since he became sole lessee of the Queen's Theatre, Swindon, has made an annual collection in that popular theatre in aid of the local hospital. This year, on the visit of Mr Milton Bode's excellent pantomime Dick Whittington, the principals of the company succeeded in collecting, in an interval in the performance, the sum of £7 13s. for that deserving institution.

MISS KATHLEEN GRAY has in active rehearsal a new and original song-scena, in two scenes, entitled Poppy land, which she will shortly produce in London. It has been specially written and composed for her by Messrs Alf. J. Lawrance and Harry Gifford. Miss Maud Esmond's new and successful song "Two little tell-tale eyes," by the same authors, is in the press, having been secured by Messrs Hopwood and Crew, Limited.

MR. BENSON AT BELFAST.

The annual Students' Night took place on Tuesday last at the Theatre Royal, Belfast. The students of Queen's College formed in the usual procession, and, numbering several hundreds, marched together through the city to the Theatre Royal. They were arrayed in a variety of costumes, including those of costers, clergymen, clowns, warriors, columbines, pierrots, and powdered lackeys. The piece presented was The Rivals, and Mr and Mrs Benson were warmly applauded in their respective rôles of Captain Absolute and Lydia Languish; Mr G. R. Weir created much laughter by his happy assumption of Bob Acres. In the course of the evening Mrs Benson was presented with a lovely bouquet by the students composed of lily of the valley and white tulips, interspersed with asparagus plumosa, with long streamers of same tied with the college colours, blue and black. This was lowered from [the gallery to the stage and gracefully accepted by Mrs Benson amidst a scene of great enthusiasm. In response to loud demands, Mr Benson came forward and said:—"I hope there is no person here present who is not content. I am sure there is no dissatisfied person on this side of the footlights at any rate. I beg to thank you for your splendid reception—splendid even for Belfast, where you have spoiled us by your welcomes. On occasions like this it is my privilege to offer to the dwellers on Olympus our humble hymn of praise. O, great Olympians, we offer to you our hearty thanks for your condescension in coming amongst us mere mortals—for having laid aside the garb of learning, and appearing in the artless raiment of coryphée, clergyman and clown, columbine and coster, and dusky potentate from Afric's sunny strand. O, great Olympians, we thank you for your gifts—your gift of song and your gracious gift of flowers, and for your gift of laughter, which prevents the world, however learned it may be, from ever growing old. Above all, we thank you for the great friendliness that you have shown us for many years in Belfast. In our many wanderings one of our pleasant experiences is to frequently meet old Queen's College men, and when we do foregather I assure you that we have very many pleasant topics of conversation, and amongst those topics are occasions like this evening, and occasions when we have had the pleasure of meeting you in the playing fields. We thank you very much for all the friendliness and encouragement you have shown us, and we offer you as good-night the wish that when you go out to your work in the world you may meet some such measure of friendliness, encouragement, and good-fellowship Good-night." As in former years there was a musical programme between the acts, songs being rendered by several of the students, and by Messrs M'Elroy, Cahal O'Byrne, S. M'Caughey, and W. Howard.

A MEETING of the Touring Managers' Association was held at Mr Bannister Howard's office yesterday afternoon. The secretary mentioned the case of a manager, who was not a member of the association, but who had asked them to arbitrate upon a dispute between himself and a member of the Actors' Association. It was agreed that the arbitration boards of the two institutions should confer, with a view to a settlement of the difficulty.

ANOTHER subject brought before the T.M.A. concerned a complaint which had been received respecting a railway company who were deviating from the rule as to the size of trucks allowed to travelling companies under the three-quarters fare regulation, which came into force some time ago. The Secretary was instructed to write to the Railway Clearing House, pointing out the interference with one of the clauses.

ANOTHER member of the T.M.A., whose scenery was damaged during transit, owing to insufficient sheeting, claimed compensation from the railway company. The latter, however, sheltered themselves under the risk note, and declined to admit liability, and the Association decided to take the matter up.

MR EDWARD MARRIS'S Dandy Doctor company goes out on its sixth year of tour early in March. This successful musical play has been brought up to date by the introduction of new numbers. There are not many pieces of the class that can face the entire summer and play thirty weeks a-year; but this has been the case with The Dandy Doctor.

MISS DORA POOLE, of the Prince's Theatre, Bristol, has probably established a record as an understudy. At the Thursday matinée, on the 26th ult., Miss Poole, who is one of the chorus ladies in The Sleeping Beauty, was called upon to take the place of Miss Zena Dare, principal girl, and in the evening performance on the same day, when Miss Dare was able to appear, Miss Lil Hawthorne, the principal boy, was indisposed, so Miss Poole was called upon to assume that character. She had less than an hour's notice, and she had not had an opportunity of rehearsing the principal songs. Miss Poole is possessed of a pure and well-trained voice, she is a good elocutionist, and has a charming stage presence. We understand that Miss Poole is new to pantomime, and for four years has not been on the stage. Originally she was trained by Mr Paul Valentine as a vocalist and dancer, but retired into private life owing to delicate health. However, Miss Poole accepted a chorus engagement in the Prince's pantomime, and has thus made a highly successful re-entry into the theatrical profession.

MESSRS ALFRED NORTHWAY AND W. V. GARROD'S excellent revival of the late Wilson Barrett's domestic drama The Sledge-Hammer is everywhere meeting with success. Return dates have been offered at all theatres visited, and every manager who has witnessed the production has immediately booked it. The spirited fight with sledge-hammers in the Forge scene has created a sensation, and the bookings extend as far ahead as the end of November.

MR FRITZ ZORN'S new three-act farcical comedy The Designers will be produced at the Brixton Theatre on Monday week, with a cast including Messrs W. Hargreaves, Edmund O'Grady, William Luff, and Frank Lister; and Misses Dorothy Sidney, Mignon Hester, and Ina Rozant. It will be preceded by a one-act piece called The Happiest Day of His Life, by W. F. Downing.

MR ERIC FENTON, who has done good work with Mr George Edwardes's No. 1 company, and was stage-manager under Mr Callan in The Medal and the Maid company, is engaged by Mr Frohman to play the Irish comedian O'Gorman in Merely Mary Ann, opening at the Theatre Royal, Bath, on Feb. 6.

THE death took place on Monday, at Altrincham, of Mrs Johnson, wife of Mr William Johnson, co-proprietor of the Royal Court Theatre and Royal Theatre of Varieties, Warrington, and the Grand Theatre, Rawtenstall. The deceased lady had been an invalid for a considerable number of years, but bore her malady with great fortitude.

TO-NIGHT the sixty-second and last performance of the extremely successful pantomime Red Riding Hood will be given at the King's Theatre, where the ordinary season will commence on Monday with Mr George Edwardes's chief company in The Orchid. This piece paid its first visit to Mr Mulholland's theatre precisely a year ago, and it is worth noting that then, as now, it was flourishing at the Gaiety Theatre. It is frequently imagined that visits to district theatres during the original run of a piece are injurious to business in the West-end, but Mr George Edwardes has no such misgivings.

NEW THEATRE, LOUGHBOROUGH.

The new Theatre Royal, which has been built on a good site in that town, was opened on the night of the 26th ult. with Monsieur Beaucaire.

After the orchestra had played the National Anthem Mr PAYNE SEDDON stepped to the footlights and made a short speech. He said that when the old theatre was destroyed four years ago, and Mr Robertson and himself undertook to provide theatrical entertainments at the Town Hall they had little idea that the course of events would lead to their building a theatre. So pleasant had been their associations with the Town Hall, the officials, and Corporation that they might have been content to continue running the Town Hall as a theatre, but after four years the fact was forced upon them that they were providing amusement for an up-to-date people, that the tastes of their patrons were going ahead, and that they must either move with them or be left behind. He was sure they would agree with him that the building was a credit to Mr King, the architect, and to the builder, Mr Faulks, who had erected it in the record time of fourteen weeks. They were proud of the fact that the furnishing by Mr Armstrong, painting by Mr Shepherd, and electric fittings by Mr Gadaby was all local work. Each of these gentlemen had taken a keen personal interest in the building. The acoustic properties, they found, were perfect, and a splendid view could be obtained from every seat in the building. Unfortunately, a report had gained currency that all seats were booked for that night, and this accounted for the numerous vacant seats. There were several additions and minor alterations to be made before the theatre was completed, but he was sure they would make allowance for this, and for the fact that they were not opening at the best season of the year for securing the best theatrical companies. They had, however, been able to arrange for some very good attractions. They would be able on the new stage to present grand opera as it had never been mounted before in Loughborough. They hoped to produce plays to suit their patrons' varied tastes, and another season to be able to provide still better companies. They would be guided by the patrons in the selections, for, as Shakespeare put it, "The drama's laws the drama's patrons give, and those who live to please must please to live." Mr Robertson and himself hoped to live to please them, and they also hoped they would all feel at home in that theatre and look upon it as their own little Loughborough theatre.

Congratulatory letters and telegrams from Sir Henry Irving, Mr Charles Wyndham, Mr Beerbohm Tree, and other leading members of the theatrical profession were read.

The MAYOR (Alderman T. Mayo, J.P.) wrote regretting his inability to attend the opening of the theatre in consequence of being still confined to the house by his recent accident. The enterprise Messrs Seddon and Robertson had shown in providing the town with a modern and up-to-date theatre deserved every encouragement, and he trusted their new venture would prove an unqualified success.

A CONCERT, in aid of the Referee Children's Dinner Fund, will be held at the Camberwell Palace, on Sunday, Feb. 12. From the list of talented artists who have already kindly promised their valuable aid a very successful entertainment should take place, and this deserving fund benefit considerably thereby. The programme will include amongst others:—Miss Annie Bartle, Miss Maggie Godsmark, Miss Edith Temple, and Miss Queenie Leighton, Mr Leo Stormont, Mr Bransby Williams, Mr Hamilton Hill, Mr Edgar Wallace, and Mr R. A. Roberts.

MR WILL ELLERSLIE AND MISS FLORRIE BRAY have just concluded a five weeks' engagement with Mr Quinton Gibson at the Hippodrome, Scarborough, with the pantomime sketches Sinbad the Sailor, Babes in the Wood, Cinderilla, Red Riding Hood, supported by four other artists and thirty local children.

MR TOM E. HUGHES has just published his dude song, "I'm one of the Upper Ten," with Charles Sheard and Co. It is from the pen of William Hargreaves, who has written the new comedian a funny number entitled "I'm not so looney after all."

IN accordance with the suggestion adopted at the last general meeting that future interim dividends should not exceed five per cent., the directors of the Palace Theatre have declared an interim dividend of five per cent., less income tax, payable on the 14th.

MR LENNOX BARRY, the general manager of the Battersea Empire, has decided to inaugurate a special matinée at his hall every week. The first will be held on Wednesday next, when Mr Barry has secured the services of a number of prominent artists.

MR TOM WOOTTWELL, who has been suffering from throat trouble, has had to cut out all his songs from The White Cat at Drury-lane, but is now all right again.

THE Alhambra directors report that the gross receipts for the year 1904 amounted to £87,115. After providing for debenture interest, &c., £3 179, the net profit for the year 1904 amounts to £9,192, and with £5,384, the amount brought forward, the net balance to the credit of revenue is £14 576. The directors recommend that £2,000 be applied in reduction of the freehold and buildings account, that a dividend of 10 per cent., free of income-tax, for the year, being £6,000, be now paid, and that the balance, £6,576, be carried forward. The dividend will be payable on Feb. 6 The directors have taken the earliest advantage of powers secured to the company under the trust deed relative to the 1895 five per cent. debenture stock, by which they have been enabled to reduce the interest on that stock to 4 per cent.

MESSRS ELIOT STOCK have sent us a copy of Mr Harold Ford's excellent little book on "The Art of Extempore Speaking" which is now in its fifth edition, having been revised and enlarged. There are so many persons to whom the power of immediate and effective oratory is useful, that the practical hints contained in this volume will find many to welcome and value them. Mr Ford first proceeds to define extempore speaking, and then tells his pupil how to attain fluency. The rules for the general preparation of the extempore speaker are distinctly described; and a whole chapter is devoted to memory. The method of analysing a subject is also treated very judiciously; and the book ends with an essay on how to conclude a discourse.

MR EDITOR.—Sir,—In your notice of the Ashton Hippodrome of last week you mentioned George White's Arabs as wonderful acrobats. They did not appear, their place being taken by, yours faithfully, THE MUSICAL PALMERS. Palace, Derby, Feb. 1, 1905.

MR EDITOR.—Sir,—Your correspondent for South Shields mentioned last week in his report "Sam Richardson, Scotch comedian." It should have been, yours faithfully, SAM THOMSON, Scotch comedian. Empress Theatre, Hartlepool. Jan. 30

MR EDITOR.—Sir,—In your issue of Jan. 28, you mentioned me as appearing at the Hippodrome, Macclesfield. I have never played there. This is my seventh week as Dame at pantomime at the Royalty, Glasgow.—Yours faithfully, HARRY CONLIN, 99, Hill-street, Garnethill, Glasgow, Jan. 30, 1905.

BLACKPOOL COLOSSEUM.—
BLACKPOOL COLOSSEUM.
BLACKPOOL COLOSSEUM.

SEASON 1905.

Situate at the junction of the Blackpool and Lytham Tramways, on the Marine Parade, opposite the Manchester Hotel, in the heart of Blackpool.
The Building (which is 127ft. in diameter, 41ft. high to the eaves, and 83ft. to the Lantern) is Lighted by Electricity, and as a place for Animal Entertainments is unique, it being the only building in Blackpool that, in consequence of its being free from pillars and other obstructions, afforded the necessary height and space for Diavolo's performance of "Looping the Loop."
The Walls are covered with the World-renowned picture "Niagara" painted by the great artist Phillipoteau.
For the last eight or ten years Blackpool has been extending around and for miles south of the Colosseum in a marvellously rapid manner. Thousands of houses have been built and are occupied, and there has not been any place of Public Entertainment provided for the Masses of the People south of the Tower.
The Colosseum provides a long-felt want in this New and Populous Neighbourhood.
The Authorities estimate that about Four Million Persons visited Blackpool last Season.
The great Popularity of the Colosseum is shown by the fact that, although only partially occupied during a part of a Blackpool Season, upwards of 100,000 paid for Admission during the remaining part of the season.
Offers for the 1905 Season on Sharing Terms should be made to the Undersigned, who will furnish any further information.

WANTED, Theatres, with Stage Room and Holding Capacity for what the Public want, a New and Original Attraction, "The Life of a Showman."
Manager Granville says:—
Queen's Theatre, Liverpool.
Dear Mr Sante,—I am highly satisfied with your production of "The Life of a Showman," and am agreeably surprised to find that it is a good, sound drama, and not a "one-man show" as some might imagine from the title. The circus interest being so cleverly woven into the plot makes the play decidedly novel and attractive. You should make a lot of money with this show, and if your receipts will only keep up to the Queen's average you will. All good luck.
Faithfully yours, FRED GRANVILLE.

THE ERA ANNUAL, 1905.
"The Era" Almanack and Annual for 1905, conducted by Mr. Edward Ledger, is the vade mecum of the dramatic and music-hall profession, containing as it does all an artiste desires to know in connection with the stage. A feature of the publication are the stories of adventure told by well-known artistes like Sir Henry Irving, George Alexander, Harry Pleon, John Le Hay, Constance Moxon, Walter Passmore, Fanny Wentworth, and John Lawson. Mr. Henry Arthur Jones discourses wisely on the "Foundations of a National Drama." The Annual is one that will interest and amuse not only the "professional," but the general public.—Reynolds's Newspaper, Jan. 15, 1905.

THE ERA ANNUAL, 1905.
That vade mecum of "the profession," "The Era" Annual, has just made its 1905 appearance. In addition to the dramatic and musical calendar, the alphabetical list of new pieces, and other permanent features, there are some twenty-five stories by leading authors, actors, and actresses, including Sir Henry Irving, Mr. George Alexander, Mr. Sydney Grundy, Mr. H. A. Jones, and Mr. Walter Passmore, all illustrated by photographs and autographs.—Sunday Times, Jan. 15, 1905.

PROVINCIAL THEATRICALS.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENTS.)

ABERDARE.—NEW THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Z. Andrews.—Mr. A. Gibbon's company, with Beauty and the Beast is the attraction here this week. It is replete with boisterous merriment and capital dancing. The scenery is exceptionally pretty. The rôle of Beauty is sweetly acted by Miss Linda Keston; Miss Marie Lawrence makes a dashing Polly Perkins; and Dandy Veller has a lively and vivacious exponent in Miss Janet Lawton. Mr. Will Holland as Reginald Augustus, and Mr. Tom Banks as Sybil Irene are both successful in creating roars of laughter. Mr. Albert E. Mann makes up well as Maude Hannah; Mr. Sydney Vereker, as Ko-hop, is responsible for much laughter; Mr. Geo. Honey scores as Hardupp; Mr. Chas. Ellis is in his element as Low Down; Miss Marie Beaufort becomes a favourite as Prince Charming; and Miss Gertrude Wright is a delightful exponent of Amoroso. The Four French Idols are prominent with some excellent dancing. "Looping the Loop," by the original Datrigan, causes great excitement.

PALACE THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Will Gregory.—An excellent bill-of-fare is provided here this week. The Bros. Lang, refined comedians, in their novel comedy act, establish themselves firm favourites; Roseltha is a graceful dancer; Louis Kerno, a vocalist of no mean order; the Bensons, in their vocal and comedy acts, meet with approval; Fred Hill, comedian, appears with conspicuous success. An acceptable turn is that provided by Ellis and Ellis, high-class coon vocalists; Mona McDonald, comedienne and vocalist, is popular; Prof. McCann and his performing dogs give a wonderful performance; Ariel and Astarte, gymnasts, are also great favourites. The Young Recruits, played by the Hudson Troupe, sends the audience into roars of laughter.

ABERDEEN.—HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE.—Managing Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. C. Cavanah.—The Compton comedy company, which pays the town a welcome visit this week, opened on Monday with The School for Scandal. Mr. Edward Compton played with all his usual dash and brightness as Charles Surface, and Miss Haidée Gunn made a delightfully piquante Lady Teazle; Mr. Henry Crocker gave an excellent impersonation of Sir Peter Teazle; Mr. A. B. Jameson was a capital Joseph; Uncle Oliver was admirably played by Mr. Charles R Stone, and Miss Mackenzie represented Maria with fine taste. The repertory for the week includes A Reformed Rake, Davy Garrick, To-Morrow, and She Stoops to Conquer.

PALACE THEATRE, LIMITED.—General Manager, Mr. Ernest Sheldon.—Nelson's Newsboys show exceptional vocal and dancing talent, and are most cordially received; the Brothers Edgar are popular as eccentric comedians; an amusingly clever acrobatic exhibition is given by the Zaro Troupe; and Vincent shows equal dexterity as an acrobatic table expert. Other successful turns are contributed by Louis Hardt, "The Boy Samson;" Souplessi, "aerial serpent on the silver rings;" Mr. Fred Terry and Mr. Will Godwin, clever comedians; and the Two Rubies, sprightly vocalists and dancers.

ABERTILLERY.—THEATRE METROPOLE.—Lessees, Messrs. Arthur Carlton and Sam Duckworth; General and Resident Manager, Mr. Geo. W. Ventom.—By way of a change of programme, the management has this week engaged Mr. and Mrs. Victor André and company of entertainers. Mrs. André, in her "Dream Visions," is really wonderful. Mr. Victor André, in "Floretum," a new magical spectacular floral creation, is very good; Yoko and Hama, Japanese wonder workers, are clever; Miss Edith May Ayrton is a talented solo violinist.

ACCRINGTON.—PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. J. B. Ormerod; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. E. Barnes.—The Milton Rays are here with a bright and sparkling pantomine. Miss Daisy Morell acts in a sprightly manner as Ferdinand; Miss Ada Wright is well placed in the role of Little Bo-Peep; Little Boy Blue is charmingly played by Miss Lily Wright; the Four Sisters Tree may be complimented on their singing and dancing; Miss Maud St. John gets any amount of fun out of the part of Molly Dump; Miss Ethel Patrick gives a neat performance of Sir Runan Runemin; and Fairy Sunlight is well represented by Miss Marie Beck. Mr. Harry Elliston keeps the house in a roar from start to finish as Binks the Bounder; Mr. W. G. Wesley as the Dame is a host in himself; and The Eltons are two of the best bar performers we have had here. Mr. Jack Hylton is both quaint and clever as The Baron; and Lawyer Graball is an excellent performance by Mr. H. V. Morgan.

ALDERSHOT.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Clarence Sounes; Resident-Manager, Mr. Geo. E. Williams.—The Darling of the Gods is providing quite a treat for the frequenters of this house of amusement, and nothing but praise can be given to Mr. Bannister Howard's talented company, which, by the way, includes some old friends of Aldershot theatre-goers. These are Mr. Leonard Grey, Mr. L. St. G. Lowther, and Miss E. Anton Laing; Mr. E. A. Warburton gives a fine portrayal of the important rôle of Gakkuri; and Mr. Alfred Goddard's manly conception of Kara is in every way a success. Mr. Leonard Grey's presentment of Saigon is marked by ability, and in the final scenes he also portrays Priest Banza with effect. Miss Inez Bensusan is a gifted actress, and her excellent interpretation of Yo-San is highly successful; Mr. Alex. Haviland gives a good account of himself as Tonda; and Mr. Ralph Hutton as Kato is capital, as also is Mr. L. St. G. Lowther's Inu; Miss Stella Wynne is a good Singing Girl; Miss Edith Anton Laing as Rosey Sky is clever; and the other members of the large company do well. Much praise is due to Mr. S. C. Sinclair for his stage-managing. Mr. Michael Dempsey is manager to the company.

ASHTON-UNDER-LYNE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr. Chas. Revill; Acting-Manager, Mr. Armstrong Fairbairn.—The Way of the World is adequately presented here by Messrs. Beaudyn and Crowe's company. The villain is capably portrayed by Mr. Herbert Skardon; and the wicked circus lady is boldly outlined by Miss Sidney Crowe.

HIPPODROME.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. C. Revill; Director of Entertainments, Mr. F. Wilmot; Acting-Manager, Mr. L. Campkin.—The principal athletic sensation of the week at the Hippodrome is the appearance of Zaro Troupe of lightning acrobats and tumblers. The next item of prominent interest is the burlesque business of the Sivronis, in "Opera Gone Mad." The other artistes are Harry Wright, extempore vocalist; Nellie Gannon, the popular Hibernian singer; Lachie Thomson's top weights; Tom and Neil in a boxing and wrestling act; Peggy Fame, a dainty comedienne; Alf. Farrel and Harry Hilton, Irish comedians and dancers; Bert Groves, actor-vocalist; and the Bioscope new pictures.

EMPIRE HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Sons; Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy B. Broadhead; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Leech.—This week's programme includes Werson, the renowned head and hand equilibrist; Stoll Bros., three comedy wrestlers; Dinah Morris and her troupe, in a musical scena, "The Lost Coon," assisted by Bessie Morris, dancer; the Harlem Bros., unique sand dancers; The Collier Boy, the famous blind musician; The Brontes in their comedy sketch; Valosky, the Russian expert with the roller skates; Ford and Hanson, who furnish great fun as well as astonishment by their wonderful musical gifts; Fred Casburn, a refined comedian; and Thirza Hurst, in male impersonations.

ATTERCLIFFE.—THEATRE ROYAL, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. Claude Seaton.—Mr. T. A. Jones is presenting Life's Sweetest Sins here during the present week. Mr. T. Arthur Jones is an excellent representative of Captain Harold Marston; villainy is ably interpreted by Mr. Oswald Douglas as Doctor Colbrook, who is assisted in his schemes by Mr. George R. J. Austin as Kimberley Coutts, and Mr. C. Vernon Proctor as Rev. Edward Grey. Mr. Fred Russell, in the comedy part of Bab Tanner, is highly amusing, and Mr. Bertram Lee is good as Martin. Miss Madge Morley plays with care and finish as Doreen Rivers; Miss Amy Rudd gives a meritorious performance of Fay Colbrook; and Miss Sarah Dudley is a vivacious Bess Grayson.

PALACE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Mr. T. Allan Edwards; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Lacy Lyne.—A varied and attractive programme is being submitted here. The Five Zerbinis give a refined and artistic musical act, with beautiful electrical effects. Will Bell is a smart Irish comedian and expert dancer; Alec. Aubrey gives a clever performance on the electric silver chains; the Eltenos are seen in a comic, horizontal bar act; Violet Beatrice renders several Irish songs in good style; the Sheffield Photo. Co. gives a number of fine cinematograph pictures, which are highly appreciated, and Matt Wilkinson and Company, in a sketch entitled That French Woman, cause much laughter.

AYR.—NEW GAIETY THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry W. Day.—This week is chiefly devoted to Shakespeare, and Mr. F. R. Benson's B company is responsible for the productions, which include six evening performances and a matinée on Saturday afternoon. The capabilities of the company were seen to advantage in the opening piece on Monday, The Merry Wives of Windsor. Mr. Henry Herbert's Sir John Falstaff was a very fine piece of acting. Too often Falstaff is turned into a buffoon, but Mr. Herbert was dignified and restrained, and every gesture a study. The Fenton of Mr. Courtnay Foote was a striking contrast to the Slender of Mr. Ivan Leslie, and that is tantamount to saying the parts were well played. Shallow and Sir Hugh Evans were in the capable hands of Mr. Arthur Fayne and Mr. A. Phillips. Ford and Page were likewise played by artists of merit in Mr. F. Owen Chambers and Mr. T. A. Shannon. The Host of the Garter was found in Mr. James Annand—artistic and prominently good in everything he does; while the Dr. Caius of Mr. C. H. Croker-King was a truly wonderful piece of acting. Simple and Rugby were well played by Mr. Alex Begbie and Mr. Holiday Attley; and Miss Phyllis Back as Robin, the page, did the little she had to do with grace and wit. The merry wives were Miss Maud Garth as Mrs. Ford and Miss Roxy Barton as Mrs. Page, and they justified the title in the heartiness of their acting. Miss Geoghegan as Mistress Quickly was admirable, and so was Miss Christie Laws as Ann Page. On Tuesday night, the only departure from Shakespeare was made in the production of She Stoops to Conquer.

BACUP.—NEW COURT THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Frank Denman-Wood; Acting-Manager, Mr. Richard Nightingale.—Pantomine is again the order here, and Messrs. Griffen and Drake's company in Dick Whittington is doing excellent business. Miss Lily Jackson is prime favourite as Dick, her singing and acting evoking much applause; Miss Emmie Hands makes a charming Alice; and plenty of fun accrues from the work of Mr. Ben Ford as Alderman Fitzwarren, and Mr. Mark Lane as Martha Muggins. The cat is smartly undertaken by Mr. Jack Simpson; Mr. Ted Lambert makes a bold Demon King, his fine voice being heard to advantage; Miss Gladys Wells uses a well-cultured voice as Fairy Blue Bell; and the specialties include Mdlle. Luba De Sarama with her Transkakasia Sports; the Estos, speciality artistes; the Yorkshire Mill Lasses; the Sisters Branton, skipping rope dancers; and the Sisters Grosvenor, operatic vocalists. Miss Beatrice Drake ably conducts the augmented orchestra.

BARROW-IN-FURNESS.—ROYALTY THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Stone.—Mr. George Dance's Co., in A Country Girl, is here. Mr. Cyril Thompson is a capital Geoffrey Chaloner, and Mr. H. C. Morton a characteristic Sir Joseph Verity. Mr. St. John Hamund plays the Rajah of Bong in good style; and the Princess Melaneh is well embodied by Miss Nina Carlton, whose singing is excellent. Mr. J. Osborne as Barry, is responsible for much of the fun; and the Sophie of Miss Addie Lennard is a piquant and winsome performance; while Miss Maud Harvey, as Marjory Joy, and Miss May Glen, as Nan, both act and sing with artistic grace.

TIVOLI.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Signor Pepi; Stage-Manager, Mr. Tom Whiting.—Marlor and Dunham give a wonderful triple bar act; Bert Leslie pleases with some popular songs; and Levano is a marvellous Arab tumbler. The Pueblo Bros. give a capital show, and the Gladenbecks supply a neat hand-balancing and ring act. Pleasing performances are also given by Bud Primrose, octoroon sand dancer; Clive Watts, a refined raconteur; and Mr. James de Voye's educated pony is worthy of mention.

BATH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Egbert Lewis; Acting-Manager, Mr. Lewis A. Long.—A critical and fashionable audience assembled on Monday to witness the first performance in the provinces of Mr Israel Zangwill's comedy, "Merely Mary Ann," by Mr Charles Frohman's company. In the title-rôle Miss Grace Armytage Noble exhibits a characteristic innocence in the earlier acts, and finally develops confidence and ease, to accord with Mary Ann's position in society. The difficult character of Lancelot is handled by Mr Alex Calvert with ability; Peter has a capital exponent in Mr Reginald Dance, Mr Fred Grove creates plenty of humour as the Rev Samuel Smedge; Mr Frank Lacy scores easily in his one scene as Herr Brahmson; and a gentleman who has very much in common with this popular artiste's style is Mr Wm Wilson as Lord Tottenham. Miss Alice Esden makes a hit as Mrs Leadbatter; Rosie is carefully eracted by Miss Mabel Garden; Miss Madge Johnstone brings her ripe experience to bear upon the small part of the Countess Foxwell; and the other society ladies find tactful representatives in Miss M. Alison Alexander (Lady Chelmer), Miss Hilda Dick (Lady Tottenham), Miss Millicent McLaughlin (Hon. Mrs Fitzgerald), Miss Pearl Gardner (Rowena), and Miss Amy Thomas (Lady Glynn).

PALACE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr W. Trussell.—Mr George D'Albert continues to give of his best, both new and old, and his success here is greater than ever. Permane's bears remain a firm attraction; the Sisters Petram, who are announced as the only lady fantoches entertainers, meet with much applause; Steel and Laing gain a success in their smart acrobatic dancing speciality; Max Sterling, illusionist, mystifies all by his dexterity; Gilroy and Gross, as sand dancers, are praiseworthy; and Walter Lester, comedian, opens the programme.

BATLEY.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, Mr. and Mrs. J. Edward Whitty; Resident-Manager, Mr. G. M. Hurst.—Mr. T. Morton Powell's company opened here on Monday with Greed of Gold. Mr. Carthage Caldcleugh gave a good interpretation of Harry Hood; Mr. Charles Coleman's delineation of Arthur Errol was capital; Mr. Walter M. Cameron submitted a humorous portrayal of Cull Snig; and Mr. T. G. Warry was well received as Mr. Brightstone. Miss A Verity was a sympathetic Dora Hood, and Mrs. Mary Maxwell was in the safe keeping of Miss Grace St. John. Miss Winnie Donovan acted well as Polly Mayfield.

BEDFORD.—ROYAL COUNTY THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. E. Graham-Falcon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Walter R. Wilson.—This week the boards are occupied with Mr. Sanderson Moffat's company in the drama, A Woman Adrift. Cora Leigh, the much-wronged heroine, is pathetically represented by Miss Phyllis Hamilton; and the somewhat difficult rôle of Rupert Ingleby is capably undertaken by Miss Phyllis Graham. Mr. Joseph Millane as Sir John Ingleby presents a good portrayal of this character. Mr. Sanderson Moffat plays with vigour the dual rôles of Ferdinand Castro and Don Leo Castro. The humour of the piece is well sustained by Mr. Chas. Wilson as Jibbs, Mr. Robb Harvey as Roderick, Mr. Watson Hume as Dennis, and Miss Maud Bruce as Molly. Miss Mabel Rose submits a satisfactory rendering of Stella.

BELFAST.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred W. Warden; Acting-Manager, Mr. James M'Cann.—Mr. Leigh Lovel's company is here with that delightful play, The Duke of Killiecrankie. The company is in every respect an excellent one, and a great success has been achieved by Miss Octavia Kenmore, who, as the Lady Henrietta Addison, acts with rare charm and ability. The title rôle is undertaken by Mr. Herbert J. Bentley in a polished and easy style. Much praise must be accorded Mr. Lovel, who so capitally sustained the rôle of Mr. Henry Pitt-Welby M.P. Special commendation is due to Miss Naomi Neilson, who is admirable in the part of Mrs. Mulholland; Miss McAimee Murray furnishes a cantal impersonation of the Countess of Pangbourne; and the small part of Mrs. McBayne is carefully sustained by Miss Helen Tytler. Other rôles are ably sustained by Messrs. F. Danvers-Yates, H. Douglas Cottell, Vernon West, and R. Houghton. The principal piece is preceded by a comedietta, entitled Clause Number Six, in which Miss Helen Tytler and Mr. F. Danvers-Yates appear to much advantage.

PALACE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred W. Warden; Acting-Manager, Mr. John P. Beardmore.—The chief position at this handsome theatre is occupied by that clever comedian, Mr. Wal Pink, who, with his talented company, is appearing in the funny sketch, entitled Peggy. Much success has been created by Romain's musical act; a fine acrobatic display has been given by the Abadaroffs; and the smart triple bar act by Dezmonti and Mora is a decided feature of the entertainment. The Lynchs (Agnese and Arthur) appear in their bright and charming act, in which they introduce American picture songs with much success. Miss Lilian Rigby, in her musical act; Mr. Tom Yorke, comedian; and the Palace Pictures complete the bill.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES, LIMITED.—General Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles Brock.—Leslie Bros. head the bill, and delight all with their musical act. Mr. Arthur Lennard, comedian, upholds his reputation with his capital songs; Mr. J. H. Milburn, the evergreen comedian, is as funny as of yore, and commands deserved success; Morris and Morris are clever acrobatic comedians; Brown and Robinson must be congratulated on having made a big hit; the three Sisters Hayden return with their tunefully-rendered songs; and Mr. Billy Hobbs is a first-class comedian and clever dancer. Also appearing are Miss Lily Tiso and Miss Lizzie Fletcher, comediennes.

NEW ALHAMBRA THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—General Manager, Mr. Henry T. Downs.—The British Quartette head the bill, and please all with their vocal selections. Kyoto is a remarkably smart contortionist; Miss May Geraldine is a fascinating serio; and Weisker Bros.' Bioscope exhibits some pleasing and novel pictures. Robins and Collins appear to great advantage in their musical comedy scena, entitled The Lady and the Porter. Ray and Lee, clever comedy gymnasts, have been accorded a good reception. The Bros. Lavelle, comedy acrobats, are well received, as is also Miss Gracie Logan, vocalist and dancer. Messrs. Juan and McQuee, comedians, complete the bill.

BILSTON.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr. Harry Battersby; Manageress, Miss Grace Battersby.—Mr. George Testo Sante has brought here The Life of a Showman, in which he, as Brien Leader, introduces his notable feats of strength. Excellent work is submitted by Miss Amy McNeill, as Agatha Winter; a very good exposition of Stickers is submitted by Mr. J. K. Walton; Mr. Sam Arthur makes the most of the part of Hendrick Marnis, and obtains good support from Mr. Johnny Clegg as Ben Tictac, and from Miss May Warden as Lynette Leader. Mr. Allen Charles amuses as Tommy Allthere; and Master Harry Warden does well as Dickie.

BIRKENHEAD.—THEATRE METROPOLE.—Lessee, Mr. W. W. Kelly; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles Pell.—Mr. Gus Levaine's pantomime company, in Sinbad the Sailor, is here the last week of Mr. W. Kelly's lesseeship. The entertainment is an excellent one of its class, and has a capital representative of the title-rôle in Miss Kitty Bishop who is ably seconded by Miss Marie Harding, a captivating Princess Irza; Mr. Charles Howard, as Mrs. Sinbad; Mr. Charles Arnett, as Nothing; Mr. Tom Ashby, as Less; Mr. Ernie Clyde, as Tinbad; provide plenty of amusement. Varieties are given by the Zola troupe of acrobats; the Bertinis in their musical act; Ashby and Hearn, in their statuary show; Mdlle. Alberto, ropewalker; Lance and Lane; and the Brothers Loyal.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr. W. W. Kelly; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles Pell.—Miss Go-won-go-Mohawk and her American-Indian company are again here with Wep-ton-no-Mah, and she obtains her accustomed cordial reception. She is admirably supported by Mr. C. W. Charles, who is very effective as Colonel Stockton. Captain Franklin is well played by Mr. Isaac Shawcross; Mr. George Courtney is an efficient Manuel Lopez; and Miss Jessie Hart is a delightful Nellie Stockton. Mr. Guy D. Hackney and Mr. Dan Ryan supply the comedy element, and the piece is liberally staged.

ARGYLE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Manager, Mr. D. J. Clarke.—Datas, in his remarkable feats of memory is a leading attraction, as also are James and Marie Finney in their clever aquatic entertainment. Conway and Leland, the merry monopedes, are an attractive turn; and Miss Elsa Joel is an operatic vocalist and mimic of undoubted ability. Fisk and McDonough afford amusement in their well-sustained sketch. Brocky's Temptation, and Mr. Harry Clifford, comedian, Mr. David Poole, ventriloquist, Mr. Dick Geldard, comedian, and the Bioscope, complete an excellent programme.

BIRMINGHAM.—PRINCE OF WALES'S.—Lessees, Messrs. Rogers, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. Graham; Acting-Manager, Mr Henry Johnston.—The Forty Thieves continues to march to popularity and, incidentally, plunder, with unflagging esprit. Mr. Wilkie Bard as Ali Baba has increased his local prestige a hundred fold, and his big song, "O, O, capital O," is ecstatically received; Messrs. Geo. Le Clerq and Ben Brown, as the two hobbledehoys, furnish a carnival of mirth; Mr. Ainslie Burton is humorous as Cassim; Mr. Jno. Brabourne acts like a veritable queen of pantomime dames; and Mr. Phil Smith avails himself well of the opportunities given to Hassarac; Miss Alice Oppitz is an exceptionally fine and inspiring Abdallah; and Miss Marie Campbell as a most irresistible "boy" (Ganem); and Miss Minnie Hunt, as Morgiana, have the audience at their feet.

GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. J. W. Turner; Manager, Mr. Victor Turner.—Dick Whittington has met with excellent support since its induction here last Monday week with Mr. J. F. Elliston's company. Mr. Tom Foy infuses a "Yorkshire relish" to the rôle of Idle Jack with his vigorous broad-tongued northern accent, which, be it said, is much enjoyed; Mr. Bert Byrne gives him invaluable aid with his comic business as the Cook; Mr. Ted Foy invests the part of the Cat with many rare and diverting qualities; and Mr. Jack Foy as Scuttle, Mr. Will Musgrave as First Mate, and Mr Chas. Goff as Fitzwarren, are successful. Miss Ethel Newman is a favourite for her pretty and charming ways as Dick; Miss Clara Reid acts, sings, and dances with exquisite taste as Alice; and the chorus and mounting are excellent. Miss Nelly Wade should not be overlooked as Mary Ann, and the Matweef Hugoston Troupe are again a success.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Lester Collingwood.—Dick Whittington has been playing to crowded houses here since Boxing night, and is now more successful than ever. Miss Florence Burns is handsome, clever, and popular as the hero; and Miss Nellie Valentine realises the character of the sweet English maid, Alice, to perfection; Mr. Will Letters has made his mark as the Emperor, and also in conjunction with Messrs. Barrett and Knowles, who are responsible for clever work as Silly Peter and Lazy Larky.

METROPOLE THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Walter Melville; Resident-Manager, Mr. J. Hindle Taylor.—Sentenced for Life, presented by Mr. Bulmer this week, has drawn excellent houses. Miss Madge Douglas as Adele Gray proves very popular; Mr. Edward B. Louis acts a manly part as Lieut. Roy Stilwell; Mr. Ernest Vaughan is conspicuous for his ability in the rôle of Capt. Paul Derrick; Mr. C. Wordley Hulse is successful as the Rev. Martin Orris; Mr. Walter Purvis shines as Percy M'Gentle; and Messrs. T. C. Glenville and Frank Zara do good service as two convicts.

CARLTON THEATRE, SALTLEY.—Owner and Manager, Mr. Arthur Carlton; Resident-Manager, Mr. Ben Sydney.—A Marriage of Vengeance, by Mr. and Mrs. Fred Benton's company, constitutes an attractive bill here. Miss A. Harrison-Tate stars as the villainess, Stella, and dislike for the character is tempered with admiration for the actress. Mr. Louis Norman, in the villain's part, Geoffrey Fannock, never fails to score; Mr. Alf Geo. Fry acts with force as the hero, Paul Earnscliffe; and Miss Maud Stuart is rewarded with much sympathy for her soulful rendering of the heroine's part, Elsie Dean. The comic rôles are exceedingly well represented by Mr. Seymour Perry as Bob and Miss Etta Turner as Amelia.

THEATRE ROYAL, ASTON.—Lessee, Mr. Charles Barnard; Manager, Mr. Dan Barnard.—The Female Swindler continues its exciting career before enthusiastic Aston audiences, which have been well served by Mr. Tom H. Taylor's company. Miss Violet Ellicott as the Lady Swindler has won the widest admiration; Miss Florrie Kelsey enacts the heroine's rôle, May Andrews, gracefully; Mr. Bernard Mervyn gains tokens of success as Geoffrey Warden; Mr. Geo. Unwin is popular as Harold Travers; Mr. Jerrold Heather shows much ability as Jack Coulson; and Mr. W. Shaw is applauded for his clever acting as the detective; Mr. Luke Forster portrays a number of comic rôles successfully; Mr. Rule Pyott is well applauded as Mikestein; and Miss Evelyn Marrable is blithe and merry as Mary Ann.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Resident-Manager, Mr. W. H. Matcham.—Gus Elen is a comedian of whom Birmingham audiences never tire. His inimitable coster impersonations provoke loud and prolonged applause. An extremely smart acrobatic act is displayed by Keno Welch and Montrose; the Burnleys are experts on stilts; and Mabel Hind, in her Japanese scena, and Belle Davis with her pickchicks, are most entertaining. Driscoll and Beattie, Charles Vincent, Madame Alice Simmons, the Raies, and Mdlle. Emmy's dogs, complete the bill.

GAIETY THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. Albert Bushell.—The principal attraction this week is Cliffe Berzac's sensation, The Race for the St. Leger, which is most ingeniously represented on a revolving platform. The Drayton Family perform some new and difficult acrobatic feats with accuracy; the Elysian Troupe, in their musical and vocal entertainment, are of a high order; the Smithsons, in a smart sketch, are very entertaining; Verno and Voyce remain another week; and other popular artistes are Frank Cass and Arthur Reece, comedians; Gilbert Girrard, animal impersonator; and Amy Reece, comedienne.

HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford.—The diversified and well arranged programme this week is headed by Leonard and Francis is an acrobatic burlesque bull fight; the Philippi Bros., in their latest success, Shunting, are well received; Maud Caswell is applauded for her efforts as a dancer; Lily Seville and Nancy St. John are clever comediennes; and Alix Lukos, R. Judge's troupe of acrobats, Toch and Tard, De Marse, and the Laros Troupe come in for a large share of applause.

BORDESLEY PALACE.—Resident-Manager, Mr. George Foster.—One of the most skilful and interesting cycling turns we have had is that of the Klein Family; Richard List with his wrestling bears gives a novel performance; Ben Harris and The Boxing Midgets, in a comedy sketch, A Promising Pupil, are exceptionally smart; the Lumars have a novel electric acrobatic act; Dan Colquhoun's fine voice is heard to advantage; and Morton and Elliott, harmonica players and vocalists; and Albert Whelan, are responsible for entertainments of a high order.

BLACKBURN.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor, Mr. Harry Yorke; Business-Manager, Mr. Reginald Yorke.—Mr. James Kiddie's pantomine of Cinderella affords a welcome change of fare here. Miss Florence Watson appears with success in the title rôle; Mdlle. de Rose is a charming Prince Perfect; and Miss Susie Bevan is equally effective as Dandini; Mr. Charles Harvey is an amusing Page; Mr. Will Saunders a very good Baron; and Messrs. Houpla and Hecla provide attractive specialties.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. E. H. Page.—The Village Blacksmith, with Mr. Sam Livesey in the principal part, is drawing good houses here. Mr. Joseph Carter is very good as Captain Leo; Mr. Geo. V. Campbell supplies the comedy element as Billy Twigg; and Miss Maggie Edwards, Miss Laura Walker, Mrs. T. C. Livesey and Miss Edith Giddens are also very good in their respective parts.

PALACE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. F. Nacnaghten; General Manager, Mr. Will Murray; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry Drury.—An excellent programme is furnished here by Barton and Ashley, Whit Cunliffe, Hall and Earle, the Gothams, Rita and Roma, Louis Murray, Sisters Maginel Mullini, Russell and Roper, and the Wallonells.

BLACKPOOL.—HER MAJESTY'S OPERA HOUSE.—General Manager, Mr. J. R. Huddlestone.—Mr. Leslie Norman's company is here this week with A Trip to Chinatown, in which Mr. Charles Sequin as Welland Strong, Mr. Will Smith as Noah Heap, and Miss Kitty Marion as Mrs. Gwyer make the most of their opportunities

GRAND THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. J. Sergenson.—Mr. C. W. Somerset and company are paying a return visit here with The Sorrows of Satan. Mr. Somerset repeats his masterly portrayal of Prince Lucio; Miss Agnes Russell presents a charming picture of Margaret Foster; Miss Leah Marlborough capably sustains the part of Lady Delia; and Mr. Talbot Homewood gives a sound impersonation of Paul Carruthers.

PALACE.—General Manager, Mr. G. H. Harrop; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Waller.—There is no particular star here this week, but the programme is one of all-round excellence, the contributories including Hugh Stanton, in a sketch; Morny Cash, comedian; the Scottish Meister Glee Singers; Bert Brantford, comedian; The Wedburns, vocalists and comedians; Spring, Spring, and Carlo, acrobats; May Milburn, singer and dancer; and the Original Garganis, comic acrobats.

BLYTH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. George E. Good.—This theatre reopened on Monday night after a week's closure. Mr. Good, after twelve years' experience with the late lessee, Mr. Arthur Jefferson, now becomes lessee and manager. During the brief closure Mr. Good has made important improvements in the seating arrangements. A new act drop—the subject being a view of Dartmouth—has been admirably painted by Mr. Wm. Francotter, the resident scenic artist. On Monday evening, after the playing of the National Anthem and the overture by the orchestra, Mr. Good made his bow to the audience, and in a few well-chosen words expressed his thanks. play, Sappho, with Miss Annie Bell in the title-rôle. The piece was well received. Mr. Good was the recipient of a wire from his late chief, Mr. Arthur Jefferson, dated Metropole, Glasgow, wishing him every success in his new undertaking. At the conclusion of the performance hearty congratulations were heard from all parts of the house.

BOLTON.—THEATRE ROYAL, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. F. Elliston; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles Hermann.—My Lady Molly, here again on a welcome return visit, is being presented by a capable company. Miss Beatrice Edwards gives an acceptable rendering of the name-part; Miss Zoe Gilfillan is clever as Alice Coverdale; Miss Mabel Carr as Hester, and Mdlle. Darcier as Mdlle. Mirabeau, are alike good; Mr. Albert Chapman is excellent as Capt. Romney; Mr. Ernest Mozar is good as Lionel Bland; Mr. Godwin Hunt ably sustains his part of Sir Miles Coverdale; and Mr. George McCloskie is seen to advantage as Mickey O'Dowd, his songs, "Ballinasloe" and "Don't Whistle so Loud," being encored.

GRAND THEATRE, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. F. Elliston; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry Kenyon.—A distinct change has been made in the programme here, where Mr. Elliston has produced one of his successful pantomimes, Cinderella. Miss Don Harridine gives a charming interpretation of the heroine, her dancing and singing being admirable; Miss Mabel Englehardt imparts plenty of go to the production as Prince Rudolph; Miss Hettie Zillwood is a sprightly Dandini; Miss Edith Harmer sings well as the Fairy Godmother; and much amusement is created by Mr. Ernie Mayne as Buttons; Mr. Tatten Hall as Baron Hardup, and Mr. Fred Spencer and Mr. Tom Owen as the ugly sisters. During the performance Silbons's miniature circus with La Petite Carola, appears; also Lottie Stone's Madcap troupe of dancers.

BOSCOMBE.—GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. F. Mouillot; Manager, Mr. Rowland Stewart.—The Ben Greet company is here this week with La Poupée. Mr. Algernon Lee plays Launcelot in good style; Mr. Harry Bishop is excellent as Loremois; and Mr. Stanley White's representation of the Baron Chanterelle is well received. The dollmaker finds a capable representative in Mr. Edward Thirlby, whose capital impersonation raises many a hearty laugh; and mention must also be made of Mr. Joseph A. Boull, as Father Maxime, and Mr. S. Anchor, as Balthazar. Miss Margaret Ainsworth plays Madame Hilarius effectively, and Henri finds a vivacious exponent in Miss Eva Ellis. Miss Cissie Wade's interpretation of Alesia is received with marked favour.

BOURNEMOUTH.—THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Proprietors, David Allen and Son; Sole Lessee, Mr. Mouillot; Manager, Mr. Rowland Stewart.—Mr and Mrs F. R. Benson's Shakespearean company is here this week. Othello was played on Monday night. Mr Benson gave a finished rendering of Othello; Mr Arthur Whitby's reading of Iago was a fine effort; and the Desdemona of Mrs Benson was full of charm; Mr Cyril Keightley, as Cassio, distinguished himself, as did Miss Gertrude Scott, in the part of Emilia. Others deserving special mention were Mr H. O. Nicholson, as the Duke of Venice; Mr Percy D. Owen, as Roderigo; Mr B. A. Pittar, as Brabantio; and Mr Philip Sanders, as Montano. The other productions for the week include The Merry Wives of Windsor, Romeo and Juliet, Hamlet, The Taming of the Shrew, King Lear, and Twelfth Night.

BRADFORD.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr. John Hart; General Manager, Mr. T. F. Doyle; Acting-Manager, Mr. F. Pemberton.—Cinders continues its merry run, and crowded audiences testify to the popularity of Mr. Hart's charming pantomime, and the theatre rings nightly with laughter and applause.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Francis Laidler; Acting-Manager, Mr. N. Hepworth.—There was a crowded audience to witness the final performance of Robinson Crusoe, on Saturday evening, the enthusiasm and applause being prolonged throughout the performance. On Monday, the regular dramatic season was commenced, with Mr. and Mrs. Kimberley's company, in the sporting drama, Bound to Win. Mr. Kimberley gives a spirited performance of Harry Lyndon, and Mrs. Kimberley is most effective as the persecuted Marion Forbes. Squire Forbes has a capable exponent in Mr. S. Rennef; Philip Ayre, the villain, is represented with power and effect by Mr. F. Strickland, whose shady accomplice, Gladys Orme, is well played by Miss Kathleen Eckhart. The humour is well brough out by Miss Edie Maclin, in the part of Winnie Oakley, supported by Mr. H. Oustens and Mr. E. Morgan.

EMPIRE. — Moss Empires, Limited; Resident-Manager, Mr. J. J. Kelly.—Once again Fred Karno's company of comedians (including the irresistible Fred Kitchen) and the band of the 1st Regiment Estrellian Guards, are affording delight to big audiences here, in the humorous extravaganza, Saturday to Monday. In addition, there are excellent turns presented by T. C. Callaghan, comic vocalist; Florrie St. Clair, a pretty dancer; Diamond and Beatrice, clever and accomplished instrumentalists; Fred Neiman, an entertaining ventriloquist; Leona Dare, a remarkable artiste on the trapeze; Frank Harwood applause showed that there was still plenty of attraction in the piece. Mr. Arnold Bell, as Dan Myirea played better than ever. He had an excellent Mona in Miss Lilian Earle. Davy Fayle and Kitty in the hands of Mr. Wm. C. Reid and Miss Violet Campbell caused much laughter. Mr. F. C. Robson portrayed Ewan Myirea with spirit. Mr. F. C. Barlow as the Deemster, and Mr. Dan Farrough as the Bishop, with Mr. Cuthbert Imrie as the Governor, cleverly supported.

BURNLEY.—GAIETY.—Proprietress, Mrs. T. Culeen; General Manager, Mr. Jas. E. Culeen.—Messrs. Carson and Granville's Company is appearing here this week in Defending His Honour, Mr. John Davidson gives a good embodiment of Douglas Bryce; Mr. Clifton Boyne is seen at his best as Stephen Gerald; George Duncan is well represented by Mr. Henry Gilpin; Miss F. Melrose-Millet is a clever Ethel Bryce; Miss Belle Etard makes a satisfactory Jane; Mr. Terry Davies gives good effect to the character of Richard Verison; Jack Damish has a capable exponent in Mr. J. Russell-Bogue; Mr. Kenneth Black is a successful Dick Verison; Mrs. Edmond Lyons and Miss Jessie Glenn give excellent support as Mrs. Theresa Verison and Miss Trixie Lucien; Jack Bryce is cleverly portrayed by Miss T. Elton; and Harry Bryce by Miss May Smart; Mr. Thompson Carruthers is an able David Peller.

BURTON-ON-TRENT. — NEW THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Bennett; Acting-Manager, Mr. John Waller.—Mr. Howard Hinton's pantomime company is here this week with Dick Whittington. In the title rôle Miss Kitty Phelps acquits herself with distinction, her singing being a special feature; Miss Maud Leonard infuses plenty of dash into the part of Sir Roland; and Miss Gracie Clements as Fairy Goodwill shows much promise, and in conjunction with Miss Daisy Clements (Alice Fitzwarren), in their coon song and cake walk fairly take the house by storm. The Princess Charming of Miss Violet Welsh is finished and pleasing. The comic element, in the hands of Mr. Mount Stephens, Mr. Harry Renmor, Mr. Tom R. Seymour, Mr. Steve Cooke, and the Bowery Boys, is first rate, and much hearty laughter is caused. In the Palace scene specialities are introduced by The Empress Quartette of Dancers, The Bowery Boys, and Mr. Harry Cardoe, contortionist, who also impersonates the Cat with much cleverness.

BURY (LANCS).—THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE, LIMITED.—General Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling.—Messrs. Dottridge and Longden's pantomime Aladdin is here this week. The scenery and dresses are remarkably good. Large audiences have welcomed the principals, which include Mr. Fred Cary as Abanazar, a funny and versatile artist. He is ably assisted by Mr. Fred Graham as Widow Twankey, and the Bros. Brooks as Policemen. Miss Mimi Fisher is a dashing Aladdin; and Miss Harriet Fawn a winsome Princess. Specialities are given by Miss Cassie Walmer, sand dancer; Les Belles Americaines, dancers; Keith and Merson, acrobats and contortionists; and the Bros. Brooks.

CAMBRIDGE. — NEW THEATRE. — Managing Director, Mr. W. B. Redfern, J.P., D.L.—Miss Emma Hutchison's company, under the direction of Mr. Percy Hutchison, is here with a return visit of Saturday to Monday. Mr. Stuart Champion is as good as ever in his character of Lord Culvert; Miss Moyra Cregan plays with much charm as Mrs. Wendover; Mr. Dallas Welford gives a clever character sketch of Pidding; and Miss Adeline Lester is equally successful as Lady Diana.

CARDIFF.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Robert Redford.—Cardiff playgoers have this week the opportunity of witnessing the charmingly romantic play, Miss Elizabeth's Prisoner. The piece is presented by Mr. Lewis Waller's company, under the direction of Mr. Peter Davey. A fine piece of acting is that of Miss Essex Dane, who, as Miss Elizabeth, gives a portrayal that calls for high commendation. Another clever delineation is given by Mr. Norman Partriege, his representation of Captain Peyton being a very creditable performance. Mr. J. Harold Carson as Mr. Valentine gains much applause, and, with the valuable assistance of Miss Leonora Braham as Mistress Sarah, enlivens the audience considerably by his quietly amusing impersonation. A capital John Colden is found in Mr. Elliott Ball; Mr. Arthur Somers does well as John Edwards, and equally successful is Miss Marguerite Cellier as Molly. The curtain raiser, The Borrowed Uncle, is very amusing.

KING'S THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Frank Bateman; Business Manager, Mr. Robert Sawin.—What a Woman Did has been presented this week, for the first time, in Cardiff, by Mr. W. A. Armour's capable company. The impersonation of Elise de l'Orme, by Miss Dora Price, stands out as an admirable performance. The company is composed of artistes of more than average histrionic ability, every part being carefully and realistically portrayed.

EMPIRE.—Managing Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll.—A capital programme here is presented by the Venetia Kelinos, in their speciality act; Ambrose Thorne, in his light-comedy songs; Cora Caselli, in a Spanish rôle, with dramatic song and national dance; the comedy duo, Ross and Grayson, in The Professor and the Pupil; Lily Burnand, comedienne; Burg, Hand, and Wise, in a humorous acrobatic comedy act; Arthur Gill, with his Yokel speciality; the operatic xylophone experts, Baker and Balfe; F. V. St. Clair, the well-known comedian, who writes his own songs; the Musical Lady Juggler; and Les Brunin.

CASTLEFORD.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Proprietor and Licensee, Mr. Chas. Gadsby; Business Manager, Councillor Hy. Masterman.—Mr. Ernest R. Abbott's company opened here on Monday with A Wife's Triumph. Mr. George C. Doughty and Miss Ada Abbott win much sympathy as Frank Wilton and Bessie Dewhurst, while Mr. W. H. Garbois as Ellis Gordon and Mr. Edward Ouston as Julius Hartman arouse a storm of indignation by the clever realisation of their sinister parts. Miss Elsie Jones is a favourite as Little Frank, her acting being very smart for one so young; Mr. Ernest R. Abbott deserves great praise for a clever and life-like impersonation of Robert Dewhurst, a Yorkshire squire. Miss Jessie Mason gives a charming portrait of Alice Wilton. Mr. W. H. Davis-Brown as Stubbs, a trainer, is most satisfactory. The light side of the piece is provided by Mr. Edwin Keene as Ben Bradford and Miss Constance Medwyn as Margery Crib, both creating much laughter. Mr. D. Pentland is successful as Chas. E. Rylan, and Mr. W. Firth makes a capital Lopez.

CHATHAM. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Proprietors, Messrs. C. and L. B. Barnard; Acting-Manager, Mr. Lionel Barnard; Secretary, Mr. George G. Ridley.—This week we have the second pantomime of the season, Dick Whittington. The company is toured by Milton Bode, and the entire pantomime is produced under the stage management of Mr. E. R. Beaumont. In face and figure Miss Madoline Rees makes a capital Dick, and finds many admirers. Favourable mention must be made of Miss Janet H. Reynolds as May, her vocal numbers ranking among the most prominent items of the production. Tommy Trott is ably impersonated by Miss Florence A. White. The dancing of dainty Lillian Graham as the Fairy Claribel is spirited and graceful. Mr. Arthur E. Godfrey is an amusing Idle Jack; and Miss Minnie Godfrey does well as Alice Fitzwarren. Mr. Bob Hutt scores as Alderman Fitzwarren; Fred Dark gives a good account of himself as Matilda the cook; while the antics of Mouser the cat afford evidence of Mr. Tom Gilmore's acrobatic abilities.

CHELTENHAM. — OPERA HOUSE. — General Manager, Mr. H. Oswald Redford.—Mr. Harry Foxwell and company opened on Monday a three-nights engagement with The Shadows of a Great City. Mr. Foxwell soon secured the sympathies of the audience as Tom Cooper, the hero; Miss Sheila Walsh acted well as Nellie Standish; Miss Mollie Monaghan made a lively Biddy Roonan; Mr. Charles Vivian as George Benson was a convincing villain; Mr. Howell Stevens gave a smart impersonation of the pawnbroker Jew; and Mr. Newton Pearce as Jim Farren caused roars of laughter. On Thursday and Friday, Mr. and Mrs. Kendal paid a welcome visit in The Housekeeper and The Elder Miss Blossom.

VICTORIA ROOMS.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. E. B. Shenton.—This week Mr. Erno Aguzzi's Star Vaudeville company is drawing well. Adrim and Oram greatly amuse with their rag-time eccentricities; and Leo Selwyn astonishes all beholders, and fully establishes his claim to the title of the "Handcuff Prince."

CHESTERFIELD.—THEATRE ROYAL, LIMITED.—Managing Director, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Resident Manager, Mr. Holbery Hardy.—Miss Remo Glendower and company, with The Ladder of Life, under the direction of Mr. G. Finch-Hatton, are the attraction here this week. Mr. Tyrone Power as General Gordon is seen to advantage; Mr. Roy F. Gascoigne as Colonel Macgregor scores a success; Mr. C. H. Matthews gives a careful study of the part of Fergus Gordon; Mr. Roy Milton makes a manly Lieutenant David Gordon; Miss Winnie De Lacey as Little Gordon shows intelligence; Miss Hilda Young is a vivacious Mary Jane Jolliboy; Miss Renee Glendower in the rôle of Mother Flint is a true portrayal of an old hag; Miss Flora Leslie is a pleasing Meg Merrilees; Miss Stephanie Barry as Olga Sobinsky is effective; and The Feros give a capital acrobatic turn.

CHORLEY (LANCS.).—GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. G. T. Sante; Secretary, Mr. J. Clay.—Mr. H. W. Hallat's strong company is here this week with the excellent drama, Two Little Sailor Boys. Mr. Hallat as Capt. Tom York scores a decided success; Mr. W. Sams gives an admirable rendering of Noel Tregarthen; Mr. Leonard Booker cleverly undertakes the part of Lieut. R. Redstone, Mr. Tom E. Sinclair being responsible for a humorous portrayal of Ben Baxter. Miss Blanche Steele gives an exceptionally fine embodiment of Lola Grey. Miss M. Scudamore is a sympathetic Mildred Gray. The two sailor boys, Cyril Grey and Tom York, are successfully undertaken by the Misses May Day and E. F. Green, while Mr. Oscar Power as Jack Jolly, A.B., Mr. Ambrose Horton (Jim Royston), and Miss Chambers (Lucy Wilson) are effective in their respective impersonations.

CLYDEBANK.—NEW GAIETY THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Wilson.—The attraction here this week is Mr. Charles March's company, in the drama The Priest of the Temple. Mr. Charles March is highly successful as Valerius; Decus Fronto has a worthy exponent in Mr. Percy Ballard; Miss Marie North as Præstantia is excellent; Miss Violet Crawford scores heavily as Polita; and Mr. Henry Nixon as Appius Herdonius, a Tiberian chief, is worthy of praise. Other parts are well played by Mr. Stanley May as Hermanus; Mr. John Simpson as Camellius; and Mr. Sam Mewha as Alertius.

COATBRIDGE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietress, Mrs. Mary Watson; Manager, Mr. C. B. Fountaine.—Mr. Herbert Barrs' pantomime company is here this week with Cinderella, and on Monday opened to a full house. Mr. Carl Fredericks shows excellent talent as Baron Stonio; Mr. Oscar Mills and Mr. Walter Langford, as Flossie and Arminta respectively, give admirable renderings; and Mr. Paul Pry successfully portrays Buttons. Miss Minnie Willet, in the title rôle, is a great favourite; Miss Tessie Vandean makes a clever Prince Charming; and Miss Maggie Stewart shows ability as Dandini. The specialities include the Ya Pyn Ket Family, Oriental magicians; the Gaiety Girls dancers; Madame Cordelia, the Chameleon Sylph; John Bull, ventriloquist; and Paul Pry, whistler.

COLCHESTER.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. Chas. Macdona; Resident-Manager, Mr. F. Graham Macdona.—Professor F. R. Crocker and his horses are here for the week and are attracting good audiences. Intermixed with the clever equine feats are shown a number of humorous cinematograph pictures, which cause much amusement.

CORK.—OPERA HOUSE.—Manager, Mr. John Horgan.—Messrs. J. K. Murray and J. M. Dawson's company opened a week's engagement here on Monday in the sensational drama, Driven from Home. Mr. John M. Dawson as Walter Hatherleigh filled the part successfully; Mr. Aylymer J. Williams did well as Anthony Raybrook; Miss Emilie Dawson was interesting as Margaret; Miss Ella Sennet supplied a convincing study of the persecuted heroine, Laura Raybrook; Miss Ida Murray acted the part of the Nipper cleverly; and Miss Gladys Murray made an excellent Barbara Ashdown. The Streets of London was billed for Friday.

PALACE THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Henry Kemble.—The programme presented here includes Payne's Little Vagabonds in their vocal comedy act; Eileen Conroy, an excellent vocalist; France and Francis, comedians and dancers; the Henderson and Stanley Quartette, speciality artistes; the Sisters Lytton, two operatic vocalists; the Three Henriques in a clever acrobatic turn; G. W. Foster, vocalist and patterer; and the De Breans, premier sciographists.

COVENTRY.—OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietor, Mr. Wm. Bennett.—Mr. Frank Curzon's company is the successful musical comedy, Sergeant Brue, is paying a welcome visit here this week. Mr. Victor Widdicombe gives a capital rendering of the title rôle; to Mr. T. A. Shale is entrusted the part of Crookie Scrubbs, his quaint humour being much admired; Mr. Cecil Burt gives a capital illustration of Mr. Crank, a typical magistrate; Mr. Albert Sealey makes a good lawyer, Matthew Habisholm; Mr. E. Percy Rogers is responsible for a great amount of fun in the part of Michael Brue; Miss Constance Lait is well received as Aurora Brue; and Miss Violet Dene gives a satisfactory impersonation of Lady Bickenhall. An augmented orchestra is under the direction of Mr. H. R. Mathews.

CREWE.—LYCEUM THEATRE.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr. Henry Taylor.—Mr. H. A. Jordison's powerful company is here this week with The Babes in the Wood. Miss Madge Daley makes a dashing Robin Hood, her acting and singing being greatly admired; Mr. Rowland Hill imbues the character of Dame Peggy with unctuous humour; Maid Marian is played by Miss Ada Martine with great vivacity; Mr. Edward Avon displays much cleverness in the character of Baron Toodle; the Babes are very prettily played by Little Elsie Jordison and Little Dolly Cullen; and Litle Clutley is very entertaining as Bantam. Specialities are given by Mr. George Chanti, The Empire Quartette of Dancers, and Avon and Crest. Messrs. Cullen and Carthy force the fun cleverly; and Phyllis and Marjorie are ably depicted by Miss B. Brookland and Miss K. Coffrey.

CROYDON.—GRAND THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Lawson Lambert; Acting-Manager, Mr. Reginald Lawrence.—Messrs. Addison Bright and Walter Maxwell's company is paying a first visit to Croydon with Little Mary. Miss Ethel Dane acts the rôle of Moira Loney with all the skill and tact of an accomplished actress; Miss Elspeth Dudgeon is good as the Countess of Plumleigh; Miss Margaret Nyblon is efficient as Lady Milly; and Miss Beatrice Kelston submits a faithful rendering of Eleanor Grey. Mr. George Mudie shows high histrionic ability in the rôle of the Earl of Carlton; Mr. George A. Brandram proves himself a sterling actor by his artistic impersonation of Sir Jennings Pyke; Mr. Arthur Kightley is admirable as Lord Rolfe; Mr. Louis Edgard is painstaking as the Earl of Plumleigh; Mr. Ean Macdonald is well suited as Dr. Topping; and Mr. F. J. Watts deserves a word of praise as Deighton. The first piece is the vivid and well-written one act play The Monkey's Paw.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Samuel Jones; Acting-Manager, Mr. Newman Maurice.—Mr. Frank E. Burdett's company is on a return visit here with the realistic drama The Indian Mutiny. Miss Kate Bruce deserves all praise for her portrayal of Mrs. Major Ingleby; Miss Agnes Kingston is a capital Kate Ingleby; and Miss Maud Digby is commendable as Ghuz-nah. Mr. H. Ryeland-Leigh puts in good work as Lieutenant Manley; Mr. H. P. Brandon renders valuable aid as Captain Manley; Mr. W. S. Tindall gives a creditable impersonation of Major Ingleby; Mr. John Hignett is amusing as Terry O'Brien; and Messrs. Villiers Stanley and J. S. Shedden are adequate as Nebu Singh and Abul Khan. Mr. John Reillie's orchestra renders yeoman service during the intervals.

PALACE THEATRE OF VARIETIES, LIMITED.—Resident General Manager, Mr. Eustace H. Jay.—The week's bill here is affording satisfaction. Lidden and Hayward give a smart turn; Edie Hamilton excels as a dancer; Primavesi is an expert juggler; Dolly Harmer is a bewitching comedienne; Talberto and Douglas are a droll pair; Bessie Friars is a clever ventriloquist and pianist; Kioto, Japanese equilibrist, wins applause; the Two Whites, American eccentrics, are worth seeing; Flo Beck is a neat comedienne, and Florence Manners a lively burlesque actress; the Zenary Brothers are great in an acrobatic act, A Meeting at the Club; Harry Lane is an entertaining comedian; Violet Mills a taking serio; Fred Pollard an untiring comedian; and Lena Hicks is appreciated.

DARLINGTON.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Manageress, Mrs. T. W. S. Jennings.—Mr. Louis Calvert's company is presenting Sunday here this week. Miss Jean Sterling MacKinlay, in the title rôle, is a charming and clever actress, and her performance is greatly admired. Mr. J. Edward Pearce as Colonel Brinthorpe is excellent. Mr. Charles B. Vaughan plays the part of Arthur Brinthorpe in a capable manner. Mr. Ernest A. Douglas gives a fine rendering of Tom Oxley. Messrs. Fred. Powell as Towzer, John H. Manly as Davy, T. Norman Walter as Lively, and Whitford Kane as Jacky, are all successful as the "boys."

DARWEN.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr. E. L. Ormsby. — Mr. John Walters' pantomine, Robinson Crusoe, is proving a great attraction here this week. In the title-rôle Miss Rose Harvey pleases all by her smart acting and tasteful singing. Miss Fanny Adamson is an ideal principal girl; Miss Bertha Cousins makes a dashing Captain Kettle, and Miss Kittie Major is a capital Dolly Fairweather. Mr. Shaun Glenville, a most amusing Dame Crusoe, introduces some clever singing and dancing; Mr. Fred Alberto is excellent as "Will" Atkins, and as Ebenezer and Julius Cutpurse the Brothers Obe are an exceptional pair of comedians, and along with Billy Crusoe, undertaken by Mr. Tom Drum, keep the house in roars of laughter. Miss Emily Liske is prominent as Fairy Liberty, as is Mr. J. C. Roberts as King Neptune. The Two Daniels are energetic as King Lung and Hoop Do Do, respectively, and Miss Nancy Renshaw is vivacious as Princess Piccalilli.

DERBY.—GRAND THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Proprietor and General Manager, Mr. J. Allan Edwardes; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Charles Denley.—Messrs. Dottridge and Longden's pantomine, Goody Two Shoes, from the Theatre Royal, Sheffield, opened a fortnight's campaign here on Monday, and met with an excellent reception. There are no less than six high-class comedians all working harmoniously together, and whose efforts do much to secure the success of the production. Messrs. Downes and Langford, who impersonate Truthful Tommy and Phil the philosopher, Mr. Henry F. McClelland as Baron Grab, Mr. Geo. French as Simon, Mr. Fred Lincoln as Dame Fanny, and Mr. Harry Rousby as Sandy Sopps, are a host in themselves, and their songs and jokes are of a decidedly fresh, wholesome, and stimulating character. In the name part Miss Minnie Cunningham sings and dances admirably. Miss Georgina Leonard scores distinctly as principal boy, her presentment being as dashing as it is resourceful. Miss Rose Tilley as Peter Piper, and Miss Rita Rhylle as Dolly Dimple, are both praiseworthy in every way; and special mention should also be accorded to the Mephisto of Miss Amy French and the Benevolentia of Miss Molly Wolstenholme; while Miss Sheila Redgrave and Miss Hilda Stewart figure very acceptably as Frank Frisby and Pansy Blossom. A special feature is the engagement of the Five Sunbeams, who contribute a series of charming dances. The pantomine is magnificently mounted. Mr. H. W. Harwood is the general manager, and Mr. W. Ainsley Fox the musical director.

PALACE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. J. Allan Edwardes.—The Sarnthaler Troupe of Tyrolean singers and dancers form the star turn here this week; their performance is indeed attractive. Essman, a smart juggler, does several creditable feats; Sleath and Aldin appear in a pleasing musical scena; Walter Wallis acquits himself well as a comedian; Antley is a clever wire walker; and the Delamere trio of comedy equilibrists are praiseworthy. A special feature of the programme is a naval and military spectacle, arranged by Mr. Tom Herman. In this, fifty local children take part, and it proves a pleasing success.

DONCASTER.—NEW GRAND THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. W. Chapman.—A capital variety combination is in possession of the boards here. Phil Herman, comedian, is well received; Marie York, chic comedienne, is engaging; U. C. Ugo, magician, is distinctly clever; Revill Hall, society humorist, is exceedingly funny, and an adept in orchestration; Madame Louie, second sight monarch, is mystifying. The other members of the company also excel.

DOUGLAS. — EMPIRE THEATRE. — Lessee and Manager, Mr. Alfred Sugden.—Mr. Robert Lena, who made a success last week with For England's Honour, makes a bold bid for public support by playing two sterling melodramas this week—to wit, Who is the Man? and A Mother's Love. The first mentioned play occupied the boards the first four nights of the week. It was admirably acted by Miss Lena Lewis, Miss Marie Lisle, and Miss Gertrude Lovell, in leading parts. Mr. W. Prestby was intensely interesting as the villain, and Mr. Robert Lena, in various disguises, was adroitly artistic as the Detective. The other characters were well played by the members of the company.

DOVER. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Proprietors, The Dover Theatres, Limited; Managing-Director, Mr. F. C. Dew.—Mr. A. Clifton Alderson and company are appearing here this week in A Soldier and a Man. Miss B. Doyle portrays the rôle of Rose Melbury with much charm; Norah Melbury is well interpreted by Miss Daisy England; and Miss Hilda Leslie as "Sergeant," Jane Wicks is energetic and amusing; Mr. A. Clifton Alderson appears to particular advantage as Harold Sinclair; Mr. Paul Beckett's stage villainies as Hubert Walgrove are marked with all the callous cynicism and brutality necessary; and Mr. Edward Fenton gives a striking study of Lieut. Pelham. As David Melbury, Mr. W. A. Norman submits a clever rendering of the feeble old man; and Mr. Henry C. Maroney is excellent as the austere Col. Sinclair; Mr. Harry F. Wright is conspicuously successful as the manly Jim Farrow; Mr. H. K. Ayliffe is strong and consistent as Jake Harding; Mr. Charles Perry as Col. Westerton gives a capital impersonation of the bluff old soldier; Mr. T. Kirkwood is decidedly humorous as Sergt. Wicks; and Mr. J. Balderton plays well the part of Major Bassett.

DUBLIN.—GAIETY THEATRE.—Lessees, Michael Gunn, Limited; General Manager, Mr. Charles Hyland.—Mrs. Bandman Palmer and company opened here on Monday with Mary, Queen of Scots. Mrs. Bandman Palmer, in the title-rôle, submitted a highly emotional and artistic representation, which won for her hearty applause. The part of the Earl of Leicester was played in an able manner by Mr. F. Skein, and Miss K. Herbert gave a careful study in the rôle of Queen Elizabeth. Mr. E. Grogan excellently portrayed the Earl of Mortimer, and Miss Bruce Joy was seen to advantage as Gertrude. The Earl of Shrewsbury, as played by Mr. A. St. Aubyn, was an admirable performance, and Mr. Sydney Bland was capital as Lord Burleigh. Mr. G. Munroe was well placed as the Earl of Kent, and Mr. Durand was successful as Burgoyne. Nel Gwynne, Leah, the Forsaken, and East Lynne, are billed for the remainder of the week. On Thursday and Friday nights the theatre was devoted to amateur theatricals in aid of Lady Dudley's Fund.

THEATRE ROYAL. — Managing - Director, Mr. Mouillot.—This popular pantomime, which entered on its third week here on Monday night, continues to draw crowded houses.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. J. W. Whitbread; General Manager, Mr. Kennedy Miller.—When London Sleeps is being played here this week by Mr. C. Finch Hatton's company. Mr. Walter H. Wilson ably sustains the part of Captain Rodney, and Miss Mabel Cluer gives an effective portrayal of Queenie Carruthers. The part of David Englehart is played in an acceptable manner by Mr. Albert Wray, and Miss Hilda Clyde makes an admirable Hilda Carode. Mr. Edward Vivian acts the part of Furnaby Fuller capitally, and Miss Evelyn Clare is good as Maudie de Friere. Bob Jones, alias Signor Roberto Jonesio, has an able exponent in Mr. Paul Graydon, and Miss Nellie Birchenough is well suited in the rôle of Signorina Robertio Jonesio. The parts of the Hon. Bertie Broomhead and Mark Blackwood are successfully played by Messrs. Charles Digby and Elwyn Hurst, and Miss Nellie Hook as Carrie Jones and Mr. Darcy Kelway as Sammy are both satisfactory in their respective parts.

EMPIRE THEATRE.—General Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. S. Piggis.—The principal item here this week is Fred Karno's Troupe of Comedians, in their pantomimical burlesque, Early Birds, which causes much laughter. The several selections played by Mendel, the blind pianist, are favourably received, and Rastus and Banks are seen to advantage as "The Major and the Maid." Harry Helmsley's imitation of children meets with success, and The Sakers, comedy duettists, are a diverting pair. The pantomime absurdity Hilarity is entertaining; and Harry Martell is a smart comedian and dancer. Little Uno, boy comedian, makes a decided hit, and Katie Butler, a vivacious comedienne, merits applause. The Empire pictures are also attractive.

TIVOLI.—General Manager, Mr. Charles M. Jones; Secretary, Mr. H. A. Murphy.—Les Francois, in their Pot Purrie acrobatic act, are a great attraction here this week, and meet with a cordial reception. The Gordons, in the sketch He, She, and It, are appreciated, as is also Herman Priscari, hat manipulator and juggler. Williams and Brown, cross-talk comedians, score a success; and The Steens supply a clever act. H. K. Bradshaw is an excellent tenor vocalist, and Della Doree a pleasing comedienne and dancer. Other turns who contribute are Satsuma, Oriental worker; Flo Atkins, concertinist and mandolinist; and Ted Waite, comedian.

WORLD'S FAIR AND MUSIC HALL.—Proprietor, Mr. C. A. James.—The bill here includes Pettigrove and Sons, marionettes; pantomime, Robinson Crusoe; illustrated songs, living pictures, and J. D. Dunne, pianist.

SAMUELS' EXHIBITION PALACE.—Proprietor, Mr. S. Samuels.—The company here includes Mildred Vaughan, comedienne and dancer; Lead and Lead, comedy duettists; Kolney Hatch, comedian; George Arnold, baritone; George Harcourt, descriptive vocalist; and Sheelah, palmist.

DUNFERMLINE.—THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr. W. E. Potts.—Mr. J. Rice Cassidy's company is this week occupying the boards here in Dan the Rake and The God of War. The former was produced on Monday. Mr. Frank Orchard made a capable Colonel Flamer, and as Lieutenant Charles Kavanagh Mr. F. Copland was a success. Captain Tom Cooper found an able exponent in Mr. Frederick Biron. Mr. George Horder was good as the High Priest of Sivan. Mr. S. Crossley made an impressive General Lake. The comedy element was in the hands of Mr. Cassidy as Dan Donelly, who showed himself to be a master of the art. Miss Lilian Clare ably supported him in her part of Madge. Miss Ada Roscoe was an acceptable Mrs. Donelly.

EASTBOURNE.—DEVONSHIRE PARK THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. A. Standen Triggs.—Mr. J. P. Sousa and his celebrated band gave a concert here on Wednesday evening.

PIER PAVILION.—Manager, Mr. George Hayes.—Mr. Alfred B. Cross and his company are appearing here in The Manxman. Mr. Cross undertakes the rôle of Peter in a masterly manner, and proves himself an actor of much ability. Mr. William Burchill is a handsome, dignified, and polished Philip; Mr. Henry Heller is an incisive and forceful Cæsar Cregan; Mr. Edward McLean is a humorous Ross Christian; and the smaller characters receive capable treatment. Kate Cregan finds a fine exponent in Miss Minnie Watersford, and her emotional scenes are particularly able and convincing. Miss Nancy Mitchell is a pretty Nancy, and Miss Leslie Adair a refined and subdued Miss Christian.

THE HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Samuel Lloyd.—In the interesting and clever sketch, A Daughter of Pleasure, Mr. J. G. Grahame, jun., displays the work of a capable actor, and his careful, earnest work grips the attention; Miss Zerlina Harrington is an effective Elsie; and Mr. A. Bradshaw a capable Alphonse. Miss Agnes Molteno, in a cultivated voice sings her songs to the delight of the audience; Miss Dora Martini is a novel and daring trapeze-worker; Hurman is a neat and pleasing juggler and hoop manipulator; Mr. Andy Burn is a successful comedian, and one of the smartest step-dancers seen here; the Three Sisters Chester dance neatly to their own banjo accompaniment; Mr. Fred Herbert's topical verses appeal to the audience; Miss Florrie St. Roy sings and dances well; Miss Amy Elcock step-dances neatly; Saxo contributes a popular musical act; Miss Fin remains from last week; and the Hippodrome pictures complete the programme.

EBBW VALE.—KING'S THEATRE.—Sole Lessees, Messrs. Arthur Carlton and Sam Duckworth; Manager, Mr. Arthur Knight.—A special attraction was provided at this place during the first three nights of the week, when Messrs. Fred J. Webb and Wilson Benge's company appeared in The Two Hussars. Harry Alford was powerfully portrayed by Mr. W. Benge; the unpopular part of Captain Paul Villiers was well acted by Mr. F. J. Webb; one of the successes was Robert Runn, by Mr. Louis Nanton. Mr. V. Vivian made a typical Colonel Manners; Miss Lallah Price was amusing as Molly Cutts; and Sergeant McFinnie was ably taken by Mr. G. Paradise.

MARKET HALL.—Lessees, The Market Hall Company; Manager and Secretary, Mr. J. Light.—On Wednesday the Ebbw Vale Amateur Dramatic Society gave a performance of Still Waters Run Deep, and the farce, To Oblige Benson.

EDINBURGH. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Messrs. Howard and Wyndham, Limited.—Acting-Manager, Mr. Walter Hollister.—The pantomime of Jack and the Beanstalk attracted another large and well-pleased audience to this theatre on Monday evening, when the entertainment went brightly and briskly as ever. The comedians work with a will, and Mr. Malcolm Scott caps their absurdities with the quaintest drolleries, his fiscal policy speech making way now for a diverting sketch depicting a visit to a dentist. Mr. Ambrose Manning and Mr. J. P. Macmillan give able assistance, and many comicalities are painlessly extracted from the scene. Miss Lily Harold's new song, "Little Yo San," is cordially received, and the vocal contributions of Miss Daisy Le Hay and Miss Cecilia Wilman are nightly appreciated and applauded.

LYCEUM THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Howard and Wyndham, Limited; General Manager, Mr. G. T. Minshull.—The Duchess of Dantsic is proving a big source of attraction here, and is nightly received with an enthusiasm which augurs well for the remainder of the month's run. The scenery and dresses call forth hearty encomiums, and the performance of Mr. George Edwardes's company is universally admired. An additional interest has been lent to the cast by the appearance of a fresh Madame Sans Gêne. Owing to the absence of Miss Amy Augarde, Miss Kate Traill, who had been playing Grand Duchess of Bery and Cleves, was a week ago called upon to undertake the leading lady rôle, and on Monday night we found her sustaining the part of the Merry Duchess with marked ability, and acquitting herself with a brilliancy which captivated and delighted the house. Her assumption of the character of the nimble-witted Catherine was in every way dramatically alive, and acting with verve and singing with vigour, Miss Traill's success has been assured from the first. It is worthy of record that this talented lady was at one time a pupil in the Edinburgh Ladies' College. Mr. Matthew Brodie's Napoleon—a part he plays with consummate skill—remains an important feature of the performance, and the singing of Mr. Herbert Clayton and Mr. Reginald Kenneth is much enjoyed by the public. Mr. T. W. Volt revels in the delicate comedy of Papillon, and the dainty acting and sweet singing of Miss Lillian Digges as Renée and the smart appearance of Miss Luna Love as Lisette are also pleasurable elements of the evening.

EMPIRE THEATRE.—Managing Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll.—Mr. Harry Lauder is one of the strongest not "saftest" of the family of comedians, and saving Vesta Tilley and Albert Chevalier, a bigger draw than he cannot be found in the provinces. This sterling artiste, who can blend so many diverse elements in his homespun studies of character, was in his best form on Monday, and enjoyed a grand reception from an overflowing house. Although colded a bit he got through four songs, and retired amid tremendous applause. Miss Daisy Mayer, who is a delightful dancer, made a welcome reappearance, while the National dances of Clark and Argyle were also cordially applauded. Collins and Rice, speciality artistes, and Burns and Evans, comedians, contributed capital turns, and the fooling of Little Ulpis and the antics of Peppo's Monkeys were favourably received. Mr. H. F. Wilson (tenor), Mr. Harry Lawson (comedian), and The Three Donals (athletes) complete the week's company.

GRAND THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Eade Montefiore.—This is the last week of Little Red Riding Hood, the pantomime being withdrawn on Saturday to make room for novelties previously arranged for. Business during the past week has been excellent, and we are sure everybody is sorry to part with Miss Florrie Forde, who has been the mainstay of the production in every sense of the term. Of course adequate support has been given all round, both by Miss Gertie Gitana, the charming heroine, and by the comedians whose praises we have already sung. The performance has been a notable example of first-class artistes working cordially together, and we hope Mr. Brydon-Phillips will bring the same company round in a similar entertainment very soon.

PAVILION THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Tom Ellis.—After nearly twenty years' touring in the provinces, thanks to the enterprise of Mr. Ellis, Arthur Shirley's world-famed drama, The Grip of Iron, is paying a first visit to Edinburgh. The play, which was heartily received, drew a large and appreciative audience, and the performance by Messrs. E. H. Knight and George Denham's company was all that could be desired. The mounting was strikingly effective, and the last scene, "The Drawing-room of Lorentz de Riba's Villa," a stage arrangement of unusual magnificence that secured the producer an immediate call. The principal character of Jagon, alias Simmonet, is sustained with vivid realism by that powerful actor Mr. Fred Powell, who, it is stated, has played the part for close on 6,000 times with only a single evening's break. Here is a record of histrionic achievement that should start a medal and order of merit, and we are sure the profession at large, from the illustrious Sir Henry himself to the humblest volunteer in the ranks, are in this instance proud of so distinguished a comrade. Mr. Powell was splendid in the various heavy scenes as Simmonet, while in those where he figured as Jagon he revealed a fine sense of humour that was greatly enjoyed by the audience. Mr. Blundell Lenton gave a highly finished rendering of Paul Blanchard, and Mr. A. G. Poulson Turner made a picturesque appearance as the Spaniard, Lorentz de Ribas. Mr. John Coghlan, who is also acting-manager, gave an artistic rendering of the ardent Robert de Belfort, and Mr. Harry Agar Lyons, a gentlemanly actor at all times, was seen to unusual advantage as Alphonse de Coucou, a detective. Mr. John Brittain represented the old school in the same line cleverly, and Mr. George Denham, as a nondescript convict, proved a comedian of the first water, causing uproarious merriment in his principal scenes. Marie Guerin was played with charming grace by Miss Hilda Baynton, while Miss Georgie de Lara displayed notable power all through her brilliant impersonation of Cora Simmonet. A better Sophie Blanchard than Miss Helena Walbran could not be found, and she stirred the sensibility of the audience with her intensely emotional acting from first to last. Other parts by Misses Sybil Smith and Pope Royal were satisfactorily filled.

Cooke's Royal Circus. — Proprietor, Mr. John Henry Cooke.—The end of the season here is approaching, and this week will see the last of the great spectacle Aqua-Wreck, which has drawn well and fully realised the expectations of the management. A Prince for an Hour continues, and the singing and dancing of La Paloma has proved very attractive. The Three Martinettes have introduced an amusing sketch, and turns by the Yoricks and the Wambas have been well received. The Bioscope pictures are also given with success.

EXETER.—Theatre Royal.—Secretary and Manager, Mr. Fred Pollard; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy M. Dunsford.—Are You a Mason? played by Messrs. Geo. Edwardes and Chas. Frohman's company, is the attraction here this week. Mr Arthur Claremont very ably portrays the character of Frank Perry, and Mr. Harry Ashford as Amos Bloodgood is extremely successful, and the same remark applies to Mr. Anthony Fawcett who as Angelina's long-lost daughter was very funny. Miss Violet Graham was a bright and vivacious Eva; Miss Edith Ife proved more than capable as Lottie; and Miss Harriet Trench as Mrs. Caroline Bloodgood was a marked success.

FALKIRK.—Grand Theatre and Opera House.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. H. W. Ebbutt.—Mr. Fred. Karno's company in the dramatic extravaganza, His Majesty's Guests, has held the boards here this week. The leading part is that of Sergeant Lightning, which is filled with the utmost success by Mr. R. H. Kitchen, whose undoubted powers as a comedian are greatly appreciated. He is well supported by Mr. Wellesley Smith (Mr. Miffin), Mr. Charles Cardon (Fritz), Mr. Charles F. Howard (Lord Easem), Miss Doris Ainsley (Dolly), Miss Clara Moore (Miss Manly), Miss Jessie Newcombe (Lady Maude Easem), and the other members of a numerous company.

FARNWORTH.—Queen's Theatre.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. T. Morton Powell.—Mr. A. E. Smith's company is here with Bold Robin Hood. The characters are all in good hands, and the performance runs merrily from beginning to end. As Robin Hood Miss Edith Wallis gives a sprightly rendering of the part, and is largely responsible for the success of the show. Maid Marion has a pretty representative in Miss Beatie Howard, who also works with unflagging zeal from first to last; Mr. Arthur Slater, as Baron Balderdash, is prominent as a fun-maker, and indulges in some capital whistling solos; the Dame Quisby Diggs of Mr. Charles Gladwell is a very humorous character indeed, and he fully deserves the reception accorded him; Messrs. Bob Padley and F. Wheatcroft, as Wearie Willie and Tired Tim, cause much amusement. Good singing is forthcoming from Mr. J. H. Matthews as the Demon King; and Miss Lily Coleman makes a pretty and dignified Fairy Queen; the Bluebell Quartette of dancers give a pleasing performance. The scenery and mounting are excellent.

FOLKESTONE.—Pleasure Gardens Theatre.—Manager, Mr. H. W. Rowland.—Mr. Frederick E. Philpott's No. 1 company, in The Girl from Japan, is the attraction here. Mr. George Hudson as Lord Allenbury is excellent; Mr. Charles Lupton deserves every praise as Sir Mulberry Flippington; Mr. Percy Baverstock is equally successful as General Baugh; Mr. H. Carlyle Pritchard's portrayal of the Rev. John Smith gives satisfaction; and Mr. Colet Dane as Horatio Binks is provokingly funny. Mr. H. Benson does well as Hans Creton; Mr. Frank Sherlock wins favour as Bingle; Miss Rita Tomkins is a capable Polly Perkins; Miss Florence Nelson is seen to advantage as Lady Flippington; Miss Effie Rydon is good as the Countess De La Rue; Miss Jean Van Dalle gives a good rendering of the part of Maud; and Miss Madeline Stone Humphries as Violet displays great vivacity.

GATESHEAD.—Metropole Theatre. — Lessees, Messrs. Bolam and Bacon; General Manager, Mr. Sidney Bacon; Resident Manager, Mr. J. Straughan. —This is the second and closing week's stay of the pantomime Aladdin. The singing and dancing of the principals are now of a taking character, and Miss Meg Hamilton as Aladdin makes the most of the part. Miss Polly Prim continues to give a good embodiment of the character of Princess Badroulbadour, while as Widow Twankey Mr. Will Crackles is responsible for much amusement. A capital portrayal of the character of Abanazar is given by Mr. Fred Lawrence, and Messrs. Bishop and Vale get much out of the respective characters of Ping and Pong. Miss Gracie Moore, who last week was unable to sing owing to a severe cold, now contributes a song, which is much appreciated.

GLASGOW. — Theatre Royal, Limited. — Managing Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy Humphrys.—In Messrs. Howard and Wyndham's latest successful pantomime The Forty Thieves, Miss Annie Purcell (who was recently indisposed) had a great reception on her reappearance on Monday evening. Messrs. Tom E. Murray, George Lashwood, Fred Griffiths, Percy Clifton, Wm. Benson, Miss Pearl Lyndon, Miss Annie Braddan, and Miss Marcella Chevalier are still first favourites; while the dancing of The Diamond Troupe of Dancers is excellent.

Royalty, Limited.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. M. Downie. —The last week of the very successful run of the pantomime of Jack and Jill has proved not the least successful of the lot. The proprietors of the theatre and Mr. John Tiller are to be congratulated on their first joint venture at this house. It has proved thoroughly enjoyable, and is funny without a trace of vulgarity. The versatile Ginger of Jack and Jill, Mr. J. French, was accorded a crowded house at a benefit given him on Tuesday, and the popular Misses May Merry and Mabel Higson, who essayed the title parts, were announced for a similar and well-deserved compliment on Thursday evening. Mr. Downie, the courteous Acting-Manager, has managed "the front" during the runs with conspicuous credit to himself and all concerned.

Royal Princess.—Proprietor, Mr. Richard Waldon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Hugh Murdoch.—At this house the pantomime Goosy Gander continues its prosperous career, and the principal performers are enjoying a degree of popularity that is pleasant to witness. Among those who have specially endeared themselves to the patrons here are Miss Lily Morris in the part of Fred Fearless; Miss Daisy Dormer as Rosey Posey; and Mr. John E. Coyle, who appears in the title rôle. Messrs. Regan and Ryan are diverting as Sunny Jim and Cloudy Jim; while a charming second boy and girl are found in the Sisters Cora. The Baron of Mr. Arthur Poole is an amusing bit of burlesque, and some excellent fun is provided by Mr. Dawson Dewick as Jenny Awthings, and by Messrs. John and George Preston as Peter and Sampson, respectively.

Metropole — Managing-Director, Mr. Arthur Jefferson; Acting-Manager, Mr. John Dunbar.—Messrs. Scudamore and Richmond's company is here in The Beautiful Avenger, with Miss Nannie Meade in the title-rôle. In her disguise as Victor Stanhope she makes a powerful impression, and is equally successful in her impersonation of Vashti Volta, the avenger of her sister's wrongs. Mr. Algernon Syms, as Telford, the artist hero, gives a manly rendering of the part; while the wandering waif Baldie is feelingly acted by Miss Lilian Morgan. A trying character—that of Edna Volta—is successfully portrayed by Miss Cissy Podmore. A pair of thorough scoundrels are strongly presented by Mr. Edwin Walton as the elder Foxbane, and Mr. Chas. T. Does as Herman, the son. The fun of the drama is kept merrily going by Miss Lilian Hawkins as Arabella, Mr. Bert Ellis as Peregrine Patch, and Mr. Arthur Richmond as Jim Jahms, a ragged, unkempt tramp.

Lyceum.—Proprietor, Mr. Rich Waldon; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. H. Oakden.—That sterling old favourite Uncle Tom's Cabin is the attraction here, and Mr. Charles Harrington's company gives an excellent performance. Mr. J. Carr makes a striking figure of Uncle Tom, and the tone of resigned pathos throughout is most effective. Mr. Charles Harrington again appears as the good-hearted St. Clair, and Miss Zerlina Zerbini is clever as the vindictive Cassy. Miss Hettie Johnson acts with excellent effect as Eliza Harris, and Mr. Guy P. Ellis is well suited as George. Mr. "Nemesis" Rogers repeats his strong embodiment of the slave-owner, Legree. Miss Sylvia Stella infuses a wealth of humour into her rendering of Topsy. Mr. Fred Charles, as the lawyer Marks, also helps the fun along. Two short parts, very well played, are the Mrs. St. Clair of Miss Hero Hathaway, and the Emmeline of Miss Emma Stewart. Little Minnie as Eva speaks her lines with good emphasis and effect. The plantation scenes are good, and the coloured choristers sing with admirable taste and precision.

Empire, Limited.—District-Manager, Mr. S. Gething; Resident-Manager, Mr. Arthur Aldin.—Tilly Bébé and her lions give an attractive and daring example of animal training and control. Florrie Gallimore is getting a great reception here on her first visit since her Australian triumphs, and is fetching the audiences with her catchy songs, both new and old. The Jackson Family repeat their excellent musical turn, a first-rate contribution. Carl and Mary Ohm give an enjoyable circus act, with ponies, dogs, monkeys, and bears. Barney Vox is heartily received in his smart ventriloquial business. Loro Quartette contribute a smartly diversified musical turn. Geoffreys and Benson appear in an enjoyable sketch, Spoofed. Daisy Ray, a neat sand dancer; and Arthur Melrose, whistling comedian, complete an excellent programme.

Tivoli and Queen's, Limited.—General Manager, Mr. S. King Alexander; Acting Manager, Mr. T. J. Colquhoun.—A strong bill of fare is presented here this week. Tom Davies's Trio in their cycling performance exhibit great nerve and daring, and are much appreciated. Gladys Mavius, the Canadian Coon, sings in a refined and finished manner, and makes a decided hit. Ethel May, comedienne, makes a creditable appearance, and the Two Graces are charming comediennes. Amongst lightning painters Herry Thornbury holds a foremost place. The Australian comics, Doody and Wright, create the heartiest laughter in their farcical performance, and Tell and Tell, comedy acrobats, submit a capital entertainment. Tom Hall's Nippers are diverting, and Gravetta and Parr are interesting in their turn, giving several life-like impersonations. Will Candish, Charles Gardener, and Fred Collins are comedians of much ability; and Clown Ferron introduces his performing monkey and dog. Bendon's Bioscope is a special feature.

Palace. — Proprietors and Managers, Rich Waldon and Thomas Barrasford; Assistant-Manager, Mr. H. M'Kelvie.—The entertainment provided here this week is up to the usual high standard. Charles Morritt, magician, tops the bill. The wonderful Blind Man, in marvellous feats of memory and calculations; Andy Higginson, comedian; Marquis Iton, Japanese gymnast; J. P. Dane, comedian; Mdlle. Marvelle and highly-trained cockatoos; Larry Lewis, comedian; Henri Abdy's Canine Hippodrome; Reddick Anderson, character comedian; Iben Obed, Arabian equilibrist; and the Animatograph, with a series of up-to-date pictures, combine to make an excellent evening's entertainment.

Britannia.—Lessee, Mr. James Anderson; Manager, Mr. Harry Hemfrey.—Notable among the present week's engagements at the well-known resort in the Trongate are the Bros. Bothwell, whose "strong-men" feats, with heavy weights, are well known. Two local newsboys in solo and duet selections earn considerable applause, while the Britannia bioscope shows a number of entertaining pictures. Mr. Anderson is again to the fore with a flower-girl competition, and among the other artistes who merit the appreciation of large audiences nightly are Zanoni, a daring gymnast; Tit and Tat, comedians; the Five Devlins, whose clog dancing is a big attraction; T. A. Hennessy, patriotic vocalist; Carrie Bernhardt, serio and dancer; and the Cardona trio. The earlier evenings of the week were devoted to amateur wrestling, which is once more in great vogue in Glasgow. Mr. Harry Hemfrey, manager, had a benefit on Thursday evening, when many attractive extra items were given.

Harmonic Concerts. — Musical Secretary, Mr. Wm. Biggam.—The Hamonic have concluded their annual competition for vocalists, and have brought forward several clever amateurs who are certain to be heard of in the future. In addition, a varied programme was contributed to by Prince Fee Lung, the conjuror; Polly Heath, the versatile vocalist and dancer; W. E. Hilton, Scotland's own ventriloquist; Archie Jack and W. C. McPhie, vocalists; and Rae and Calden, in their amusing act entitled Peculiarities.

GLOUCESTER. — Theatre Royal. — Owners, Messrs. C. W. and J. R. Poole; Manager, Mr. W. H. Weller.—Mr. E. Hoggan-Armadale, supported by an excellent company, is this week paying a welcome return visit. The repertoire consists of The Bells, The Vicar of Wakefield, David Garrick, the Screen scene from The School for Scandal, and Trilby. On Monday The Bells was the attraction, and Mr. Hoggan-Armadale gave a powerful and scholarly rendering of Mathias. Miss Violet Wilson acts with grace and charm as Annette; and Madame Mathias is effectively presented by Miss Marie Florence; Mr. Fred Emery makes a soldierly Christion; Father Hermann and Fritz are capitally played by Mr. W. F. Clitherow and Mr. Henry Osman respectively; and Miss Kate Evelyn is good as Lucille.

GOOLE.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee, Mr. John E. Tomlinson.—Mr. F. S. Gilbert's Grand Opera Co. opened on Monday with The Bohemian Girl. Miss Faith Laborde's Arline was full of charm and ability; Mr. F. S. Gilbert merited the cordial recognition he received in the rôle of Thaddeus; Mr. F. Halpin was effective as Count Arnheim; Miss Grace Parish acted with spirit the part of the Gipsy Queen; and Mr. Fletcher Sansome was a capital exponent of Devilshoof. Miss Kate White was highly successful as Buda. The chorus and general musical forces were controlled by Mr. Charles Bye. "The Daughter of the Regiment," "Satanella," "Faust," and "Maritana," are also in the bill.

GRAVESEND.—New Public Hall and Theatre. —Secretary and Manager, Mr. R. Feaver Clarke.—The Lyric Amateur Dramatic Society gave a charity performance here on Wednesday evening of My Friend the Prince, for the benefit of the local hospital. The comedy was admirably staged and well presented. Of the cast the Mr. Tannaway of Mr. Frank Willoughby was a really polished enactment, and the part of his son was in the hands of Mr. Rodney Hill. The real Prince of Pannonia was cleverly represented by Mr. J. P. Fitzgerald, and Mr. Redman as the Prince's Chancellor did well. Mr. Cheek was irresistibly droll as Ambrose Pinning, and Mr. Manners as Godolphin, the other counterfeit Prince, was decidedly meritorious. The Princess Pannonia was artistically taken by Miss Hilda Treen, and Poppy and Pansy Jannaway were both capably sustained by Mrs. Holland and Miss E. L. Croombes respectively. The Gilberte Picarde of Miss Ashbee was an easy and natural performance; and as Shottery, Mr. Rawson, and as Bennett, Mrs. Cheek, both were good.

GREAT YARMOUTH.—Royal Aquarium.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. W. Nightingale.—Messrs. Fred Moule and Alfred Denville's company occupies the boards this week with the powerful play, Bigamy. Miss Grace Lester gives a fine rendering of the exacting rôle of Diana de Courcelle; Miss Elsie Capell is effective as Sylvia Dresden; Lilian Lambkiss is capitally played by Miss Lydia Mannington; Mr. Ernest J. Farr is successful as Lionel Craven; and Sir Charles Dresden is well represented by Mr. Colin Hazlewood.

GREENOCK. — Theatre Royal. — Managers, Messrs. H. B. Wright and J. J. Wright.—Mr. Charles Frohman's company is here this week with Sherlock Holmes. Mr. Kenneth Rivington makes a decided hit as the famous Detective; Mr. Fred Inwood distinguishes himself as Dr. Watson; Mr. Arthur B. Murray portrays the villainous Professor Moriarty with great success; Mr. F. Clive Ross ably fills the rôle of John Forman; and Mr. Howard E. Laing gives a careful embodiment of Sir Edward Leighton. The part of Count Stahlberg is excellently played by Mr. William Wilson, and Mr. Ernest Gray does well as James Larrabee. Mr. Harry Mann makes a first-lass Alfred Bassic, and the same may be said of Mr. Harry G. Wright as Sidney Prince. Miss Florence Radcliffe as Alice Faulkner acts admirably; Miss Ethel Gordon is a capable representative of Mrs. Faulkner; Madge Larrabee is in the able hands of Miss Carrie Lacey; Miss Marjorie Murray does good work as Therese; and Miss Hattie Newcombe does justice to the part of Mrs. Smeedley.

Empire Theatre of Varieties.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. H. S. Skivington.—The bill here is headed by Jean Seul, the Indian Mystery; Len Lever, the Coffee Coloured Coon, appears in the scena, Shall I stay or Go? and is heartily applauded; Weimars, Lord Roberts' trumpeter, does a good turn; Joe Mac, patter comedian, is particularly funny; Bonnetti and Corrie are clever jugglers; Mountford and Walsh, speciality artistes, are much appreciated; and new pictures are shown on the Cinematograph.

GRIMSBY.—Prince of Wales' Theatre.—Managing Director, Mr. J. H. Curry; Assistant Manager, Mr. S. Tolfree.—The second week of the run of Dottridge and Longden's pantomime, The Forty Thieves, has proved every bit as successful as the first. Several new features have been introduced. Fresh business was presented by the comedians, and there was a budget of new songs, for which Miss Lily Lonsdale, Miss Dolly Elsworthy, Miss Cissie Kingsley, Mr. Ernie Myers, Mr. James Danvers, and Mr. Cliff Dover were responsible.

New Palace Theatre.—Managing Director, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; General Manager, Mr. Steuart Cecil.—G. W. Hunter, the smart raconteur, has entertained the Palace audiences this week, and his amusing stories have been much appreciated. The quaint performance of Joe Almasio, described as a jumping juggler, was also popular. Vandinoff's lightning oil paintings have excited much interest, whilst the same may be said of the musical turn given by the Bandurias. Excellent songs were contributed by Lily Black and Baker Belphor, the latter possessing a pleasing baritone voice. Other turns were given by the Loma Trio, gymnasts; Cliff and Kean, comedy artists; and Tom Parker, comedian.

The Hippodrome.—Proprietor, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes.—The popular burlesque artiste, Marie Kendall, has paid her first visit to Grimsby this week, and has met with the complete approval of the Hippodrome patrons. The Zampahs, a couple of one-legged performers, have given a display of acrobatic work that was wonderful, considering the difficulties under which they labour. Others contributing to the programme were Lade Henderson, a talented vocalist; Walker and Lake, a couple of smart patter artists; Cavern and Cave, who appeared in an amusing comedietta; Steve McCarthy, comedian; and the Seebolds, instrumentalists, together with some excellent Bioscope pictures.

HALIFAX.—Grand Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr W. Robinson; General Manager, Mr Otto C. Culling.—The School Girl is having a remarkably successful week here. Mr Charles Macdona's company is thoroughly competent, and the combination of capable principals, a sound chorus, suitable setting, and tasteful dressing result in deserved success. Miss Nellie Hodson plays Lillian with discrimination, tact, and sound judgment; Miss Kate Forster does admirable work in a dual rôle, her singing being delightful; Miss Jenny Bonney is attractive as Cicely; Miss Bessie Maddox is thoroughly successful, and sings with point and effect; and Miss Madeline Maude is responsible for good work. Mr Alec Chantrens plays Verney with taste and sings his numbers admirably; Mr Chas. Adeson gives a delightful character study of General Marchmont; Mr Alfred Leslie is a very funny comedian; Mr Charles W. Anson does justice to his part; and Mr. Max Copland plays the absent-minded St. Leger very well. Mr Louis Laval has the orchestra and chorus well in hand.

Palace Theatre.—Lessee, Mr Frank Macnaghten. —The Halifax Amateur Opera Society are in possession here this week, and are giving a praiseworthy rendering of The Gondoliers.

HANLEY.—Royal, Limited.—Managing Director, Mr. Chas. Elphinstone.—The attraction this week is Mr. Louis N. Parker's beautiful play, The Cardinal. The piece is presented by Mrs. Russ Whytal and company, and the outcome is a really splendid performance. Mrs. Russ Whytal, in the part of Filiberta, gives an interpretation of the highest possible standing, which meets with all the desired appreciation; Mr Philip Cunningham, as Cardinal Giovanni di Medici, acts with much skill, and his portrayal is excellent; Miss Katherine Maude does well as Claricia de Medici; Mr. Gerald Kay-Souper, as the brother of the Cardinal, shows his usual exceptional ability; Mr. Harold Sims Standing, as Francesco, is well placed; Mr. W. A. Reed and Miss Kitty Wells are good as Pietro and Valentine; Mr. Oscar Adye gives a clever representation as Bartolommeo Chigi. All the other parts are admirably played, and the mounting is, as usual, all that could possibly be desired. Next week Sir Henry Irving is to appear for three nights and one matinée. Nearly all the seats are booked, and business is sure to be record.

Grand.—Managing-Director, Mr. Chas. Elphinstone; Manager, Mr. James Wynes.—The bill this week is headed by De Gracia's Baby Elephants, in a truly wonderful performance, which is much appreciated; Geo. Leyton returns, and, as usual, meets with great success, his scena, Britannia's Babes, being really excellent; Joe Boganny's "Lunatic Bakers" contribute a truly wonderful performance, their Risley business being particularly fine; Sydney James's strolling players are much appreciated, their versatility being marked, and the entertainment generally being of a capital order; Chas. Best, the indiarubber man, is excellent; Miss Tiny Arnold is a distinct success, her dancing being "non plus ultra"; Cyril Dare, the society entertainer, does well; The Redferns, as banjoists, are particularly good: Gallagher and Hild are dancers extraordinary. Business at this house continues excellent.

HARROGATE.—Grand Opera House.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Peacock; Acting-Manager, Mr. Cyril Fielding Smith.—Mr. Lilford Arthur's company, supporting Mr. Charles Collette in Glen Macdonough's farcical comedy, Jones' Jaunt, commenced a three-night's engagement here on Monday. Mr. Collette, as Stanley Jones, was responsible for roars of laughter. The other parts were very ably sustained by Miss Rosamund Bury, Miss Ruby Chester, Miss Irene Ross, Miss Mabel Luxmore, and Mr. E. Beresford, Mr. David Sellor, Mr. Aubrey Mallalieu, and Mr. E. Wintour. The comedy was preceded by a comedietta, The Lady Wrangler. The New Barmaid, under the direction of Mr. Alexander Loftus was billed for Thursday.

HARTLEPOOL.—Empress.—Proprietors, Messrs. Councillor Everton and J. W. Crag; Manager, Mr. Harry Burns.—Lilith, the Mysterions, at the head of the bill here, causes considerable sensation; Jack Pleasant, at all times welcome, is adding to his host of admirers; Lillian Warren's Pictures are pretty; and the Donatos are old favourites. Fred Harcourt is as smart as of old, and has some interesting and mystifying tricks; Edie Eudon gives an entertaining dance; Speeks and Thorne take well in their mace swinging and buck dancing; and Burns's Bioscope is an attraction.

HASTINGS.—Hippodrome.—General Manager, Mr. Harold Penny.—An excellent company of artistes is appearing here. Mr. Teddy Denham gives a good turn as a comedian and dancer; an attractive vocalist is found in Miss Blanche St. Marie; the Clarion Trio of comedians cause great fun; Miss Dollie Denton comedienne, receives great applause; a musical duologue, enacted by Mr. Fred Sinclair and Miss Gracie Whiteford, is highly amusing; Mons. Carl Hertz gives a remarkable series of illusions, which are quite sensational in their effects; Mr. Tom Dunmore keeps the audience in good humour; Mr. Frank Sylvo is very original and quaint with juggling; the new bioscope has some pleasing and effective pictures.

Hastings Pier Pavilion.—Pier-Master, Mr. R. Turner; Entertainment Manager, Mr. J. D. Hunter.—Mr. C. Watson Mill's large No. 1 company are occupying the boards here, in the sensational drama, entitled A Wrecker of Men. The play, which is intensely interesting, is rendered more so by the effective staging and mounting. As Jim Murley, the burglar, Mr. Watson Mill is excellent; Mr. J. W. Ryder, as Ezekial Isaacs, is a good representative of the Hebrew persuasion; in the character of Guise Strange a true piece of acting is given by Mr. Percy Horton; the unthankful part of Risca Mallison is splendidly shown by Miss Rosalind, who gives a charming rendering; Miss Victoria May successfully depicts the part of Doris Melville.

HEBBURN.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. W. A. Jackson; Acting Manager, Mr. Thos. Robson.—On Monday a farewell benefit was given to the lessee, on his leaving the district. Needless to say, the house was crowded. Mr. Jackson has done much for Hebburn, in other ways than the excellent management of the theatre, and will leave many friends behind. The popular artistes who gave their services were as follows:—Adam Tomlinson, the favourite comedian of this district; Rhoda Paul, the young impersonator of Miss Vesta Tilley; Messrs. James Foy and Bros. Roberts, the Hebburn Garrick Trio; Mr. F. Daniels and Co., in the dramatic sketch, A Father's Vengeance; Harry Sutton, comedian; J. McElvogue, Scotch comedian; Fred Cohen, card manipulator; Doyle and Gibson, eccentric comedians; Scatter and Son, comedians; Jos. Cumming and G. W. Scott, vocalists; John McCarthy, ventriloquist; Miss Jeffries, mandolinist; Fred Forde, comedian; Misses Findlay, vocalists; and Jas. Christie, light baritone. The theatre is now closed for an indefinite period.

HEREFORD.—Garrick Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Arthur Carlton; General-Manager, Mr. Louis Karpe; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank J. Pitt.—The musical comedy entitled The Girl From Bond Street is here this week. Mr. F. R. Heaton, as the Hon. Archie Green, is excellent, and the Earl of Seacombe has a good representative in Mr. Campbell Goldsmid, who possesses a good voice, his songs being well received. An attractive Lucy Harvey is found in Miss Marie Vere, who sings very sweetly; Miss Viola Keith appears as Lotty Harvey; and Mrs. Harvey is played in capital style by Miss Maude Beard.

HIGH WYCOMBE.—Town Hall.—On Saturday evening the Ben Greet Company (under the direction of Mr. J. Bannister-Howard) paid a visit here in La Poupée. The piece was well staged, and the acting throughout was up to the average of this well-known company. Mr. Edward Thirlby as Hilarius was excellent, and as Alesia Miss Cissie Wade was a great success. Mr. Algernon Lee and Mr. Joseph A. Brull were heard to advantage in the items attributed to Launcelot and Father Maxime respectively, and as Loremois and Baron Chanterelle Messrs. Harry Bishop and Stanley White depicted these aged gentlemen admirably. As Madame Hilarius Miss Alice McFarlane ably sustained her part; and Henri was well played by Miss Eva Ellis.

HULL.—Theatre Royal.—Sole Lessee, Mr. W. Morton; Resident Director, Mr. W. F. Morton.—Mr. Lawrence Brough's company in The Lady of Ostend is amusing the public here this week. Mr. Percy Marshall is capital as the father-in-law. In the title-rôle, Miss Buchanan is excellent; and the Fussy Frenchman is well represented by Mr. Lawrence Brough.

Grand Theatre and Opera House.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Hart; Local Manager, Mr. Wynn Miller.—George Dance's A Chinese Honeymoon company is being represented here this week. Mr. Phillip Haydon is an acceptable Emperor; Mr. Foster Courtenay is one of the best possible Pineapples; and Miss Vera Vere is a commendable Fi Fi. The piece's vitality, to all appearances, remains unimpaired.

Alexandra Theatre, Morton's, Limited.—Resident Manager, Mr. Geo. Morton.—Because I Love You is the attraction here. Mr. Horace Buckley fills the comic rôle ably; and Miss Nell Ingram as Cleopatra Cotton has a rôle in which she is seen to advantage.

Palace Theatre—Moss Empires, Limited.—A small dramatic sketch, V.C., from the pen of Mr. Sutton Vane, is catching on here this week. Smart and entertaining are Signor and Madame Borrelli in their burlesque operatic act; and the Japanese Guards, represented by a troupe of young ladies, go through some evolutions with skill.

The Empire.—Lessee, Mr. Jno. Sylvester Sage.—Lasmar and De Louie occupy the premier position here in a gymnastic act; the Evalos give an excellent juggling show; Benson's Royal Marionettes submit an interesting entertainment; "Mr. E." contributes some genuine fun; Florence Carlow is a comedienne of merit; the Empire sketch, £500 Reward, is amusing; and Fred Hudson and the Bioscope complete the programme.

The Circus.—Resident Manager, Mr. E. Emerson.—The Biograph Animated Photos, which entered upon a fortnight's stay here on Monday, received a very warm welcome. The Whirling of the World is very interesting. Miss Rachael Benham rendered two songs with admirable taste.

HUDDERSFIELD. — Theatre Royal. — Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Acting Manager, Mr. Percy G. Arthur.—The Carl Rosa Opera Company began its week's visit with many signs of welcome, on Monday. A full house came to hear such well-established favourites as Cavalleria Rusticana and I Pagliacci. The former work was notable for the dramatic fervour and brilliant singing of Madame Augusta Renard, in the part of Santuzza, the bright purity of tone displayed by Miss Ethel Pender-Cudlip, as Lola, and the clearness of method evidenced by Mr. Edward Davies as Turiddu, and Mr. Lewys James as Alfio. In the Leoncavallo work, Herr Julius Walther showed all his old-time fire as singer, and revealed a much-developed gift as an actor in the part of Canio. Herr Charles Victor is gifted with a baritone voice of pure quality and flexibility, which, with his natural and finely-pointed skill in declamation, was a great success in his work as Tonio. Miss Lizzie Burgess entered fully into the part of Nedda, with highly satisfactory result. Messrs. James and Davies completed a fine cast. Tuesday brought a production of the evergreen Faust, in which Madame Una Bruckshaw was the Marguerite. Singing with cultured method, she improved all through the work, and fairly took the house by storm with her intensely ardent rendering of the final act. Mr. Arthur Winckworth played Mephistopheles on accepted and appreciated lines. Mr. Lewys James sang well as Valentine. Miss Anna Hope made the most of her opportunities as Siebel; while Miss Douglas Wilson, as Martha, emphasised the humorous vagaries of the foolish old guardian. The chorus sings with smartness in attack, the soprano and contralto sections being particularly brilliant. Under the skilful guidance of Messrs. Eugene Goossens and Walter Van Noorden, the much-augmented orchestra was a noticeable help. The other works down for performance are Rigoletto, Lohengrin, Don Giovanni, Tannhäuser, and Maritana.

HYDE. — Theatre Royal, Limited. — General Manager, Mr. Joseph W. Maloney.—Excellent business is being done here this week by Messrs. Mathew H. Grenville and Fred Osmond's The Still Alarm company. The piece is admirably staged, the scenic effects in the third act especially being most realistic. Mr. Mathew H. Grenville submits a fine study of the hero, Jack Manley; Mr. Paul Lovett, as John Bird, cleverly depicts the villainous side of human nature; Mr. Tom Beasley makes a capital Willie Manley; Mr. Fred Osmond is funny as Doc Wilber; Mr. Lewis Gordon dignified as Franklyn Fordham; and Mr. Milton C. Curtis amusing as Joe Jones. A charming impersonator of Elinore Fordham is found in Miss Mary Lovett; Miss Mabel Veriton makes an excellent Mrs. Manley; and Miss Connie Meadows throws plenty of life into the part of Carrie Wilber.

ILKESTON.—Theatre Royal.—Managing-Director, Mr. L. F. A. Rogers.—Rogues of the Turf is being played here this week by Mr. John F. Preston's company, under the general management of Mr. F. B. Woulfe. The rôle of Arthur Somerton is ably filled by Mr. Ernest R. Allen, and that of Nellie Flaxman by Miss Hilda Shirley. Mr. Harry Benson and Miss M. F. Barlow, as Sam Flaxman and Phillis Worzell, evoke much hilarity. Mr. W. H. Barlow, as Joe Flaxman, plays admirably. Messrs. Walter Clifford and H. H. Rignold act well as the Rogues of the Turf, Captain Dudley Clifton and Moses Solomons. Miss Helen Stewart, as Marion Lady Heathcote, is an acquisition to the piece.

IPSWICH.—Lyceum Theatre.—Manager, Mr. W. G. Fisk.—Mr. Arthur Hart's My Lady Molly company has paid a return visit to Ipswich this week. The title-rôle is charmingly sustained by Miss Agnes Tandy, whose acting and singing are much applauded. Mr. Arthur Powell as Mickey presents a most humorous impersonation, and Mr. Edmund Sherras displays fine vocal abilities in the part of Captain Romney. Mr. Fred. Hobbs, as Sir Miles, Mr. Stuart Alexander, as Lionel Bland, render able assistance to the cast; and other parts receive full justice from Miss Maude Thorne, Miss Florence Wakeman, Miss Sophy Grundy, and Messrs. Thomas R. Norbury, Alfred Grant, and Daniel Logum.

Hippodrome.—Manager, Mr. Fred. Barrett.—The new turns at the Woodbridge-road place of entertainment this week include the clever comedian, Cliff Ryland; the Rosaire Boleros Troupe of acrobats; Mr. Hayward's vocalists and dancers; Puto, boy juggler; Harry Nation, character comedian; Kate Holloway, comedienne; Nellie and Nora, instrumentalists; and the Sisters Charnley, duettists.

JARROW.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Hugh Robertson.—Mr. Bert Cootes Co. is paying a welcome visit with The Fatal Wedding. Mr. Herbert Humber gives an excellent rendering of Howard Wilson; Mr. Oliver Rogers plays forcibly as Robert Curtis; Mr. Tom Macfarlane is quite at home in the part of Toto; Mr. Charles Kenney is well-placed as Peter Schwartz; and Mr. Jack Waring gives a good embodiment of O'Reilly. Miss Nona Hoffe gives a charming rendering of Mabel Wilson; Miss Gertrude Harrison plays Cora Williams, the adventuress, to perfection; Miss Harriet Clifton is a humorous Bridget; and Miss Marjorie Lawrence proves herself a first-class juvenile actress, as Jessie, the little mother.

JERSEY.—Opera House.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. C. Robert Perkins.—Mr. Frank Fenton and Company is appearing here in Justin H. McCarthy's play, If I were King. Mr. Frank Fenton undertakes the rôle of François Villon, a part which he successfully filled here some six months ago. Mr. E. Bellenden Clarke plays Louis XI.; and the character of Huguette du Hennel is acted by Miss Louise Vansittart. Miss Elsie Roberts appears as Katherine de Vaucelles, and the numerous remaining characters are well represented.

KEIGHLEY. — Queen's Theatre and Opera House.—Proprietors, Messrs Carson and Granville: Acting-Manager, Mr Frank Barnes.—The third pantomime company of the season, Mr James Kiddie's Little Aladdin, holds the boards here this week. The performance goes with a swing from start to finish. Aladdin is impersonated by Miss Marie Beresford, who looks and acts the part most pleasingly. Her performance is refined, and her song, "Little Yo San," is highly appreciated. Wittie Wattie Walton's Widow Twankey is a capital piece of work, deserving all the applause it gets. While Mr Arthur Aiston is on the stage there is always plenty of laughter, and his Abanazar is one of the hits of the pantomime. Miss Emmie Milstead, a clever artiste, impersonates Sancoe, her song, "Navahoe," and sand dance creating a furore. An old Keighley favourite, Mr Fred Buxton, as the Emperor, and Miss Mabel Roberts, as Radia, receive quite an ovation for their rendering of "Alice, Where art Thou?", sung as a duet. The Princess is played with much ease and grace by Miss Nellie Royd. Prince Pekoe is artistically interpreted by Miss Mina Marie. Bossi and Wrong 'Un are very amusingly represented by The Two Kelsos, two very good knockabout performers, who introduce several novel items. Mr Walter Aubrey is a creditable Wun Lung, and Mr Ralph Roberts a successful Wishee Washee. Mr Henry May, Miss Minnie Groves, Miss Ruby Danzell, and Miss Margery Seymour ably assist. The scenery is extremely good, and the mounting of the production deserves high praise.

KILMARNOCK.—King's Theatre.—Managing Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Acting Manager, Mr. A. Hales.—On Monday, Messrs. Little and Darcy's pantomime, The Forty Thieves, opened here. As Cogia Baba, Mr. Jas. Ferguson could not be improved upon; Mr. Geo. Beverley, as Ali Baba, is also very good; great praise is due to the Misses Silcott for the pleasing rendering of the parts of Abdullah, Ganem, and Morgiana. The Three Woodbee Wonders create great amusement in their acrobatic act, and the five members of the Daunton Shaw troupe of trick cyclists are a great success.

KING'S LYNN.—New Royal Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. J. Bannister Howard; Business Manager, Mr. H. Leonard.—Miss Emma Hutchison is presenting the popular comedy, Cousin Kate, this week, under the direction of Mr. Percy Hutchison. Miss Edith Walker is a delightful and attractive Cousin Kate; Mr. Walter Ringham as the easy-going laughter. Mr. Fred Rolph, as the hall porter, Joseph, is a great success; and Mr. Leslie Roy Cathie is in every way excellent as the Hon. Percy Fitzthistle. Mr. Garnet Wilson is capital as Harry Gordon. Both Mr. Samuel Lyons as Theodore Quench and Mr. Cameron Carr as Mr. Chalmers are good. Miss Nancy Hervyn plays throughout with a vivacity and charm as Winnie Harborough that win for her much applause. Miss Rita Leonhardt scores as Norah Chalmers; and as the maid Ellen Miss Mabel Thornton is also to be complimented. The attractive and pretty chorus and augmented orchestra, under the direction of Mr. Victor Champion, are features that call for special praise.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Lieut.-Col. J. A. Winstanley; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. C. Candler.—The boards are held here this week by Mr. Gus C. Livesey's company, who presented before a good house on Monday the new drama The Crimson Club. Mr. Gus C. Livesey, as the hero Richard Fenton, and Miss May Wyniard as the heroine, Muriel Lockwood, are seen to considerable advantage. Miss Frances Waring does well in the rôle of Julia Marsden, and Mr. Lionel Thompson is clever as Sir Philip Garside. Mr. Reginald Shaw is the cause of much hearty laughter as Reginald Adolphus Garside. On Friday evening A Trip to Belle Vue and The Dumb Man of Manchester were underlined for presentation.

PALACE THEATRE, LIMITED. — Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; District Manager, Mr. Hatton Wharton; Acting-Manager, Mr. Leonard Vidal.—The premier position on this week's first-class and diversified programme is held by the one and only G. H. Chirgwin, who secures a cordial reception on making his appearance. Chirgwin has always something fresh, and his allusions to various events are smart, and are heartily applauded. The Brothers Wille are unquestionably the finest head-balancers that have visited Leicester, their turn, which is both remarkable and daring, winning the admiration and applause of all parts of the house. Duncan's highly-trained dogs display a sagacity and cleverness that speak volumes for the manner in which they have been trained. Newhouse and Ward, one a very clever cyclist and the other a tramp comedian, give a popular show. Toile D'Araignée, the human spiders, present an electrical gymnastic novelty with great success. Miss Lily Lena, a most attractive comedienne, receives her usual warm welcome. La Belle Creole Morcaschani, the eccentric baritone chanteuse, is scoring a big success. The M'Gregors are seen and heard to advantage in their musical speciality. Maud Ross, comedienne and expert dancer, and Will Mitcham, vocal and musical comedy artist, also give entertaining turns.

PAVILION THEATRE.—Proprietor and Director-General, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Acting-Manager, Mr. Walter Lapworth.—Martin Henderson, the blind musician, gives a pleasing and clever turn here, which proves very popular. The Sisters Desmond, character duettists, are again scoring their usual success. Walter H. Pallister's Bioscope, showing some entirely new films, is always a welcome addition to the programme here. Hyam Long, musical comedian, gives a good show. Professor Hulbert is an entertaining ventriloquist. Clara Victor is a capital descriptive vocalist. Mons. De Lil pleases with his illusions and card manipulations. The Sisters Grover, duettists and dancers, also entertain.

LEIGH.—THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. J. Dewhurst; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Dewhurst.—Mr. Fred J. Little's and Mr. Fred Darcy's company is this week occupying the boards here with Sindbad the Sailor. Miss Lily Beverley plays charmingly in the title rôle; Miss Kittie Brewster is well placed as Zorilda; Miss Cissie Conyers sings creditably as the Good Fairy; Capt. Cook has a humorous representative in Mr. Happy Attwood; Mr. A. G. Hart is an amusing Timbad; and Mr. Willie Black excellent as Mrs. Sindbad; Mr. Fred Dobito sings well as the Emperor; the Warlocks contribute plenty of amusement; the Brewsters sword experts and dancers, and the Walleys, jugglers, are great favourites.

LIVERPOOL.—PRINCE OF WALES'S THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. J. H. French; Acting-Manager, Mr. Sidney Beltram. — The children's pantomime of Little Red Riding Hood concludes to-night.

ROTUNDA THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. M. Montgomery; Acting-Manager, Mr. M. Montgomery, jun.—Good business has, during the week, been done at the popular north-end house with the production of The Sign of the Cross, played by Mr. William Greet's No. 1 company. The presentation was certainly a good one, some sixty persons being concerned, while the scenery was appropriate. As Marcus Superbus, Mr. F. B. Woulfe was excellent; the Mercia of Miss Evelyn D'Alroy won the sympathy of the audience; Mr. A. Bernhardt Turner proved an effective Nero; and Mr. Charles Aldred was a good all-round Tigellinus. Other artistes who acquitted themselves with credit were Miss Ivy Millais as Stephanus, Mr. J. Wetherall as Lucinius, and Mr. Robert Hare as Flavius. Miss Jessica Ford rendered songs, and Miss Violet Holland was a graceful dancer.

LYRIC THEATRE OF VARIETIES. — Lessee and Manager, Mr. Henry C. Arnold; Directors of Entertainments, Messrs. T. Barrasford and F. Willmot; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Coles.—The Babes in the Wood, presented by the Six Brothers Luck, still continues to draw excellent business, its mirth-provoking propensities being brought well to the front by Messrs. Fred and Ernest; Miss Mabel Thorne makes an admirable Robin Hood. Other artistes billed include Peggy Pryde, comedienne; Imro Fox, an exceedingly amusing comic conjurer; the Brothers Huxter, acrobats; and Lily Turner, vocalist.

STAR THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. H. Fineberg; Acting-Manager, Mr. M. Simmons.—After a successful tour through the country, The Voice of the People, which was initially produced at this theatre in May last, has paid a visit this week. The principal members of the cast are almost the same as those who first played the work, Mr. John F. Preston, the author, enacting with all his former ability the part of Barry Phelps, the unfortunate sandwich-man and distressed actor. Mr. A. D. Adams proved a capital parson and social reformer; Mr. Clifford Marle presented with dramatic power the character of the sweater; Mr. Weldon Atherstone, as the scoundrel's son, played with effect; Mr. W. Howard Barlow submitted a well-acted Jem Butterworth, Morris's Jackall; and Miss Gertrude Godart portrayed a sympathetic Liz. There were a number of local scenes shown, the play dealing with life in Liverpool, and some astonishment was expressed when, in front of a grand view of St. George's Hall, was seen the original Punch and Judy show, surrounded by children, just as may be witnessed every day in Lime-street. Then, again, the smashing by the infuriated mob of the public-house windows proved a very effective episode.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Carson and Granville; Manager, Mr. Fred Granville; Business-Manager, Mr. F. L. Arthur.—A capital rendering of the old-time popular play, The Wearin' o' the Green, has been given here this week. The company responsible for the production is controlled by Mr. Charles Mackey, and is in every way admirable. The costumes were picturesque, and the scenery satisfactory; while the orchestral work added greatly to the completeness of the work. Mr. Charles Horner was the Shamus McDermott, a capital rôle, and, possessed of a good voice, rendered several popular Irish songs, which were loudly applauded. The Irish comedian of undoubted ability, Mr. Chalmers Mackey, was the great strength of the drama as Barney O'Hea, and he kept his audience in roars of laughter with his love-making scenes. Miss Lalla Stanhope was a dainty Biddy McGinn; to Mr. H. Sainsbury credit is due for his Sir George Courtney; Mr. John S. Chamberlain was a powerful Michael Kenny; and Mrs. Chalmers Mackey afforded much satisfaction as Norah McGrath.

EMPIRE, LIMITED. — District Manager, Mr. T. A. Cook; Acting-Manager, Mr. George Stratton.—At the head of the bill here this week are the Agoust Family, with their sketch, Juggling in a Café, which is exceedingly funny and clever; the Trapnell Family of graceful and talented acrobats provide a good turn; the Caledonian Boys' orchestral and concert combination are cordially received for their good work; a smart juggler is Prince Kokin; the old favourites, the Three Sisters Jonghmanns, with their singing, are warmly greeted; Rose Archer proves herself an accomplished mimic; and others in the programme are Mueller and Coyne, novelty variety entertainers; the Five Olracs, comedy artistes; the Two Butterflies, juvenile gymnasts; the Korries, American entertainers; Charles Adams, comedian; and Edie Veno, comedy artiste.

ROYAL HIPPODROME. — Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford.—Foremost in the bill here this week is Colonel G. Bordeverry, who gives an astonishing exhibition of rifle and pistol shooting. The Bounding Pattersons are watched with keen interest in their flying bar act; Brinn displays enormous strength and marvellous balancing powers with heavy shells and guns; Alexander provides an original act in cycle riding on a table; Mdlle. Haydee is highly entertaining with her eccentric manikin theatre; La Belle Wilma produces with much skill and rapidity pictures in sand and smoke; and the remainder of the bill is occupied by Alice Ormonde, comedienne; The Forrests, musical eccentrics; Fred Earle, comedian; and Bob Hamilton, comedian and instrumentalist.

ROYAL PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Manager, Mr. M. Montgomery; Acting-Manager, Mr. F. O'Toole.—A big attraction here this week has been Will Hebden's musical comedy in eight scenes, entitled A Day in Paddy's Market, the name applied to a quarter in Liverpool where secondhand clothing is sold. The work is full of uproarious fun, and Mr. Will Hebden, a comedian of ability, undertakes four characters, each of which is a source of much laughter. The company supporting him is a large one, and there is much scenery used.

NEW PARTHENON. — Proprietor, Mr. Edwin W Smith.—Among the principal attractions here this week are Messrs. Ray and Calden, a couple of versatile comedy artistes, who provide an amusing act, entitled Peculiarities; Vance Brothers submit a smart trifle, Sharp and Flat, into which they introduce some clever work on musical instruments; George Bernard is a pleasing actor-vocalist, and among his contributions is an effective rendering of "The Charge of the Light Brigade;" Mdlle. Henriette gives a refined musical turn; Mozzetto for a boy, is a capable juggler; and Harry Graham is a comedian and dancer of ability.

PADDINGTON PALACE, LIMITED.—General Manager, Mr. J. Kiernan.—Jack and Evelyn are paying a return visit here this week, with their laughable sketch, Come into the Office; Professor Ted Heaton, assisted by Sacha, gives his well-known tank act; the Barger Trio provide a diverting sketch, entitled Quits; or, Easily Deceived; Wallace Whitney is a comedian with many funniosities; Beatie Foster shows herself to be a finished serio and descriptive vocalist; and Rose and Rose are a couple of able vocalists and dancers.

WESTMINSTER.—Proprietor, Mr. M. Montgomery.—A big attraction has been here during the week, in the form of a juvenile military spectacle, entitled The Russo-Japan War, in which some sixty boys and girls are engaged. The sketch has been arranged and produced by Mr. J. Clarke and contains several novel features. Large audiences have testified their appreciation. Another capital turn is that of Fred Lloyd and Co., with the laughable sketch, The Blind Spinster; the Brothers Allison are warmly applauded for their amusing singing and dancing; Miss Florence Deighton is the possessor of a good soprano voice; and others in the programme are J. J. Plant, comedian; the Sisters Selwyn, vocalists and dancers.

PARK PALACE.—Director, Mr. James Kiernan.—Mr. Percy Boucher and his company are at the ton of the bill here this week, with their sketch, When Rogues Fall Out, which, possessing some considerable merit, has been well received. A good turn is provided by Harry Tresham, actor-vocalist; Jack Stewart is a comedian of ability; the neat singing of Florrie Hall gained for her some recognition; Dalton J. Bosher showed himself to be a capable character comedian; and others in the bill are Edith Elliott, burlesque actress; and Rosa Lenmann, vocalist.

HAYMARKET. — Lessee and Manager, Mr. Fred Willmot.—At the top of the bill here this week is Lady Mansel, with her juveniles, who give a neat concert rehearsal; the Esdale Brothers are refined comedians; the song illustrating of Lovell and Hart proves interesting; and others who appear are the Three Sisters Ernest, vocalists; Young Igo, clog-dancer; Herbert Maden, comedian; and H. O. Bone, tricky golfer.

LONDONDERRY.—OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. W. Payne Seddon.—Mr. Charles H. Phelps is here this week playing One Woman's Wickedness. As Jem Craggs, Mr. C. H. Phelps is very good, and Mr. Lawrence Brien makes a clever Philip Beaufort. As Lord Fitznoodle, Mr. George Byrne is capital. Miss Amy Dalby plays Lillian Craggs very well; and as Janet Raymond, Miss Florence Lloyd is good.

LONG EATON.—LYCEUM THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Thomas Meakin.—This week, Mr. Henry L. Osmond's company is appearing in The God of Night. The piece is well staged, the fire scene being of a thrilling nature. Mr. Osmond figures as the Detective in many guises, and he is ably assisted by Miss Winifred Chalmers as Mona Brayton. Little Mabel Hall is Gervaise, her acting and singing being applauded. Mr. Herbert Woodin and Miss Madge Palmer keep the fun going. Mr. A. P. Harold sings well, and his whistling solo is a feature. Miss Maud Yorke is vigorous as Natalie.

LONGTON.—QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. H. S. Howard.—Mr. Peter Thompson's company, with Babes in the Wood, is here. The Sisters Grahame, as the Babes, are great favourites. Miss Maude Beaumont gives a dashing impersonation of Robin Hood; Miss Mollie Hackett is a winsome Maid Marion; the Good Fairy is successfully presented by Miss Katie Lever; and boisterous fun is created by the Danbys. Messrs. W. Barratt and F. Paget, as the Baron's Page and Friar Tuck, successfully assisting. Mr. J. T. Ellis is good as the Wicked Uncle, and Mr. Fred Danvers does well as the Nurse. Specialities are presented by Herman Urquhart, a clever equilibrist; The Yankee Quartet of dancers, Little Renee, an entertaining impersonator; Miss Fanny Humber in a musical act, and Miss Rosa Walmsley, a graceful and expert dancer.

LOUGHBOROUGH.—NEW THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. Payne Seddon and George Robertson; Business-Manager, Mr. George Robertson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Louis Beaufort.—Mr. Horace Stanley's company in the 10.30 Down Express, is appearing here this week. Mr. Scott Leighton plays James Inderwick effectively; and Mr. Horace Stanley (Sammy); Mr. Harry T. Wood (Jack O'Mallery); and Mr. A. E. Francis (Blotherby Baggs), are all good. Miss Evelyn M. Walton as Letitia Leigh is admirable, whilst Miss Effie Bartlett (Bessie Leigh) and Miss Kate Kilpack (Peggy Potts) render valuable assistance.

LOWESTOFT.—MARINA.—Proprietor and Manager. Mr. E. A. Smith.—This week we have the second pantomime of the season in Dick Whittington, ably presented by Messrs. Marris and Kirby's company. The scenery and dresses are particularly bright. Mr. W. H. Kirby is seen to advantage as Idle Jack, and others worthy of note include the Misses Winifred Preece (principal boy), Mamie Iris (principal girl), Cordelia Knight (the good fairy), Josephine Preece, Vera O'Connell, and Messrs. Dickie Clare, H. A. Griffiths, Walter Nugent, J. R. Tyrrell, Geo. Harris, and Ryde and Beeman.

MACCLESFIELD. — ROYAL. — Proprietor and Manager, Mr. W. K. Gatley.—Pantomime again occupies the boards here this week, Mr. Gus Levaine's company presenting Babes in the Wood. Mr. Harry Levaine is very funny as Dame Burden. Miss Beatrice Wilson is good as Maid Marion, her interpretation of the part meeting with general approval. Miss Lily Ennis, as Robin Hood, is quickly a favourite with the audience. The speciality acts introduced are very attractive.

HIPPODROME.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. A. Bendon.—An attractive programme. The Three Royal Temples, glee singers, are making a hit here this week. The Three Pirmans, in a novelty pantomime act, are pleasing. Les Bantiste, jugglers, &c., have some novel tricks. Tom Johnstone, vocalist and mimic, is again here. George Rapier, comic vocalist, is a good turn; Iris May, charming vocalist, is well received; Chris Baker, eccentric comedian, is a funny turn; and Droll and Dryan, patter comedians, evoke laughter.

MAIDENHEAD. — GRAND THEATRE. — Lessees, Messrs. Edgar Dereve and F. L. Schmitz.—Miss Scott-Watson pays us a welcome return visit with The Scarlet Woman, Trilby, and East Lynne. The former powerful drama was originally produced at this theatre nearly two years ago, and the fact that it has till now had an uninterrupted and successful tour justifies our opinion as to its worth. The central figure (Marie Brandon), a character specially written for Miss Rosalind Scott-Watson, is particularly exacting, but the actress enters thoroughly into its spirit, and presents a conception which is at once repellent and weirdly fascinating. The deserted husband is forcibly played by Mr. Reginald Fox; Miss Gracie is natural and pathetic as the lost Jeanne; Miss Muriel Allyne plays well as Margery Honor; and Mrs. Scott-Watson is satisfactory in the small but important part of Mrs. Desmond. Mr. David Vane makes a good villain; Mr. F. Lawrence is quiet but convincing as Philip Gordon; and an amount of fun is provided by the two ruffians, Joe and Jack Cartwright, played energetically by Messrs. J. E. Cowell and Tom Wheeler. Comic relief is capitally provided by Mr. Tot Squires (Samuel Hopkins), Miss Ruby Hamilton-Belasco (Charlotte) and Miss Lorenzo (Fauchette), the fight between the latter two being very laughable.

MANCHESTER.—ROYAL OSBORNE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. W. H. Broadhead; Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead.—Mr. Fred. J. Little and Mr. Fred. Darcy's pantomime, Robinson Crusoe, was staged here on Monday, and attracted a large audience. The show is very bright and amusing, adhering throughout to traditional lines, and employing a large number of capable artistes. Miss Vera Mayne figures as Robinson Crusoe, and uses a fine voice to advantage; while Miss Nellie Moore gives an agreeable rendering of Polly Hopkins. Much good comedy is supplied by Mr. Will Freedo as Mrs. Crusoe; and Messrs. Bass and Guinness as Billy and Tommy Crusoe. The best performance is, however, that of Mr. Will Crowson as Friday, into which he infuses considerable and varied talent. Others who shine in the cast are Misses Daisy and Rosie Volbecque, Mr. Geo. Rapley, Miss Bertha St. Ruth (a capital singer), Mr. G. Snow, Mr. A. Irons, and Mr. Fron. A strong element of speciality business adds to the enjoyment. Foremost are the French Brothers, exceedingly clever acrobatic uni-cyclists. Besides these are the Alhambra Quartette of accomplished acrobatic dancers; and a smart exhibition by Mr.T.W. Johnson, buck and sand dancer. The dresses and scenery are elaborate and pleasing.

METROPOLE THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead.—No less a star than Charles Coborn, the well-known London comedian, tops the bill here this week, and is accorded a hearty reception. Excellent turns also are Stidder, musical eccentric; H. O. Wills, the comedian with the "peculiar" voice; and Ernesto, a smart juggler and equilibrist. Good business is added by Deakin and Rankin, comedians; Sterling and Cashen, American speciality artistes; the Gregson Comedy Trio, in a novel sketch; the Lavers and Lake Comedy Co., sketch artistes; Chas. Summers, eccentric comedian; and Chris. Masters, comedian.

GRAND JUNCTION THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead.—Mr. Walter Melville's drama, The Girl Who Lost Her Character, is the attraction here, after a week at the Royal Osborne Theatre.

ST. JAMES'S THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. R. Flanagan; Acting-Manager, Mr. M. Potasch.—Mr. J. F. Elliston's company gave a capital performance of In Old Kentucky here, on Monday night. The piece is of course well-known to local playgoers; but its attractions are so many and varied that it is always sure of a large share of patronage. The heroic interest is well brought out by Mr. Geo. Steel and Miss Amy F. Hermann, the sinister element receiving adequate interpretation at the hands of Mr. Eric Hudson and Miss Beatrice Shirley. Comedy is much to the fore, Mr. Harry Leander, Mr. Willie Large, and Master P. Francis doing well in this direction; while telling specialities are introduced by Mr. Jimmy James, banjoist and bone-player; Mr. Will Whittaker, bird imitator, &c.; and Messrs. Gibbs and Perkins, Dahomey eccentrics. A stud of thoroughbred horses appear in the third act, adding considerably to the interest and realism of the staging.

GAIETY THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Oscar Barrett; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. M. Thorburn.—This week sees the installation of pantomime here for a period of a month. It is Mr. T. F. Doyle's version of The Sleeping Beauty, produced recently at Dublin by Mr. Geo. M. Slater, under the supervision of Mr. John Hart. This is equivalent to saying that it is pantomime on a large scale, and that it is successfully presented needs hardly to be said. Well-known artistes figure in the principal rôles, all of whom work well up to their reputations. Miss Dorothy L. Clarke does exceedingly well as Bellamour, the principal boy; her singing is remarkably good, and she scores in all her songs, especially "I'm Coming Home to You," and "Good-bye, Little Girl, Good-bye." Miss Lucie Caine is well placed as Beauty, being a very charming actress, and also a neat dancer; while the singing of Miss Louie Collier, as the Good Fairy, is, in itself, a treat. Miss Adeline Yohle does well in the part of Bonne Bouche, the King's page. Of the comedians, Mr. Harry Maxam has a strong and amusing part as Tom Noddy; Mr. Horace Wheatley is prominent as Lord High Everything; Mr. Arthur Rigby makes a hit as the nurse; Mr. Fred. Russell (the well-known ventriloquist) does very well as Queen Elfrida Ann; and Mr. Pixton Roxborough figures satisfactorily as the King; while the Anartos, as a pair of woodcutters, deserve special mention for their excellent comic business, and a clever musical act. The pantomime is enlivened throughout by graceful dances, tuneful songs, pretty dresses, and effective scenery; the Koh-i-noor troupe contributing notably to the dancing; and there can be no doubt that for the next few weeks The Sleeping Beauty will attract full houses.

HIPPODROME (Hulme).—Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead.—Fanny Ribina heads an excellent programme here this week, rendering her songs in good style, to the great satisfaction of the audience. The Ross Clyde Combination cause much merriment in their capital sketch, I Must Have It; and very daring and clever feats, in mid-air, are performed by the Flying Zedoras on the trapeze. Florrie Cooper, a pleasing comedienne, scores with several good songs; the Brothers Hampton patter amusingly and dance smartly; Grey and Welford raise much laughter with their boxing act; Swan and Stanley are seen to advantage in their hat manipulation speciality; Rem Lang amuses with some burlesque conjuring tricks; and Johnson and Pelham are entertaining American artistes. Other enjoyable items are E. Haveley, baritone vocalist, who sings to illustrated songs; Billy Bint, comedian; and a series of animated pictures.

QUEEN'S PARK HIPPODROME.—Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead.—An excellent entertainment is offered here this week. Ben Hur, the sack-lifting athlete, heads the bill, and gives a highly satisfactory turn; Harry Pleon has some amusing patter; the Sisters Russell make a big hit with their humorous duets; and the refined and finished singing of Mabel La Blanche meets with much applause. The Three Juggling Geraldos introduce a good club swinging act; Fred and Maude Vyponds present a pretty sketch, entitled, The Honeymoon; and Mdlle. Yetta goes through a clever and graceful performance on the wire. The Three Dorians are smart gynasts; the trick skating of H. E. High causes considerable merriment; Ralston and Francis deserve mention for a nautical musical scena; and the animated pictures are up to the usual standard.

TIVOLI.—Managing-Director, Mr. Charles A. Wilkes; Manager, Mr. Arthur B. Wilkes.—Maggie Duggan, the well-known burlesque artiste, is the top star here this week, and meets with a flattering reception. Another well-received turn is that of Hal Forde, a capital comedian, whose patriotic songs are much appreciated. Lottie Siegenberg scores a distinct success in her quick-change vocal sketch, The Lazy Slavey; Frank Coyle, with humorous songs and funny stories, causes much amusement, and the Japanese Princesses are clever hand-balancers; Massona gives a juggling performance of much merit; Renson and Waite are capital smile-raisers; and Blanche Haddon, soprano, has a good voice. Harry Luck, eccentric character comedian; and the Dagmar Wonders, acrobats, also contribute enjoyable turns.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. Will Collins. — The programme here is full of good things. Dida? a remarkable illusion, creates considerable surprise. An empty tank is filled with water in view of the audience, a few seconds elapse, and a temporary covering being whipped off, a lady appears therein. From the tank she descends sopping wet, to be joined in a few minutes by another lady, produced in the same wonderful manner! Burke, Moller, and Teller are dancers of exceptional ability, and their turn is deservedly met with rounds of applause. Another well-received turn is the Szarvasi-Ferencz troupe of Hungarian singers, dancers, and acrobats, who do some astounding tricks. Clown Ferroros contributes a novel musical item, and introduces a cleverly-taught poodle; the Picquays are highly-finished acrobatic balancers, one of whom concludes with a novelty in the shape of a hand sand dance. A delightful turn is the musical act of the three charming Sisters Ronay, and their efforts are warmly received. Howard and Collinson are well-known in Manchester, and their item, The Porter and the Parcel, is as successful as ever. The Troubles of a Tourist, a sketch presented by John Alexander and Company causes some laughter; and the Alaskas score hugely in a juggling and comic tumbling act. A local attraction is shown by the Bioscope — Manchester City v. Lincoln City; and absolute screams of laughter follow the development of the film, A Lost Child.

GRAND.—Lessees, Messrs. Thomas Barrasford and Will Sley; Manager, Mr. H. C. Arnold, jun.—Dr. Walford Bodie, the renowned mesmerist and worker of modern miracles, is the attraction here this week. On Monday night, at the first house, a remarkable change was wrought in a girl of twelve, who had been paralysed in the wrist and foot for over ten years. Subsequently a number of young men, under the hypnotic influence of the Dr. Bodie, caused roars of laughter by their antics. Norman Mills, "the real John Bull," scores with his song "One of the Light Brigade"; Helen Henri is a refined operatic vocalist; the Garden Troupe sing and dance well; Les Fontaines present an amusing marionette show; whilst other enjoyable items are those of the Sisters Lyle, duettists and dancers; La Petite Bella, comedienne; and the animated pictures. Little Dollie Robson, the Coatbridge Wonder, and Tim Duriah, comedian, did not appear on the occasion of our visit.

PALACE.—Manager and Secretary, Mr. P. Watson; Assistant-Manager, Mr. J. H. Stringer. — Yukio Tani the famous Japanese exponent of Ju-Jitsu; and the renowned Boissets in their amusing pantomimic sketch, The Evening Party, are the chief attractions this week. On Monday night Yukio Tani met a local wrestler, named Porter, who was disposed of in 3min. 15sec. and also Acton, of Wigan, who was beaten after a stiff bout in 9min. 2sec. Maggie Rimmer is a charming comedienne who sings nicely and dances gracefully; George Turner is an amusing comedian; George Newburn, one of the best mimics before the public as usual came in for a hearty reception; and the Black and White Zouaves gave an effective exhibition of drill and wall scaling. Others who contribute to the programme are the Wyffs, in a funny sketch, A Parson's Mishaps; Ronald Bagnall, society entertainer; George Neno, comedian; and Charles Craston, comedian. A capital selection, and interesting pictures complete the programme.

MANCHESTER HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. E. P. Morgan. —Tina Clementa tops the bill this week, with her dogs that loop the loop, and her highly-trained horse. Another well-received turn is Clown Caban and his sixteen cleverly trained ponies. Mdlle. Florizell is a gymnastic contortionist, with a remarkably flexible body; the Teims Troupe go through a neat, graceful, and dexterous acrobatic performance; the Hoopers are clever hoop manipulators and jugglers, with some very laughable eccentric business; Burke, Andrus, and Frisco, in their scena, An Echo of a Covent Garden Ball, create much amusement; and Gerald Mount is entertaining at the piano. William Holles and company, including Nannie Goldman, are responsible for a capital musical comedy mélangé; and the Choristers render "Eileen Alannah" (illustrated song), with success. The grand naval spectacle, Bombardment of Port Arthur, remains in the bill, and is a decided attraction.

MARGATE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr. E. MacKnight; Business-Manager, Mr. Charles E. Hardy.—The military drama, On Circumstantial Evidence, presented by Mr. and Mrs. Charles Clifford's company, has been having a successful run here this week. Mr. Charles Clifford, the author-manager, gives an excellent interpretation of the character of Capt. Hamilton. Mr. A. M. James is especially good as Sir Lawrence Kinloch, whilst Mr. Leonard Williams does well as Jack Ogilvy. Mr. J. Sturton is effective as General Garibaldi; and Mr. J. Holt plays Sergeant Cavour capitally. Mr. Harry Cooke is particularly amusing as Jeremiah Tobin; and the remaining male characters are all in safe hands. Miss Gladys Clifford is a pathetic and clever Tim, the homeless waif; Miss M. Tremeor is a pleasing Polly Smithers; and Miss Maud Camfield a charming and sympathetic Violet Ogilvy; Miss T. French does remarkably well as the twin sisters, Olga and Mary Brandoni.

MERTHYR TYDFIL.—THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole proprietor and Manager, Mr. Will Smithson; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Albert J. Lewis.—Messrs. Mitchelson and Fineberg's company is appearing here this week in The Traitor. Mr. John C. Carlyle, as Prince Rudolph, acts with dignity and reserve; Mr. Stephen E. Scanlan, in the name-rôle, contributes a clever study; Mr. T. W. Hurst plays with quiet effect as an English Captain; Miss Isabel Hunt, as the young lieutenant, acts with much pathos. Well-played characters are the Zula of Miss Ruth Shepherd, Countess Zicka of Miss Francis White, and the Elise Duprez of Hettie Senior, Mr. Frank Sutherland as Jack Boult, Miss Anena Walton as Cen Cen, Mr. Edward Swinton as General Hertz, and Mr. Edward Lowrie as Soff, contribute clever comedy scenes. The play is mounted with much effect.

MEXBOROUGH.—PRINCE OF WALES' THEATRE. —Manager, Mr. W. H. Melton.—Messrs. Dottridge and Longden's company is playing here this week in The Midnight Mail. Mr. Geo. Harvard gives a powerful embodiment of Harry Steyne; as the ne'er-do-well, Billy Brewer, Mr. F. G. Evison plays the part admirably; Mr. Ed. Forbes does well as Leonard Royle; and Mr. A. Gilroy scores as Hassan Padisha; Mr. Chas. McCann plays capitally as Donald Craig. Miss Ada Oakley fills the arduous rôle of Mary Steyne with infinite credit and distinct ability; Miss Elsie Greene gives a thoughtful interpretation of the character of Lady Eustace; and Miss Mildred Carr is thoroughly satisfactory as Nancy Brewer.

MIDDLESBROUGH. — OPERA HOUSE. — Licensee and Manager, Mr. T. Hopcutt.—Mr. Tom B. Davis's company in the comic opera, Florodora, is here this week. Mr. Albert Bruno appears as Tweedlepunch, which he plays successfully; and Mr. Ellis-Buxton does well as Cyrus Gilfain; as Reginald Langdale Mr. M. De Martigny is pleasing, and Mr. Lionel Williams appears as Leandro; Mr. Cyril Dane is successful as Frank; Miss Rene Steadman as Lady Holyrood is charming; Miss Daisy Byford is an attractive Angela; and Miss May Desmond finds favour as Dolores.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. Brill; Manager, Mr. J. W. Thornborrow.—Maxwell and Francis made a welcome return visit, and in a flirtation comedy act make a great hit. Addie Dorina, in a duologue, How She Did It, is a favourite, and the Eugene family are highly applauded for their smart feats. Capt. A. J. Bevan's squad of Highlanders give an interesting turn, and the instrumental speciality performance of Orpheus is pleasing. Maude Ford dances prettily; and Fielding and Hull provide a good vocal turn. Some amusing films are shown on the bioscope.

THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.—Manager, Mr. Charles Imeson.—Mr. J. F. Elliston's pantomime, The Sleeping Beauty, entered upon its last week on Monday. It is one of the best pantomimes that have visited the Royal, and the energetic manager, Mr. Imeson, is to be highly congratulated upon the fact. The stage manager, Mr. Lonnen Medows, who, since his arrival in Middlesbrough, has made many friends, took a benefit on Friday, and it was a complete success.

OXFORD.—Lessee, Mr. William Peacock; Manager, Mr. William Ainsworth.—The De Wynnes head the bill here in an equilibristic turn, and do exceedingly well, and May Lilian Levey is very successful. They are supported by La Belle Rosa, instrumentalist; Bell and Pearl, musical artistes; Tom Bassett, comedian; Baroni and Kemp, quick change artistes; Andy Fagan, comedian; Collin and Irene; and the Lovelaces, song illustrators.

MOTHERWELL.—NEW CENTURY THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. W. Gillespy.—Mr. J. Bannister Howard's company has paid a return visit this week in the Belle of New York, and to a crowded house Mr. Harry A. Meymott gave an amusing representation of Ichabod Bronson; Mr. Harold Wardroper submitted a good display as Harry Bronson; and as Karl Von Pumpernick Mr. Walter Emro was very good. As the Belle Miss Nora Hersee was very clever and gained a good share of the applause. Miss Florence Hersee was sprightly as Mamie Clancy, and her clever singing and dancing captivated the audience. Mr. Colin M. Johnston scored as "Doc." Snifkins, and had an amusing partner in Mr. Maurice Holme as Blinkey Bill. Miss Ada Elliston was very charming as Fifi Fricot, and her singing gained due appreciation. Mr. C. A. James was good as Mr. Twiddles, and the rest of the company generally helped to make up a delightful night.

NEATH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Albert W. James.—The attraction here this week is Miss Olga Audré and Messrs. Travis Green and Arthur Hinton's company with the stirring drama, When a Man Hates. Mr. Arthur Hinton, as Pietro Danelli, is remarkably good; and Miss Leila Zillwood gives a realistic performance of the adventuress, Olga Gwynne; Mr. Graham Arthurs submits a manly delineation of Lawrence Hastings; and Miss Marion Forrester is a sweet and pathetic Letty. Mr. Gerald Byrne is clever as Paul; the character of Sir Rupert Treharne is in the able hands of Mr. Ploen Gains; and Mr. Tom Taylor, as Peter, and Miss Marie E. Robertson, as Dolly, are very funny. On Wednesday, The Sorrows of Satan was given by the same company.

NEWCASTLE-ON-TYNE.—GRAND THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Sidney Bacon; Business-Manager, Mr. Ernest W. Bacon.—Dick Whittington entered upon the last week of its most successful run here on Monday. Complimentary benefit performances have been accorded several of the principals this week. That of Miss Gracie Graham, the spirited representative of Dick, took place on Tuesday. Among the extra attractions was the appearance of a precocious juvenile in Miss Madge McCalla, who was announced to give an exhibition of step dancing, in which she is an adept for her years. Dan Thomas, the Eliza of the pantomime and a comedian of much merit, appealed to his friends on Thursday, and the following night found Mr. Bob Selvidge, the humorous representative of Idle Jack, in the proud position of bénéficiaire.

PALACE THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. T. W. Rowe.—An American drama, entitled A Fight for Millions, is being performed here by Mr. Robert Perris's company. There are many exciting episodes in this transatlantic production, a feature being made of the representation of a submarine boat at the bottom of the Hudson River; and the wireless telephone is also introduced. Some spirited acting is supplied by Mr. V. Carlyle as the hero, Tom Manley. His opposite in characteristics, Richard Dudley, has an effective exponent in Mr. Horace Booth. Mr. Robert Perris gives a clever and enjoyable performance as Willie Neverwork; and Mr. Karl H. Edwards is also quite successful in his embodiment of the amusing rascal Solomon Moses. Miss Eva Purcell makes a pleasing Pearl Rivers; and the Helen Dudley of Miss Elma C. Turner is an excellent impersonation; and Miss Lottie Pearce a bright May Brady, sings and dances acceptably.

FUO is a delicious and refreshing teeth-beautifier and mouth-sweetener.

(Known on the Continent as Barnängen's Vade-Mecum.)

FUO is the most highly concentrated, and consequently the most economical, of all preparations for the teeth and mouth. Five drops of FUO are

OLYMPIA.—Lessees, Messrs. Thornton and Bacon; General-Manager, Sidney Bacon; Acting-Manager, Nelson Barry.—On account of the enormous success of the first Olympia pantomime of Cinderella, arrangements have been made for extending its run here until February 18. The large building has been crowded to excess at each performance, and nearly 2,000 persons paid for admission during the second week of its career in Newcastle. The great success achieved is, in a great measure, due to the manner in which the various members of the company work together. It would be difficult to find a daintier "Cinders" than Miss May Marton, who excels as a vocalist and dancer, and has made many friends in this city by the excellence of her impersonation. Ada Twibell is a dashing Prince Rupert, and Fanny Wright is a sprightly Dandini. The chief fun providers are Messrs. A. G. Spry (Baron de Guile), Percy Curry and A. Wheatman (the Ugly Sisters), Little Zola (Buttons), Conan and Doyle (Henry and Herbert). Specialities are introduced by the Six Lancashire Lasses and the Four American Idols. The pantomime is produced under the direction of Mr. Eade Montefiore.

NEW EMPIRE PALACE.—Resident-Director, Mr. Richard Thornton; General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Resident-Manager, Mr. E. Leslie Conroy.—Staley's transformation act is a remarkable illustration of what can be accomplished in the way of a quick change, and the musical performance which is introduced is very acceptable. Hermann Melot, with his clever feats of legerdemain, is again a prime attraction; Alex. Gay, described as "the bricklayer conjurer," succeeds in mystifying his audience with a variety of tricks performed in a neat and skilful manner. A "midget" turn is given by the Rossows, who display their prowess as acrobats and boxers. A versatile and entertaining act is that contributed by Winona Winter, who is assisted by Mr. H. Banks; the Four Royal Welshmen distinguish themselves as vocalists, and, similarly, the Sisters Meredith receive applause for their efforts. Rackett and Hazard, in a musical act; Martin and Quigg, eccentric comedians, and George Adams, vocalist, further strengthen the programme.

PAVILION.—Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford; Resident-Manager, Mr. Will H. Boardman.—One of the best programmes ever submitted for the approval of Newcastle audiences is being presented at the Pavilion this week, with the result that the hall has been crowded at each performance. Arthur Roberts, assisted by Miss Ruby Celeste and company, appears in a pot-pourri, entitled Where's the Count? Mr. Roberts is given full scope in this and succeeds in provoking one continual roar of merriment. The Carina Sisters are artistic musical performers of much ability; Sydney James introduces an original ventriloquial, whistling and mimetic scena; Mr. and Mrs. Gene Hughes give their popular sketch, A Matrimonial Substitute; and the Barra Troupe are masters of a large number of musical instruments, and also introduce much humour into their performances; Bertha Pertina does not belie her name as a "dancing phenomenon"; Sid Bandon scores heavily in a song descriptive of the life of an engine-driver; and Tom Collins contributes medley songs. Beattie Kent, comedienne and dancer; Mollie Doon, comedienne; and the up-to-date animated pictures are also included in the programme.

NEWPORT.—LYCEUM.—Lessee and Manager, Mr Sidney Cooper.—In Dahomey is this week being played to a good house. The chief burden of the work devolves upon Mr Dan Avery and Mr Chas. Hart, extremely clever comedians, in the rôle of Rareback Pinkerton and Shylock Homestead. Miss Laura Bowman and Miss Fanny Wise sing well, and the whole of the company play their parts with success. Some of the songs are particularly taking. The Cake Walk, in the last scene, is certainly one of the most striking features of the show.

EMPIRE.—Moss's Empires, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr O. Stoll.—Happy Fanny Fields, who heads the bill here, fully sustains her reputation as a really original artiste. Harriet Vernon, popular as ever, is accorded a warm reception. The Horne Bros. are responsible for a very amusing turn; and O'Gust, the mimic, is given a hearty welcome. Alf Gibson, a quaint comedian, sings a couple of new songs. A praiseworthy turn is that of the Alfonso Trio, who do some extraordinary juggling; and the Bohemians, clever musical and comedy artists, secure warm recognition. Ethel Ra Leslie, character vocalist; Chas. Dean, a comedian of merit; and Carrie Laurie's Kindergarten artists, provide good turns.

NORTHAMPTON.—OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Resident-Manager, Mr. W. J. Andrews.—Mr. Milton Bode's pantomime, Puss in Boots, is here this week. Miss Flo Challis has a charming presence and looks extremely well in her several handsome costumes as Colin, and is highly successful in her popular songs; Miss Hetty Lee is a lively representative of Prince Rudolph; Miss Orpha Paris is a pleasing and successful Phyllis; Miss Odeyne Spark, a good singer and brilliant dancer, is a captivating Princess Ivy; Miss Elsie Creegan is a graceful Fairy Queen. Mr. Joe English as King Grabbus, Mr. Billy Harman as Baron Rhumphiz, and Mr. Tommy Nelldon as Muggles, the miller's eldest son, are full of fun and merriment. Mr. Harry Bickley plays Dame Shortly in an amusing style; Mr. Tom E. Cliffe is very good as Slyboots, the King of Cats; the Dardinis, the inexplicable comedy jugglers, furnish a clever comic turn; the Edene Troupe of Lady Dancers contribute with skill and grace a variety of charming dances.

PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Fred H. Anderson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Robert Barton.—The Seven Savonas, musical marvels, head the programme this week in their well-known entertainment, with its marvellous electrical effects. The Elliotts, a sextette of lady and gentlemen cyclists, score a big success. Sam Lee, comedian and mimic; Ted Fields and Fred Acres, comedy park keepers; De Ora, a favourite gymnast; Miss Rose Waller, vocal comedienne, and Queenie Palmer, ballad vocalist, furnish the rest of the entertainment.

NORTH SHIELDS.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Arthur Jefferson; General-Manager, Mr. Horace Lee; Secretary, Mr. Gordon Jefferson.—Mr. Charles Chard's company opened here on Monday with the pantomime, Goody Two Shoes. Miss Annie Casey, in the title rôle, created a very satisfactory impression, and Miss Ida Gladstone, as Roland, also came in for a hearty reception. Mr. Charles Chard, as Simple Simon, infused plenty of vigour and humour into the part; Mr. James Kurry, as Sammy Sopps, was very funny; Mr. Sidney Dean was good as Dame Freckles; and Mr. Arthur Stratton successful as Baron Grab. The specialities are provided by the Mikado Troupe of Dancers; the Sisters St. Julian, who deserve special mention; Messrs. Pete and Juno; and Messrs. Bliss and Bliss.

CENTRAL PALACE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. William Mould.—Messrs. Rice, Rose, Davis, and the Half, in their comedy sketch, are at the head of the bill here, and have made a hit; Messrs. Craig, Roze and Craig, gymnastic experts, introduce some marvellous feats; and Mr. Smiler Lee, comedian, is clever. The Hoytes, in the speciality act; Messrs. Ray and Miles, speciality artistes; Miss Ada Kingsley, comedienne; and the bio-photoscope, are all well received.

NORTHWICH.—CENTRAL THEATRE.—Proprietress, Mrs. S. Golden; Manager, Mr. Percy Webb.—Mr. Herbert Fuller's company, having accepted a second week's engagement here, has been seen in the following plays:—Monday and Tuesday, The Fiends of London; Wednesday and Thursday, The Sorrows of Satan; and Friday, East Lynne. The company is the same that appeared last week, and in every way fully maintain the high opinion already formed of it.

NORWICH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Manager, Mr. Fred Morgan.—Mr. Charles Macdona's excellent company occupies the boards this week with Three Little Maids. Miss Vera Vallis as Ada Branscombe, Miss Nellie Groves as Hilda Branscombe, and Miss Mabel Lavelle as Edna Branscombe, were each charming in their representation. Miss Vallis's song, "Men," was received with much applause. Miss Groves's songs, "The Miller's Daughter" and "I mean to be a real town lady," were equally appreciated; and Miss Lavelle's rendering of "Do you think you've known me long enough?" was good. Madame Ilma Norina, as Lady St. Mallory left nothing to be desired; Miss N. Cunningham as Lady Rosemary Beaulieu, Miss Gertrude Linche as Vencha Grafton, and Miss Mabel Sarle as Lady Marjorie Crichton, were admirable. Miss Grace Hardy, as Miss Price, did excellently well; Miss Laura Wright created much laughter as Gretchen, being ably assisted by Mr. Gus Oxley as Cupid. Mr. Arthur Longley as Lord Cheyne caused endless amusement with his eccentricities; Mr. Edgar K. Flavelle was successful as Brien Molyneux; and Mr. Jules Charmettes, as M. de l'Orme, displayed much skill as a 'cello soloist; Mr. W. Piercy Morgan was excellent as the Rev. Branscombe.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. E. H. Bostock and F. W. Fitt; Manager, Mr. F. W. Fitt; Musical Director, Capt. Selby.—Mr. W. F. Frame, the genuine Scotch comedian, heads the bill. He is a host in himself, in his funny songs and sayings, and gets a warm welcome on his return visit. The Sutcliffe Troupe, novelty acrobats, pipers, and dancers, have a good reception; the Musical Palmers are a good musical turn, especially when Miss Daisy Palmer acts as conductor; Austin Rudd, as a comedian, is much appreciated; Cissy Curlett is an excellent mimetic vocalist, and does some good farmyard imitations; Les Bois are good burlesque jugglers; and Shang Nia, the Chinese Magician, gives some mystifying tricks. The Bros. Llodge are very entertaining as silver chain athletes, and the Kimberley Boys complete a first-class entertainment.

NOTTINGHAM.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. Howard Finny.—An old friend has turned up again this week, to wit, Charley's Aunt, and the uproarious laughter of Monday night spoke volumes as to its popularity. Mr. Stanley Cooke essays the dear old lady, and his study of the character is so cleverly conceived, so crisp and dainty, that he never fails to "get home" on every point. The two college chums are capitally portrayed by Messrs. Arthur Soames and Richard B. Mason; Misses Violet Cooper and Geraldine Greville, as Kitty and Amy, act naturally; and Miss Lena MacNaughten makes a charming Donna Lucia, her embodiment being dignified and convincing. Mr. Lumsden Hare gives a capital study of Sir Francis Cheoney; and Mr. F. D. Ord presents the fussy Spettigue with admirable tact; Miss Dorrie Roberts as Ela Delahay and Mr. Sydney Compton as Brassett help in the general success. The piece is preceded by Fourchette and Co.

GRAND THEATRE.—Manager Mr. Charles P. Cooke.—The Osmond Tearle Répertoire Company is occupying the boards this week with an interesting programme, including Hamlet, Virginius, The Lady of Lyons, David Garrick, Richard III., and The Merchant of Venice. The last-mentioned play was given on Tuesday before a crowded audience. Mr. Alexander Marsh realised fully the crafty character of Shylock, and sustained the part with undoubted ability and finesse; Miss Millie Ford's conception of Portia was praiseworthy in the extreme; Mr. Charles Kingsley was in every way an admirable exponent of Antonio; and Miss Ruth Nightingale acted the part of Jessica in a bright and winsome manner. Mr. Cyril Este upheld the dignity and gravity of the Duke of Venice; Bassanio and Gratiano were capitally represented by Messrs. Ernest Griffin and John Paley; Mr. Vivian Gilbert was easy and natural as Lorenzo; and Mr. Philip Gordon gave full play to the humour of Launcelot Gobbo.

KING'S THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. A. W. Bull.—Messrs. Preston and Doherty's company is drawing large audiences this week with The Rich and Poor of London. Miss Dora Dench makes an altogether charming nurse as May Braithwaite; Miss Mary Ramez impersonates the adventuress, Ruby Redgrave, with force and intensity; and Miss Lillie Woods realises perfectly the peculiarities of the unthankful part of the baby farmer, Auntie Scrimp; Mr. Sidney Dench is a host in himself as Spider Jack; Mr. F. Danner acts with care as the Earl of Ravenswood; and Mr. Robert Hall sustains the rôle of Doctor Leonard Morton with great success. Rascality has a fine exponent in Mr. Andrew Money, who gains the heartiest execrations for his vigorous portrayal of Mark Stanley; and Mr. Sidney C. Cranston continues to play his original part of Gussy Lamb to the evident enjoyment of the audience.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Managing Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. A. Bowmaker.—There are no more popular entertainers here than Bella and Bijou, and their three sketches on Monday evoked the heartiest laughter. Mr. Syd May's impersonations are so thoroughly clever that they lose none of their freshness, and his comic wrestling bout with a dummy caused screams of merriment. A burlesque scena, The Duchess of Dantzic, showed to perfection the versatile talents of Alexandra Dagmar; Clown Zertho's dogs showed marvellous sagacity; and, as trick cyclists, there are no finer exponents than Lotto, Lilo, and Otto. The Five Delevines combined mirth and melody in an acceptable form; and a fund of humour was provided by Ike Scott and Son. The Three Sisters Klos submitted an athletic exhibition, both graceful and daring; Cabby and Shirker made a comical pair in a bar act; and Ada Cerito was applauded in a clever song.

NUNEATON.—PRINCE OF WALES'S THEATRE, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr. A. F. Cross; Acting-Manager, Mr. Walter J. R. Bryan.—Miss Frances Delaval and company are occupying the boards this week with The Biggest Scamp on Earth. Miss Delaval ably represents Naomi Belvedere; Mr. Percy Carne Waram is well suited to the part of Derrick Knight; and deserving commendation are Mr. Hamilton Urquhart, as Sir Aubrey Knight; Mr. Evan Roberts, as Vivian Wakefield; Mr. William H. Burton, as Napoleon Hawke; Mr. P. Stewart, as Joe Piper; Miss Dorothy Mahomed, as Irene May; Miss Sybil Hammersley, as Molly Sterling; Miss Patty Groves, as Mother Hawke; and Miss Doris Denman, as Bobby.

OLDHAM.—EMPIRE, LIMITED.—Manager, Mr. Ernest Dottridge; Acting-Manager, Mr. Hulme.—A cordial reception was accorded Mr. George Dance's production, The Duchess of Dantzic, on Monday. Miss Rita Presano, in the title-rôle, acquits herself admirably; as Napoleon Mr. Frederick Moyes was commendable; and Mr. Mackesay, as the Duke, was excellent. Miss Lilian Drake did well as the Empress. A powerful chorus, an augmented orchestra, fine scenery, and gorgeous costumes add to the interest of this successful production.

THEATRE ROYAL, LIMITED.—Manager, Mr. Ernest Dottridge; Acting-Manager, Mr. George Knowles.—A pleasing programme is being presented at this popular house. Mr. Mark Melford's successful sketch, Black and White, is heartily appreciated. The Musical Rosina is well received for her selections; The Coloured Meister Glee Singers are popular in concerted pieces; Amandas is remarkable for his impersonations of celebrities; Milner Verren is successful with sentimental songs; Loudoun Cameron gives a clever conjuring entertainment; Mdlle. Yvette introduces a miniature hippodrome of performing ponies and dogs; and Mdlle. Howell, comedienne, and Frank Boyd, character comedian, are well received.

GAIETY LIMITED.—Manager, Mr. E. J. Dexter.—A first-class company here this week includes Little Mike Gray, whose comedy, juggling, and acrobatic dog create roars of laughter. Harry Bant is well received for his clever mimicry; Chas. Bayman, eccentric negro comedian, is heartily appreciated; The Percys are successful in their duetts and speciality performance; Carlotta Lunn, ballad and descriptive vocalist, has a powerful voice; G. Chatterton is a smart banjoist; The Venola Bros. give a clever performance of comedy gymnastics; and Joe Golding and Dorothy Sterling, vocalists and duettists, and the Bioscope, are other attractions.

OXFORD.—NEW THEATRE.—Managing Director, Mr. Thomas Lucas, J.P.; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. C. Dorrill.—On Monday Mr. Charles Frohman's company, with Mr. H. A. Saintsbury in the title-rôle, commenced a successful engagement here with Sherlock Holmes. Mr. Saintsbury's performance was a finished and artistic one, and met with instant appreciation; Mr. Laurence Layton was successful as Dr. Watson, in whose hands the doctor was a most interesting personage; Mr. J. P. Kirkwood was a capital Forman; Mr. Leslie Carter a forbidding and impressive James Larrabee; while Mr. W. F. Stirling held the house with his powerful rendering of Professor Moriarty. Miss Maud Linden was a prepossessing and effective Madge Larrabee, and Miss Vera Longden gave a delicate and pleasing impersonation of Alice Faulkner.

EMPIRE THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Albany Ward; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. G. P. Wells.—Mr. Cecil Clayton's company is proving a considerable attraction here this week with the pantomime, Dick Whittington, which is admirably played and staged. Mr. Albert Evremond proves himself a clever and versatile actor as Alderman Fitzwarren, and Mr. J. Glover is a favourite as Idle Jack; Mr. Tom Kenealy makes a vivacious Angelina; while Mr. Clyto is praiseworthy as Tom, the Cat. Miss Millie Beckett is a charming Dick Whittington, and Miss Gertie Lovedale is sprightly and dainty as Alice. As the Good Fairy Miss Gertrude Gray scores immensely with her delightful singing. Some attractive specialities are introduced. Clyto, as gymnast and contortionist, is especially clever; H. Bishop, lightning contortionist, is an adept at his art; Hercules gives an exhibition of feats of strength; and the Gaiety Girls, acrobatic dancers, receive a cordial welcome.

PAISLEY.—PAISLEY THEATRE.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. H. Savile.—A dramatic treat to patrons of this house is the return visit of Mr. Norvan V. Norman, with Miss Beatrice Wilson and company in Under the Red Robe and Nell Gwyn. Both pieces are capitally placed upon the stage, besides being well represented. In the former play, Mr. Norman's Gil de Berault is a well-thought-out and convincing assumption, and Miss Wilson's Renche de Cocheforet is a very impressive, emotional, and tenderly human piece of characterisation. Mr. Robert Hilton is seen to striking advantage as Cardinal Richelieu; Mr. Henry Morgan displays ability in the dual-rôles of Marquis de Pombal and Henri de Cocheforet; Clon is interpreted in a highly satisfactory manner by Mr. Lionel Gadsdon; Mr. Percy H. Vernon distinguishes himself by a clever sketch of Captain Larolle; and Mr. W. Marshall is excellent as Lieutenant Manet. Miss Margaret Frame is praiseworthy as Madame de Cocheforet, and Miss F. Glossop Harris is capital as Suzette. Minor rôles are all adequately filled.

EMPIRE.—Lessee, Mr. J. H. Savile; Manager, Mr. Delno Fritz.—Another excellent company is engaged here this week, which includes James Brady, comedian; Mdlle. Melita, international dancer; the Two Leons, acrobatic song and dance and character duettists; Mdlle. Leo-Ville, conjurer and illusionist; "Yorkshire Tom," mimic; Mitzi, in a Japanese juggling and acrobatic entertainment; and Musical Wilbert.

PERTH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr. J. H. Savile; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Aldridge.—Aladdin continues its second week here with a success even more pronounced than the first. Several extra features are introduced, in addition to new and popular verses. The roller skates are particularly prominent; and, altogether, the success has been most gratifying.

PETERBOROUGH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager, Mr. A. Darville Vernon.—Dare-Devil Dorothy is being played here this week by Mr Henry Swinerd's company. Mr Cecil W. Parke makes a capital George Fielding; Mr H. C. Ward is successful as Capt. Edward Dudley; Mr Arthur Verne as Silas Crump scores a great success, and is ably partnered by Miss Nellie Harcourt as Judith. Miss Marjorie Cecil makes a favourable impression as Dorothy; and the part of Ruth is cleverly taken by Miss Kathleen Garnon.

PLYMOUTH.—GRAND THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. C. F. Williams; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy Williams.—Mr. F. Melville's stirring drama, Between Two Women, holds the boards here this week, and despite exceptionally strong counter-attractions, is filling the capacious house nightly. The hero, Harry Millard, finds a very able exponent in Mr. Harry Marlow, and the difficult part of James Durwood is cleverly represented by Mr. Fred Morgan; Mr. Hugh Metcalfe makes a dignified and courageous Rev. Philip Carton; and as Major Strangeways and the Earl of Millard Castle both Mr. G. R. Montford and Mr. Frank Powell respectively do well. A touch of delightful comedy is introduced by Mr. Frank Ayrton. Miss East-Roberton, Miss Vashti Wynne, Miss Alice Bowes and Miss Madge Seymour also deserve commendation for their acting.

PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Managing-Directors, Messrs. Livermore Bros.; Manager, Mr. J. Field.—A varied programme this week includes Burke and McVoy, whose astounding evolutions evoke enthusiastic applause; J. W. Rickaby's character songs are amusing; several cleverly trained animals owned by Jimson, provide an interesting and funny turn; Lind is a revelation as a female impersonator; Miss Grace Merton has a superb voice, which she uses intelligently and artistically; Miss Ruby Bijou dances nimbly; and there is a sketch entitled, Hello, by Frank Bernard and company; a musical dialogue by Monks and Wood; and animated pictures.

METROPOLE THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. A. Carlton.—Mrs. William Maclaren's company is appearing here this week in Proof, and full justice is being done to the piece. Mr. Maclaren portrays Pierre Lorance, and together with Miss L. C. Bandmann, the heroine, displays considerable ability. Mr. Richard Fulton and Miss Gertrude Evans also acquit themselves with credit. David Garrick and The Lady of Lyons are also in the répertoire.

PORTH.—POOLE'S OPERA HOUSE.—Manager, Mr W. Bynorth.—The attraction here this week is Mr J. D. Hunter's pantomime, entitled Aladdin. To Miss M. Sadie is entrusted the title-rôle, and most faithfully does she act the part. Miss Elsa Drull is a great favourite as the Princess Balbroudar; Mr Fred Boulton is decidedly good as the Emperor; Mr Victor Vernon deserves mention as Abanazar; The Vizier is ably represented by Mr Dick Tubb; the Widow Twankey is meritoriously played by Mr J. D. Hunter, who is responsible for roars of laughter; Miss Vera Dudley, as Pekoe, meets with approval, and receives applause for her Coon song and dance, "Navaho"; Nicey Picey is also successfully played by Miss Ivy Boulton; Mr George Mayer, as Wisher, and Mr Ben Boden, as Washer, are also amusing. The specialities introduced in Act 2 include Mdlle Bartenelli, contortionist, who gives a capital performance; the Verona Jap Quartette of lady dancers; the Four Sisters McQueen, operatic vocalists; and the Eccentric Boultons, musicians and dancers, who meet with a hearty reception. The spectacular finale, The Feast of Lanterns, is much admired.

PORTSMOUTH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. J. W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr. Armstrong Bell.—The smart musical comedy, Winnie Brooke, Widow, presented by Miss Ada Reeve and company, is here on a return visit. Miss Reeve, in the title-rôle, has lost none of her piquant, captivating, and resourceful acting, her songs, "Woman" and "Born, not made," being re-demanded, and her duet with Reginald Frampton warmly applauded. Mr. Charles Weir made a capable Dudley Mayne; Mr. Edgar Stevens was a manly Reginald Frampton; Julian Croft, in the hands of Mr. L. Ashton Parry, was a capital study; Mr. Harry Halley played Montague Brent in a hearty and jovial manner; Mr. Frederick Tyrrell was successful as the Rev. Elihu Garside. The Toby Blossom of Mr. Ulick Burke, and Hercules Grant of Mr. D. Price Evans were praiseworthy; Gracie Frampton and Nora Caswell were ably portrayed by Miss Cecile Beresford and Miss Ruth Hazlewood; Miss Alice Lawrence was admirable as Mrs. Garside.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. J. W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. E. Agate.—Mr. Frederick Melville's production, The Ugliest Woman on Earth, has been presented here during the week to large audiences, Miss Beatrice Horner taking the name part. The impersonation was very clever and impressive. Mr. Stanley Bedwell's Jack Merriman was a capable performance; the scoundrel, Hubert Gold, was in the safe hands of Mr. Leyton Cancellor, who gave a finished portrayal; Mr. Charles Barrett, as Antonio Luchessi, was good; and the Tom Redvers of Mr. Renaud Lockwood was convincing; the revengeful Italian girl, Morita, was capitally played by Miss Margaret Watson.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Secretary, Mr. W. Pratt.—One of the principal items in a well-varied bill of fare at this hall is Otto Schuman's equestrian act of horses, ponies, and boarhounds. Minnie Wren, comedienne, sang well, and had a great greeting; Kitty Clover and company, in their sketch, The Set of the Ballet, were much liked; Sisters Caselli, soubrettes and eccentric dancers, had an immense reception; Alexandra Edwin, soprano vocalist, was very pleasing in her efforts; Weight and Elton, speciality artists, were entertaining and amusing; Kavados, juggler, was clever in his business, and had a good reception; The Bristons, comic acrobatic cyclists, brought down the house; also appearing are Harry Cook (peculiar patter comedian) and Bert Dansie (humorous and descriptive vocalist).

PRESTON.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager, Mr. Stephen Pritt.—Mr. A. E. White's company is here this week in Aladdin. The leading characters are successfully impersonated by Miss Maud Bettison, Miss F. M. Sinclair, Miss Elsie Douglas, Miss Kathleen O'Neill, Mr. F. Arnold, Mr. Teddy Lennon, Mr. J. H. Maxwell, and Mr. Fred Ramsdale. Fun is a prominent feature in the production; the music is tuneful, and the scenery picturesque.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. Sawyer and Woodruff.—Messrs. Marston and Buckstone's company in Goody Two Shoes, occupies the boards here this week.

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Sons; Resident-Manager, Mr. Clement Freeman.—At the head of the bill here this week are the Arthur Saxon Trio, in some wonderful feats of strength. The Countess are heartily applauded for their duties; Linton gives a clever display on the springing wire; Henry Carlton and company's comedietta, One Night Only, evokes much laughter; Stanley and Vandyke contribute a mirth-provoking sketch; Rappo and Elia acquit themselves well in their speciality. Little Dando is an amusing comedian; Annie Cohen, comedienne, provides a good turn; and the Eight Lancashire Lads are successful in their singing and clog dancing.

RAMSGATE.—AMPHITHEATRE.—Proprietor, Lord George Sanger; General Manager, Mr. Henry Bowman.—Miss Winifred Maude and company have been appearing here, under the direction of Mr. Victor Du Cane, in the interesting drama, Sins of a City. The play is full of human interest, Miss Maude being especially successful in the part of Seaweed (afterwards known as Norah); Mr. Leslie Beaufort does excellently in the rôle of Ralph Blackwater, K.C.; as do also Mr. Horace E. Herbert as Sandy McDonald and Miss Jennie Hackett as Madge, the servant. Mr. Du Cane appears with admirable effect in the dual-part of Joe Woodleigh and Jasper Woodleigh, the twin brothers.

RADCLIFFE.—GRAND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr Geo. T. Sante; Acting-Manager, Mr Jas. Boothman.—On Monday Mr John Walters's company opened here with the pantomime Cinderella. Miss Florence Drew played charmingly in the title-rôle, and her songs were well rendered; Miss Constance St. Bride, as Prince Charming, is rightly so-called, and her singing is excellent; Misses Billy and Dolly Linn, as Dandini and Flighty Flirt, are popular duettists and dancers; and the singing of Miss Vera Vizard (who takes Dewdrop, the Fairy Godmother) is a special feature. Mr Geo Reeves and Mr T. H. Solly, as the two ugly sisters, are in strong evidence. Messrs Clarence and Smith and Mr Ally M. Benson supply some boisterous fun. Mr Arthur Hickman, as the Baron, deserves a word of praise; and Omega, the Queen of the Wire, and the Onatis Troupe of jugglers present a successful turn.

RAWTENSTALL.—GRAND THEATRE.—Co-proprietors and Lessees, Messrs. W. Johnson and J. Potter; General-Manager, Mr. J. Potter; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Ellis Miller.—An excellent performance was given here on Monday, when Messrs. F. Moule and E. D. Nicholls's company opened with the drama The Life that Kills. Miss Kathleen Cavanagh scored heavily as Brenda Croat, and Miss Marie Menzies gave a delightful embodiment of Laurie Linden, whilst Miss Lucy Murray was a great success as Johanna Dicks. As the hero, Hector Rodney, Mr. Ernest G. Fare, was decidedly clever, and as the Rev. Theodore Rodney Mr. William E. Passmore gave a faithful rendering of the character. Mr. Wilton Drury, as Samuel Flatfoote, was very amusing, and with Jack Jolliffe (Mr. A. Hall-Menzies) was responsible for many humorous situations. Mr. Alfred Burrow, as Terence Malone, was also very successful.

READING.—ROYAL COUNTY THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Milton Bode; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. E. Barnett; Secretary, Mr. Reginald Taylor.—Mr. Milton Bode's company is here this week with the fairy pantomine, Cinderella. The piece, which has been produced by Mr. Bode, under the able stage-management of Mr. Charles A. Wenman, is lavishly mounted, the costumes being very rich and tasteful, and the scenery magnificent. The Ball-room scene is highly effective, and the grand transformation scene, "The Birth of the Rose," is very artistic. Miss Florence Beech makes a fascinating Cinderella; Miss Hebe Bliss a dashing Prince Brilliant; and Miss Marie Reeves a dapper Dandini. Messrs. John Nolan and Percy Dawson create great merriment as the two ugly sisters; Mr. Leo Stirling is droll as Baron Balmy; Mr. George Antill is capital as Capers the Page; Miss Addie Love is charming as the Fairy Godmother, and the other parts are in good hands. A variety of excellent specialities are introduced, including some clever imitations of birds by Miss Maud Dewey, lady whistler; Leo Sterling, in a clever musical act; Major Harry Sitherland, in expert rifle and bâton manipulation; and Bert Woodward, coon trick cyclist.

ROCHDALE.—NEW THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, The Northern Theatres Co., Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. Charles Clucas.—Miss Mary Austin and company are this week paying a welcome return visit with The Cotton Spinner. Mr. Edwin F. Fisher admirably sustains the part of Lord Northbury; Mr. E. Vivian Edmonds portrays with power and earnestness Arthur Northbury. Mr. Frank Eaglesfield cleverly presents the part of Foster Cunningham; Mr. J. S. Haydon again appears in his old rôle of John Prescott, a part he has made quite his own; Mr. Ernest C. Edwards is the fiery Major Stratton, with Miss Bella Power as Lady Charlotte Needy, are mainly responsible for the humorous element; Constance Harrington is acted with success by Miss May Grimshaw; and Miss Mary Austin wins all hearts by her clever conception of Mary Prescott. A series of animated pictures are thrown on the screen before the curtain and between the acts, creating a new feature here, which is greatly appreciated.

CIRCUS AND HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. Smith and Lee; Business-Manager, Mr. S. L. Lee.—R. Pringle's North American Animated Photos. are the attraction here this week. Some really fine pictures are shewn, both instructive and amusing, the audience displaying great interest throughout. In addition, Mr. J. K. Reynolds and company, including Miss Maude Yarrell, submit a sensational sketch, entitled Conscience, in which the wreckage of a drawing-room suite forms a prominent and startling feature.

EMPIRE THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Thomas Hargreaves; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Hargreaves.—The Lukushima troupe of Japanese equilibrists perform some wonderful feats of balancing; Haig and Novel are exceptionally smart as eccentric comedians; the Haydon Comedy Four, with a capitally written musical sketch, entitled Captured by Brigands, are accorded hearty applause; George Trustz; Fred Bronte, actor vocalist; Billy Williams, Australian comedian; Lil Esplin, character comedienne; and the Empire bioscope complete an attractive programme.

ROTHERHAM.—THEATRE ROYAL, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. Macnaghten; Resident Manager, Mr. W. Manning.—Robinson Crusoe is being presented here this week under the personal supervision of Mr. Macnaghten, the management being in the capable hands of Mr. Fred Baugh. Miss Louie Hurman is pleasing in the title-rôle; Miss Rosie Bartlett is a sprightly Polly Perkins; Miss Delia Cherry a breezy Midshipman Merry; and Miss Dora Langham scores as Nancy Lee. Mr. Will Lytton as Will Atkins is a remarkable villain; and Mr. Jack Foley an amusing Dame Crusoe. Messrs. Harris and Worth as Sammy Sackless and Dick Drymaath respectively are capital knockabouts; and Mr. Charles Cook is deserving of mention as the Rajah; Friday is capably portrayed by Mr. Harry Morgan; Miss Flora Leonard as Fairy Coral is seen to advantage; and Mr. B. R. Adford deserves recognition as Davy Jones.

RUNCORN.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr. H. W. Caddick.—Mr. Herbert Fuller's company is here with Fiends of London, a drama of the usual sensational type. Mr. R. C. Gear does well as Sir Horace Bream; Captain Crawley, the "heavy" part, affords plenty of scope to Mr. Hugh Carmichael. An interesting feature is the work of Mr. Herbert Fuller as the jockey, Bob Archer; Miss G. Hastings enlists considerable sympathy by her true portrayal of Laurie Christie, the persecuted heroine; and Miss Emily Lewis is bright and entertaining as Flossie Sprigg. The efforts of Mr. H. Delmar as Peter Shark, Mr. Harold Weston as Joe Ormerod, Mr. James J. Newell as Mat Christie, Miss Alice Lane as Mother Murphy, Miss Edith Leslie as Friscie Gilliard, and Little Gladys as the juvenile Sally Frost and Tim, are also well rewarded.

RYDE, I.W.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr J. Bannister Howard.—Messrs John A. Thompson and J. D. Hunter's pantomime, Red Riding Hood, filled the theatre at each performance on the first three nights of the week. Mr John A. Thompson himself takes the part of Dame Trot, and extracts every ounce of fun from the character. He is ably backed up in his efforts at mirth-making by Mr Fred Anderson and Mr McLovell Rowland, whose antics are highly amusing as Tommy Green and Simple Simon. Mr Chas. W. Coleman is a diverting Baron Sherlock Holmes, and Mr Albert Victor is good as Wolferino. Miss Ella Willmer is a piquant Red Riding Hood, and Miss Jessie Corri sings well as Boy Blue; Miss Blanche Bayley is a dashing Prince Allfair, and Miss Essie Prenton (Rosa), Miss Ethel Ashley (Marjorie Daw), and Miss Annie Rose (Johnny Horner) fill their parts capably.

SALFORD.—PRINCE OF WALES.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. E. B. Goulden; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harold Goulden.—Messrs. Carson and Granville's No. 1 company occupies the boards this week with A Modern Adventuress. Violet Meredith is capitally presented by Miss Beatrice M. Anderson, and Mr. E. M. Hamilton cleverly assists her as Wallace Danton. Mr. Leonard Aardale deserves much praise for his study of the Italian Pietro Donelli. The trying part of Vivette Delby is well sustained by Miss A. Defoe. Mr. Royce Carlton as Harry Delby, Mr. G. D. Knight as Wm. Delby, Mr. Leonard Montgomery as Steve Meredith, and Mr. G. P. Lester as Walter Beal are well placed. Plenty of fun is provided by Mr. E. Roland as John Crompton and Miss E. Custance as Sally Hodges.

REGENT THEATRE OF VARIETIES, LIMITED.—Licensee, Mr. Wilberforce Turner; Secretary and Manager, Mr. Frederick Yates.—The Herald Comedy Four head the bill this week with their singing and dancing speciality; Charley Dixon, comedian and dancer, gets much applause for his comicality; a clever sketch is given by Brasque and Duncan; and other good turns include Kate Lynd, up-to-date comedienne; Newland Major, ventriloquial humorist; Cape Girls, vocalists and dancers; The Two Melvernes, marionette act; the Skandia Troupe of marvellous gymnasts and acrobats; and Denby and Dent in a barber's shop comedy act.

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy B. Broadhead; Resident Acting-Manager, M. J. B. Taylor.—The entertainment here is thoroughly enjoyable. Mystification and fun are provided by Dr. Carl Herman, hypnotist, electrician, and scientist; Curtis Leo and his black piccannini are much applauded for their Fun in a Drawing-room; a clever sketch, Jack Sheppard, is given by Albert Voyce's Company. Other notable items are given by Edie Sylvesto, unique contortionist; young lady dancers; Mr. Walter Munroe, the old and welcome favourite, in new and catchy songs; Virto and Irene, in a drawing-room and musical act; and Tom Edwards, the talented mimic and ventriloquist, with his mirth-provoking figures, including the irrepressible "Curly."

SHREWSBURY.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Licensee and Business Manager, Mr. W. C. Dornton.—A return visit this week of Mr. Charles Macdona's company in the musical comedy, A Country Girl, is especially welcome, since Mr. Richard Telford, an inimitable Barry, again delights his audience with his versatile talent. Mr. Herbert Standing, junior, is a most capable Geoffrey Chaloner; Mr. Bernard Vaughan as the Rajah of Bhong merits praise, his songs being very effective; Mr. W. O. Billington as Sir Joseph Verity acts with care and ability; Mr. F. H. Sharp is quite successful as Douglas Verity; Mr. Harry Playfair in the character part of Granfer Mummery acts cleverly; Mr. M. Raven makes a capable Lord Anchester; and Mr. Aubrey Carr plays creditably the part of Lord Grasmere. Miss Daisy Davis is a pleasing Marjorie Joy; Miss Lucie Lever acts and sings most effectively as Princess Mehelaneh; Miss Sadie Neville as Madame Sophie displays conspicuous ability; and Miss Anna Robertson is a vivacious Nan.

SMETHWICK.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor, Mr. C. Barnard; Manager, Mr. E. Hewitson.—The exciting drama entitled As Midnight Chimes, played by Mr Edward Marris's company, is the attraction here this week. Mr Melville Bickford as Luke Dezzard gives a powerful portrayal of a difficult rôle. Mr James Salter, as Tat Spavin, introduces some excellent humour, and his singing and dancing are much appreciated. He is well supported by Miss Nita Imeson, as Suzette, a sprightly French maid. Miss Frank E. Petley, as Dave Stannard, submits a capital interpretation of his part; Mr Walter Wilby, as Ezra Gamble, Mr Percy Maitland, as Nat Wilson, Mr John Mayall, as Detective Pollard, Miss Gertrude Price, Miss Iris M. Ward, and Miss Minnie Ethel are also distinctly good.

SOUTHAMPTON.—GRAND.—Mr. William Greet's Company is paying its first visit here in Wilson Barrett's successful play, Lucky Durham. Mr. William F. Grant is clever as John Durham, his remarkably fine acting calling forth loud applause; Mr. Henry de Solla is a successful Lord Mountfallon; Mr. Daniel McCarthy lends able support as Richard Vallerton; and Mr. Paul Belmore is an admirable Reginald Steighton. Miss Emily Levettez, as Lady Mountfallon, gives an interesting portrayal; and the remaining parts are well played.

PRINCE OF WALES.—Great local interest is centred in the appearance here of Mr. Fred Jarman, who is a native of Romsey. His company is this week appearing in the Anglo-Russian drama, In Dark Siberia, and they achieve a huge success. The acting throughout is splendid, and the scenery and effects are extremely realistic.

PALACE.—Manager, Mr. Charles Marte.—Leo Dryden, a big favourite here, is scoring a great success with his well-sung descriptive songs. "For Freedom of Japan" being enthusiastically received. Fanny Wentworth is very successful with her musical sketches; and an interesting turn is given by Preston and Balmain, in their illustrated songs and duets. Lord, Murray, and Lord are boisterously received for their clever athletic act, "The Intruder"; and other capital turns are given by Harry Desmond, Burns and Bentley, Bijou Russell (a dainty dancer), and The Kings.

SOUTHPORT.—OPERA HOUSE.—General Manager, Mr. Alfred Hemming.—The Drama of Life, a powerful and interesting play, is the attraction here. The drama has been previously seen here, and the return visit is undoubtedly a popular one. The staging and scenic effects are excellent. Jerrold Ord, in the part of the Banker, Harry Beech, gives a forcible and effective portrayal; while John J. Hooker is a clever exponent of the character of Walter Beech. As Lady Jane Wilde, Miss Muriel Inglis plays with sympathy; and the remaining numerous characters are ably sustained.

PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Lessees, Messrs. Murray, King, and Clark.—Under most auspicious circumstances, Messrs. Murray, King, and Clark opened the renovated Pavilion under the title of Palace of Varieties on Monday evening. The initial performance was crowded, and was graced by the presence of the Mayor and Mayoress. The programme was of a most attractive character. The various turns comprised Hagedorn's Wonderful Grotto and Fairy Fountains, which were received with much enthusiasm; Barrington, eccentric pianist; Morton and Bowman, in a clever sketch; Victorian Troupe of Imperial Singers and Dancers; Percy Farrimond, singing collier; Harry Norris, comedian; and Dorothy Frostick, a clever and pleasing young dancer.

PAVILION (PIER).—Lessee, Mr. Chas. Parker; Manager, Mr. J. N. Mertz.—Bock Pylades in his remarkable impersonations, Julian Mack, comedian, Percy Maye, Victoria Dagmar, are all included in a good programme at this popular place of entertainment.

SOUTH SHIELDS.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees and Managers, Messrs. J. and F. Coulson.—Mr. Bert Coote's company is paying a return visit here in The Fatal Wedding. Mr. F. Ernest Owttrim capitally embodies Howard Wilson; Mr. Cecil Collings, as Robert Curtis, makes the most of the part; Miss Theresa Osborne is a charming and agreeable Mabel Wilson; and a sufficiently dramatic interpretation of Cora Williams is submitted by Miss Beatrice Whitney. Mr. J. Carl Lyle as Toto, Mr. Cyril Melton as the stolid Peter Schwartz, and Miss Carrie Fenton as the garrulous Bridget, all gain favour. Jessie, "the Little Mother," is delightfully represented by Miss Gladys Rose Jones.

EMPIRE PALACE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Richard Thornton; General Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Resident-Manager, Mr. George F. Thompson.—A side-splitting concoction, entitled Motoring, is given by Harry Tate's company, the fun keeping the audience in one continual roar of laughter. Horace White, in his ventriloquial entertainment, again merits the applause of the patrons; Ella Retford is a dainty comedienne; and Cyclo figures successively as a trick and comedy cyclist. The American bioscope is as popular as ever; and Signor Pepi, quick-change artist, in his comic sketch, introduces eight characters; the Two Bostons, J. C. Morris, and the Sisters Neilson, are other attractions.

TIVOLI.—Proprietors and Managers, Councillor J. K. Hall and Mr. Jos. Sweeney.—A varied programme, including Tom Lloyd as principal turn, is being keenly relished here. Mr. Lloyd bristles with quaint mannerisms and witty sayings; Hector and Paulus submit as equilbrists, one of the finest turns of its kind seen here; Sydney Lee furnishes some highly commendable conjuring; the Carcassis Duo appear in an entertaining musical act, The Lost Child; and other films are distinctly shewn on the Royal Italian bioscope; and Tom Berrick, the black titbit, and Gertrude Moore, also contribute.

SPENNYMOOR.—CAMBRIDGE THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. Harding Thomas; Resident-Manager, Mr. Herbert Vere.—The second visit of Mr J. A. Campbell's company, in The Sin of Her Childhood, bids fair to become as popular as the first. Miss Mary Fulton displays much intensity of emotion and pathos in the trying rôle of Mary Haysel; Mr Henry Hargreaves, both in mien and language, is a typical curate as the Rev Alan Gray; as Stephen Haysel Mr Austin Milroy shows much artistic work in his rendering of a gentlemanly villain; Mr Fred Elvin, as Barney O'Reilly, submits a humorous sketch of the good-natured Hibernian; Little Dot Moss does her work to everyone's satisfaction, and shows herself to be a clever little banjoist, vocalist, and dancer; Little Edith is charming as Eric; whilst, as Mrs Haysell, Miss Jennie Hicks puts in some good work.

STALYBRIDGE.—GRAND THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Arthur Carlton; Resident-Manager, Mr. H. Leighton Rooke.—Messrs. G. M. Polini and Austin Melford's Silver King company is again here. Mr. Herbert Ford and Miss Lilian Bethell have been happily selected for the parts of Wilfred and Nellie Denver, whilst Mr. Edward J. George, in the character of Jaikes, is too well known to need any special notice. Mr. Charles Levey is capital as the Spider.

ST. HELENS.—THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE, LIMITED.—General Manager, Mr. M'Leod Loader.—Miss Ida Molesworth's and Mr. Mark Blow's company occupies the boards here this week with At Cripple Creek for the first two nights, and Under Two Flags for the remainder of the week. The company is one of all-round excellence, and includes Messrs. Mark Blow, Walter Thornton, Charles D. Pitt, Reginald Harley-West, Albert Rogers, and Will Hook; Misses Emilie Polini, Hope Mayne, Daisy Carlton, May Douglas, and Little Tatto.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. Barrasford, Sley, and Willmott; Manager, Mr. A. V. Carnell.—Hanco heads the bill here, and other strong turns include Mr. Bert Holmes, Cordile, The Ashers, Gillen, Brothers Kroney, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Knox, and Mr. Martin Conway.

STOCKPORT.—NEW THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr. Charles Revill; Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. Revill.—Pantomime again this week; Mr. Edward Marris's company in Dick Whittington fulfilling a week's engagement. Mr. Harry Russell as Jack, the idle apprentice; Mr. Peter Freans as the Man before the Mast; and Weston and Jackson as McFlip and O'Flop are a quartette that keeps the fun continuous and hearty; Miss Joey Preston as Dick, sings and dances pleasingly, and is deservedly appreciated; Miss Mena Eckerman is most charming as Alice. The specialities include the amusing trapeze artistes, Rezene and Robini; the Brothers Kashma, clever equilibrists; Miss Georgina Nicol, a pleasing vocalist; the Freans, comedy ball punchers; Madame Roma's, lady ariel wrestlers; the Sisters Roma, exceedingly clever club jugglers; and the coloured pair, Ben Rowe and Topsy Holden, in a graceful and entertaining exhibition of the cake-walk.

OHMY'S CIRCUS.—Proprietors, Messrs. Davenport.—A combination of varied talent here this week is headed by the genuinely funny clown Rabbit, an undoubted favourite. E. Hanneford, in his jockey act, is a great success; and Mr. Frank Whiteley negro comedian, is clever and amusing; the Zalvanus, jugglers and balancers, give a pleasing entertainment, and the Four Andys, acrobats, command much appreciation. Among others are Darwin, the man monkey; Lyle, musical comedian; and Miss Lily Garton, top-boot dancer.

STOCKTON-ON-TEES.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietress, Mrs. Weldon Watts; General Manager, Mr. Sidney Bacon; Acting-Manager, Mr. R. G. Elder.—The King's Pardon is being presented here by Mr. Frank Macnaghten's company. As Noel Blake, Mr. Charles Stirling plays with great effect; Mr. Charles Whitlock's Clifford Yorke is quiet in the heroic manner; Mr. Charles A. Leicester's Spence Broughton is both pleasant and spirited; Mr. Harry Belford's Major Dobbs is funny and clever; as the cunning lawyer, Amos Neal, Mr. Jack Hames does well; and Mr. Val W. Gully's Ebenezer creates roars of laughter. Miss Georgina V. France as Barbara Yorke is pathetic; Miss Violet B. Clarke's Marjorie is good; and the Phyllis of Miss Polly Denville is full of vivacity.

GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. J. Batty; Manager, Mr. W. Batty.—A programme full of talent here is headed by the Royal Tokio Troupe of Japanese, who show some remarkable feats. Also in the bill are George Bendon, the white coon; the Jansens, in a novel gymnastic show; M. Gintaro, clever top-spinner and juggler; Fred Horsfall, a good mimic; Emma Don, and her black and white coons; De Voy, Hurst, and Fredericks, in a laughable sketch; and Payne's Bio., with new subjects.

STOKE.—HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr Allan Edwardes; Manager, Mr H. Miller.—This week another capital programme is submitted here. The premier position is held by Charles Matthews, the jumper, in a smart and exceptionally clever performance. The Three Sisters Macarte contribute a clever and artistic turn; the Lannons are dancers of extraordinary ability; Little Beatie shows much promise as a dancer; Zanfretti and Napio are seen in a droll musical turn; Lieutenant Frank Travis, in his ventriloquial performance, is indeed wonderful; Syd. Godfrey is a comedian with good songs; and Chas. Beanland also meets with success. The Hippodrome pictures are, as usual, excellent.

STOURBRIDGE.—ALHAMBRA THEATRE.—Manageress, Miss Maude Lynton.—Messrs. Armadale and Warren are visiting us with the drama, The Face at the Window. The parts of Lucio Delgado and Paul Gouffet, entrusted to Messrs. Augustine Knight and T. W. Dunscombe, were most artistically presented; Mr. Alfred Warne, as Lucien Cortier, was capital; and Miss Marie Barrett won favour as Marie de Brisson; Mr. C. Alan Hineson did well as Peter Pottlebury; and Miss Gwynne Warren as Babette was excellent.

SUNDERLAND.—AVENUE THEATRE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Chas. E. Machin; General-Manager, Mr. Percival Craig.—Mr. W. W. Kelly's company in A Royal Divorce is playing a welcome return visit here this week. Miss Edith Cole's rendering of the Empress Josephine is strikingly realistic. As Napoleon, Mr. Frank Lister leaves nothing to be desired, and is seen at his best in the Fontainebleau Palace scene. Miss Ethyle Murray gives a fine presentation of Marie Louise; whilst Miss Helen Richmond causes much mirth by her coquettish acting as Stephanie de Beauharnais. Mr. Cecil Du Gue is seen to advantage as the Marquis de Beaumont; and as Grimand Mr. Dennis Bryan is amusing; Mr. H. Gray Dalby makes a capital Talleyrand; and Miss Maggie Cardiff is pleasing as the little King of Rome.

THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Chas. E. Machin; General-Manager, Mr. Percival Craig.—Mr. E. Hill-Mitchelson's company in the romantic military drama Revenge is drawing large houses here this week. Mr. E. Hill Mitchelson undertakes the part of Prince Orloff, and acquits himself in excellent fashion; and Captain Loris Vanessa finds a capable exponent in Mr. W. Draper. Mr. Theo. Balfour gives a capable rendering of the King; and Miss Grace Aimer's portrayal of Lieut. Maurice is commendable. Mr. Arthur McCullock is amusing as Count Mussant; and Mr. Edwin Jenner makes a manly Captain David Carr. Miss Lily Roselle plays most effectively as Draga Vanessa; Miss Alice Barber is pleasing as Cora Brook, and the Queen is in the able hands of Miss Violet Carlyle.

PALACE THEATRE, LTD.—Managing-Directors, Messrs. Livermore Bros.; Acting-Manager, Mr. George V. Wybrow.—Another excellent programme is provided here this week. Chinko, juggler, performs some exceptionally clever feats, which are heartily appreciated; Mystery Gauge, Canadian Indian artist, obtains a flattering reception; the Kira Cingalese Troupe, in their native dances, is quite an original turn; Sam Redfern is a comedian of no mean order; Ted Karno and Coy. cause considerable amusement in their absurdity, The Traveller's Rest; Mabelle May and Lillian Lowe, vocalists; K. and K. in their musical masquerade; and Vernon's animated pictures also contribute to the entertainment.

SUTTON-IN-ASHFIELD.—KING'S THEATRE.—Proprietors, Sutton Theatre Syndicate; Manager, Mr. Edward Gray.—A Chinese Honeymoon, presented by Mr. Chas. Macdona's company, opened for a three nights' stay on Monday. Chief among the artists are Miss Ettie Cinders, who plays the part of Fifi, her comedy and vivacity meeting with general appreciation; Miss Florence Halaam, as Soosoo, has a charming manner and a most pleasing voice; and Miss Alicia Norton as Mrs. Pineapple. Mr. Stearne Laugh as Hang Chow, Mr. Maxwell Stewart as the High Admiral, and Mr. Sydney Birt as Mr. Pineapple, embody their parts exceedingly well; as also does Mr. Arthur Foote, the Tom Hatherton. For the last three nights of the week Mr. Herbert Hollister's Lights o' London company was playing.

SWINDON.—QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Sole Lessee and Responsible Manager, Mr. Alfred Manners; Musical Director, Mr. F. H. Lucas.—On Monday a large audience witnessed with keen interest the first performance in this town of the new musical comedy, Miss Mischief, capitally played by Mr. Godfrey Lamplugh's company. Prominent features of the piece are the well-balanced chorus, under the baton of Mr. Spencer Dickenson, and the excellence of the scenery and dresses. Miss Evelyn Hughes must be complimented on her genuine success as Kitty Malone, her singing and dancing making her very popular; Miss Crissie Frances, as Mary Ann, is bright and pleasing; Miss Eileen Guilbert is seen to advantage as Lady Orrery; as Private Harris, V.C., Mr. T. E. Conover keeps the audience in roars of laughter; Mr. Cecil Curtis plays the part of Jack Bethune with good effect his rendering of the song "The Girl that I Met in Dover," being highly appreciated; Mr. Frederick Sandy gives a remarkably fine impersonation of the American, Hiram Q. Pegg; and Mr. A. Jenner succeeds in making the most of the part of Admiral Sir H. Bethune. To Mr. Fred Mantell is entrusted the stage management, and he also extracts much fun from the rôle of Lord Fitzsherry.

TAMWORTH.—ASSEMBLY ROOMS.—Proprietors, the Town Council; Manager, Mr. F. Hughes—Mr. Chas. Macdona's Country Girl Company paid a return visit here on Saturday. Miss Daisy Davis was a charming Marjorie; Mr. Standing appeared to great advantage as Geoffrey Challoner; Mr. Richard Telford, as Barry, created much merriment; Miss Lucie Lever was good as the Princess; and Miss Anna Robertson deserves commendation as Nan. Mr. Julian Graham, the courteous manager, was in charge of the front of the house.

TON-Y-PANDY.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees, Messrs. Carlton and Duckworth; General Manager, Mr. Sam. Duckworth; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry Counsell.—Messrs. Carson and Granville's company, in The Heart of a Hero, is a great attraction here. In Mr. F. W. Goddard the audience soon recognise a former local resident, and appland his fine rendering of the part of Jim Resdale; Wilfred Marl is well played by Mr. C. E. Johnson; Nell Resdale is undertaken in a praiseworthy manner by Miss Cissie St. Elmo; and Miss L. Langley shines as May Ryder.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. Carlton and Duckworth; Lessee, Miss A. Alexandra; Managing-Director, Mr. David Taylor.—Prince Ishmael (conjuror), who heads the bill here, gives a good turn; Abel and Welsh also occupy a prominent place in the programme; Bainetto, Aerial Marvel, displays great skill; and the Alaskarno troupe meet with great approbation.

TORQUAY.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Licensee and Managing-Director, Mr. R. Smerdon; Secretary, Mr. A. Pearse.—Miss Iva Rozant's The Designers company drew a crowded house on Monday. Mr. E. O'Grady did well as Mr. Currie; the quiet humour of Mr. Arthur Dennis as Percy Loraine was appreciated; and the facial by-play of Mr. Frank Lester as Toddlebury, and the natural quaintness of Mr. W. Hargraves as John Huggins, were very effective. Mr. William Luff as the Stage-struck Clerk was exceedingly good; and Mr. Herbert Lloyd's representation of "the plain workingman" Roodge was a clever study of contemporary life. Miss Iva Rozant as the love-sick Rachel was typically sentimental, and Miss Dorothy Sidney was a very satisfactory Mabel.

TUNBRIDGE WELLS.—THE OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee, Mr Charles Carey; Manager, Mr F. E. Manaton.—The pantomime season has been succeeded by a week of the drama, Judy; or, the Fatal Hand, being presented by a strong company, in which the leading rôles are sustained by Mr George Kirk, as Grip, and Miss Mary Neil, in the dual part of Alice, the victim, and Polly, the coster, of whom she gives a thrilling impersonation. The clever child actress, Miss Florrie Groves, in the title-rôle as Judy, the street child, also gives a pathetic study. The other members of the company also give able support, including Mr R. Ferris, Mr W. Vane, Mr W. Casey, Miss Violet Langley, and Miss Annie Mitchell. On Thursday Sousa and his band attracted two full houses.

WAKEFIELD.—THEATRE ROYAL OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors, Sherwood and Co.—Messrs. Forge and Dalton's pantomine, Cinderella, opened a week's engagement here on Monday. Miss Lizzie Primmer is an accomplished Cinderella, her singing and dancing ing favour; Miss Chummie La Mara, an attractive and dashing Prince Paragon, sings in excellent style; Dandini is smartly rendered by Miss Julie Alexander; Mr. Chas. T. Chaloner is capital at Peter; the Ugly Sisters are capably represented by Mr. Fred C. Brooks and Little Tony; Mr. Johnny Chippendale as the Baron proves droll; and Mr. John Forge and Mr. Ted Lemiere do well as Nabber and Nailem; Miss Gertrude Saville is pleasing as Pert; Miss Louie Dennison looks well as Fairy Sunshine; and Miss Sylvia Brooks is successful as Scribendi. The specialities are the Swift Trio of cyclists, who contribute a clever turn; Messrs. Forge and Lemiere in a musical act; the Quartano Troupe of Dancers; and the Original Musical Japs.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, the Wakefield Hippodrome, Limited; Manager, Mr. Geo. S. Douglass.—An attractive programme is provided this week here. It includes Mr. J. W. Hall, eccentric comedian, who has scored a distinct success; Messrs. Wragg and Wragg, military athletes, who perform excellent feats of swordsmanship; the Sisters Terry, baby mimics; Mr. A. P. Boswell, black comedian, in a smart chair balancing act; Lew Wells, musical tramp, who contributes an interesting turn; the Two Pooles, clever slab dancers; and the Gibbons photoscope.

WALLSEND.—THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.—Manager, Mr. Tony Richardson.—Messrs. Collins and Stevenson's pantomime, Sinbad the Sailor, is the attraction here this week. Miss Gertie Rowan is a dashing Principal Boy, and scores with her songs; Miss Florence Goldstone makes a fascinating Princess, and Miss Annie G. Brevitt is seen to advantage as Haidee. Mr. George Casey does well as Mrs. Sinbad, whilst Mr. Tom Cattle as Tinbad and Mr. Billy Moore as Captain Scuttlemen, are responsible for most of the fun. In the Palace scene some excellent specialities are introduced, including Percy Victor's Wonderful Dog Minstels; the Zaza Girls, acrobatic dancers; Eddie Clay, the tramp musician; Johnny and Edna, in their Cake-Walk; and Mr. Dan Harley, acrobatic clog dancer.

WALSALL.—HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE, LTD.—General Manager and Secretary, Mr. W. H. Westwood.—Dick Whittington was produced here on Monday, and Mr. James Kiddie's company is playing to good audiences. Miss Bessie Willow as Dick is successful, and her charming singing delights everybody. The acting of Miss Leah Laurie, in the character of Alice, leaves little to be desired; Miss Florence Hilton is sprightly as Sir Algernon de Mash; Miss Isabel Taylor as Captain Navycutte, and Miss Maud Hinton as Jock Heaveh, are worthy of special mention. Miss Meta Anderson, the Fairy Queen, has a good voice, which is heard to advantage in several songs. Mr. Allan Carruthers is making himself quite a favourite as Idle Jack; Mr. Harry Albery is extremely diverting as Amelia Florence, the cook; and Mr. W. V. Dido deserves great praise for his clever imitation of the domestic cat. Messrs. Curtis and Vanity are exceedingly good in the Cake Walk.

GRAND THEATRE, LTD.—General Manager and Secretary, Mr. W. H. Westwood.—The boards here this week are occupied by Mrs. Morton Powell's company in A Woman's Devotion. Mr. G. Gaisford cleverly represents the character of Richard Chesney; Philip Dangerfield is cleverly impersonated by Mr. Frank R. Robertson. As Paul Eversleigh, Mr. W. B. Somerville is all that could be desired. Mr. F. Hodson creditably acts the part of Bob Savage; Miss Maude S. Drewry is well placed as Maisie Loyale; and Mrs. Morton Powell makes a charming Gilberte Le Grand.

WALTHAMSTOW.—PALACE.—Managing-Director, Mr G. Adney Payne; Manager, Mr Arthur J. Barclay; Acting-Manager, Mr Geo. F. Slatter.—A programme of more than ordinary interest is provided here this week. Mr Walter Stanley sings a couple of songs in good style; Miss Eileen Douglas is an attractive comedienne and dainty skirt-dancer; the Golden Michalini win almost boisterous applause by their really clever equilibrism and juggling; Mr Gus Garrick is extremely quaint; and an interesting sketch, La Belle Parisienne, is capitally played by Messrs Fred Eustace and company. The Bransbys are good duettists, their coster scena being their best achievement. The Five Whiteleys repeat a performance that delights the public. The sensation of the bill is the appearance of the twin-formed Bohemian Sisters, Rosa and Josepha, who meet with a great reception. Ruffell's bioscope pictures are of more than usual interest.

WARRINGTON.—ROYAL COURT.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. Johnson and J. Potter; General Manager, Mr. J. Potter.—Mr. Frank Thorne's company, under the direction of Messrs. Carson and Grenville, is here this week in the romantic drama, Napoleon the Great. Mr. Hugh Montgomery, in the title-rôle, scores a big success, his lines being given with rare declamatory force; Mr. Henry Earlesmere acts well as the unscrupulous Colonel Lavarcunes; Mr. Phil. Harper is well placed as Colonel Jules Meuron; and Mr. J. G. Maine submits a clever character sketch of Paul Larzinska. Mr. Frank M. Thorne is most effective, and the humorous element is ably sustained by him, in conjunction with Mr. C. W. Spencer and Miss Marie Harcourt. Mr. Louis Edmonde is an effective Monsieur Fouché, Minister of Police; Miss Chrissie Dunfar plays with dignity as Marie Walewska; and Miss Maud Russell is a graceful Madame Marbœuf.

ROYAL THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. Johnson and J. Potter; General Manager, Mr. J. Potter; Director of Amusements, Mr. F. Willmot.—Another capital company is here this week, and Walter King, the eccentric chorus comedian, scores well. The Royal Bioscope, manipulated by Mr. Wieskvi, shows a series of charming pictures; J. H. Harris is a versatile comedian; and the Wynfords are jumping experts; Les Manipulos, Parisian magicians, supply an excellent turn; and equally successful are the Maremis Electric Wonders; Walter Emmerson, comedian; and Russell Hatton, sketch artist.

WEDNESBURY.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr. Harry Battersby; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. J. Cranston.—Mr. John Wainwright's Co. is here in It's Never Too Late to Mend. Mr Wainwright, in the important part of Tom Robinson, proves himself a capable artist; as George Fielding, Mr Wilfred Grahame gives a powerful interpretation; Mr Charles F. Johnson exhibits considerable skill in his portrayal of the Rev. Francis Eden; Peter Crawley is cleverly enacted by Mr Henry Lee; and Mr Edwin Davis is warmly appreciated in his rendering of Isaac Levi. Miss Kitty Randolph makes a sprightly Susan Merton; Miss M. Ashton does well in the rôle of Mary; and as Josephs Miss Millie Wilton is seen to advantage.

WEST BROMWICH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. P. Moore.—Messrs. Alfred Northway and W. V. Garrod's company, in the well-known drama, The Sledge Hammer, is drawing good houses here this week. Mr. Charles Herberte has scored a distinct success as Mathew Derrick, and an excellent study of his three sons, Everard, Jacob, and Simon, is given by Messrs. W. V. Garrod, A. Northway, and C. Halling. Special mention should be made of Mr. Frank Litchfield, as the lively Tom Walker; the Sammy Shaws of Mr. Frank Dallas is worthy of praise; and the same may be said of Miss Ivy Ellaline Thorne in the part of Catherine Hennis. Miss Bertha Kingston wins the sympathies of all by her impersonation of Rose Maywell.

WEST HARTLEPOOL.—TOWN HALL.—The entertainment by Mr. F. W. Cockrill's concert party recently was an indisputable success. The principal and most enjoyable turn was that of Miss Ethel Walker who, at the piano, contributed humorous musical sketches, which have certainly not been eclipsed here. Jack Macdermott, in a musical sketch, had to respond to an encore richly deserved; Mr. J. P. Ling scored heavily in his Little Drama, which was excruciatingly funny; harp solos were contributed by Miss Aidee Le Moire, and enjoyable baritone songs by Mr. W. Donaldson Spark.

GRAND.—General Manager (for Mrs. Weldon Watts), Mr. Sidney Bacon; Resident Manager, Mr. Fred Conneaux.—A decided success has been achieved here by the booking of Mr. George Dance's company in The Orchid. Mr. Ernest Darrell, in the rôle of Mr. Aubrey Chesterton, is quite satisfactory; as Meakin, Mr. Charles R. Walenn is funny, and in conjunction with Mr. Edmund Page as Comte Raoul, creates unbounded laughter in the duel scene. Dr. Ronald Faussett has a capable representative in Mr. Edmund Hollick, and Mr. G. Davy Burnaby capitally plays the part of the Hon. Guy Scrymgeour. Lady Violet Anstruther is daintily represented by Miss Ethel Bryant; Caroline Vokins is amusing in the hands of Miss Madge Lucas; and as Thisbe, Miss Chrissie Ralland is well placed. Zelie is capably played by Miss Sylvia de Lacy, and Zaccary effectively presented by Mr. Arthur P. Hemsley.

PALACE.—Director-General, Mr. Frank Macnaghten.—The place of honour on the bill here is given to A Ba Be's Picture Post-card Album—a most novel and artistic display of living pictures. Lockhart's wonderful elephants go through a performance that creates astonishment; Frances Haskoll, in an electrical illusory novelty, The Vocal Chameleon, is the delight of everybody; Lilieth Leyton is a decided success in a sketch, The Order of the Bath. She is assisted by Mr. J. G. Bentham. Martinetti and Grossi, in an amusing sketch, give evidence of musical ability; the Dancing by Viviana is pretty and neat; Percy Hannan, the Boy Baritone, is well received; and the Two Jagos contribute an enjoyable turn.

WESTON-SUPER-MARE.—KNIGHTSTONE PAVILION AND OPERA HOUSE.—Manager, Mr. W. Payne.—Mr. Charles W. Poole's Myriorama is paying a welcome return visit here this week. The up-to-date pictures and animated photographs are much appreciated. In addition, an excellent variety programme is provided. The Royal Comedy Four are well received in their humorous sketch; Coma gains much applause as an ambidexteriologist; and Little Henny is successful as an acrobatic danseuse. The Three Condos are clever equilibrists; and Fanning's Fantoches gain ample applause. Harry Raymond is loudly applauded for his singing of "Navaho;" and the Musical Schaffers are a pleasing turn. Funny Chef creates much laughter; and Mr. Arthur Craven is an excellent guide and lecturer.

WHITEHAVEN.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. J. Clark.—Mr. Gordon Starkey's company is engaged here in A Message from Mars. As Horace Parker, Mr. Cyril Austen-Lee is excellent, and a capital performance is that of Mr. W. Lockhart, as The Messenger; Mr. Percy Tyler is good as a tramp; and Mr. A. Collins Rolfe acts well as Arthur Dicey. Miss Violet Auberies is smart and thorough as Miss Parker; and a pleasing performance is submitted by Miss Edith Cuthbert as Minnie.

WIGAN.—ROYAL COURT THEATRE.—Proprietors, the Wigan Entertainments Company; Managing-Director, Mr. John Worswick.—The Moody-Manners Opera Company is here this week in a series of grand operas, including: Faust, Cavalleria Rusticana, La Traviata, Maritana, Lohengrin, Carmen, &c.

GRAND THEATRE AND HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, the Wigan Entertainments Company; Managing-Director, Mr. J. Worswick.—An excellent programme is furnished this week at the Hippodrome. Selma Braatz is a young lady juggler of the first order; E. J. Sheldon and George Scott are clever and amusing comedians; and Henri Cazman, quick-change artiste, wins much applause. The Sisters Marion are pleasing juvenile vocalists; and Florence Yaymen, American comedienne; Charles Majilton in a farce entitled, "Round the Clock"; Belle Braham, vocalist; and the Bros. Artois, comedy artistes, complete a most satisfactory list of performers.

EMPIRE MUSIC HALL.—Manager, Mr. W. Birchall.—A capital programme is provided this week. Currie and Rice are most entertaining comedians; Mayon and Marie are clever sketch artistes; and Pat Murphy is a pedestal trick dancer; Miss Clive Poole, comedienne; Barney Noble, versatile character comedian; Miss Chrissy Evelyn, comedienne; Prof. Warton, sleight of hand expert; and Miss Lily Clifford, Tyrolean vocalist, complete a good list.

WINDSOR.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Licensee, Mr. Fred L. Connynghame; General Business-Manager, Mr. Worton David; Assistant Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry Nash.—A diverting entertainment has been provided for the Royal borough by Mr. John H. Morton and company, who have been playing The Rajah of Ranjapore. Mr. Alvin Sawyer as Horatio Chicks, and Mr. Bert Harrow, as Thistles, the principal comedian, are both clever and funny; Mr. Harry Cornwall does well as Mr. Stubb; Mr. Arthur Reid presents a capable impersonation of Captain Hertage; and Mr. Philip Percival achieves success as a baritone. Miss Nell Ascott, as Primrose, also sings with sweetness and culture; Miss Marion Walker, as Eliza, the housemaid, is sprightly and vivacious; and Miss Annie Trevor, Miss Minnie Blackmore, and Mr. George Trevor fill minor parts with sufficient skill.

WOLVERHAMPTON.—GRAND THEATRE.—Lessees and Managers, Mr. E. H. Bull and Mr. Milton Bode; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy Percival.—Nothing brighter, prettier, or more brilliant in the way of scenery, costumes, and stage effects generally has been seen on the boards of the Wolverhampton Theatre than is being displayed this week in The Earl and the Girl, played by Mr. William Greet's company. The part of Jim Cheese is taken by Mr. Reginald Lurtz, whose impersonation is both clever and amusing, nothing but laughter being heard while he is on the stage. As Dick Wargrave Mr. Alec Fraser is excellent; and other male characters are ably filled by Mr. Haddon Cane (Hon. Crewe Boodle); Mr. H. B. Brandreth (Bunker Bliss); Mr. Frank W. Cane (Downham); and Mr. W. T. Hybert (Mr. Talk). Miss Mary Fraser fills the part of Elphin Haye in a charming manner, and sings nicely; Miss Cynthia Carey is capital as Liza Shoddam; Miss Maude Aston is smart and chic as Daisy Fallowfield; and Miss Maud Adams as Mrs. Shimmering Black, and Miss Mary Morison as Miss Virginia Bliss, are noticeable for their fine appearance.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Chas. Barnard; General-Manager, Mr. W. H. Lennon.—The droll and peculiar comedian George Formby heads the list this week. Goggin and Davis give an acrobatic performance; Prince Fee Lung is seen to advantage as a conjuror; The Bollingers present some clever pictures in rags; and Will Cornish is a smart musician. Marie Wilton, vocalist and dancer; De Vere and Kenrick; Chas. Russell, and the Bioscope also appear in the programme.

WORCESTER.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr. Arthur Carlton; Manager, Mr. Louis Karpe; Assistant-Manager, Mr. F. Le Wards.—Mr. Mouillot's principal operatic company is here this week in The Geisha and A Greek Slave. Presented on Monday evening before a good house, the first-named had a cordial reception, most of the popular numbers being encored. The principals were Miss Violet Moore (O Mimosa San), Miss Florrie Saunders (Molly Seymour), Miss Aubrey Ashton (Lady Constance), Miss Violet Kenyon (Juliette), Mr. Lionel Braham (Marquis), Mr. J. Hornby (Captain Katana), Mr. F. P. Wilfrid (Wun Hi), an efficient substitute for Mr. E. Carlton, who accidentally sprained his ankle, and Mr. H. Reynolds (Takemine). The opera was brilliantly mounted.

A second week of variety entertainment, arranged by Mr. Arthur Carlton, has been given at the Public Hall this week, the artistes being the Spanish Goldena Troupe, the Deveres, Will Dalton (humorist), Leo (ventriloquist), the Hiltons (athletes), Hafiz (magician), the Rushforths, and Miss Vokey Gaylor (vocalists).

WORTHING.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager, Herr C. Adolf Seebold.—Mr. Harry Firth's pantomime, Cinderella, is here this week. Mr. E. Wilson is good as the Baron; Cinderella is charmingly portrayed by Miss Madge Osmond; Miss Dora Denmark makes a capital Prince, her fine contralto voice being greatly admired; Miss Maudie Francis, as Dorothy, is a highly capable dancer; Mr. J. Binns, as Butterina, and Mr. H. Haines, as Margerina, the Baron's twins, greatly add to the go of the piece by their eccentricities; and Miss Ethel Moher, as Dandini, is extremely good.

WREXHAM.—EMPIRE MUSIC HALL.—

LONDON & SUBURBAN THEATRES.

THE TERRISS.

On Monday, Feb. 6, the Drama, in Five Acts, by George R. Sims and Wilson Barrett, entitled "THE GOLDEN LADDER."

The succession of well-tried and popular plays which Messrs. Walter and Frederick Melville are providing at the Terriss is proving very attractive. This week has brought the sterling melodrama, The Golden Ladder, with which the earlier renown of the late Wilson Barrett is associated, and in the construction of which the practised pen of Mr. George R. Sims has been worthily employed. Thrilling situations multiply throughout the piece, and nothing could exceed the enthusiasm of the patriotic residents of Rotherhithe when a file of British bluejackets, landed from a man-of-war, are brought face to face with the French at Madagascar, and prevent a premeditated attack on the English mission house. Incidents of domestic and pathetic interest are also numerous, and of comedy scenes there is no lack. The performance of the piece by Miss Mary Austin and Mr. Vivian Edmonds's company closely approaches perfection, and in each case the suitability of the players to their parts is evident. An excellent example of the militant parson is supplied by Mr. Harry Cullenford, who invests the Rev. Frank Thornhill with all the chivalry and virility that is his due. Stalwart of figure and earnest in expression, he makes the character of surpassing importance, and, if occasionally he falls into a little over-accentuation, that may be put down to an excess of emotion that at other times proves invaluable. Miss Conyers Radcliffe makes of Lilian Grant a gentle and lovable personage, and where the pathos of the part calls for adequate expression Miss Radcliffe excels. Neither does she fail in the proper expression of indignation, and the intensity of the innocent woman rebutting a cruel charge of murder is powerfully effective. Mr. Graham Winsford enters thoroughly into the villainy of the Greek mercenary Peranza, and a flexible voice and a keen humorous perception enable him to give colour to every variety of the rôle. The bolder evil-doing of Michael Severn is accomplished with dramatic skill by Mr. J. Milne Taylor, who becomes very passionate in the part, delivering the lines with impressive power. Mr. Dan Mining divides himself equally between comedy and iniquity as Jim Dixon, and of both phases of the character he gives a rendition than which nothing could be better or more effective. The part of the pastrycook Peckaby is played by Mr. Frank Hill, a comedian of the old school of the very best type. He exacts abundant laughter as the price of his drollery, and the ludicrous situations in which he is concerned are put in the most comic light, the effect being irresistible. Mrs. Peckaby is treated in a similarly quaint style by Miss Nellie Graham, and the vagaries of Victoria, the comely young daughter, are pleasantly performed by Miss Jessie Gillette. Miss Janet Wakeling may be heartily commended for her performance of the native girl Rossomazy, and the ferocity of Rao, the Malay servant, is well assumed by Mr. Eric Thomson. Little Vera makes a winsome Lily, and speaks very prettily. As Lieutenant Valnois and Dr. Lemair, both of the French Navy, Mr. Hartland Rowe and Mr. W. Chambers are efficient; while the gallant attributes of Captain Jackson are finely suggested by Mr. Frank Martin. The parts of Mr. John Grant and Noah Learoyd are well placed in the hands of Mr. Edward Bikker and Mr. Raymond Chester; Miss Fanny Morse plays satisfactorily as Mrs. Dixon; Miss Alvina Mining is duly eccentric as Prisoner No. 2; and the rest of the long cast is well represented. The difficulties of the heavy mounting have been cleverly overcome, some of the sets, notably that of Hampstead Heath by night, being admirable.

CORONET THEATRE.

On Monday, Feb. 6, the Comedy, by Henry Arthur Jones, entitled "JOSEPH ENTANGLED."

The pantomime season being now virtually finished in Suburbia, the dramatic season has once more started at the Coronet, with Messrs. Lawrence Grant and Malcolm Barrington's company, in Mr. H. A. Jones's clever comedy, Joseph Entangled, with Mrs. Mouillot and Mr. Lawrence Grant in the principal parts. Mr. Henry Arthur Jones has written this serio-comedy on the same lines as his other brilliant social satires, such as The Liars, The Whitewashing of Julia, &c., and every phase of this domestic storm in a tea-cup is clearly and concisely shown. Mrs. Mouillot acts with her customary charm of manner, and aptly indicates the fascinating femininity of Lady Verona, who loves a mild flirtation, and is throughout the victim of circumstances beyond her control. She also cleverly enables us to understand the storm of jealousy and the rage of unrequited love which her gentle, soft, insinuating manners could arouse in a man who once began to suspect and doubt her honesty. Mr. Lawrence Grant gives an admirable portraiture of the devil-may-care Sir Joseph Lacy, who, having sown his wild oats, is quite prepared to reap the heavy harvest of trouble and discredit which a really innocent escapade seems likely to develop into. His bright moments and his tender passages are alike admirable. Mr. Hugh Ardale ably tackles the unthankful part of the jealous husband, Hardolph Mayne; Mr. F. H. Denton is vastly amusing as the good-natured, irresolute numskull, Harry Tavender; Mr. Charles Levison Lane contributes a clever little character-sketch as the peace-making man of the world, Jermyn Pyecroft, with his peculiar views on life and "the thing called honour"; Mr. Arthur Bell is quite satisfactory in the small part of Gerald Fanmore; as the eccentric genius, Professor Tofield, Mr. Everard Digby causes considerable amusement; and Miss Alys Read, as Lady Joyce Fanmore, the cause of all the matrimonial pother, and Miss Evelyn Maxwell, as the gossiping Mrs. Harry Tavender, are well in the picture and eminently satisfactory. Mr. Guy Lane (who also stage manages) and Miss Claire Cavendish do excellent work as Knapman and his better half, whose endeavour to smooth things over for their young master and mistress only serve to further complicate matters. The pièce de résistance is preceded by the curtain-raiser, by Cosmo Hamilton, entitled Jerry and a Sunbeam, which is brightly and agreeably interpreted by Miss Evelyn Maxwell, as the enterprising husband-seeker and heiress, Mary Bellasis, and the honest but stupid solicitor, Jerry Corbett.

THE CAMDEN.

On Monday, Feb. 6, the Musical Pantomimical Comedy entitled "THE SWISS EXPRESS."

The pantomime, after having had a most successful run, was withdrawn on Saturday last, and on Monday Messrs. C. and F. Renad occupied the boards with their mirth-provoking absurdity, The Swiss Express. It is a capitally managed production, and is full of merriment from start to finish. The Renad Brothers are hosts in themselves, and as the two footmen they are extremely diverting. Their innumerable devices for causing laughter seem to be inexhaustible. The scene on the Swiss Express still remains as funny as ever. The brothers are supported by a very capable company. Mr. Wilford Bailey is delightful as Dr. Gondimar Gull, and keeps the fun going all the time. Another humorous impersonation is that of Dudley Green, as played by Mr. Alec Wylie, who scores heavily in the part. A winsome and dainty Virginia is found in Miss May Hart, who has a couple of songs which make her a great favourite, her dancing being also a source of pleasure. Mr. George Martin makes a capable Bob Rollingstone; and Mr. George Power a most amusing landlord of the Black Bear. Mr. H. Alexander, as Septimus Squeeze, adds to the humour of the play, and Mr. Harwood Cooper is in every way excellent as Jack Gadabout. There are various other minor characters, which are suitably filled. The Four Brighton Girls give a clever sword and lance display, and also execute some neat dances, all of which meet with much approval. The stage effects are in every way complete, and there is a good deal of trick scenery, which is made the most of, with excellent results. It is evident that The Swiss Express has still a long run before it.

THE PAVILION.

On Monday, Feb. 6, the Pantomime, written and invented by Fred Bowyer, entitled "CINDERELLA."

After a successful season at Peckham, the pantomime of Cinderella has been transferred in its entirety to the Pavilion, and opened to a large and enthusiastic house on Monday. The book, by Mr. Fred Bowyer, is smartly written, and while keeping up continuity in the story, which is told in a very quaint and humorous style, abounds with quips and jokes, which are well taken up by the audience. The music, arranged and composed by Mr. Henry Sprake, who is conducting for this engagement, is light and sparkling, and whilst introducing many popular airs, contains a quantity of original composition which is deserving of special mention. Miss Alice Lloyd, an ideal Cinderella, acquits herself admirably in all respects. Whether acting, singing, or dancing, this clever artist endows everything she does with charm and piquancy, and speedily wins the admiration of all. Miss Rose Hamilton makes a dashing Dandini, her fine presence, sweet vocalisation, and graceful dancing contributing in no small measure to the success she attains. Grace and elegance unite with the art of the comedienne in her impersonation of the gay young gallant, in whom so much of the interest of the production centres. Miss Hamilton's popularity at Peckham was recently proved when she was awarded the "Sloper" prize of a diamond ring by an overwhelming public vote, and if there is any more jewellery going under the same conditions in Mile-end, Miss Hamilton seems in a fair way to secure it, such a phenomenal favourite has she become. Her appearance in her several costumes is entirely captivating, and when she sings, as she does often, the delivery of the words and the well-studied action compel admiration. To hear her render "The Smartest Boy in Town" is thoroughly to grasp every point of a song teeming with topical hits, which have won many recalls, a compliment which in nearly every instance has attended her vocal efforts. Miss Hamilton is also heard to advantage in her song, "The Hoodoo Landlord," which, with effects and hidden chorus, is vociferously redemanded, and her success is well deserved. Miss May Mars, an elegant and bright Prince, soon becomes a general favourite, her vocal efforts being rewarded with loud applause; and Miss Zillah Price possesses a clear voice of great flexibility, which she displays to advantage in the rôle of the Fairy Godmother. Mr. Jake Friedman, an excellent Baron Buckshot, introduces some capital business, his "One Man Opera" fairly bringing down the house. Charlotte finds an exceptionally droll representative in Mr. Dan Crawley, who is excruciatingly funny. This gentleman has a large fund of quaint humour, and keeps his audience in the best possible spirits. A masterly impersonation of Jane is given by Mr. Charles Sloman, who is to be commended for his make-up and clever acting. As Peter, Mr. W. T. Thompson endows the part with much that is original and amusing, his songs and dances evoking some of the heartiest applause of the evening. Mr. Arthur Lawrence is a powerful Snagfang, his fine well-trained voice being heard to good effect in his song, "The Brigand Bold." Special praise must be given to Miss Katie Bell, as Lord Gadfly, and Miss Flossie Bell, as Lady Mildred. Both these ladies are excellent vocalists, and dance in a charming manner. The Brothers Ethairien, as Ginger and Stoney, are clever in their business, and supply much fun that is novel and laughable. Mr. Edward Sillward is to be highly congratulated on his realistic performance of the gorilla, Beauty, one of the finest animal impersonations ever given on the boards. Miss Jessie Beaumont is most satisfactory in the part of Sir Percy Loosecash; and efficient representatives of Beaujolais and Caramel are found in Miss Lillie Smith and Miss J. Williams. Miss Gladys Harvey is a bewitching Chrystolis, and Mr. Harry Bristow works hard as the Landlord. The scenery is elaborate, the dresses are in admirable taste, and the tout ensemble is extremely pleasing. The arduous duties of stage-manager are in the experienced hands of Mr. Fred Boustead, who has been indefatigable in his efforts, being loyally assisted by his capable lieutenant, Mr. Harry Bristow. The whole has been produced under the personal superintendence of Mr. Isaac Cohen, to whose excellent administrative powers all congratulation is due.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE, N.

On Monday, Feb. 6, the Musical Comedy, in Three Acts, by Owen Hall, Composed by Liza Lehmann, entitled "SERGEANT BRUE."

The run of the pantomime having been brought to a successful termination on Saturday last, the spring season opened on Monday, Sergeant Brue, still in the height of its popularity in the West-end, being the attraction for the present week. The company, which is under the direction of Mr. Frank Curzon, has evidently been selected with care and discrimination. The play is adequately mounted, and more than a passing word of praise is due to the dressing of the piece. Mr. Edward Kipling, in the rôle of Sergeant Brue, originally played by Mr. Willie Edouin, contributes an exceedingly droll impersonation, and he is responsible for a considerable amount of the laughter heard during the evening. Another clever and finished piece of acting is supplied by Mr. George Barrett, as Crookie Scrubbs, and Mr. Charles Hanbury is satisfactory as Michael Brue. A characteristic sketch of Mr. Crank comes from Mr. Campbell Bishop. A bright and engaging Aurora Brue is found in Miss Hilda Antony, and her performance is one that is of great value to the production. The Lady Bicknell of Miss Eleanor Estelle is in every way a pleasing performance, and full advantage of every opportunity the part affords is taken by Miss L. Zambray as Daisy, the servant. Other parts are capably filled by Messrs. Thomas Holding, Archie Croft, Paddy Dupres, W. H. Page, Ivor Harvey, and Michael Watson.

THE MARLBOROUGH.

On Monday, Feb. 6. "THE DUKE OF KILLICRANKIE."

The pantomime of Aladdin finished its very successful run on Saturday amid a scene of great enthusiasm, and before a large and enthusiastic audience. The artistes have all worked hard and well together; the scenery and dresses could not possibly have been improved upon; and the music has been fully up to the general excellence of the production. Mr. Purcell's "right hand," Mr. Manager Yeulett, has been indefatigable in his endeavours to secure the comfort of his numerous patrons, and his marked ability in this respect has been much appreciated. This week more merriment has been evoked by Robert Marshall's farcical romance entitled The Duke of Killicrankie, and every character is adequately filled. Mr. Scott Craven, in the title-rôle, gets every particle of value out of the part. As Mr. Henry Pitt-Welby, M.P., Mr. Arthur Grenville affords evidence of his histrionic abilities, and is greeted with general applause. As the glue-maker's wealthy widow, Mrs. Mulholland, Miss Aida Jenoure could scarcely be excelled; every action and word fit the situation with remarkable precision. The talent of Miss Doris Templeton is manifested in the natural manner in which she renders the part of the Lady Henrietta Addison. Miss Margaret Damer is to be congratulated on her assumption of the rôle of the haughty Countess of Pangbourne. Mr. Pat Newall gives a good performance of the small part of Ambrose Hicks, and Mr. Guy Watson and Miss Helen K. Robertson capably undertake the rôles of Mr. and Mrs. MacBayne, caretakers at Crag o' North. The remaining characters are adequately portrayed. On Monday afternoon a flying visit was made by Sousa and his band.

THE BRIXTON.

On Monday, Feb. 6, the Play, entitled "A MESSAGE FROM MARS."

After a successful season of pantomime a return this week is made to the usual dramatic fare with a visit from Mr. Mouillot's principal company in Robert Ganthony's well-known play, A Message from Mars. It is interpreted by an excellent company of artistes, and is mounted in admirable style. The character of the selfish Horace Parker has a capable representative in Mr. F. Rawson Buckley, and Mr. W. H. Brougham's fine physique and excellent voice stand him in good stead as the Messenger from Mars. The tramp of Mr. Bruce Lindley is a very effective study, and Mr. Frank Dunn is well placed as the American Arthur Dicey. Miss May Saker makes a pretty and sympathetic Minnie Templer, and Miss Flora Hastings is excellent as Horace's aunt, Miss Parker. Miss Peggy E. Yeoman acts well as the Servant Bella, so does Miss Joan Meredith as Mrs. Clarence. The smaller parts, which are in capable hands, are undertaken by Mr. H. E. Lanceley, as Dr. Chapman; Mr. E. French, as Sir Vivian, an astronomer; Mr. Lionel West, as Mr. Ferguson, Horace Parker's solicitor; Mr. J. Truswell Holt, as a policeman; Mr. H. M. Davidson, as Sir Roland Wright; Mr. Louis Cabaret, as Mr. Shillingford; Miss Elsie Walton, as a flower girl; Miss Vera Corona, as a poor woman; and Miss Elsie Crisp, as a little girl; and Miss Teresa Vanbrugh, as Polly, and all lend their valuable assistance to make the performance a success. The orchestra, under the capable direction of Mr. George Bonner, plays some capital selections during the intervals, and the courteous and popular assistant-manager, Mr. R. W. Allum, is still studying the comforts of his numerous patrons.

SHAKESPEARE, CLAPHAM JUNCTION.

On Monday, Feb. 6, the Musical Comedy by James T. Tanner and Lionel Monckton, entitled "THE CINGALEE."

Mr. George Dance's chief company, which has been appearing in this pretty musical comedy this week at the Shakespeare Theatre, is a very good one. The scenery and dresses are bright too, and the whole production goes with a swing. Mr. Lauri De Frece, as Chambhuddy Ram, and Miss Mabel Sealby, as Peggy Sabine, take the honours of the piece. Mr. De Frece is very capable, while Miss Sealby is a bright, pretty, and accomplished singer and dancer. Miss Ethel Negretti, as Nanoya, is distinctly good in both singing and dancing. Mr. Fred W. Pattrick has made a great success as Boobhamba, receiving numerous encores. Mr. George Mudie, jun., sings well as Bobby Warren. Mr. Francis Ludlow is deserving of praise as Harry Vereker, while Mr. F. W. Ford brings out all the humour of the part of Sir Peter Loftus. Miss Madge Temple makes a dashing Lady Patricia Vane, while Miss Trissie March, as Angy Loftus, delights everyone with her dainty dancing. In minor parts the following deserve notice:—Misses Poppy Wilkinson, May Curtis, Iris Grosvenor, and Minnie Muir; and Messrs. Erne, Bates, Nix, Taylor, and Carter.

GRAND, WOOLWICH.

On Tuesday, Feb. 7, the Opera, entitled "MARITANA."

Many of those in Woolwich who are fond of good music well rendered have had ample opportunity this week for the gratification of this taste, for Mr. J. W. Turner has been here with his English Opera Company, his répertoire consisting of The Bohemian Girl, Maritana, Il Trovatore, Faust, Carmen, and The Daughter of the Regiment. On Tuesday Maritana was given, and was well received by an appreciative audience. Miss Kitty Brownless made a dainty and interesting Maritana, her graceful acting and general charm of manner adding to the value of her impersonation, while her clear soprano voice was heard to advantage in several well-known numbers; perhaps her greatest success was with her song, "The Harp in the Air." Miss Jessie Dennis played Lazarillo in spirited style, and made a hit with an excellent rendering of "Alas! those Chimes." Miss Maud Esdale did as well as possible with the small part of the Marchioness. Mr. J. W. Turner acted with all his old force, energy, and adaptability as Don Cæsar de Bazan, and sang several favourite numbers with great success. His version of "Let me like a soldier fall" was most enthusiastically redemanded. As Don José Mr. Tom Griffiths acted well, and used his fine voice with discretion and power, his happiest effort being perhaps his rendering of "In happy moments day by day." Mr. Sidney Clifford gave an excellent account of himself as Charles II., his good bass voice being much appreciated, and Mr. Richard Cummings was a comical Marquis de Montefiore. The singing of the chorus was in every way admirable, the excellent rendering of the concerted numbers being a special feature of the performance.

KING'S THEATRE, HAMMERSMITH.

On Monday, Feb. 6, the Musical Play entitled "THE ORCHID."

The pantomime having run its allotted career, gave way on Monday evening to Mr. George Edwardes' still running Gaiety success, played by his chief touring company. Than the second edition of The Orchid it may be confidently said that there is no brighter musical comedy to be seen and heard in all London, for Mr. Tannar has an interesting story to tell, and his dialogue is smartly written, while the music of Messrs. Ivan Caryll and Lionel Monckton, with the additional numbers of Mr. Paul Rubens, is decidedly pleasant to the ear, and demands for repetition frequently occur. Entirely new and elaborate costumes and scenery are provided, presenting a veritable feast of colour for the eye to gaze upon. The company, last but by no means least, is in some respects changed from the last visit, and certainly strengthened. Miss Rita Everard makes a decidedly piquant and graceful Lady Violet Anstruther, and sings her songs with a distinctness that enables them to be thoroughly appreciated. Caroline Vokins is happily played by Miss Gertrude Aylward, whose amusing acting causes much hilarity. An animated performance of Josephine Zaccary is given by Miss Gertrude Gilliam, who uses a pleasing voice with good effect. Miss Amy Payne renders Thisbe, the private secretary, in very bright fashion. Miss Ethel Griffies acts charmingly and looks handsome as the adventuress, Zelie Rumbert, and the Countess Anstruther is well played by Miss Katie Leechman. Mr. Charles Brown admirably sustains the part of the Hon. Guy Scrymgeour, which he endows with much life, and Mr. Donald Hall is seen to much advantage as Dr. Ronald Fausset. An exceedingly able "take off" of a well-known politician is contributed by Mr. Ellis Ogilvie, who acts cleverly as Mr. Aubrey Chesterton, the orchid enthusiast. Mr. Clifford Seyler presents a lifelike portrait of the highly excitable Comte Raoul de Cassignat, and his two seconds, M. Fontenbras and M. Merignac, are capably enacted by Mr. E. G. Woodhouse and Mr. E. Rutland. The Registrar is a laughable piece of fooling by Mr. Frank Hector. Mr. E. W. Colman provides a genuinely humorous performance of the orchid hunter, Zaccary, and his nimble dancing meets with popular approval. The heartiest of laughter is caused by the really funny picture of Meakin presented by Mr. George Gregory, whose appearance alone gives rise to smiles. The orchestra is ably controlled by Mr. Ernee Woodville.

WEST LONDON.

On Monday, Feb. 6, the Drama, in Four Acts, by Walter Melville, entitled "A GIRL'S CROSS ROADS."

When first this notable play of Mr. W. Melville's was submitted for the approval of the West Londoners, it met with a most cordial reception, so that on the night of our visit this week, we were not at all surprised to find a crowded, enthusiastic audience assembled to welcome its return. Mr. Charles Franmore's portrayal of the old farmer, John Meadows, was replete with those characteristic touches that are only vouchsafed by an actor of wide experience. Mr. Cecil A. Melton acted Jack Livingstone in forcible fashion; Mr. John Brooks was efficient in every way as Luke Ramsden; and Mr. P. Barry-Lewers was responsible for a satisfactory and powerful rendering of Cuthbert Lumley. The vagaries of Toby Turvey found ample expression at the hands of Mr. Fred Ingram, his drolleries being well backed up by Tilly Vane, a part piquantly played by Miss Lilla Norden. The important rôle of Barbara Wade was sustained by that accomplished actress, Miss Hilda Beverley, in a most convincing way. In the third and fourth acts her acting touched an exceedingly high level, and made a great impression on the minds of the Marylebone playgoers, who were most lavish with their applause, and justly so. As Nellie Meadows, the erring farmer's daughter, Miss Nell Oliver looked and acted decidedly well, whilst Miss Grace Richardson was pleasing and dainty as Constance Cornell. Of the minor characters, mention may be made of Mr. Chas. Terry (Dr. Watson), Mr. David Borone (Joe Coyle), and Mr. Charles Dowe, as the pickpocket Crofts. Mr. Bert E. Hammond is the manager and stage director for Mr. W. Melville, the front of the house being looked after by Mr. James Sinclair in his accustomed genial way.

COUNTY THEATRE, KINGSTON.

On Monday, Feb. 6, the Musical Comedy, in three Acts, entitled "KITTY GREY."

Mr. C. St. John Denton's principal touring company has been appearing in this successful play at the Royal County Theatre, Kingston, during the week, and it has been witnessed by a numerous audience each night. The comedy has been made even more attractive than when it was at Kingston last, by the introduction of new songs and dances, and of other features, which were most favourably received. Mr. St. John Denton's company, a numerous and most capable one, gave a clever and intelligent interpretation of the comedy, the musical part of which was especially well enjoyed, several of the numbers having to be re-sung in response to the applause evoked. Miss Hilda Guiver made a successful appearance in the title rôle, which she filled with much ability. Mr. Wensley Russell played Sir John Binfield with tact, and Miss Eily Helene was an agreeable Lady Binfield. Miss Hilda Scarisbrick was admirable as Saide de Poulson, and Miss Emily Stevens earned favour by her rendering of the part of Mrs. Bright. The part of the King of Illyria was in the capable hands of Mr. Robert White, jun., and that of Lord Plantagenet was ably filled by Mr. Leslie Harris. The play was admirably mounted, and there was a full chorus and augmented orchestra, under the direction of Mr. Albert Vernon.

GRAND, FULHAM.

On Monday, Feb. 6, "THE MIKADO."

At the Grand, the D'Oyly Carte répertoire opera company is giving a series of performances of the best-known Gilbert and Sullivan operas. The week opened on Monday with The Mikado. The company is a capable one, and a crowded house fully appreciated a good performance. The Mikado has now taken rank, one might say, as a classic, and is nearly as full of quotations as Hamlet. But it appears to enjoy perrenial youth, and the familiar songs, with their tuneful melodies and extraordinarily clever versification, as well as the quaint dances, were received with unstinted applause, and encored again and again. Mr. C. H. Workman took the important part of Ko-Ko, and caused much amusement. So also did Mr. Fred Billington as Pooh-Bah, his ponderous manner and dry humour being quite in keeping with the best traditions of the part. Mr. Pacie Ripple played and sang well as Nanki-Poo, and Mr. Albert Kavanagh was a jovial representative of the Mikado. Miss Norah Maguire was Yum-Yum, and was well supported by Miss Jessie Rose and Miss Alice Lisle as the other two little maids from school, while Miss Theresa Rassam sang finely as Katisha. Iolanthe was billed for Tuesday, The Pirates of Penzance for Wednesday matinée, The Gondoliers for Wednesday night, the Yeomen of the Guard for Thursday, and H.M.S. Pinafore, followed by Trial by Jury, for Friday.

BOROUGH THEATRE, STRATFORD.

On Monday, Feb. 6, the Play in Four Acts, by Hall Caine, entitled, "THE ETERNAL CITY."

Saturday last saw the termination of pantomime at the Stratford Borough Theatre, and Monday night ushered in the first of this year's bookings in The Eternal City. The piece had a cordial reception on this, its second, visit to Stratford, this time under the régime of Mr. J. Bannister Howard, the members of whose company all acquitted themselves with credit. Mr. D. Lewin Mannering makes a suave, calculating Baron Bonelli, his acting being always incisive and convincing. Mr. Frederick Victor looks well, and plays with power and fluency as David Rossi. Mr. F. Vernon Travers imbues the character of Pope Pius XI. with a reverential air, and his utterances are duly impressive. Mr. P. L. Julian is responsible for a fine piece of acting as Bruno Rocco; Mr. E. Stanton-Sharp plays with distinction as Commendatore Angelelli; Mr. Charles Stafford takes full advantage of the chances offered him as Charles Minghelli; and Mr. A. G. Brown cleverly realises Tomaso. Miss Helen Haye essays the arduous rôle of Donna Roma, with complete success, acting throughout with admirable restraint and artistic finish. Miss Edith King as Elena, Madame Rubardt as Francesca, Miss Rêne de l'Estrade as Nattalina, and Miss Mara Maltley as Princess Bellini all do exceedingly well. Minor rôles are carefully handled.

THEATRE ROYAL, STRATFORD.

On Monday, Feb. 6, the Drama in Four Acts, by William Bourne, entitled "VOICES OF LONDON."

Mr. Wm. Bourne's company, in Voices of London, provides the dramatic attraction for the current week at the Stratford Theatre Royal, and the piece secured a most favourable reception on Monday night. The author himself is playing Arthur Leyland, and the part gains much from Mr. Bourne's virile and earnest interpretation. Mr. Ellis J. Preston depicts in cool and callous style the villainy of Eustace Courtney, his graphic portraiture rendering the miscreant extremely distasteful to the more susceptible among the audience. Mr. Arthur Rich plays with an unctuous humour and plausibility, which exactly suits the canting hypocritical Jeremiah Mogford; and Mr. Frank Liston acts with much expression as Rev. Stephen Woodleigh. Mr. Will Clement, as the artist, Gustave Lorrimore, makes the most of his opportunities; Mr. E. Hartley provides a fund of mirth as Joe Baxter; Mr. Davidson is decidedly excellent as Eldred St. Austin; and Mr. G. Frank plays appropriately as Dr. Meredith. Miss Amy Vennimore, whom we remember previously in heavy parts, acts with considerable charm, and in entire sympathy, as Eleanor Lyle; and Miss Alys Eden, as the artist's model, Stella Denton, meets with much success. Miss Lydia Hart has plenty of scope, as Polly Turner, for her undoubted ability in soubrette parts, and is very amusing and clever; Miss Clarrie Ash contributes a natural embodiment of Mrs. Lyle; Miss T. Godwin plays well as the vindictive Nurse Chapman; and Miss Kate Edwards scores as Nurse Watson. Minor parts are in capable hands.

DALSTON THEATRE.

On Monday, Feb. 6, the Comic Opera, entitled "VERONIQUE."

Mr. George Dance's company is presenting the comic opera, Veronique, with great success here this week. Miss Maud Boyd, who appears as the chief character, Agatha (Madame Coquenard), has some enviable natural charms which aid her materially in the assumption of a part which, under such circumstances, becomes doubly fascinating. Coquenard is a character very well played by Mr. Leslie Holland, and Mr. Ivan Berlyn, as Lonstot, a bailiff, is decidedly amusing. Miss Ruth Lincoln, in the title-rôle of Veronique, is quite successful, and imparts a good deal of expression to certain passages. Mr. Scott Russell, as Florestan de Vallancourt, makes a robust hero, and his powerful voice is heard to advantage in the duets which he sings with Veronique. The duet entitled "Swinging" takes the fancy of the audience wonderfully. Miss Gracie Sinclair, as Denise, a simple country girl, is a favourite.

KENNINGTON THEATRE.

On Monday, Feb. 6, the Musical Comedy, in Two Acts, by Seymour Hicks and Ivan Caryll, entitled "THE EARL AND THE GIRL."

Last Saturday, the run of the pantomime Aladdin, at the above theatre, came to an end, and on Monday the ordinary season began with Mr. Wm. Greet's company in that charming musical play, The Earl and the Girl, which is being presented for the first time in Suburbia. Mr. William Stephens, as Jim Cheese, kept the audience in roars of laughter, and his droll jokes followed one on the other so quickly that one feared to laugh too heartily, for fear of missing the next sally. His song, "I'd be Satisfied," and quaint dancing were uproariously successful. Mr. Percy Carr has a pleasing voice and manner, and was well suited to the part of Dick Wargrave, scoring one of the successes of the evening in that very pretty number, "The Cosy Corner Girl"; Mr. Fred Hill was excellent as the Hon. Crewe Boodle; the part of A. Bunker Bliss, the really terrible uncle, was taken by Mr. William Walshe, who is made for the part; Mr. Will Hindson was very smart as the Yankee solicitor, Downham, his rapid patter keeping the house well amused; Mr. Talk, the Israelitish solicitor, was admirably played by Mr. J. C. Graves. Miss Aimee Grey, a sweet and fascinating Elphin Haye, was responsible for a charming rendering of "Roses"; Liza Shoddam, Jim Cheese's "little bit of all right," was an amusing piece of character acting by Miss Dot Carey, who is full of gaiety; Miss Gladys Fontaine, as Mrs. Shimmering Black, the "strong lady," was, to say the least, striking; Miss Florence Imeson made a fascinating Daisy Fallowfield; and Miss Helen Langton was admirable as Miss Virginia Bliss. An excellent chorus worked really very hard, and the scenery was most effective. A pretty effect at the end of the first scene, the Fallowfield Arms, was produced by thousands of little paper hearts, which rained down upon the actors from the flies.

EALING THEATRE.

On Monday, Feb. 6, the Drama, in Five Acts, entitled "ZAZA."

The habitués of Mr. Carlton's playhouse will have no reason to complain of the fare put before them this week by Mrs. Lewis Waller and her excellent company in Zaza, Vilma, and Miss Jack. A fine reception was accorded Mrs. Waller, who paid a previous visit a short time ago. Mrs. Lewis Waller, as Zaza, is skilful in the portrayal of emotion, and has fine opportunities for the exercise of both the tragic and pathetic moods, of which she makes full use. Mr. T. Edmunds, as Cascart, furnishes a very successful impersonation, and Mr. Eric Mayne gives a careful representation of Bernard Dufresne. Miss Kate Kearney, as Rosa Bonne, with an affliction of the heart that is always requiring a little stimulant, creates roars of laughter by her eccentricities; and the fascinating Miss Rosemary Rees gains unstinted applause for her admirable efforts as Floramine. Miss Alice Langley, as Alice Morel, is a favourite; the Nathalie of Miss Minnie Rayner deserves praise; Mr. Edgar J. Coyne, as the Duc De Brisac, is well placed; and Mr. T. Henessey creates a favourable impression as Jacques Rigault. Little Miss Maude Ray is sweet and ingenuous as Toto. The pretty Misses Ethel Rainforth, Lottie May, Mabel Turton, and Madge Beresford are effective in their respective parts of Lolotte, Niniche, Adèle, and Juliette; and the charming Miss Ethel Warwick, as Madame Dufresne, is quite successful. The play is well staged, and the dresses are pretty. The orchestra is under the able direction of Mr. A. E. Blythe.

THE BRITANNIA.

On Monday, Feb. 6, the Drama, by Arthur Shirley and Ben Landeck, entitled "SAVED FROM THE SEA."

Messrs. Shirley and Landeck's play, Saved from the Sea, has always been a strong favourite with audiences who like their dramatic fare strongly spiced with sensational incidents, but also with a distinct flavouring of broad comedy. This wholesome blend is found in the drama which is this week affording unqualified delight to the patrons of the Britannia, at Hoxton. The career of an honest fisherman, whom almost overwhelming misfortunes render undesirably conspicuous, is not only interesting in itself, but one's feelings of sympathy are frequently aroused for one who is the victim of much undeserved ill-luck, and who has to pass through an extremely severe ordeal ere the dark clouds of despair break, and the sunshine of happiness again brightens his life and the lives of those dear to him. Charged with the crime of murder, Dan Ellington, the sturdy young fisherman, is unable to prove his innocence; and it seems inevitable that the law of the land must take its usual course. He endures all the tortures of the condemned cell, and then marches forth calmly and bravely to meet his fate. But for once, at least, the innocent man escapes the extreme penalty of the law. The machinery of the scaffold is at fault, and as it, after repeated attempts, cannot be made to act, the condemned man escapes death. He also, with a fellow prisoner, gets away from the gaol, and makes his way to the locality where his devoted wife and little boy are living. The man with him, Peter Scalcher, is shot at and mortally wounded. Aware that he is dying, he makes the long-delayed confession that he and the villainous adventurer, Richard Fenton, committed the crime attributed to Dan Ellington, who will, of course, receive the usual "free pardon." Mr. C. A. East gives a faithful and vigorous portrayal of Dan Ellington, the fisherman hero, who bears himself with dignity and restraint, even at the most nerve-trying moments. Miss Rose Ralph, as Nancy Ellington, the fisherman's wife, plays with a womanly charm of manner than is most effective. Mr. Frank Harding presents a particularly vivid portrait of Peter Scalcher, the private enquiry agent, making a powerful impression, particularly in the last act. Mr. J. C. Aubrey is successful in depicting to the life the repellant, unscrupulous adventurer, Richard Fenton. Mr. John M. East does well as Jim Weaver, Dan's mate. Mr. Tom Wallace is an amusing representative of Jenkins, whose sweetheart, Polly Blake, has a smart exponent in Miss Marie Wright. Mrs. Emily Dowton is a capital Mrs. Blake; and little Miss Maud, as Jack, Dan's child, wins applause. Mr. Willie Scott appears as Billy Snooks, "Barnum's black banjoist," and the minor characters are in safe hands. The scenery and staging are deserving of favourable mention. The variety programme this week is contributed to by Miss Ethel Dunford, a refined and pleasing comedienne, who sings two songs in good style; and Mr. Arthur Boyne, who scores with his ditty, "Hold Up Your Hand." The programme concludes with Mr. John M. East's laughable farce, entitled A Wife in Reserve.

THE ELEPHANT AND CASTLE.

On Monday, Feb. 6, the Drama, entitled "DRIVEN FROM HOME."

A capital representation of this famous domestic drama is being given at the Elephant and Castle Theatre this week, and very good houses testify nightly their approval. All the original elaborate effects are introduced, and the scenery is particularly good. Mr. Walter Melville plays the double rôle of Tom Mortlake and Dick Saunders, and infuses into both parts an amount of energy that elicits the warmest appreciation. Mr. Ernest E. Norris works hard as Willie, the outcast, and his artistic ability enables him to give a portraiture that is remarkably realistic. In the character of Anthony Raybrook, Mr. Howard Templeton is very successful. Mr. Harry Paulton, jun., as John Anderson, scores an instantaneous success; and Mr. Jo. Monkhouse, as Jabez Thomas, acts with a quiet dignity that is convincing. Mr. Paige Lawrence is excellent as Walter Hatherleigh, and Mr. Frank Stone contributes a clever study of Anthony Raybrook's unscrupulous nephew, Geoffrey Waring. A manly exponent of the British workman is Mr. Dudley Hayes, as David Wilson. Miss Eva Dare is admirably suited in the character of Margaret Bailey, and her natural brightness and charm are thoroughly admired by the audience. Miss Judith Kyrle acts exceedingly well as Barbara Ashdown, and Miss Winnie Waller, as Walter Hatherleigh the younger, plays with conspicuous finish and distinction. The drama was well received on Monday evening, the harmonious working of the artistes assisting in no small degree the success of the performance. The orchestra, under the skilful bâton of Mr. Nurmberger, rendered several musical selections in excellent style.

"MOTHER GOOSE" AT MANCHESTER.

(SECOND NOTICE.)

What may be called the revised version of Mother Goose, now running at the Theatre Royal, Manchester, under the direction of Mr. John Hart, is a huge success, and a fine compliment to the experience and foresight of the producer. It is, perhaps, no less a compliment also to the readiness of Mr. George Robey as a comedian, in whom, one need not hesitate to say, the success is centred, and whose performance on the opening night was as full of elaborate humour, studied and spontaneous, as it is after weeks of trial. This must not be taken to imply, however, that Mr. Robey's performance is the same each night; it is, in the smaller details, continually changing—some new joke, new business, or even a new inflection of the voice, gives fresh interest to his unique comicalities in the title-part. Mr. J. Hickory Wood's arrangement of the story has already been set forth in these columns; it is quite interesting in itself, while affording the amplest opportunities for pantomimic display. It includes scenery and business for the sophisticated, and a capital idea of a fairy Gooseland for children, a place at which one must arrive by balloon, and where a grand Congress of Geese is seen, the occasion being a momentous Trial of Mortals, who are quaintly condemned to be eaten by geese, as mortals eat geese at Christmas, but who are happily rescued by the valiant Colin on his arrival with a magic feather from the good Fairy Heartsease. The introduction of several Scotch characters and a hunting scene are also conspicuous in the movement, the grand ballet at the "meet" being a very elaborate spectacle; while at the magic pool, in which Mother Goose recovers her youthful beauty, a wonderful pageant of water nymphs is seen. All these remain in the memory as separate and magnificent examples of scenic art. Of the characters, Mr. George Robey is pre-eminently successful as Mother Goose, and his songs, "Solid, Substantial, and Thick," "I said 'O!'" and a character duet with Miss Ethel Haydon, "Business and Pleasure Combined," all bring him rounds of delighted applause. Miss Hilda Jacobsen plays Colin, the principal boy, with her usual refinement, and her fine voice is heard to advantage in "Bluebell," "The Land of Snow," and various duets. Miss Venie Clements has a nice style for the part of Jill, and renders her vocal items, "The Wise Old Owl" among them, with credit. Most of these songs are embellished by illustrated backgrounds and choruses in character. Another clever artiste of repute is Miss Daisy Jerome, who plays the part of a Dutch servant, Gretchen, in her well-known, clever, and dainty fashion. Miss Jerome's song, "The Gibson Girl," is most successful. Of Mr. Robey's supporters in the comic department, Mr. George Bastow merits first mention. He plays Jack, the quaint and easy-going son of Mother Goose, in distinctly clever and amusing fashion, incidentally delivering himself of sundry comic songs, "What d'ye want to talk about it for?" among them. Little Ganty is most conspicuous among the remaining comedians, his burlesque coon song being quaintly done, and his vivacity much enjoyed. The Brothers Valdo are commendable as the donkeys, and all the minor parts are in good hands. Of the supernaturals, Mr. Harrison Brockbank is the demon Malignum, and sings his song "Butterfly" in splendid style; while Miss Ethel Haydon as the Fairy Heartsease is graceful, pleasing, and very successful in her principal vocal effort, "Farewell my little Yo-San." The Two Cabiacs repeat their remarkable acrobatic speciality with increasing success. There is every probability of Mother Goose having a long run.

"THE BELLS OF HASLEMERE" is being presented at the Theatre Royal, Rugby, this week by a first-class company. Mr. Leonard York as Frank Beresford acts in a very effective manenr, and Mr. Montague Turner is exceptionally good in the rôle of John Silkstone. Mr. Charles A. Chandler as Captain Vere leaves nothing to be desired, and Mr. Douglas Hamilton as Matthew Brookfield is excellent in every way; as Reuben Armstrong, Mr. Charles Cecil gives an able and artistic reading. Mr. Fred F. Allen as Joseph Thorndyke, and Mr. Powell James as Captain Salem are both good. Miss Henrietta Polini as Evelyn Brookfield acquits herself in a most creditable manner, and Miss Stafford Smith as Dorothy Kemble gives every ratisfaction. Miss Mary Hardacre as Mary Northcote is a great success, and Miss Florence Chandler as Norah Desmond is worthy of commendation.

AN attractive programme is submitted at Fossett's Hippodrome, Rugby, this week. Mr. Robert Fossett, jun., and Miss Fossett add to their popularity by the introduction of several new items. Mr. Thomas Fossett gives a capital exhibition, and in conjunction with Mr. Robert Fossett, a very effective dual turn is presented. Mdlle Emmie displays exceptional grace as an exponent of l'haut école, and in addition to her ability as an equestrienne gives a charming representation of the Duchess of Gainsborough. Miss Nellie Fossett is establishing herself as a favourite, and the clowns, Tell and Bill Bailey, cause roars of laughter. Their comic shooting match is very good. Otto's efforts to amuse give great satisfaction; and a comic sketch, in which various members of the company appear, is much appreciated. The Bonello Troupe are good, both in their representation of groups of statuary and as acrobats.

"MAISIE."

On Thursday, Feb. 4, a new four-act play, written by Frederick Davenporte and Joseph W. Boyling, produced at the Grand Theatre, Southampton.

Dr. Morton Forrester	MR. JOSEPH W. BOYLING.
Squire Leighton	MR. ALBERT COOPER.
Joe Roland	MR. HEATHER WILLIAMS.
Arthur Boynton	MR. REGINALD EARLE.
Ralph Lee	MR. ALBERT WILLSON.
Dick Donovan	MR. IVAN GASTON.
Percy Darwin	MR. JULIAN BRUCE.
George Walton	MR. PERCIVAL CARSLEY.
Gibson	MR. FRED PERCIVAL.
Weston	MR. REGIE BRIGHT.
Jack Forrester	MR. FREDK. DAVENPORTE.
Roma	MISS LIL O'BRIAN.
Molly	MISS NELLIE GOURLEY
Eliza Roland	MISS B. DESBOROUGH.
Maisie	MISS MABEL HILLMAN.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT).

The authors of Maisie are deserving of the highest praise for writing a piece which appeals to the sympathies of an audience. The plot is well sustained, and the charmingly witty dialogue, with its wholesome humour and pathos, is heartily welcomed. Jack Forrester, a rising young barrister, and five chums are on a fishing expedition in the village of Fairfield. The "boys" are boisterously hilarious, and are successful in keeping old Joe Roland, keeper of the inn at which they stay, in a state of "fidget." They are having high times, and have just arranged an "up the river" picnic, when the hero is called home by peremptory message from his father. It is here that he finds himself in love with the innkeeper's niece, Maisie, and before leaving ascertains that his feelings are reciprocated. Confessions are made on both sides. Jack leaves the simple country maid, promising to return in a day or two, and eventually to make the subject of the story his wife. His proud father, however, jealous of the old name, has heard of the "flirtation," and, having in collusion with his friend and neighbour, Squire Leighton, other intentions, makes his desires known to his son. The wife they would have for him is Roma, the squire's daughter; but Jack, stating that such a thing can never be, tells his father his intentions. The doctor raves, then pleads, and, added to these, Jack's sister pleads on behalf of the old name and the squire's daughter.

Promising to continue as the "kindly and sympathetic Jack Forrester" before the fiancee chosen for him, our hero still determines to make the country maiden his wife, but prior to his return to the village his father and the squire, on whose estate lies the old inn, visits the Rolands, and Maisie, overhearing remarks made to her uncle and aunt, sacrifices her affection, and tells the visitors there is nothing between Jack and herself, repeating the story to young Forrester when he subsequently appears. Misunderstanding Maisie's motives, Jack marries the Squire's daughter; but his heart is still in the little fishing village, and the relations between the married pair become strained. It is not until Jack hears of Maisie's death that the climax is reached; he breaks down with grief, and, taunted by his wife on the earlier love affair, he approaches a state of collapse. Struck with remorse, she throws off her callous indifference, promises to behave better in future, and so everything ends satisfactorily.

The acting throughout was capital, Miss Mabel Hillman making a delightful and attractive Maisie. Mr. Fredk. Davenporte, as the easy-going young barrister, Jack Forrester, was seen at his best in the more serious phases of the character. Mr Joseph W. Boyling gave a clever and consistent performance of Doctor Morton Forrester, and Mr. Albert Cooper, admirably made up, was capital as the bluff old Squire. Miss Lil O'Brian, as the irresolute and inconsiderate Roma, deserved praise for her smart performance. A typical character sketch was given of the country innkeeper by Mr. Heather Williams, who received effective support from Miss Blanche Desborough. Miss Nellie Gourley was an attractive Molly.

"BABES IN THE WOOD" AT BIRMINGHAM.

(SECOND EDITION.)

The Babes in the Wood, which Mr. Tom B. Davis produced a week before Christmas Eve with such marked success at the new and beautiful Theatre Royal, Birmingham (which he brought into being), has now entered into its second edition, and the first good impressions are but enhanced by the alterations, improvements, and additions that have been effected. First, it may be re-affirmed that Mr. Bert Gilbert is the bulwark of the pantomime. His comedy is light, effervescent, and always successful and unaggressive. His songs are rendered with good emphasis and point, and, whether on his own account, or in concert, his work is clever and unselfish, and directed for the main good. Such is Mr. Gilbert's Baron. Mr. J. F. McArdle has developed his part into a capital type of pantomime dame, than which nothing better could be desired, and his principal vocal effort, "It's all right in the summer time," suits him and the rôle he so well assumes down to the ground. Some of Mr. McArdle's best work is accomplished in company with Mr. Bert Gilbert, who, as the "male biped who conducts the emporium," in the second half of the pantomime, "plays" to the elderly and garrulous female depicted by the excellent comedian aforesaid. This "shop scene" affords the most excruciating fun for both ladies and gentlemen, to say nothing of the children, who are transported with delight at the eccentricities of the shopman and "buyer," plus a patent step-ladder, which is warranted to save the purchaser the trouble of mounting it. In this scene, Mr. Fred Farren, who has crept into favour as Towser, the faithful canine protector of the Babes, takes the audience by surprise as a very clever coon actor, in which guise he executes a highly-intricate and smart sand dance, utilising the Baron's "sugar" for the sand. He also acts here in company with Mr. Fred Walton, who, as the Toy Soldier, has fairly earned the fame he indubitably enjoys. Indeed, Mr. Walton's share in the success of the production is incalculable, and his clever dumb-show, depicting a little dispute between two real toy soldiers about a medal, which is argued at length, and finally settled by the ordeal of the "toss" is extremely clever, interesting, and diverting. This is only one of the many good features that distinguish his performance. Messrs. Henry Wright and Daley Cooper continue to figure as the Robbers with the success that met their efforts on the opening performance; and the Eight of Hearts lend their exhilarating saltatorial exercises to the ensemble. Miss Lily Iris has stamped her individuality on the production as Robin Hood, singing a number of songs, including that Japanese idyll, "Yo-San," with dainty taste; and Miss Gladys Ward, in her delightfully played part of Marian, renders "Navahoe"—now assisted by Mr. Fred Farren—with many encores. Miss Ward is also heard to advantage in "Dixie Land." This, to show the capital variety at hand, is immediately preceded by one of Mr. Bert Gilbert's excruciatingly funny scenas, in which he figures as a nervous man driven to remorse by his inhuman treatment of the Babes. Herein Mr. Gilbert, accompanied by his dog, Snatcher, convulses the house, and Snatcher meets an untimely end. The Babes have attracted much attention in the respective and engaging persons of Miss Phyllis Dare and Miss Maidie Andrews, as Charley and Cissie. Both these young ladies are accomplished actresses, combining ability with charm. Miss Mabel Lait, as Robin Hood's foremost follower, Will Scarlet, infuses a healthy vigour and much grace into the rôle; and Miss Monica Sayer imparts a dainty distinction to the character of Dorothy. The Misses Janet Hunter and Leonie Dixon who literally "dance attendance" on Mr. Walton in the restaurant scene, deserve a word of praise for their smart and alluring dancing measure; and the Misses Dollie Neville, Alice Davies, Louie Mavis, Mildred Clair, Nina Glyn, and Jeannie Christoe disport successfully as well as charmingly as Foresters and Village Maids. The pantomime has been a spectacular and sartorial triumph from the first, and scenes like Nottingham Market Place, The Archery, The Baron's Emporium, and Robin Hood's Palace, will carry their impressions for years. Toy Country is curiously quaint and pretty, with its shy little toy housemaid, amorous toy postman, and jealous toy policeman, all prettily enacted by children. The procession of living toys is conducted to the fullest possible advantage, the impression being heightened by the quaint orchestration, illustrative of the various scenes, of which there are four. We seem to breathe the very atmosphere of toy-land, and, emphatically, this is where we would "take the children." The beautiful dresses continue to elicit a buzz of admiration at every performance. Mr. Guy Jones and his orchestra contribute towards the general success; and Mr. J. Paul Callan continues to supervise the pantomime, which will run at least another month.

"THE CAP-MAKER'S DAUGHTER."

A Romantic Play in One Act,
by Herbert T. Rainger,
Produced by Amateurs at Victoria Rooms,
Cheltenham, on Friday, Feb. 3.

Sir Thos. Bell	MR. E. WEAVER.
Master Fowler	MR. H. T. RAINGER.
Dale	MR. W. H. BANKS.
Robin	MR. F. REA.
Llanthony	MR. LYN RAINGER.
Abraham	MR. LESLIE REA.
Joane	MRS. BARTHOLOMEW.
Alice	MISS NORAH A. PROSSER.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

This new one-act piece formed part of a programme of amateur theatricals, in aid of the Victoria Nursing Home, Cheltenham. The scene is laid in a hall of Sir Thomas Bell's house, near the North Gate, within the ancient city of Gloucester. The period is the sixteenth century, the action taking place on Christmas Eve, 1530. The play opens with an animated domestic scene, in which the time-honoured custom of hanging the mistletoe is observed. Sir Thomas has invited two friends to dinner, and, to Alice's delight, the first of these proves to be Master Fowler, the adopted son of a wealthy knight of Deerhurst, for whom she has conceived a deep affection. The betrothal of the young couple follows. The second guest is Dale, who brings with him a sample of sweetmeat calculated to test the temper and disposition of the adorable Alice. It transpires that it is Sir Thomas's quaint custom, as a species of thanks-offering in return for his worldly prosperity, to entertain a beggar from the streets every Christmas Eve. The bibulous specimen introduced in Abraham on this occasion proves to be Master Fowler's father. That young person, overcoming his disgust, decides to dutifully stand by the thieving old reprobate, and a great struggle ensues betwixt love and pride in fair Alice's bosom. Love conquers, and she promises to wait for her lover until he has reformed his drunken father. The old man, however, proves to be not wholly a bad sort, and is deeply moved by the young people's unselfishness. During their affectionate farewell, he slips out silently, unnoticed, into the snowy night and the lonely world. The play was well received, the plot being less ambitious than Mr. Rainger's previous effort, The Bitter Sea. The characters are well drawn, that of the beggar showing much originality; the dialogue flows easily, and contains some lines of considerable poetic charm; and altogether the play shows great promise. The interpretation, too, was excellent, and the cast, which included the author himself, could hardly have been better selected outside the profession.

"CINDERELLA"

(FROM THE GRAND THEATRE, EDINBURGH.)
IN NEWCASTLE.

Third Week Opened Monday, Feb. 6.

"'In consequence of huge success, arrangements have been made to extend the run of Cinderella for two weeks longer.' So reads the advertisement, and no one familiar with the production at the Olympia, Northumberland-road, Newcastle, will be surprised to hear of such a decision being arrived at, for the pantomime of Cinderella achieved immense popularity right from its introduction to this city. In the sense that it has attracted enormous crowds—overflowing audiences almost at every performance—it fulfils the boast of having 'captivated the city,' and its success is evidently destined to be continued to the end, for there was again a very large audience present last evening. To repeat the chief characteristics of the pantomime is unnecessary; it will be sufficient to indicate again that it is a product singularly mirthful and bright, it contains a number of 'swinging' songs and plenty of dainty dancing, and, not the least important thing, it has the advantage of being presented by an all-round capable company. The comedians, of whom there is a clever and representative contingent, contributed their "business" last evening with great spirit, and created irrepressible hilarity in every part of the auditorium. . . . The audience showed unmistakable appreciation of the production."—Newcastle Daily Journal, Feb. 7.

"No attempt was made by the large audience at the Olympia Theatre, Newcastle, last night, to conceal its satisfaction that Cinderella is to stay to delight Tynesiders for another fortnight. Practically every song, humorous or sentimental, received an encore, and an equally vociferous greeting was accorded to the dancers. With so much appreciation shown their efforts, the company sang their sweetest, cracked their funniest jokes, and danced their sprightliest. They are sure of big houses during the remainder of their stay."—Evening Mail, Feb. 7.

"Though only engaged for a fortnight's run, the Cinderella pantomime at the Olympia, Newcastle, has been such a big success that the management has decided to continue the show for another fortnight. There was again a crowded house last night, and the extravaganza was enjoyed to the full. Notable features of the pantomime are the singing and dancing. The fun is fast and furious, and there is not a dull moment throughout."—Newcastle Daily Chronicle, Feb. 7.

A VERY interesting matinée performance will take place at His Majesty's Theatre, on the 28th inst., when the students of Mr. Tree's dramatic school, will carry out a programme including the first act of The Schoolmistress, which will be rehearsed and produced by Mr. Fred Kerr, a pantomime sketch, without words, invented and staged by Madame Cavallazzi, with music by Mr. Wenzel, some scenes from A Winter's Tale, prepared by Mrs. Crowe, and rehearsed by Mr. William Haviland, and the first act of Caste, stage-managed by Mr. George P. Bancroft, under the supervision of Sir Squire and Lady Bancroft, various dances being arranged by Mr. Herbert d'Egville. The gold medal given by Sir Squire and Lady Bancroft will be presented to themost successful student. This public performance will be an excellent test of the value of the instruction and training at Mr. Tree's dramatic academy.

MR. GUILLAUME LEONE has just accepted the post of musical director at the Grand Theatre, Maidenhead—a position which he held for some considerable time, and with much success, under the previous management.

"THE PRINCESS AND THE PHILOSOPHER."

A Musical Comedy, in Two Acts,
Written by Mr. Charles M. Heslop,
With Music by Miss Mabel Goyder,
First Performed at the Assembly Room,
Agricultural Hall, Norwich, on Thursday, Feb. 2.

Brooke Trench	MR. CHAS. M. HESLOP.
Lord Shrivenham	MR. P. GLANDFORD BACK.
William Crum	MR. FRED DOGGETT.
McMurgatroyd Mepps	MR. NEVILLE HOWLETT.
Mrs. Mepps	MISS CAYLEY.
Mrs. Berkeley Streeter	MRS. RIVERS FLETCHER.
Edna Brooklyn	MISS GLADYS BLYTHE.
Violet Vereker	MISS CLARE WILSON.
Winnie Wendover	MISS URSULA BACK.
Sadie Somerset	MISS MARJORIE BOLINGBROKE.
Faith	MISS IDA DOGGETT.
Hope	MISS MURIEL RYE.
Charity	MISS ETHEL KING.
Sylvia	MISS E. VIVIAN WILSON.

The plot is an amusing one, and the piece stands far ahead of the author's earlier efforts. Brooke Trench, the owner of the Manor House, Somersham, has been away from home for five years, and in his absence the place has become the resort for all the idlers of the village, headed by the gardener, William Crum, and his daughters, Faith, Hope, and Charity, who are intent on thwarting the efforts of Mrs. Mepps, the caretaker of the house, to gain the reluctant affections of their father. Adjoining the Manor House is The Lodge, which Mrs. Berkeley Streeter, a Society "widowette," has converted into a "Finishing Academy" for the daughters of millionaires desirous of entering the "Smart Set." Mrs. Streeter is expecting a visit from the Princess Sylvia of Mauritania, whom she once met at Trouville, and Mrs. Mepps has just received a telegram announcing the imminent arrival of her long absent son, McMurgatroyd Mepps, a London billiard marker, a gentleman with a soul above his calling. Upon his arrival he learns from his mother the state of affairs at the Manor House, determines to be incognito, and terrorises his mother and the stupefied Crum into passing him off as the Count of St. Leger, who has rented the Manor House from Brooke Trench. So far all goes smoothly, but Mrs. Streeter's visitor, the Princess Sylvia, is coming incognito under the title of the Countess of St. Leger, and Mrs. Streeter jumps to the conclusion that the Count is the husband of the Countess, and exerts herself at once to bring the "husband" and "wife" together, and many complications arise. But Brooke Trench, who has styled himself a philosopher, with no particular pretensions for the title, unexpectedly returns, and in the Princess, who is no princess but a new pupil, Miss Sylvia Macham, he recognises one whom he has been silently worshipping for the past three years. At first he passes himself off as the new gardener, and Crum assumes him to be a mythical rival sweetheart of Mrs. Mepps, named Harris, and ignominy is heaped upon Brooke Trench. Finally, the latter, after much complication, is united to Sylvia, and all are made happy. The music is excellent, and much praise is due to Miss Mabel Goyder in this connection. The proceeds of the performances are to be given to the restoration fund of the Church of St. Peter Mancroft, the grandest church in the city, conspicuously seen in the Market-place. Of the performers, Mrs. Rivers Fletcher was quite at home as Mrs. Berkeley Streeter, her song "Modern Methods." being well received. Miss E. Vivian Wilson acquitted herself with ability as Sylvia, and Miss Ethel King, as Charity, was entitled to much praise for her songs. Miss Cayley, as Mrs. Mepps, was full of drollery; and Miss Gladys Blythe, as Edna Brooklyn, was everything desirable. Mr. C. M. Heslop became a warm favourite, and the song "The Manœuvres." and the pendant dance were capitally rendered. Mr. P. Glandford Back well fitted the part of Lord Shrivenham, and Mr. Fred Doggett was humorous as the old gardener. Mr. Neville Howlett was exceedingly good as McMurgatroyd Mepps.

BANDURRIAS
AT THE PALACE, GRIMSBY.

THE Five Bandurias are exceedingly clever instrumentalists, their musical ability being of a very extensive character. Nothing short of an encore would satisfy the audience, and even when this was responded to they were not satisfied.—Grimsby Telegraph, Wednesday, Feb. 8.

We have not space to go into much detail, but we can say in a word that all their work is excellent. Quite a masterly set of selections is given on the guitar, mandoline, with accompanying instruments, by the Bandurrias, and they were recalled. It is not one of the usual noisy performances that too often pass muster in the crowd, but a clever and refined musical achievement.—Grimsby News, Tuesday, Feb. 7, 1905.

IN the Court of King's Bench, on Saturday, before Mr Justice Bigham, in the case of Hawkes v. Henderson, the plaintiff, as assignee of the debt, sued Mr A F. Henderson, theatrical manager, to recover £479 odd, money alleged to be due from the defendant to a Mr Perryman. The defendant denied liability, and pleaded the Statute of Limitations. Mr. Frampton, for the plaintiff, said that in 1895 and 1896 Mr Perryman and the defendant were interested in a play called The New Boy, and at the end of 1896, or the commencement of 1897, the sum of £250 was due by the defendant to Mr Perryman in connection with the venture. The defendant was further indebted to Mr Perryman in the sum of £100 for some furniture; but his lordship would not be troubled with that matter, as the defendant had paid the amount into court. As to the sum of £250, the defendant had pleaded the Statute of Limitations. The learned counsel proceeded to read certain letters, which, he said, contained an unconditional acknowledgment of the debt, from which a promise to pay could be inferred. In one of the letters the defendant said that if he had a million sterling Mr Perryman should have half of it. Mr Justice Bigham, after perusing the correspondence, held that there was no unconditional acknowledgment of the debt from which a promise to pay could be inferred. He, therefore, held judgment for the defendant, with costs.

THEATRICAL FETE AT GLASGOW.

A well-organised theatrical parade, followed by sports, took place last week in Glasgow, the proceeds being for the fund to provide "Boots for the Bairns," started some time ago by a local newspaper. The idea was approved and heartily endorsed by the many artistes in the city at pantomime time, and an influential committee, headed by Mr. Tom E. Murray and the managers of all the places of amusement, planned and carried out the theatrical parade, which resulted in a very handsome addition to the fund, due mainly to the untiring efforts of the lady artistes from the theatres and halls, who were assiduous in their work. The parade itself proved a good draw, and all the pantomimes sent their contributions, in the shape of comic tableaux vivants on lorries or other vehicles, and bands of musicians; while from Bostock and Wombwell's travelling Zoo came a good display of elephants and camels. The sports at Ibrox Park, the ground of the Rangers Football Club, were well patronised, and the reputation of the profession for athletic prowess was excellently maintained. The results were as follows:—

120 Yards Flat Handicap (Staff).—Winners of heats: H. Andrews, Royalty (scratch); R. Hay, Royal (10); J. Humphrys, (Royal); R. Ingles, Royal (6); — Mitchell, Empire (5); J. Docherty, Royal (scratch); R. Swann, Hippodrome (2); — Finlay, King's (scratch); Fred Griffiths, jun., Royal (3). Final: 1, Hay; 2, Andrews; 3, Docherty.

50 Yards Children's Race.—1, Miss Hilda Jackaway; 2, Miss Belger; 3, Miss Paine.

70 Yards Ladies' Egg and Spoon Race.—1, Miss Stockwell; 2, Miss Daisy Dormer; 3, Miss Monti.

50 Yards Human Wheelbarrow Race.—1, Bros. Griffiths, Royal; 2, W. Horton and H. Grovini, Hengler's.

100 Yards Firemen's Race.—1, Beaton; 2, Darling; 3, McDonald.

50 Yards Lady Artistes' Race.—1, Miss Dormer; 2, Miss Harries; 3, Miss Kennedy.

One Mile Bicycle Handicap, open (amateurs), under S.C.U. Rules.—First heat: 1, D. McCulloch, Grand National C.C. (180yds.); 2, J. McQuade, Govan (200); 3, D. Flynn, Pollokshaws C.C. (25). Second heat: 1, D. Watson, Govan United C.C. (180); 2, A. Bridgett, Govan C.C. (180); 3, J. R. Rankine, Pollokshaws C.C. Final: 1, Watson; 2, Bridgett; 3, McQuade. Won by about two lengths after a spirited race. Time, 2mins. 22 1-5secs.

One Lap Managers' Race (scratch, over hurdles).—1, Arthur Aldin, Empire; 2, Ernest Wright, Royalty; 3, T. Milligan, Queen's; 4, George Russell, Royal. The Empire manager ran with excellent judgment, and took the lead at half-distance, watching his men all the way up the straight. The Royalty assistant-manager ran pluckily, and fell after passing the tape.

50 Yards Comic Costume Race.—1, Willie Bell, Hengler's; 2, Fred Griffiths, Royal; 3, G. Jennings, Hengler's.

50 Yards Animal Race.—Fred Griffiths, Royal.

Five-a-side Football Competition.—Preliminary round: Partick Thistle beat Rangers. Second round: Third Lanark beat Partick Thistle, and Queen's Park beat Celtic. Final: Third Lanark (Raeside, Comrie, McIntosh, Coll, and Crerar) beat Queen's Park (M. Houston, R. Hart, R. G. Nisbet, "H. A. Alexander," and T. M. Miller) by 1 goal to 0.

Half-mile Flat Handicap (Staff).—1, J. Docherty, Royal (Scratch); 2, H. Andrews, Royalty (20); 3, A. Pitt, Royalty (scratch). The winner showed excellent style.

One Lap Consolation Race.—R. Swann, Hippodrome.

100 Yards Musicians' Race.—1, — Walter, Tivoli; 2, P. Jordan, Hengler's.

Tug-of-War for Murray-Lashwood Challenge Shield and ten gold medals to winners.—Final: Empire beat Hippodrome in clever and decisive fashion.

100 Yards Ladies' Dressers' Race.—1, Miss Cameron, Royal; 2, Miss Johnstone; 3, Mrs. McCulloch.

COMPTON COMPANY ANNIVERSARY.

Mr. Edward Compton, on Tuesday night, at Her Majesty's Theatre, Aberdeen, celebrated his 24th anniversary as a touring actor-manager. Mr. Compton has a record of which any actor or manager might be proud, and apart altogether from his own inimitable impersonations, which are everywhere known and admired, he has preserved some of the finest gems that dramatic literature can boast. Mr. Compton tours with an excellent all-round company, bestowing the most minute care and supervision upon his productions, and the greatest possible pains are taken that the smallest part should be as perfect as the leading rôles. The perfection of Mr. Compton's system and the artistic quality of his work may be gathered from the fact that his company has the reputation of being one of the best schools of acting. Many brilliant actors and actresses whose services are now claimed by the London playgoer, may attribute their success to the admirable training they received under Mr. Compton.

After the second act of A Reformed Rake, on Tuesday night, Mr. COMPTON, who was received with immense enthusiasm, spoke as follows:—Ladies and Gentlemen,—Many and sincere thanks for your presence here to-night. It is good to be back in Aberdeen once more; it is good to be able to say with Campbell, "Ye crags and peaks, I'm with you once again," and it's better still, as a Mackenzie, to be able to say, with Burns, "Hail! land o' cakes, and brither Scots." And now about to-night's celebration—the completion of twenty-four years' hard labour with the Compton Comedy Company. How do I feel about it? Well, I must own to a great pleasure and a little natural pride, for I believe such an event is absolutely unique in theatrical annals. When I started out on Feb. 7, 1881, I was told that I was a rash young man, that old comedy, like Shakespeare, "spelt ruin," and that I should live to repent my foolhardiness in sackcloth and ashes. And yet here I am, after twenty-four years, still holding aloft the standard of legitimate comedy, not by any means sitting on any stool of repentance, but standing up before you elated with triumph, flushed with success, and more than ever determined to emulate Tennyson's brook, and "go on for ever." During the period I have named I have always taken care to have a first-class all-round company. I have always rehearsed every play thoroughly and often, and I have always costumed them correctly and well. I have revived numbers of old comedies and produced several new ones, and I have always clung to the ideal I started with—namely, to play only such pieces as made for good; and I think my audiences will bear me witness that "the evening's amusement" has always borne "the morning's reflection." But there is one thing I am very sensible on—the constancy and support of the Press and the public all over the country, without which I could have done nothing. "Beggar that I am, I am even poor in thanks, but I thank you," and I can never thank you enough. By the way, I must not forget to tell you that to-night marks a double celebration, for my Mr. David Garrick, who first came into being on Feb. 7, 1884, attains his majority to-night, and at last comes of age. I hope when you greet him to-morrow evening you will find "the rising young actor" going strong and well, and not looking a day more than his twenty-one years. Again let me thank you for your attendance and enthusiasm to-night, and permit me to wish you "a grateful, warm adieu."

THEATRICAL GOSSIP.

Sir Henry Irving, who entered his sixty-eighth year on Monday, could not have chosen a more suitable birthplace than Keinton, near Glastonbury, where he first came into existence. Keinton is, indeed, "far from the madding crowd." There is not the least fear of the "birthplace" being visited by too many tourists. It is out of the way, even in a very out-of-the-way county of England. From Glastonbury, one drives for miles over an almost featureless country, divided by "rhines" or water-ditches. Keinton itself is one of those happy hamlets which have no history, and the house in which Sir Henry was born is only remarkable for the excessive plainness of its architecture. The place gives one the impression that it had made one great effort, had produced an eminent English actor and had then "rested on its laurels."

Although Sir Henry was born in sleepy Somerset, the early years from which an individual takes his strongest impressions were lived in Cornwall. His boyhood was passed at Hasletown, near St. Ives. Those who are familiar with the Cornish coast scenery, with its deep blue sea, rugged cliffs, bright with many colours, and weird expanses of moor and "tor," can easily understand how young Irving's imagination grew amongst such surroundings. Near Hasletown, on a hill, is an obelisk of grey granite, which a local barrister, in times past, built as a monument over his tomb. He, however, changed his mind, was interred elsewhere, and left the obelisk in trust, on condition that every fifth year, a party of matrons and virgins, headed by the Mayor of St. Ives, in his chain of office and robes, with the rector of the parish, and a body of musicians should walk to the summit of the hill, and, forming a circle round the obelisk, should dance a measure and chant a psalm. Probably Sir Henry Irving often witnessed this curious ceremony. His love for Cornwall is still keen; and he is very fond of visiting Boscastle, a few miles north of the celebrated Tintagel.

Sir Squire and Lady Bancroft, Mrs. Humphry Ward, and Mr. Stuart Wortley, M.P., were among those present at the annual meeting of the Victoria Home for Invalid Children at Margate, which was held on Thursday at 36, Grosvenor-place. The Duchess of Newcastle presided. The Home was founded in 1892, chiefly by the efforts of the present Princess of Wales, and has for its object the treatment of the sick children of the poor. Their cause was well pleaded by Lady Bancroft, who stated that all the leading artists in the profession, including Sarah Bernhardt, had given their services to this work. A little help might save a child body and soul. She concluded by saying that a great lesson was contained in an old epitaph:

That I spent, that I had;
That I gave, that I have;
That I left, that I lost.

Amongst the audience at Wyndham's Theatre on Thursday night at the production of The Lady of Leeds were the Duchess of Marlborough, Baroness de Meyer, Mrs. Claude Watney, Lord Burnham, Lord and Lady Essex, Lord Granby, Sir Squire Bancroft, Sir Rivers Wilson, and Lady Lathom.

There were several really bright lines in the dialogue of the play. The parvenue of the piece suggests that the proverb, "See Naples and die," is intended to emphasise the badness of Italian cookery; and the sham Arch-Duke, when he finds he is irresistibly attracted to her, remarks that he is "feeling quite morganatic."

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Williams (Miss Emily Spiller) have only just received the news of the death, on Jan. 13, of Mr. Isaac Spiller, the father of the last-mentioned. He had attained the age of 77, and was for the long period of 27 years with the Moore and Burgess Minstrels as first violin.

M. Coquelin, the distinguished French actor, does not see what we want with a repertory theatre. "Do you suppose," he says, "the English stage has waited for a repertory theatre to do all the things you mention? Only last summer, in London, I attended a marvellous performance of Julius Cæsar, in a théâtre de genre. Some time ago, too, in a similar London theatre, I witnessed The Tempest put on with a wealth of artistic taste and talent such as would be difficult to meet with elsewhere. There is no necessity for an English national repertory theatre, because the repertory is being played on all sides, and played extremely well, into the bargain."

"Then, again," he continues, "with what would you feed your repertory theatre? With Shakespeare, Congreve, and Sheridan? With the delightful plays of my old friend, Henry Arthur Jones? With Pinero, Bernard Shaw, and your brilliant little band of clever dramatic authors? Do you think this would be sufficient to stage in the same theatre night after night before the same public of habitual playgoers, on whom such a theatre must necessarily rely?"

M. Coquelin thus clinches his argument: "Are you aware that a repertory is very quickly used up and exhausted? In France there are many good unpublished plays suitable for a national repertory theatre, but I beg leave to doubt if your English repertory is as 'extensible' as ours. You have many splendid actors and actresses in England, really artists. Indeed, I go so far as to say you have more stage artists than any other nation; but put all these talented actors and actresses together in a repertory company and see the extraordinary mixture they would make. What is essential to success in a great national repertory theatre is complete homogeneity such as exists at the Théâtre Français, and I am convinced that you would never acquire this homogeneity."

Mrs. D'Oyly Carte is suffering very severely from an attack of rheumatism and lung trouble. She is confined to her room, and her doctor does not allow her to see visitors, as talking would bring on a cough. We hope sincerely that Mrs. Carte will make speedy progress towards recovery. She suffers most from enforced idleness.

In the Court of King's Bench, on Monday, before Mr. Justice Ridley, the case of Cotton v. Newspaper Syndicate (Limited) and another, which is an action based on a contract, was mentioned by Mr. Rufus Isaacs, K.C. He said he appeared for the plaintiff, and he asked that the hearing should be fixed for Tuesday, Feb. 28. The plaintiff in the case was Miss Ada Reeve, and she was touring round the country fulfilling engagements. It was essential that she should be called, and it was impossible for her, except in the week named, to get to and from London to attend the trial and fulfil her engagements. The plaintiff's advisers had communicated with Messrs. Lewis and Lewis, solicitors for the defendants, and they saw no objection to the case being fixed on that day, if the judge approved. The judge fixed the hearing for the date mentioned, subject to the list of the preceding Monday.

Mr. Edward Terry will conclude his successful season of eight weeks in New York on Saturday, Feb. 18. Notwithstanding several "blizzards," described as the worst since 1888, Mr. Terry has every reason to be satisfied with his first appearances in America. On Monday, Feb. 20, he will commence a tour, in the course of which he will visit some of the principal cities in America and Canada, under the management of Messrs. Liebler and Co., of New York.

Sir Squire Bancroft was present at the celebration of the Dickens Anniversary by the "Boz" Club, at the Savoy Hotel, on Tuesday, and dramatic art was also strongly represented by Sir Francis Burnand, Mr. A. W. Pinero, Mr. Sydney Grundy, Mr. Louis N. Parker, Mr. George Alexander, and Mr. H. B. Irving. Mr. Comyns Carr delivered an eloquent panegyric on the great novelist.

Mr. Edward Rose, dramatist, dramatic critic, and actor, who dramatised The Prisoner of Zenda and Under the Red Robe, died Dec. 31, aged 55 years, and left estate valued at £18,586 gross, and £15,199 net. Having in his lifetime carried out to some extent his intention of furthering the study of economics, he left £15 a year to complete the education of Enid Bransom at the London School of Economics, and £50 to permit Leila Catherine Sexton to finish her studies and take her degree. He left £200 each to William Staunton Sherrington, Charles Scott Sherrington, George Stuart Sherrington, and Alexander Cumming, £100 to Dr. T. Scott Battam, and the residue of his property in trust for his wife during her widowhood, and to pay annuities of £100 each to his daughters on attaining 25 years, and an annuity of £500 to Mrs. Rose in the event of her re-marriage, a commission of 10 per cent. to the collector of royalties on his works, and the ultimate residue, subject to various provisions and limitations, in trust for his daughters.

The valedictory visit to Plymouth of Sir Henry Irving was anticipated with a great deal of interest, and the eminent actor has this week received a characteristic West Country welcome—enthusiastic and demonstrative. His appearance at the Theatre Royal on Monday synchronised with his sixty-seventh birthday, and this lent added importance and interest to the event. The vast crowd gave a most cordial welcome to Sir Henry, pent-up feeling finding relief in prolonged plaudits when the gerat actor entered as Corporal Brewster in Sir Conan Doyle's episode, Waterloo. Time and again Sir Henry had to bow his acknowledgments, and a similar scene of enthusiasm was witnessed at the conclusion of the second part of the programme, The Bells, in which the part of Mathias enables Sir Henry fully to display his great gifts. Becket was staged the following night, and on other occasions The Merchant of Venice and Louis XI. were given. Sir Henry was entertained to luncheon on Thursday by the Plymouth club. His speech on that occasion will be found in another column.

Miss Cecilia Loftus, all her old friends will be sorry to hear, has been taken seriously ill, while appearing at Akron, in the State of Ohio, America, and has been obliged to cancel her engagements. Miss Loftus was taken ill while appearing in Mr. Zangwill's Serio-Comic Governess, and fainted on the stage. Her doctor attributes her collapse to overwork. She is now in hospital; but we hope soon to hear of her recovery.

Mr. George Alexander had a tremendous reception at the Lyceum on Wednesday evening, when he recited two poems to a delighted audience, which included Miss Ellen Terry. His first selection was some verses entitled "A Lock of Hair," a little story of a boy-and-girl love affair, which Mr. Alexander delivered with remarkable delicacy and humour. Then, with effective orchestral accompaniment, he delivered the ballad from If I Were King, with the refrain, "Where are the snows of yesteryear?" This went with remarkable swing and spirit, and Mr. Alexander at its conclusion was recalled with enthusiasm.

Miss Terry, who was in a box, had the attention of the audience called to her in an amusing manner. The "Harmony Four" were "discovered," as they used to say in the old stage directions, playing cards. "Here is the queen," said one of the quartet. "Queen of what?" asked another. "Why, the queen of the house," replied the first speaker, rising and pointing to Miss Terry. The audience applauded loudly, and a young man in the stalls sprang to his feet and cried, "Three cheers for Miss Ellen Terry!" Miss Terry, who was "visibly affected," came to the front of the box, and bowed again and again.

Mr. Edward Hastings, the octogenarian manager, has received the following subscriptions:—Sir Squire Bancroft, £10 10s.; Mr. Herbert Beerbohm Tree, £10 10s.; Mr. Cyril Maude, £5; Mr. C. Murray, £5; Mr. Henry Arthur Jones, £2 2s.; Miss Agnes Ingreville, £2 2s.; Miss Davies Webster, 10s.; Mr. W. Staveley, 5s.; Mr. Compton, 5s.

Mr. Arthur Bourchier will take The Walls of Jericho to the Prince's Theatre, Bristol, on Monday afternoon, for a flying matinée. Mr. Bourchier, Miss Violet Vanbrugh, and the Garrick Theatre company will present Mr. Sutro's piece to the Bristolians, and will return to London in time for the ordinary evening performance. The company will leave Paddington at nine in the morning, and arrive at Bristol at noon. The performance will commence at half-past one, and the curtain will fall about four. Mr. Bourchier and his company will leave by the quarter to five train, and reach Paddington at ten minutes to seven, in time to get to the Garrick and appear in the piece.

Mr. Charles Brookfield states that as he and Mrs. Brown Potter and Mr. Gilbert Hare most amicably differed in opinion as to the extent to which an adapter is justified in diverging from the line of the original author's work, he simply asked them to give the work of adapting M. Jean Richepin's play, Du Barry, to someone else. Mr. Brookfield adds that he could not, with satisfaction to himself, make the alterations in the play that Mrs. Potter and Mr. Hare desired, so he decided not to touch the piece. "Our parting is in every sense a friendly one," he says.

Mr. George Alexander will produce Mr. Alfred Sutro's new three-act comedy, Mollentrave on Women, at the St. James' Theatre, on Monday evening, with a cast including Mr. Eric Lewis, Mr. Norman McKinnel, Mr. Leslie Faber, Mr. Robert Horton, Mr. E. Vivian Reynolds, Mr. Gerald Jerome, Mr. E. H. Brooke, Mr. Murray Carrington, Miss Marion Terry, Miss Lettice Fairfax, Miss Nora Greenlaw, and Mrs. Kemmis.

Miss Tita Brand, daughter of Miss Marie Brema, will begin early in May a short season at one of the principal West-end theatres with Shakespeare's Othello. Miss Brand herself will sustain the part of Desdemona, and Mr. Hubert Carter, who recently made such a success in Marlowe's Faust, will be the Othello. Then will follow Franz von Schonthan's well-known poetic play, Renaissance, which will be metrically translated by Miss Alix Greeven (Mrs. J. T. Grein). It is also Miss Brand's intention to give a triple bill in a series of matinées, which will include a famous French playlet, entitled Punchinello, the English version of which is written by Mr. Hubert Carter, and perhaps a new one-act opera by an English composer. The business arrangements will be in the hands of Mr. B. A. Meyer.

By the kindness of Mr F. W. Wyndham, through his able lieutenant, Mr F. C. Sutcliffe, Mr G. M. Steinson, the Vice-Chairman of the Printing and Publishing Sub-Committee of the National Lifeboat Institution, has been granted the use of the Tyne Theatre for a Grand Matinée on Thursday, February 23. Although Mr Steinson's principal object is the Lifeboat Saturday Fund, he is quite aware that the success of any such matinée must be due to the artists taking part in it; so he has arranged that half the proceeds be devoted to the Actors' Benevolent and the Music Hall Benevolent Funds. Such an excellent example is well worthy of imitation.

Mr. Charles Frohman, with reference to an announcement which has appeared to the effect that the English rights of Leah Kleschna, a play by Mr. Charles McLellan, which has been produced with so much success in New York, have been bought by a prominent English actress, asks us to state that the rights in this drama for Great Britain and Ireland have been secured by him. Mr. McLellan ("Hugh Morton") is the author of The Belle of New York. His heroine in Leah Kleschna is a thief, and the daughter of a burglar. As she is trying to break open a safe she is discovered by a politician and philanthropist, called Paul Sylvaine, who reforms and saves her. Mr. Frohman will present the drama at a West-end theatre about Easter, with Sir Charles Wyndham as Paul Sylvaine. It is hoped that the rôle of Leah Kleschna may be played by Miss Lena Ashwell.

At the Aldershot Police-court, on Monday, Ronald James Carpenter, of Ealing, was charged with stealing a brooch, valued £5, the property of Mr. Allen Thomas. Mr. Thomas was playing the Emperor in Aladdin. The prisoner, who is said to be the son of a retired major, was discharged, the magistrates observing that they did not wish to spoil his prospects, especially as the prosecutor had strongly appealed on prisoner's behalf. The costs, amounting to £2 9s., were paid.

Mr. Douglas Gerrard, having just finished an eighteen months' engagement as juvenile lead with Mr. Tree's companies, playing David Rossi in The Eternal City, and Prince Karu in The Darling of the Gods, has been specially engaged to play Lancelot in Merely Mary Ann, on tour, opening at Lyceum Theatre, Sheffield, next Monday.

Mr. Imre Kiralfy will dispense entirely with ballets and spectacles in the bold scheme of amusement which he is outlining for his new pleasure grounds at Shepherd's Bush. He will, he declares, have nothing which he has ever had before. Every idea will be new. Exhibitions and sports competitions will form the bases of attractions. The exhibitions will be official, and something of the character of those held in 1851 and 1861, but even in them the method and principle will be entirely novel, and attempts will be made to surpass anything yet done at Paris, Chicago, or St. Louis.

St. James's Hall, Piccadilly, closes its doors today, and will at once be demolished. The last concert will take place this afternoon, and many artists who have been associated with the hall in the past will take part. Mme. Blanche Marchesi will sing, and Mlle. Janotha (who has played 300 times in the hall) will give solos. Florizel von Reuter will also play. The concert will open with "O Memory," by Leslie, and at the conclusion the National Anthem and "Auld Lang Syne" will be given, Mme. Marchesi leading the singing, whilst four grand pianos and the organ will join in. The hall was opened on March 25, 1858, having been built at a cost of £70,000. The first concert held in it was one in aid of the Middlesex Hospital, and was attended by the Prince Consort. The only surviving soloist who took part then is Mr. Santley.

The Prince and Princess of Wales witnessed the performance of The Walls of Jericho at the Garrick Theatre, on Thursday night.

Miss Lilian Braithwaite, Miss Kate Cutler, Miss W. Hart-Dyke, Mr. Dennis Eadie, Mr. E. W. Garden, Mr. George Grossmith, jun., and Mr. Bransby Williams have kindly consented to give their services at a performance which will be given at St. George's Hall on the afternoon of the 16th inst., in aid of the Fairy-Tale Society.

Mr. George Davey, the popular lessee and manager of the Grand Theatre, Islington, will, on the 25th inst., the last day of the run of the pantomime, take a special complimentary benefit on his retirement from the management of the Grand. A fund has been established to present him with a tangible token of esteem from all in connection with the theatre and the inhabitants of Islington. The pantomime for this occasion will be augmented by extra items. Mr. O'Connor, the Press representative of the Grand, is acting as secretary and treasurer of the fund. Mr. Oswald Brand, the manager of the Grand Theatre, Islington, who is so well-known for his many adaptations of the various works of Dickens, is arranging to produce at a West-end theatre, in the forthcoming season, a new stage version of "Dombey and Son," and also his adaptations of "Bleak House," "Little Nell," and "Oliver Twist," which were so successfully produced in Islington some time since.

Mr. Luscombe Searelle has achieved a striking success with his new poetic play Mizpah, or the Story of Esther, which he has written in collaboration with Ella Wheeler Wilcox, the famous American authoress, and which scored a triumph on its production at the Majestic Theatre, San Francisco. Three companies have been formed to travel the play in the United States, and another special company will open in New York in May, following on to London in due course. Mr. Searelle has had many tempting offers to lease the play, actually declining one proposal of $100,000. A public reception was organised in Mrs. Wilcox and Mr. Searelle's honour at the Town Hall, San Francisco, on Jan. 29. The title of Mizpah, by the way, has been used before, as Mr. J. B. Mulholland produced a play of that name some twenty years ago, and toured it constantly.

Mr. Russell Rosse will take a company to the Royalty, Glasgow, for two weeks, commencing on the 13th inst., and playing Facing the Music and Pair of Spectacles. Mr. Rosse will also have a company appearing in Our Boys at Brighton West Pier, next week.

Mr. Melville's "Lucky Wedding Ring," which he is presenting to the first engaged couple entering the Standard Theatre to witness his drama, Her Forbidden Marriage, has been awarded to a young couple of Dalston, and the wedding takes place at Hackney Old Church to-day. The ring was presented on the stage last Tuesday night, by Mr. Melville, and is the fourth wedding ring that has been bestowed in this way at this theatre since Christmas.

An appeal has been set on foot by Mr. A. F. Henderson, general manager to Sir Charles Wyndham. The gentleman on whose behalf Mr. Henderson is exerting himself is Mr. Percy Ellis, who has held the position of acting-manager at the Shaftesbury, Terry's, Avenue, and Wyndham's Theatres, and whose most recent appointment was that of assistant-manager at the New Theatre. Mr. Ellis was obliged some nine months ago to relinquish active participation in business affairs in consequence of his suffering from consumption. So serious is his condition that he was refused admission at the Brompton Hospital some months ago, as no hope could be held out of his recovery.

Mr. Ellis's condition is rendered all the more painful from the fact that his protracted illness has completely crippled him financially. Mr. Henderson has just issued a circular letter, in which he says:—"Having a great personal regard for Mr. Ellis, I am anxious to relieve him during the last few weeks of his life, and at the suggestion of a few personal friends, I am getting up a subscription for him. I should be very grateful for any assistance towards this most deserving case." Friends of Mr. Ellis and others who would like to assist in the kindly work of relief to one who has for many years relieved others should address their subscriptions to Mr. Henderson, at the New Theatre, St. Martin's-lane.

Messrs. Frederick Harrison and Cyril Maude have lent the Haymarket Theatre for a complimentary benefit matinée on the afternoon of the 17th inst., on behalf of M. Orleneff, Madame Nasimoff, and the company of Russian actors who are now in London. M. Orleneff and Madame Nasimoff will appear in two one-act comedies in Russian, introducing some singing and dancing. Mr. Tree will be seen in The Ballad Monger; Miss Winifred Emery, Mr Cyril Maude, Mr. Sydney Brough, and Mr. Edmund Maurice, will enact the screen scene from The School for Scandal; and Miss Ellen Terry will be certain to have a tremendous reception in Nance Oldfield. Sir Henry Irving has telegraphed expressing his sympathy with "these countrymen of Tolstoi, the practical advocates of that writer's ideals of toleration and concord." Mr. A. F. Henderson has undertaken the management of the matinée.

Mr. Edward Terry, who is now visiting the principal cities in America and Canada, under Messrs. Liebler and Co.'s management, has met with Madame Réjane while on his travels, and has arranged with the French actress to occupy his theatre for three weeks in June.

Mr. Arthur Bourchier will shortly send on tour a first-class company with Mr. Alfred Sutro's highly successful play, The Walls of Jericho, for which money is still being refused at the Garrick Theatre at eight performances a week. The strong dramatic action and wholesome tone of The Walls of Jericho should appeal powerfully to provincial playgoers. The tour will be under the direction and management of Mr. Silvanus Dauncey and Mr. M. V. Leveaux.

Mr. Oswald Brand, the manager of the Grand Theatre, Islington, whose success with his many adaptations of the various works of Dickens was so pronounced, is arranging to produce in the West End during the forthcoming season a new stage version of "Dombey and Son." Among other works by Mr. Brand will be seen the adaptations of "Bleak House," "Little Nell," and "Oliver Twist," which were given in Islington some time ago.

There was very nearly a catastrophe at Birmingham last Friday week. Some of the principal artists appearing in The Forty Thieves at the Prince of Wales's Theatre—including Miss Minnie Hunt, Miss Alice Oppitz, and Mr. Wilkie Bard—were out on a little spin to Kenilworth, when the engine of the car in which Miss Minnie Hunt rode became overheated, and not until after an hour's hard work was the danger averted, the theatre being eventually reached just in time for the performance.

A new play by Messrs. C. Harvard Pierson and Robt. P. Oglesby, entitled The Blanchard Diamonds, is to be presented by Mr. John Hart for the first time at the Grand Theatre, Hull, on Monday evening next. The play, which is styled a comedy-drama in four acts, is being produced under the direction of Mr. T. F. Doyle, and the cast will include Mr. Walter Russell, Mr. Edmund F. Kennedy, Mr. Benson North, Mr. Lancelot Usher, Mr. Edward Rochelle, Mr. Albert Ward, Mr. Joseph Rowland, Mr. Joseph Hudson, Mr. John Hart, Mr. R. Lines, Mr. Harry J. Morgan, Mr. F. Jameson, Mr. Chas. Caunt, Mr. W. Larkin, Miss Julie Kennard, Miss May Congdon, Miss Maud Hildyard, Mrs. Richard Edgar, Miss Nlelie Dallas, and Miss Hilda Holt.

Miss Daisy Halling, who is a patient at the Bradwell Sanatorium, Chesterton, Staffs, with diphtheria, wishes to thank all friends who have written, and to explain that it is against the rules of the hospital for her to reply. She is making favourable progress, and expects to be able to leave the hospital in about six weeks.

Mr. Walter Hann presided at the eighteenth committee meeting of the Scenic Artists' Association, at Robert-street, Adelphi, on Monday. There were also present, Messrs. Edmund G. Banks, W. T. Hemsley, H. W. Owen, William Raphael, Geo. Tweddell, Harry Woolls, Richard Douglass, R. C. McCleery, Harry Potts, W. B. Spong, H. Warner, and Mr. H. Lawrence Harris (secretary). Mr. Henry Arthur Jones and Mr. F. H. Pedgrift were unanimously elected honorary members of the Association, and the following scenic artists were duly elected members, namely:—Mr. Cattermole Cathrey, of Bristol; Mr. E. G. Humphries, of Wands worth Common; and Mr. Gwilt Jolley, of Etaples, France. The secretary announced that he had recently received the following additional donations to the Benevolent Fund:—Mr. Robert Caney, £2 2s.; Sir Henry Irving, £2 2s.; Mr. Herman Hart (London Exhibitions), £4 4s.; Mr. J. G. Symes, 5s.; Mr. A. P. Bowyer, £1 1s.; Mr. W. H. Kendal, £2 2s.; and Mr. J. Fisher White, 10s. 6d. The balance-sheet of the Association for the eight months' ending Dec. 31, 1904, as audited by the honorary auditors, was presented and approved by the committee.

The committee of the Scenic Artists' Association, on Monday, Sir Henry Irving's birthday, sent him a congratulatory telegram, to which Sir Henry replied: "Kindest greetings and most hearty thanks to one and all."

Mr. Arthur Bourchier has received from the Rev. H. Ward, of Amotherby Vicarage, Malton, a letter, saying:—"Why we clergy are so keen on what you are doing is, I fancy, this: We are for ever trying to preach such truths, but we never have the audience! The Mormons are not there! A West-end theatre is a place of worship they still attend, and they have got to listen to what you say, and I think it must flash a sudden light into many a long-drugged conscience. But I must think you run a great risk. What if they only go to the stalls on condition there shall be no sermon? Shall you lose your audience soon, as we parsons do? For you are now a preacher every night, and your target is before you."

Mr. Norman A. Overton has been re-engaged for his old parts by Messrs. Haddon and Loader.—Miss Violet Ellicott, who is concluding a successful sixteen months' engagement in the part of Lu Valroy, the female swindler, which she created in London, and afterwards played on tour under Mr. Walter Melville's and Mr. Tom H. Taylor's managements, has received many pleasant testimonials, in the shape of letters and presents from all parts of the house.—Miss Violet M. Harley has been re-engaged by Mr. Percy Hutchison for the "star" part of Angela, in his Country Mouse company (North), opening at the Crystal Palace on Monday.—Miss Vera Leslie has been engaged by Mr. F. R. Benson for his season at the Coronet Theatre.—Mr. Henry Doughty has returned from a tour in the West Indies, where he has been playing the leading parts in a very extensive repertory.

Messrs. Robert Brough and Herbert Flemming have now completed all arrangements for the first twelve months of their Australasian tour. Mr. Flemming is already on his way to Melbourne to look after the local interests of the new firm, whilst Mr. Brough is busy rehearsing the company here in Beauty and the Barge and The Walls of Jericho. Amongst the artists engaged are Miss Beatrice Day, who made a name for herself in South Africa; Miss Winifred Fraser, Miss K. Gordon Lee, and Miss Ethel Cooper; Messrs. Carter Pickford, Philip Leslie, Edgar B. Payne, and J. Paulton. Both managers will also be included in the casts. Through the courtesy of Messrs. Maude and Harrison, the production of Beauty and the Barge will be an exact replica of that at the Haymarket.

Mr. Lionel Rignold, who has been delighting the Leeds public by his clever performance of Mrs. Crusoe at the Grand Theatre, returns to town the end of this month. He is negotiating with a well-known author for the production of a new comedy in the spring.

Little Miss Maudie Francis, the talented eleven year old daughter of the popular manager of the Empress Theatre, Brixton, who has achieved such marked success with her portrayal of the part of Dolly in Mr. Fred Karno's pantomime of Cinderella, produced at the Stoke Newington Theatre, will probably be seen again this year with Mr. Albert Chevalier. She has had numerous offers of engagements for next season's pantomimes, but her father has withheld his decision for the moment. The little lady, who for six weeks at Stoke Newington charmed audiences by her graceful and clever performance, is now appearing in the same pantomime at the Sheffield Theatre Royal, where a visit of three weeks' duration is being made.

Mr. Lewis Waller has, by means of his autographs, collected a further sum of £5 2s. 6d., and sent it to the Actors' Benevolent Fund.

Mr. H. Lawrence Harris, of 5, Robert-street, Adelphi, W.C., informs us that he has taken up the London agency of the Valley Water Mills Colour Co., Keynsham, near Bristol, and will be happy to submit to scenic artists and others specimens of their colours. The Valley Water Colour Co. recently sent a donation to the Benevolent Fund of the Scenic Artists' Association.

Mr. Eade Montefiore, whose management of the Grand Theatre, Edinburgh, has resulted in complete success, will in future place his faith on home-bred musical productions. Arrangements have been made to stage a Scottish musical play entitled A Trip to the Highlands, viâ the Waverley-station to Oban and Braemar, with a company of forty, including a troupe of sixteen dancers from Paris, national specialities being also introduced. Staged for one month at Edinburgh, in April, the production will be afterwards taken on tour, while for the summer Mr. Montefiore proposes to give a season of extravaganza, an Oriental burlesque being prepared for later use. Mr. Fred Locke, the well-known Scotch pantomime writer, will supply the book, while Mr. E. T. De Banzie will be responsible for the music, several settings of which are to be supplied by a well-known Society lady in Edinburgh.

Mr. J. F. Elliston received 131 telegrams of congratulations on the occasion of his benefit on Wednesday, Jan. 25. The first message, handed in at Portsmouth at 9.2 a.m., was from Sir Henry Irving, and read as follows:—To J. F. Elliston, Theatre Royal, Bolton.—"May I offer my hearty congratulations on your worthy success for a quarter of a century? May your success be continuous, and your loves increase as your days do grow.—Henry Irving."

Mr. Fritz Zorn, the author of the new farcical comedy, The Designers, which will be produced at the Brixton Theatre on Monday evening next, is a native of that suburb, having been born there in the early seventies. Although a new-comer as a playwright, Mr. Zorn has already made his mark in the literary world with his humorous novel, "Bunce, the Bobby, and the Broads," which has run through many editions. The Designers will be presented by Miss Ina Rozant's company, including such capable artists as Messrs. W. Hargreaves, William Luff, F. Lester, and Herbert Lloyd.

Mr. Hall Caine's play, The Christian, in an Icelandic translation, has been produced at the Reykjarik Theatre, in Iceland, for several consecutive performances, awakening an unusual amount of interest and enthusiasm in the arctic regions.

Mr. George Edwardes, who left New York on Wednesday by the s.s. Baltic, of the White Star Line, is due back in London next Thursday.

Mrs. Theodore Wright, owing to indisposition, was obliged to resign the part of Lady Anne Wilmot in Captain Marshall's new play, The Lady of Leeds, produced on Thursday at Wyndham's Theatre. The part was taken up by Miss Fortescue, who sustained it very crisply and brightly.

King Oscar of Sweden has conferred upon Mr. George R. Sims the knighthood of the Norwegian Order of St. Olaf, first class, not only on account of Mr. Sims's abilities as a journalist, but also in recognition of his spirited championship of the cause of the much-injured Adolf Beck.

At the meeting of the London County Council, on Tuesday, the Improvements Committee presented an important report with reference to the letting of the central portion of the crescent site formed in connection with the Holborn to Strand improvement. The site in question has an area of about 123,350 square feet, and lies between Aldwych and the Strand, being bounded on the east and west by the 50ft. approach roads which it is proposed to form between the Strand and Aldwych. It has frontages of about 630ft. to Aldwych, about 410ft. to the Strand, and about 230ft. to each of the approach roads between the Strand and Aldwych.

The proposal has been made by Mr. W. Gilbert Scott, F.R.I.B.A., and Mons. Ernest Gérard, acting on behalf of a French syndicate, who have prepared a scheme for dealing with the property as a whole. It is proposed to erect on the middle portion of the site a fine stone building of commanding architectural features. This central building will cover an area of about 32,500 square feet, and will be of an average height of about 60ft. It will consist of a basement with ground and first floors only, containing large galleries for use in connection with art and industrial exhibitions; a French theatre and a French restaurant and café of the highest class will also be included in the central block of buildings. Beyond the central block of buildings the site will be enclosed by shops, with basements and ground and first floors only, the height above the ground level being about 27ft. The space between the central block and the shops will be laid out as gardens, and ornamented with fountains, statues, and flowerbeds. A charge will be made for admission to the grounds. The roofs of the shops will be used as a promenade, to which access will be obtained from the gardens. It is also proposed to erect an open-air theatre for summer use. The promoters anticipate that the buildings surrounding the site will be let to French jewellers, bootmakers, milliners, confectioners, stationers, &c., or will be used as clubs, offices, or for other commercial purposes. The promoters make their offer entirely dependent upon their being permitted to apply for a licence for the sale of food, beer, wines and spirits to be served at tables by waiters, but no bars are desired, except such as are usually allowed in theatres licensed by the Lord Chamberlain.

The Committee reported in favour of the acceptance of the proposal, pointing out "that instead of the site being almost covered with lofty buildings, as usually happens in the case of valuable sites in the central parts of London, a large portion of the site will be laid out as gardens, and the buildings in the remainder will be restricted in height. A novel and artistic feature will thus greatly add to the amenity of this important part of London." At the request of the Chairman of the Committee, the consideration of the report was deferred until the next meeting of the Council.

THE DRAMA IN PARIS.

"L'AMOURETTE."

Comedy, in Three Acts, by M. Pierre Veber, Produced at the Théâtre Antoine, Feb. 3.

Maingant ..... M. ANTOINE.
Mazure ..... M. FRANCES.
Laverton ..... M. MOSNIER.
Tapageur ..... M. DEGEORGE.
Emile ..... M. VARGAS.
Jeannine ..... MDLLE. ANDREE MERY.
Marthe ..... MDLLE. DE VILLERS.
Mdlle. Penseriaux ..... MDLLE. ELLEN ANDREE.
Mme. Laverton ..... MDME. DELIA.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

PARIS, THURSDAY, FEB. 9.—We expected better things from that clever playwright, M. Pierre Veber, than Amourette, his latest production at the Théâtre Antoine. The dialogue is bright, and frequently witty, but the personages are too uninteresting, too sketchy to appeal to us in any way. Jeannine and Marthe, the daughters of M. Laverton, have both fallen in love with Claude, a fascinating but penniless youth. Claude prefers Jeannine, but as the young ladies are rich he is quite prepared, if needs be, to take her sister. When, however, he asks Laverton for Jeannine's hand, he meets with a refusal. The old man will not have Claude for a son-in-law at any price. Moreover, he wants his eldest daughter to marry Emile, Claude's friend, who is rich, and holds a fine position. Claude and Jeannine then decide to run away. The young man borrows a few pounds, and in his friend Emile's motor-car starts off at full speed. But it turns out a miserable fiasco. Claude shows himself awkward and inexperienced, whilst his companion, a spoilt child, cannot put up with the least fatigue. Before they have gone very far their car breaks down, and they are obliged to take refuge in a dirty little inn. Both are cross and wretched, and in their hearts pleased when old Laverton suddenly makes his appearance and brings the couple back to Paris. Claude had enough of Jeannine's company, and the latter has come to the conclusion that she will be much happier with the less fascinating but upright Emile. Marthe, less sentimental and exacting than her sister, has no objection to Claude; and Laverton is so glad to see his eldest daughter comfortably settled that he allows Claude to marry Marthe. The interpretation was excellent.

FAR superior to L'Amourette is Les Manigances, a comedy in one act, by M. Alfred Athis, also brought out at Antoine's. Victor and Charlotte have lived together for four years as husband and wife, and have led a remarkably happy life. The two lovers are always together, except one evening in the week, when Victor visits some friend to have a game of cards. It is there that he meets a young girl whom he would like to marry. But he thinks of Charlotte, and, not knowing what to do, goes to his friend Marcel for advice. As it happens, Marcel has been secretly in love with Charlotte for a long time past, and gladly offers to take charge of her—provided the lady consents. The thing having been duly settled, in principle, they decide that Marcel is to broach the subject to Charlotte. But Victor, in his desire to spare the young woman's feelings, rather complicates matters, and when he goes to her to discuss the affair they fall into one another's arms. They love one another more than ever, and nothing will separate them. This smartly written, clever little comedy was admirably played by M. Signoret, M. Bonarel, and Mme. Jeanne Lion.

THE third piece produced at Antoine's was Les Experts, a one-act play by M. Benières, wherein the author, in an amusing manner, shows how the world is fleeced by the lawyers. A workman has met with an accident, and claims £400 damages from his master. The tribunal appoints two experts. Master and man are anxious to come to an amicable settlement, but such an arrangement would not prove profitable to the lawyers. So they complicate matters; and, when both parties finally fix on a sum of £100, the workman receives from the experts a couple of guineas. The rest is gone in "expenses." La Fontaine, in his fable 'The Oyster and the Litigants," has already told a similar tale, but M. Benières has modernised it, and given us a somewhat exaggerated but amusing tableau of malpractices which, unfortunately, happen too often.

"THERESE RAQUIN," which was revived at the Odéon last night, was given for the first time at the Théâtre de la Renaissance, in July, 1873, then under M. Hostein's management. Zola's novel, on which the play is founded, dates as far back as 1867. The artistes who created the work—including Mme. Marie Laurent—are all dead. In 1892 one single performance was given of Thérèse Raquin in aid of a charity in which Zola himself was interested. The Odéon has now placed this fine literary production permanently in its répertoire. Madame Zola assisted at the rehearsals.

WHILST on the subject of the Odéon, I would like to mention that M. Ginisty's contract with that playhouse does not expire till 1908; and, without his consent, no change in the management can be effected. Something, however, must be done, the past year having shown that M. Ginisty sadly wants someone by his side to make a more judicious selection as regards the plays to be brought out at that theatre.

AT the Vaudeville the piece to follow La Petite Peste will be La Retraite, the well-known play by Franz Adam Beyerlein, which had—and, I think, still has—such a phenomenal success in Germany. The French translation is by MM. Rémon and N. Valentin. Curiously enough, in the work which plays in a military milieu, there is only one woman's rôle. This has been entrusted to Mdlle. Marthe Mellot, the Titiana in Les Oiseaux de Passage, at Antoine's.

"TRISTAN AND ISOLDE" is now making the "maximum" at the Opera. The last takings were nearly £800. This eagerness on the public's part will, however, soon wear itself out. Wagner—I am sorry to say—does not appeal to the masses in France, by whom he is not understood. Society men and women in Paris go to hear the German master's works because it is "fashionable" to do so. I noticed the same thing with the Walkÿre, Lohengrin, &c. The receipts on the Wagner nights dwindled more and more, until they came to a level below that of French composers. The average Parisian will always prefer Gounod; and Faust, at the present moment, is still beating every other work in the way of takings.

VICTOR HUGO'S masterpiece, Angelo, tyran de Padoue, just revived at the Sarah Bernhardt Theatre, has, of course, lost nothing of its literary beauty. But it appears woefully old-fashioned, and we can with difficulty realise that when given at the Comédie-Française it roused the audience to such a pitch of excitement that the evening generally ended in a free fight between the adherents of the romantic school and its opponents. It is not necessary to relate here the story of how Rodolfo, the handsome cavalier, is loved by Catarina and by La Tisbé; the former the wife, and the latter the mistress, of Angelo, Tyrant of Padoua. When La Tisbé discovers her lover's liaison with Catarina she thinks only of revenge. But when she realises that Rodolfo prefers her rival she despairs, and nobly sacrifices herself. Mme. Sarah Bernhardt, as La Tisbé, and Mdlle. Blanche Dufresne, as Catarina, were admirable in their rôles. The same praise, however, cannot be bestowed upon the rest of the cast.

PRESENTATION.—Dr. Bodle, at the conclusion of his last week's engagement at the Queen's Theatre, Longton, presented the energetic manager, Mr. H. S. Howard, with a very handsome gold enamelled match-box as a token of appreciation.

PLAYERS OF THE PERIOD.

MISS MARION STERLING.

MISS MARION STERLING gained her experience in the theatrical profession in stock business. In the summer of 1892 she was engaged to play Mrs Smith, in Bootles' Baby; and in the following year Mr Hugh Moss engaged her to play Humpty in the same piece, which tour lasted about eleven months. The next year Miss Vincent engaged her to play Lady Wargrave, in The New Woman, which she did for about fourteen months. In the spring and autumn of 1897 she played Lady Appleby, in The Shop Girl, Mr Mouillot's Co., and in the January of 1898 following Mr. F. Latham engaged Miss Sterling for the Adelphi Theatre. After the tragic death of Mr W. Terriss and the withdrawal of Secret Service, he retained her for Mrs Brown Potter's season, during which she played Madame Richard, in Charlotte Corday, and Madame Deschapelles, in The Lady of Lyons. At the close of this season she was engaged by Mr Charles Hawtrey, for Lady Pamela Mallison, in Lord and Lady Algy, at the Comedy Theatre. Her next engagement was with Mr George Arliss's comedy, The Wild Rabbit, under Mr Stanley Cooke's management, and in the autumn she was secured by Mr. F. Latham for On and Off tour. In the spring of 1900 she had a special six weeks' engagement as Mrs Van Bureen, in The Absent-Minded Beggar, and in the autumn she was secured by Messrs George Day and Wentworth Croke for Mrs. Callender, in The Christian, and on April 13, 1901, she sailed for South Africa, under Messrs. Sass and Nelson's management. Some of the parts she played were Lady Harborough, The Second in Command; Queen Dowager, The Royal Family; Miss Pillenger, Lady Huntworth's Experiment; Mrs Gilwattle, The Man from Blankley's. Miss Mrs Gilwattle, The Man from Blankley's. Miss interesting of my professional life. On the journey from Kimberley to Port Elizabeth we were held up at Naauport (by the British) some ten hours, while the Battle of Craddock was being fought. I think it was about nine o'clock at night when we were allowed to resume our journey. I am thankful to say that nothing happened on that occasion—I mean of special gravity—but the Boers heliographing from hill to hill, as we passed through a valley, the lonely sentinels posted along the line, in the still night, and in the grey dawn a troop of soldiers watering their horses at some pools in a hollow near the railroad—shadowy and making no sound as they rode away into the mist—I was told Craddock was close by—all this seems nothing much to speak of, but it somehow kept one's nerves tense at the time."

Miss Sterling was again in England by Christmas, and was engaged in the following February to play Mrs Ericson, in When We Were Twenty-One. She also appeared in Mrs Langtry's production of Crossways, at Manchester, in the autumn. In August, 1903, she played Lady Brocklehurst, in The Admirable Crichton, on tour. Since then she has been engaged by Mr. F. Topham Ben Greet Pastorals, for Dame Quickley, Merry Wives of Windsor, Queen Altèmire. The Palace of Truth, and to create the part of Lady Warrender, in Mr H. M. Paull's comedy, My Lord from Town.

MISS MARION STERLING.

MISS LALLA STANHOPE.

MISS LALLA STANHOPE made her first appearance at the early age of twelve months, as the "baby," in The Woman of the People, at the Theatre Royal, Birkenhead, under the management of her father, Mr Butler Stanhope. By a strange coincidence the same play was performed the night she was born. When she was about seven years old she toured as the child in her father's play, The Gombeen's Gold. During the tour of three years she paid her first visit to the Metropolis, and had the exciting experience of being lost in London. Getting separated from her parents in a crowded thoroughfare, she missed them, and wandered on and on. Eventually, becoming bewildered and frightened, she stood still and began to cry. The usual crowd soon collected, and a policeman appeared on the scene, and, upon learning what was the matter, was proceeding to take her to the nearest police-station, when fortunately she was able to remember the name of the theatre at which she was playing. He at once escorted her there, and restored the lost one to her anxious parents, much to their delight, and also that of the company, several of whom were scouring the neighbourhood in every direction. During that week she had the honour of singing before the Duke of York (now the Prince of Wales).

After leaving school, Miss Stanhope again toured with The Gombeen's Gold, this time playing the light comedy part, Mollie (originally played by her mother), and also Constance, in The Three Musketeers. Her first engagement away from her father's management was with E. C. Matthews, to play Eily, in The Colleen Bawn, and Moya, in The Shaughraun, and during the tour the company visited the Theatre Royal, Dublin, where she had the honour of playing Eily on the command night before the Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, the Countess Cadogan, the Duke and Duchess of St. Albans, the Duchess of Abercorn, and the Earl and Countess of Meath. Lord Roberts was to have been present, but was called suddenly to London to take command of the troops for South Africa. Miss Stanhope then joined Mr Arnold Bell's stock season at the Grand Theatre, Newcastle. A special engagement followed with Mr J. F. Graname, at the Prince of Wales's, Birmingham, to play Lucy, in Our Flat. Then came a stock season at Chesterfield, with Mr. Melville Bickford. She was next engaged by Mr Chalmers Mackey for Biddy, The Wearin' o' the Green. After two years' continuous engagement, she was secured by Messrs Dottridge and Longden to create the light comedy part Chouette, in A City of Sin. She toured with this play, and was re-engaged for the autumn to play juvenile part, Ilma. A stock season with Mr Hugh Montgomery at Edinburgh and Glasgow followed, Miss Stanhope playing Rose Dean, The Wages of Sin; Ned, The World Against Her; Mary Vaughan, Called Back; Barbara Dale, The Wages of Sin; and also creating the waif, Willie, in Mr Montgomery's play, The Life Beyond. Later she was engaged by Mr Alfred Lester for a stock season at the Theatre Royal, Cardiff, to play Arrah Meelish, in Arragh-na-Pogue, Abigail, in Nell Gwynne, Moya, &c.

MISS LALLA STANHOPE.

MR. WILLIAM LOWE.

Mr. WILLIAM LOWE was born at Aberdeen, where he studied elocution and many Shakespearean parts for three years, under the tuition of Mr. Peter Crone, an old actor, who had played with John Philip Kemble. Well coached in stage-craft, he commenced his theatrical career at the Park Theatre, Liverpool, on Easter Monday, 1857, was so pleased with his performances that she engaged him for a season at Dundee. Messrs. Walter Roberts, Lindo Courtenay, C. A. Clark, Ben Ware, and Miss Marion Cutriss being the principal members of the company, and the visiting stars Kean Buchanan, Joseph Proctor (both American tragedians), Samuel and Robert Roxby, John Coleman, and Miss Maggie Aiken. Associated with such artistes, the young histrion soon showed marked signs of ability in many parts, especially as Cool, the Valet, in London Assurance. In rehearsing the part of Achmet, in Jessie Brown he narrowly escaped suffocation. Before being hoisted to the flies, at the end of the second act, by order of Mr. John Coleman, a white handkerchief was bound round the spy's face, the rope being tied inside, at the nape of his neck, giving the appearance of the victim having been hung thereby. To heighten the illusion, a detached piece of rope was knotted round his throat, while the main one was fastened to a hidden belt under the armpits. "A splendid effect," said John, giving the hoisting signal. As Achmet dangled in the air, the rope, enforcing the law of gravitation, so tightened the handkerchief round his nose and mouth that he could not breathe. In the ascent, he struggled, and kicked of the stage-manager's hat, which caused some laughter. Mr. Walter Roberts, judging it was an act of distress, and promptly perceiving the cause, cried, "Lower the rope; the man is suffocating." In the confusion, the order was tardily accomplished, and the victim was in a state of collapse when dumped on to the stage. Happily he soon recovered, and has never forgotten John Coleman's "splendid effect," and that probably his life was saved by kicking off a man's hat. At the end of the Dundee season he joined Mr. Edmund Glover's companies at Greenock and Glasgow, where he stayed three years, and played important parts with Miss Helen Faucit, Louise Keely, Mr. Montagu Williams, Sir William and Lady Don, Edward Righton, George Vincent, Henry Ashley, &c. Leaving Glasgow, Mr. Lowe went to Belfast, and there supported Ira Aldridge, the African Roscius, and Charles Dibdin Pitt, as Cassio, in Othello, Gabor, in Werner, and Edmund, in King Lear, &c. Afterwards engaged by Henry Webb, he opened at the Queen's Theatre, Dublin, playing Snuffles, in Dinorah Under Difficulties, Mr. J. L. Toole appearing as Dinorah. In the celebrated comedian's répertoire he played Bumble, in Oliver Twist, and other character parts. Messrs. T. C. King, Charles Rice, John Clark, and Miss Charlotte Saunders came starring here, with whom he impersonated old men successfully. Mr. Frederick Macabe, of Begone Dull Care fame, was a member of the company. To gain practice in leading business he appeared at John Day's theatre, Dundee, in a round of the principal Shakespearean characters, and was author of three pieces produced there, viz., Bonnie Prince Charlie, The American War, and The Terror of the Tay. Then followed seasons at Hull and Norwich. At the latter place he became melodramatic leading man, playing Diavoletti Arbaces, in The Flower Girl of Pompeii, Mr. Oakley, in The Jealous Wife, &c. In 1862 he returned to his native city, Aberdeen, to join Mr. McNeill's company as heavy man, and supported Mr. and Mrs. Charles Kean as the Ghost, Coitier, and Gibby, in Hamlet, Louis XI., and The Wonder. Here he met Miss Fanny Wallis, the talented leading lady, who, at the end of the season, became his wife. From that date he supplied successful pantomimes for Scottish theatres, notably, Tam-o'-Shanter, Let Glasgow Flourish, Edina, Scotland and Her Shires, Bonnie Dundee, Hallowden, Watty and Meg, Rampant Lion, Sinbad, and many others from nursery tales. Mr. Lowe has written a number of comedies and dramas, and produced Spoons, Wanted, Crocodile; Abbot of Aberbrothock, &c., and likewise published The Reapers, a pastoral play, ballads, recitations, &c. A long succession of engagements ensued with Mr. William Sidney, at Richmond, Norwich, King's Lynn, and Greenwich; with Mr. Sefton Parry, at the Holborn Theatre, London, in The Antipodes; and five seasons with Mr. Alexander Wright, at Greenock, where he was a special favourite in such parts as the Dougal, in Rob Roy, Doctor Pangloss, in The Heir-at-Law, Jock Howieson, in Cramond Brig, &c. In special productions and tours of Guy Mannering he played Dandie Dinmont and Dominie Sampson, to the Henry Bertram of Mr. Sims Reeves and Mr. W. H. Turner, Mrs. Lowe being Meg Merrilees. Then followed successful engagements for thirteen years with Miss Marriott, in whose company he alternately appeared as Ratcliffe, Dumbiedykes, and David Deans, in Jeanie Deans, the Baillie, in Rob Roy, Burleigh in Elizabeth, &c. Still touring with the Osmond Tearle Répertoire Company, now under the direction of Mr. Herbert J. Montague, as principal old man and woman, Mr. and Mrs. Lowe have received signal marks of approbation from the public, press, and managers, for their various performances and faithful services as thorough and gifted artistes.

MR. CECIL A. COLLINS.

MR. WILLIAM LOWE.

MR. CECIL A. COLLINS.

MR CECIL A. COLLINS, before commencing his professional career, played upwards of fifty parts with various amateur clubs and societies around London and in the provinces. He then accepted two professional engagements, one being Montano, in Othello, with Alexander Bohun, and the other Sergeant Jones, in A Merry Marchioness, with C. W. Macabe, and was so successful in these parts that he decided to take acting up altogether. Mr Collins made his first appearance (walking on) in A Lady of Quality, at the Comedy Theatre, London, under Mr Bea Greet and Mr J. B. Mulholland's management. Then followed a short tour in Shakespearean and old comedy répertoire, when he played various parts. Following two tours of The Sign of the Cross, in which he played Licinius, Tigellinus, and, later, Glabrio, with Mr Ben Greet, came a short summer tour in Shakespeare with Mr Rawson Buckley, when Mr Collins had the experience of playing ten new parts in one week, including the Duke, in Othello, Charles, in As You Like It, &c. He then rejoined Mr Ben Greet's own company as assistant stage-manager in A Royal Family, later becoming stage-manager for two tours. A season of pastoral plays followed, in which Mr Collins was called upon to play Don John and Fabian at a few hours' notice without a rehearsal. In the summer of 1901 Mr Collins produced and managed a special tour of The Sign of the Cross, and the following Christmas he was engaged as general and stage-manager and to play Sid Prince in Sherlock Holmes, later acting the title-rôle, Professor Moriarty, and Jim Larrabee, in the same piece. The following summer Mr Collins was engaged by Mr Ben Greet to produce Sherlock Holmes (three companies), which he did with every success. Following this, he staged The Eternal City, and played Bruno Rocco for Mr J. Bannister Howard, and engaged two more companies at the termination of the tour. Mr Collins sailed in August, 1903, to America, under Mr Charles Frohman and Mr Ben Greet's management, to represent Mr Greet and play Feste in Twelfth Night, and the Prince of Morocco, in The Merchant of Venice, which he did with great success. Other parts Mr Collins has played are De Haas, in On 'Change, Sam Gerridge and Hawtree, in Caste, Arthur Merrick, in The Scarlet Flower (a new production), Tom Wrench, in Trelawney of the Wells, &c.

THE DRAMA IN PITTSBURG.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

PITTSBURG, PA, JAN. 15.—The Wizard of Oz, a musical extravaganza, the book and lyrics of which were written by L. Frank Baum, while the music was supplied by Paul Tietjens and A. Baldwin Sloane, occupied the boards of the Nixon Theatre last week. The play is a delightful fairy tale, which reminds one a great deal of Alice in Wonderland. A sweet little Kansas girl with her playmate, a cow named Imogene, a scarecrow in search of brains, and a tin woodman in search of a heart, are the principal characters, while there is no lack of fairies, munchkin youths and maidens, flowers, &c. The scarecrow and the tin woodman come in for much applause. Miss Anna Laughlin is a sweet Kansas girl; and the rôles of the scarecrow and tin woodman are successfully undertaken by Messrs. Fred A. Stone and David C. Montgomery.

A POPULAR authoress with the American public is Lottie Blair Parker, who has written Way Down East, The Redemption of David Corson, and several other successful plays. Her Under Southern Skies, which was produced at the Gaiety Theatre last week, has been on the road for almost four years, and still holds its own, drawing crowded houses wherever it is performed. It is a love story full of emotional situations, and also rich in comedy which has the sunny south for its background. A woman who leaves her broken-hearted husband and little girl in order to follow a worthless fellow, who casts her off as soon as he has squandered her money, her return to her home after sixteen years on the birthday of her daughter, the reconciliation—this is the story in brief, around which many touching events are grouped, which go to make a pleasing play. In Miss Minnie Victorson Lelia Crofton, the heroine of the play found a charming exponent of the character. She was ably supported by the rest of the numerous company.

MESSRS. NIXON AND ZIMMERMAN produced Willard Spencer's comedy opera Miss Bob White at the Duquesne Theatre during the past week. Two young millionaires, Artie Tre Billion and Billy Van Million, have lost an election bet to an English duke. By the conditions of the bet they have to become tramps for two months and not make any use of their fortunes during that period. In their wanderings they come to Friend Samuel Rodd's farm, where they apply for work. They get it with a vengeance, and here their sufferings and the fun of the comedy take place. Miss Livingston, a society belle of New York, who loves one of the millionaires, learns of the bet, and, disguising herself as a milkmaid, takes a situation at the same farm and succeeds in fascinating the man she loves. At the expiration of the two months the millionaires return to their beautiful home on the Hudson, whither all their new friends are invited. Miss Bob White, the milkmaid, turns out to be a charming society belle, and Tre Billion has no trouble in obtaining her hand.

THE DRAMATIC FRANKENSTEIN.

A lecture was given last Sunday evening at the Criterion to the members of the O.P. Club by Mr. M. J. Landa on "The Dramatic Frankenstein." The chair was taken by Mr. H. H. GORDON, L.C.C.

Mr. LANDA compared Frankenstein to the playgoing public of the present day, which had made the actor, or more particularly the actor-manager, into a monster by flattery, and by excess of interest in the actor rather than in the play. Mr. Landa referred to former times, when the play was the principal thing and the players of very little account; and compared those days unfavourably to the present ones, when the drama, he asserted, is of secondary interest in comparison to popular players, elaborate effects, and gorgeous dresses. Mr. Landa's attack was directed chiefly against a well-known actor-manager, whom he practically accused of converting a Shakespearean play into a variety show.

In the debate which followed, Mr. ARTHUR COLLINS, the president of the club, remarked that we must remember that acting is an art which has more publicity given to it than any other. The actor was always before us, and was represented in the written and pictorial Press.

MR. J. T. GREIN advocated the election in England of a Minister of Fine Arts, and said that so far as Art is concerned we have no national conscience. He urged less elaboration in the drama of to-day, and referred with enthusiasm to the classical simplicity of a production of Romeo and Juliet in Manchester last week. Provincial playgoers, said Mr. Grein, do not visit the theatre in the same spirit as London playgoers; they go because the theatre is part and parcel of their lives; London playgoers, because it is part and parcel of their digestion.

MR. CARL HENTSCHEL thought that the drama was at a low ebb, the public preferring musical plays. Mr. Tree had given us Shakespeare run on musical lines because the public wanted it. Personally, Mr. Hentschel preferred Shakespeare as played by the Benson Company. He wished that somebody would build a theatre on the lines of the Coliseum and the Lyceum, where one could get a comfortable seat at a low price.

MR. PHILIP CARR is strongly in favour of a repertory theatre. Admitting, he says, that among our many actors of talent we have few who would subordinate themselves to the routine of a repertory system; admitting, even, that the multiplicity of theatres in London supplies one large and perpetual repertory; there is still the fact that there are many plays, modern, classical translations of foreign masterpieces, new works of untried authors, and the more serious work of popular writers, all of which will command a public, but not a public for six months. And there is no theatre in London where such plays can be produced for a week or a fortnight only—at any rate, intentionally for a week or a fortnight. Of course, "short runs" are sometimes compulsory

THE DRAMA IN BERLIN.

"DER KILOMETERFRESSER,"

Farce, in Three Acts, by Curt Kraatz,
Produced at the Thalia, Jan. 31.

Kugelberg	Herr Thielscher.
Frau Kugelberg	Fraulein Brahms.
Mary	Fraulein Ballot.
Trude	Fraulein Wehling.
Forster	Herr Bartels.
Fritz	Herr Schlotthauer
Kleefeldt	Herr Helmerding.
Frau Kleefeldt	Fraulein Abarbanell
Reinbold	Herr Olfers.
Broemser	Herr Formes.
Minna	Fraulein Wannovius
Auguste	Fraulein Schotz.

BERLIN, Thursday, Feb. 9.—It would be an utterly impossible undertaking to detail all the complications of this whimsical work. Plot there is as good as none, and the author's motto appears to be "a laugh at any price." He has written a number of improbable scenes round as many loosely connected episodes, but he has taken care that the characters are genuinely amusing, and that the dialogue is brisk. Above all, the piece is in excellent hands; Herr Thielscher—the original Charley's Aunt, of whom we are justly proud—was, of course, entrusted with the chief rôle, and well indeed did he support his reputation. Herr Helmerding (another clever comedian) gave the part of an actor, great only in his own estimation, with excessive humour, and other rôles were capitally sustained by Fräuleins Ballot, Abarbarnell, and Wehling, and Herren Schlotthauer and Bartels. Kilometerfresser is, by the way, the nickname for a motorist with racing proclivities. Notwithstanding—or, possibly, on account of—the nonsenical comicalities it contains, the piece made a very favourable impression, and will no doubt run for some time. The author was called before the curtain repeatedly, and very cordially applauded.

At the Berliner on Friday two plays of Molière's in the translation and adaptation of Ludwig Fulda—Der Zwist der Verliebten and George Dandin—were produced. It was an interesting evening, and may be recorded a success. Herr Fulda is at home in work of this kind, and he has not lost a point of the original. Both pieces were remarkably well interpreted, the impersonation of the rôle of Dandin by Herr Robland being, perhaps, the best of the evening.

Flotow's pretty little opera—and one too seldom done—Alessandro Stradella, is being given at the National, and drawing well. Herr Reinhardt sings the title-rôle with a pleasing, well-cultivated voice, although his acting is lacking in many ways, and the other artistes, particularly Frau Raabe-Burg (as Leonore), give good all-round renderings.

The Neues Theatre has been trying its hand at Shakespeare, with a fair amount of success. Der Sommernacht's Traum (Midsummer Night's Dream) was produced on Saturday, the management having done its utmost in the way of selecting the cast and mounting the play. The charming music of Mendelssohn-Bartholdy was adequately rendered, and made its customary impression under the leadership of Herr Gustav Hollander. The rôles of the lovers were acted by Fräuleins Höflich and Heims, by Herren Von Winterstein and Ekert, all four excellent artistes. Herr Engels played with wonted humour the part of Bottom—in which he is thoroughly at home—and Herr Arnold (the creator of the Serenissimus rôle) was delightfully funny as Thisbe. Fräulein Eibenschutz was a pleasing Titania, but somewhat disappointing were Fräulein Durieux and Frau Eysoldt as Oberon and Puck. The play was received with enthusiasm, artistes and manager being overwhelmed with applause.

Hauptmann's striking drama Die Weber has been revived at the Lessing with a magnificent cast, the principal actors being the same as at the production of the piece twelve years ago. Of Fräulein Lehmann's Luise, of Herr Sauer's Old Hilse, and of Herr Rittner's Moritz Jaeger it would be impossible to speak too highly. The applause grew from act to act, until Dr. Brahm was compelled to appear in the name of the absent author.

It is not generally known that Ibsen—who is as a rule never turned from his course—once allowed himself to be over-persuaded in the matter of the ending of a play. It was at the first production of Nora at Munich. The famous actress Frau Niemann-Raabe was giving the name-part, and, fearing the desertion of her husband and children by Nora would damage the play, begged Ibsen to alter the last scene, and reconcile the heroine to her surroundings. Ibsen, who wished to be approved of in Germany, consented after a good deal of demur, but the finale fell very flat, and was never repeated. The next time Nora resolutely said adieu to her husband, and started forth in search of "das Wunderbar," and the results are matters of history.

Herr Georgе Hirschfeld's new drama Nebeneinander, which is to be produced at the Lessing on Saturday, is being looked forward to with intense interest. The best actors of the company are down for the cast.

The latest novelty at the Residenz—where Herr Richard Alexander reigns in his double capacity of manager and our most famous comedian—is Hotel Pompadour, a three-act farce by MM. Mars and Xanrof, the German translation by Max Schoeman. It is a genuine and typical Parisian farce, full of the light, graceful badinage which German pieces, as a rule, lack, and—needless to say—furnished with the requisite piquancy. As the play has certainly been described in your columns at the time of its original production in Paris, a narration of the impossible, but entirely amusing, plot will be superfluous. A word as to the brilliant cast, which has not its equal for pieces of this class in all Berlin. Herr Alexander is as indefatigable as he is many-sided. Laying aside his "bomben-rôle" in Herkulespillen, he takes up that of Canibel on the following night, and each part might have been written for him, so admirably does it fit him. His humour is so absolutely irresistible that the audience frequently broke out into applause—amidst flattering "roars"—by open stage. Fräulein Körner (as Madame Canibel) supported the clever actor-manager in the best possible manner, and other rôles were capitally taken by Fräuleins Witt and Roland and Herren Seldeneck, Georg, Bach, and Leisner. There is no doubt at all but that Hotel Pompadour will prove a first-rate draw for a long time to come.

Herr Sigismund Lautenburg, the former lessee of the Residenz Theatre, has not altogether retired from public life. A capable actor always, and at his best in Ibsen, Herr Lautenburg, happily, is not giving up the stage yet awhile. He is arranging a series of Anzengruber performances at the Deutsches in May with an excellent company, including Frau Hansi Nisi and her husband, Herr Josef Jarno, both of Vienna; Fräulein Schoenchen, Herren Thaller and Martinelli, and others.

"Die Bruder von St. Bernhardt," five-act play by A. Ahorn, is to be produced at the Deutsches this evening. There has been a good deal of discussion and much bad blood in connection with this new work, which has been forbidden by the censorship in some parts of Germany.

A new Elsa has made a successful appearance at our Royal Opera—Fräulein Marie Ekeblad. The lady possesses a most melodious and dramatic voice, and her acting in the rôle of Elsa was highly sympathetic. The part of Lohengrin was taken by Herr Kraus, who was indisposed, and therefore less effective than usual. Fräulein Reuil's Ortrud I have mentioned before as an altogether inadequate impersonation, but Herr Bertram, on the other hand, was admirable as Telramund.

Or wonder-children there has been no lack in the world of music lately, but quite the most marvellous of the long list is the twelve-year-old Russian violinist, Mischa Elman, who has just gone back to St. Petersburg before going to England. Young Elman is practically no child-wonder, but a ripe virtuoso with an artist's soul, and all the critics here put him before any living violinist of his age. Of a truth, one is tempted to believe in the transmigration of souls when one hears the wonderful little lad; it seems impossible that such phenomenal technique, such breadth and power, coupled with such deep feeling, can be produced in only twelve years of life. Mischa's last concert here on Friday was another triumph; his execution of Tschaikowsky's and Wieniawski's concertos brought down the crowded house, and he was recalled twenty-six times.

A BERNARD SHAW COMEDY.

Mr. Bernard Shaw is one of the privileged few who is able to write without one eye on the actor-manager and the other on the theatre box-office; but he is going to prove one day in London, as he has proved in New York, that he can think out a play that will fit the one and cause the other to be besieged. Were he to give us a "theatrical" piece, in the full conventional sense of that much mis-used adjective—well, he would not be Bernard Shaw; and, as he would be the last one to complain of being unappreciated by the mass of Cockney playgoers, he may be left to tilt at stage conventions, and to evolve from his inner consciousness such amusing satire as we find in John Bull's Other Island, which was revived for a series of matinées on Tuesday at the Court. A red-hot politician belonging to any party would intensely enjoy Mr. Shaw's clever cynicism and shrewd criticisms of the Gladstone policy in Ireland. One does not stop to examine the logic of the Shaw dicta that dis-establishment has strengthened the so-called Irish Church; and that nothing would weaken the Catholic Church so much as giving it the status of establishment, because we suspect that he is poking fun at political doctrinaires. He may tell us that the abolition of landlordism and the creation of a peasant proprietary is merely an aggravation of an admitted evil by substituting one class for the other, or he may talk of land nationalisation; but he would not expect us to pay him the poor compliment of taking him seriously. The continual laughter that was heard throughout the Court Theatre on Tuesday afternoon was joined in by the Prince and Princess of Wales, who occupied a private box.

The satirical piece was capitally played by a cast including many of those who were the original representatives of the characters on the production of the piece in November last by Messrs. J. E. Vedrenne and Granville Barker. Mr. Louis Calvert repeated his success as Tom Broadbent, who is quite English, with the innate confidence and self-esteem of the race. Mr. Calvert asserts the Shaw theses with an irresistible emphasis and a sturdy self-sufficiency that bring out to the full the author's ironical humour. Mr. Percival Stevens is again a characteristic exponent of Tim Haffigan, the Irishman with an array of grievances that could never possibly be reformed, even with the most beneficent scheme of Home Rule that statesmen could devise. The peevish tone and the crescendo of indignation were intensely Hibernian. Tim is continually checked in his exuberant bitterness by Barney Doran, a part played in excellent fashion by Mr. Wilfred Shine. Mr. C. M. Hallard succeeded in making a most favourable impression as Larry Doyle, whose assertion of certain views on landlordism and the Church prevent his election. Mr. J. D. Beveridge has quite the benevolent manner and dignified assurance that one expects to find in the highest grade of the Irish priesthood; and his Father Dempsey was an impersonation of genuine interest. Mr. George Trollope imparted the necessary traits to the character of Hodson; Mr. Granville Barker was well placed as Keegan; Mr. F. Cremlin was particularly good as Corney Doyle; and Mr. A. E. George supplied a neat sketch of Matthew Haffigan. Miss Agnes Thomas was firm, incisive, and amusing as Aunt Judy; and Miss Ellen O'Malley realised the sweetness and charm that belong to Nora. The piece was mounted with great care.

GUILDHALL SCHOOL OF MUSIC.

The concert of Wednesday last at the Guildhall School of Music had some creditable features, especially in the vocal department, which would have been worthy of still greater commendation if the students had not in some instances attempted too much. For example, Miss Mabel Needs chose the great air from Mendelssohn's Elijah, "Hear ye, Israel," a number that taxes the vocal resources of the most experienced artiste. It also requires the utmost dramatic expression, and is therefore trying to a student, however gifted. We do not deny that Miss Mabel Needs is a very clever and cultivated young vocalist, and we feel certain that with such good advice as Madame Medora Hensen can give her, she will do ample justice in time to Mendelssohn's fine music, only it is desirable to wait a little longer. Besides "Hear ye, Israel," demands the contrast of chorus and orchestra. In the song, "Lovely Night," by Landon Ronald, Mr. Reginald Crawford employed a good voice and style with great effect. Mr. Crawford promises to become a really excellent singer. Miss Muriel St. John did well in Hope Temple's simple but pleasing ditty, "Rory Darling"; and Miss Winifred Boult was successful in Denza's pretty ballad, "You." In "A Dream of Paradise" Miss Harriet French displayed vocal skill, and Mr. Gracie did himself credit in the popular melody, "Dio Possente," from Faust. Miss Louise Goulden opened the concert with Raff's graceful "La Fileuse," which was neatly executed. Miss Mary Cooper played so well that she made us regret the choice of such poor music as Thalberg's "Tarantella," which is but a feeble example of his powers as a composer. Miss Catherine Gwillim merited commendation in the Adagio and Finale from Beethoven's Sonata in E flat, Op. 27; and Miss Lydia Basset won hearty applause in a piece by Sinding, although it concluded the concert. Miss Ruby Eager, in a violin solo by Franz Ries, displayed no little command of the instrument, and Mr. Norman Attwell proved himself a capable 'cellist in Romberg's old-fashioned Concerto in D minor. Miss Edith Tailby recited Pyramus and Thisbe, by Saye, with much spirit, and Miss Kate E. Ward rendered efficient assistance as accompanist. Mrs. Charles P. Smith, as usual, had charge of the young ladies.

A performance was given at the Criterion Theatre, on Friday, the 10th inst., for copyright purposes, of a play in four acts, by Israel Zangwill, entitled Jinny the Carrier.

One of the most dramatic incidents in real life that have occurred of late was the attempt of the brave Lady McNeill to save Glyn Prichard from drowning. The Memorial Fund, which was opened to commemorate her tragic death, will be devoted to the endowment of a bed in the Leicester Infirmary, and the erection of a window in Carlton Curlieu Church, Leicester. The fund will be closed on Feb. 28. Any friends wishing to subscribe can send amounts to the Fund at the Bank of England, Burlington Gardens, W., or to the Rev. A. W. Rokeby, Carlton Curlieu Rectory, Leicester; or Mr. Alfred Suart, Burton Overy, Leicester.

HISTORIC PROVINCIAL PLAYHOUSE.

By T. H. BARROW.—IX.

Among the memorials of past dramatic triumphs (perhaps a few disappointments—who knows at this late stage?) is a day bill announcing the final leave-taking by Mrs Siddons of the York public. In the theatre annals of the Eighteenth Century the severance of Mrs Siddons's active association with the stage was memorable, hence my proposal to give the full text of an historic placard:—

"Not acted here these twenty-seven years.—Mrs Siddons's final leave of the York audience and the last night of the company's performing till Easter week.—Theatre Royal, York.—On Saturday evening, March 21, 1812, his Majesty's servants will revive Shakespeare's play of Measure for Measure, as altered by J. P. Kemble, Esq., and repeatedly performed this season at the Theatre Royal, Covent-garden, with distinguished attraction and applause. Duke, Mr Cummins; Angelo, Mr Evatt; Escalus, Mr M'Gibbon; Claudio, Mr Wilks; Lucio, Mr Mansel; Frederick, Mr Cope; Leopold, Mr Willis; Friar Peter, Mr Daniels; Provost, Mr Foster; Froth, Mr Jarman; Elbow, Mr Kelley; Pompey, Mr Russell; Abhorson, Mr Wood; Barnadine, Mr Hall; Thomas, Mr Hope; Mariana, Mrs Evatt; Francisca, Mrs French; Mrs Overdone, Mrs Ward; Isabella, Mrs Siddons, the last year of her ever appearing on the stage. After which the musical farce of Paul and Virginia:—Don Antonio, Mr Wood; Tropic, Mr Hall; Paul, Mr Payne; Dominique, Mr Russell; Alhambra, Miss S. Decamp; Diego, Mr Daniels; Sebastian, Mr Cope; Sailor, Mr Hope; Virginia, Mrs Sterling; Jacintha, Miss Matthews; Mary, Mrs Ward. To begin at a quarter before seven o'clock. Tickets: box, 4s.; pit, 2s. 6d.; first gallery, 2s.; upper gallery, 1s. Second price: box, 2s. 6d.; pit, 1s. 6d.; first gallery, 1s."

I have a copy of that rare publication the Yorkshire Magazine (for June, 1786), which contains an excellent wood-cut portrait of Mrs Siddons—below which the editor adds this flattering couplet:—

And what bold Parasite's officious tongue
Shall dare to tax Calista's Name and Guilt?

Mrs Siddons had a long and honourable connection with the ancient city. Isabella, in Measure for Measure, seems to be one of her favourite portrayals. Indeed, she had distinguished herself in the part in 1786—nearly twenty years prior to her final retirement from the stage. Her performance in that year drew from an ardent admirer the following lyrical rhapsody, which appeared in print over the author's modest initials—F. W.:—

Queen of the human heart! whose potent skill,
The fiercest natures can with ease controul,
Who leads astonish'd fancy where she will,
"And in elysium wraps the list'ning soul!"

Grief, Terror, Madness, Pity, Love, Despair,
With awful zeal upon her glances wait;
While Sense and Reason with unceasing care
United stand to guard her regal state.

There let her sit secure in honour plac'd
(Applauding shouts resounding forth her name),
Sustain'd by Merit, while her head is grac'd
With wreaths entwin'd by Virtue and by Fame.

Could anything enshrined in language be sweeter or tenderer in its expression?

So far as I can ascertain there is no record that the York theatre underwent any important alteration from the time Baker completed it in 1765 till 1822. A large doorway in Mint-yard which led to the gallery and the stage was originally the only entrance to all parts of the house. In the event of a large audience, patrons proceeding to boxes, pit, and gallery (there were not circles in those days) had to press forward to the pay-box in an indiscriminate mass, and separate themselves after securing their tickets. Internally the theatre was quadrangular, with a row of boxes at each side of the stage. Below the stage boxes were the stage doors. At these Charles Surface was wont to make his exit in the famous Screen Scene in The School for Scandal. Brass sconces were fixed all over the house, which was illumined during public performances with wax candles. This was the general condition for over half-a-century. The time came, however, when considerable improvements were imperative.

In 1822 the interior was altered from quadrangular to semi-circular, on the model of Covent-garden Theatre. Two tiers of side and front boxes were constructed with access to convenient and well-decorated lobbies, and there were added one front and two side galleries. Brilliant glass-mounted gasaliers were fixed, gas took the place of wax candles, the front of the boxes was richly decorated in basso-relievo (executed from designs in the Temple of the Parthenon at Athens), and the pilasters of the proscenium were painted in imitation of Sienna marble by a Leeds artist named Rhodes. Another important alteration was the division of the public entrances. The gallery door was, as I have said, in Mint-yard, now St. Leonard's-place. In Blake-street was constructed a spacious vestibule for patrons of boxes and pit, who in that apartment separated for the different parts of the house. Off the landing of the first lobby was an elegant saloon. The pitites, on the other hand, proceeded from the vestibule to their seats on the ground level, as at present. Voluntary contributions defrayed the greater part of the cost of these improvements, the fund being augmented by a grant of £200 by the Corporation of York. The theatre as altered and enlarged was computed to hold at ordinary prices (boxes 4s., pit 2s., gallery 1s.) about £150.

Samuel Parsons, who is described as one of the comedians of the stock company, sprang into local literary fame in 1822 by the publication of a work with the title "Life and Poetical Trifles." With what subjects the author specially dealt I am at this distance of time unable to say; but he was sufficiently ingenuous to admit that he was in indigent circumstances and that he had been induced to publish the work by public subscription in order "to snatch this neglected Son of Thespis from the jaws of want."

The ladies of the York theatre at this period included Miss Foote, afterwards Countess of Harrington, Miss Chester, and Mrs and Miss Glover. Of Miss Chester comparatively little is, I believe, recorded; but Mrs Glover was a capable actress. In June, 1822, she played the character Hamlet at the Lyceum Theatre on her benefit night. The house was packed. In a stage box were Edmund Kean, Michael Kelly, Munden, and the Hon. Douglas Kinnaird. Kean, after the first act, went round to the stage, greeted Mrs Glover with both hands, and exclaimed rapturously, "Excellent, excellent!" She, obviously in a spirit of raillery, replied, "Away, you flatterer! You come in mockery to scorn and scoff at our solemnity!" Boaden describes Mrs Glover as the ablest actress in existence in 1833. R. C. Leslie some time before this referred to her as possessing a commanding figure, but being monstrously fat.

(To be continued.)

Mr. Editor,—Sir,—In the notice of the production of The Poor Must Live last week, you referred to Mr. Charles Fulton's company. I beg to inform you that the piece is under the sole control of Mr. Geoffrey Fulton.—Yours faithfully, C. Brereton Borer (Acting-Manager). Grand Theatre, Luton, Feb. 9.

An interesting special turn was given during the performance of Dick Whittington at the Theatre Royal, Windsor, on Friday, the 3rd, by Master William Flowers (son of Mr. Flowers, of Windsor), who very skilfully rendered an imitation by the mouth of a gramophone reproducing the song "In Old Madrid."

COUNTY COUNCIL AND AMUSEMENTS.

(specially reported for "the era.")

The usual weekly meeting of the London County Council was held on Tuesday at the County Hall, Spring Gardens.

OPENING OF NEW THEATRES AND MUSIC HALLS.

The following report was received from the Theatres and Music Halls Committee:—We desire to draw attention to the practice which obtains with regard to the opening of new theatres and music halls. It is the custom for the person for whom a new theatre or music hall is being erected to fix, many months beforehand, a date for the opening of the premises. Contracts with artistes are entered into, and all arrangements definitely made for opening on this date, which is often decided upon without due regard to the exigencies of construction. It almost invariably happens that when the advertised date of opening approaches the building is in an unfinished condition, and it is only by working night and day that there is any possibility of getting it sufficiently finished for the Council to issue a certificate to enable it to be opened at the advertised time. The result is that the Council is asked to certify the building the moment it is completed—perhaps only a few hours before the advertised time of opening. When it is remembered that the Council's inspection of a new or reconstructed theatre or music hall entails a minute and careful comparison of every part of the building with the plans approved by the Council, and exhaustive examinations of the electric lighting and heating arrangements, it is obvious that the Council's officers ought to be allowed some few days after the completion of the building to make their inspections, whereas it is generally the case that they have to make their inspections whilst the workmen are still engaged upon the building, and before the removal of the scaffolding, and consequently a great deal of time is wasted in going over the ground several times. But a much more serious objection to the system is that an undue amount of responsibility is thrown upon the chairman of the committee and the Council's officers, if they are called upon to decide, a few hours before the advertised time of opening, when all the seats have been sold to the public, whether the premises are in a fit condition to be opened.

During the past Christmas recess no less than five places—the Coliseum, the Lyceum, St. George's Hall, the Haymarket Theatre, and Drury-lane Theatre—were opened, the first-named being an entirely new building, and the others having been entirely reconstructed. The Coliseum was advertised to open on Dec. 19, and we inspected the premises on Dec. 7, when much work remained to be done. Our last meeting was held on Dec. 14, and the matter had, therefore, to be left to the chairman and vice-chairman of the committee. An inspection was made by our chairman on the morning of Dec. 19, when it was found that the whole of the scenery was of a very inflammable character, and that in many other important particulars the work was incomplete. The opening had, therefore, to be postponed till Dec. 24. On Dec. 23 an inspection was made by the vice-chairman of the committee, who then found the arrangements such that he was able to authorise the opening. Owing to the incomplete state of the work and the consequent postponement of the opening, some of the officers of the Council were engaged for several weeks in inspecting the building.

The Lyceum was advertised to open on Boxing Day. We were informed before our adjournment for the recess that the building could not possibly be sufficiently complete for inspection before Dec. 24. The vice-chairman of the committee, accompanied by the Council's officers, inspected the building on that date. The arrangements were found to be incomplete in many most important respects; for instance, the fire curtain was not finished, the electric lighting installation was so incomplete that it had not been possible to make any test, and some of the seating was not fixed, so that it could not be seen whether the gangways would be satisfactory. The management stated that it would be possible to finish everything before the advertised time of opening on Dec. 26, but the vice-chairman pointed out that, even if this were so, the Council's officers would not be afforded any opportunity of inspecting the building and making the necessary tests of the fire curtain and the electric lighting and heating arrangements. It was consequently decided to postpone the opening until Dec. 31, and as a matter of fact, it was not until the morning of Dec. 31 that the arrangements could be reported sufficiently complete to allow of the premises being opened. In the case of St. George's Hall, the opening had to be postponed because of unfinished work, but the Haymarket Theatre was sufficiently completed to be allowed to open on the advertised date, viz., Jan. 2, although it was only at the last moment that it could be certified. In the case of Drury-lane Theatre, the Council was relieved of any responsibility in connection with the opening, as the arbitrator, by the terms of his award, provided that the work of complying with the award should be done to his satisfaction.

We think the Council will feel that the state of things which now generally obtains should, if possible, be altered, and that sufficient time should elapse between the completion of a building and the date upon which it is desired to open it for public entertainments to allow the Council's officers to survey the premises and report to us, and for us to make an inspection, if necessary. We purpose informing owners in future that they must make such arrangements as will enable this to be done, and we report the facts for the information of the Council, and with a view to giving publicity to the matter.

SUPPLEMENTAL ESTIMATE.

The committee reported:—Our attention has been drawn to the fact that our expenditure under the head of "Theatres and Music Halls—surveying" will exceed the amount of £5,205 provided in the estimates, and that it is necessary for us to submit a supplemental estimate in respect of our expenditure under this head. The expenditure, which was not provided for in the estimates, but has been incurred or sanctioned, consists of £180 incurred in connection with the arbitration proceedings in respect of the Theatre Royal, Drury-lane, which amount is, however, recoverable; £100 for the inspection of electric lighting arrangements at places of entertainment; and, £50 for the purchase of mathematical instruments, making a total of £330. It is probable that £50 of this amount will not be required during the year 1904-5, thus leaving a balance of £280, for which sum it is necessary to submit a supplemental estimate. As before stated, £180 of this amount was incurred in connection with the arbitration proceedings with regard to Drury-lane Theatre, and is recoverable, as by the terms of the arbitrator's award the cost of the award has to be borne by the proprietors of the theatre; thus making the net increase in the estimates for the year £100. The committee recommended "That the supplemental estimate of £280 be approved, and that expenditure not exceeding that sum be sanctioned in respect of the expenses in connection with the surveying, &c., of theatres and music halls."—Agreed to.

LYCEUM THEATRE.

The committee reported that they had considered two slip tracings submitted by Mr. B. Crewe, showing a deviation which has been made from the plans approved by the Council for the reconstruction of the Lyceum Theatre. The deviations in question related to an alteration at the foot of the stairs on either side of the pit. The committee recommended "That Mr. Crewe be informed that the Council has no objection to the arrangements shown on the two slip tracings, submitted by him, with regard to the proposed alteration, provided slopes be formed to the satisfaction of the Council in the place of the two lowest steps."—Approved.

NON-INFLAMMABLE SCENERY.

Mr. Yates, the chairman of the committee, in reply to Sir Algernon West, said a rule was adopted some time ago that all scenery should be rendered non-inflammable, and the committee sent out a circular to all licensees ordering them to carry out that recommendation. He regretted, however, to say that these instructions had not been carried out as well as the committee wished, and in a report which was being prepared the individual cases of failure to comply would be set out.

AN IMPORTANT PROPOSAL.

The Improvements Committee brought up a long report recommending that a lease be granted to a French syndicate for a site between Aldwych and the Strand, for the purpose of erecting a French theatre, restaurant, art galleries, and industrial exhibitions.

Mr. Davies, the chairman of the committee, asked that the whole matter might stand over for a week.

This was agreed to.

NEW MUSIC.

The Everyman cantata is founded on the old morality play by H. Walford Davies, who has composed a very effective and artistic cantata on the subject of the quaint mediæval piece for four solo voices, chorus, and orchestra. It is published by Sidney Riorden, Noel-street, Oxford-street, W. As the composition is numbered Opus 17, it will be seen that the composer is no novice. He has, indeed, won a reputation in the ranks of native musicians, and in this work has shown great ability in writing music exactly suited to the quaint old play. Everyman has been somewhat compressed, and some obsolete expressions omitted, to make it suitable for present-day performances. It has been questioned whether the cantata is fitted for amateur choirs. We think that is exactly what the work is designed for, the only difficulty being that a good basso, tenor, soprano, and contralto are required for the solos. These demand competent vocalists, but the composer has wisely refrained from making the vocal solos too abstruse, and with great judgment he has given the portions supposed to be spoken by the Almighty to the chorus. This at once disposes of any charge of irreverence. The pianoforte accompaniments are artistic and appropriate, and fairly atone for the absence of an orchestra when that assistance is not readily to be obtained. In short, we can without hesitation recommend Mr. Davies's cantata to the consideration of any cultivated amateur choir, and as the pianoforte score is published at the low price of three shillings, it is available to all musical amateurs. It is unnecessary to remind our readers of the high moral tone of the subject, and to those who have yet to make acquaintance with it we may suggest that Everyman bears a considerable resemblance to Bunyan's "Pilgrim's Progress," the main difference being that here the allegories of the grand old tinker are put in a dramatic shape. In many parts the cantata rises to the dignity of an oratorio, and it gives us pleasure to record that it is written by an English musician.

"Songs of the Sea," by Henry Newbolt and C. Villiers Stanford, is published by Messrs. Boosey and Co. Mr. Newbolt has written some spirited verses chronicling the doings of our naval heroes and other events of nautical interest, and Sir Charles Stanford has set them to music of excellent quality. One of the most characteristic is "Drake's Drum," a picture of old nautical days, with "sailor lads a-dancing heel and toe," but all the time listening for "Drake's drum" to warn them of the approach of the foe. Sir Charles Stanford has no superior in setting such lines to music. His melodies have the true nautical flavour.

Heller and Co., Wells-street, Oxford-street, send "Alpine Roses," a pretty Valse de Salon, by J. E. Peilgen, none the worse for occasionally echoing a phrase of Chopin, but the composer does not slavishly follow his great model. He has ideas of his own, and uses them skilfully. The same musician has a swing song, entitled "Siciliana," with a pleasant refrain. "La Marguerite" is a lively drawing-room solo for the pianoforte, by Arthur Thompson McEvoy. The Rondo in C for pianoforte, by Pascal Needham, has a flavour of the old masters, and may be recommended as a study. "Autumn Leaves" is an intermezzo in A flat, by Ernest Crooke, having somewhat the character of a gavotte. It is well written and artistic. "Adieu," a song composed by Hugh Redwood to verses by C. R. Glover Davis, is almost old-fashioned in its simple pathos. Mr. Gordon Wilson is one of those favoured writers whose effusions are accepted by the King. Such has been the fortunate fate of his ballad, "My Soldier Boy," set to music by Colet Dare. Another composition of Mr. Gordon's is "The Empire Song," the music by A. W. Deeley. It is clear that Mr. Gordon is no "little Englander." He rejoices in the breadth and power of the British Empire. "Nanette," by the same author, is a song in praise of a maiden thus named. "My Own Sailor Lad" is a descriptive ballad, and another of a similar character is "I'm a Simple Maiden," with music by Colet Dare. Still another ditty by Mr. Gordon is "I'll be a Soldier, Dada," in which an old veteran is supposed to be listening to his little boy as he sings a patriotic refrain. Mr. Gordon publishes his works at his address, Noel-street, Watford, Herts.

ROYAL COLLEGE OF MUSIC.

On Thursday evening the Royal College concert opened with the Quintet for Strings of Schubert in C Major, Op. 163. The quintet occupies nearly an hour in performance; but it was so carefully played on this occasion that none complained of tedium, and the extreme beauty of some portions amply atoned for its "long drawn out" sweetness. The executants were the Misses Harrison, two youthful and gifted young ladies, and Messrs. Parsons, Bridge, and Ivor James. Another admirable performance was that of Schumann's Adagios and Allegro for Violoncello and Piano, in A Flat, Op. 70, by Mr. F. Gustom Parkington and Miss Alice Cotton, who did themselves great credit. Arensky's Trio for Piano and Strings, in D Minor, concluded the concert, the players being Olive Blume, Gwendoline Pelly, and Charles Warwick Evans. The vocal music was interesting, the first item being "Absence," by Berlioz, to which justice was done by Miss Amy Crosland. Two charming duets by M. Saint-Säens were given by Miss Florence Nixon and Mrs. Aubrey Millward, who were very successful, and whose voices blended well. A recitation of "A Royal Princess," by Christina Rossetti, was given with much grace by Miss Dilys S. Jones, who displayed considerable elocutionary skill.

At the New Opera House, Kidderminster, this week, we have a welcome return visit of Miss Daisy de Roy's up-to-date pantomime Dick Whittington. Mdlle. Lucretia is at once a favourite as Dick; Miss Daisy de Roy is a most captivating Alice; and Miss Toppy Lytton plays the Princess in taking style. Of the fun-makers the Barrasford Boys (James and Percy) are much in evidence as Captain Shipwreck and Bosun, the parts giving scope for plenty of mirth. Mr. Paul Courtney is a humorous Alderman Fitzwarren, and Mr. Sidney Dooley an amusing Eliza. Mr. H. Blunt as Idle Jack is excessively humorous. Roe and Roe in their trapeze act are good, as also are Rose Walmsley's Quartet of lady dancers.

AMUSEMENTS IN PITTSBURG.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

PITTSBURG, JAN. 23, 1905.—A busy week was seen at the Nixon, when Mr. Charles Frohman's company presented Augustus Thomas's clever comedy, entitled The Other Girl. The play, which has a champion light-weight pugilist for its hero, who through a mistake as to his real identity, enters the exclusive set of a Fifth Avenue New York family, and makes love to an heiress, abounds in comical and witty situations, and at the same time affords the play-goer an opportunity of peeping into New York life of the best kind. In the role of Mr. Sheldon, the boxer, Mr. Lionel Barrymore has ample opportunities of displaying his versatility, which he does with the ease of a good actor. Another well-acted part was that of Dr. Clifton Bradford, the athletic parson, by Mr. Richard Bennett. The heiress and her companion were well interpreted by the Misses Doris Keane and Mabel Roebuck, while the rest of the company helped to make the performance a thorough success.

MR. HARRY DAVIS, the enterprising proprietor of the New Alvin Theatre, has secured Miss Amelia Bingham, Mr. Henry Woodruff, and a number of other first-class actors, for a limited stay, in order to present some of the latest plays in the most perfect way possible. The first of this series of performances was the production of Clyde Fitch's four-act comedy, The Climbers, last week. As Miss Bingham created the rôle of Blanche Sterling, it is scarcely necessary to say that she gave a delightful delineation of the character, while the support which she received from Messrs. Woodruff, Dodson Mitchell, William McVay, and the original stock company, resulted in an admirable presentment of this delightful work. The Climbers is to be followed by another work from the same pen, entitled The Frisky Mrs. Johnson.

"THE VOLUNTEER ORGANIST," a drama by Wm. B. Gray, which was produced at the Gaiety during last week, is a play with a moral, and has temperance for its key-note. Still, the drama is so cleverly written that no objection can be raised to its being more fitted for presentation in a church than on the stage. A capable company, under the direction of Mr. Harry Martell, introduced the drama to Pittsburg, and afforded the numerous audiences that crowded the theatre nightly genuine pleasure. A special feature of the performance is the singing of several beautiful solos by Master Will Nelson, a former soloist of Trinity Church, New York, and Master Floyd Hunt, of Grace Church, St. Louis. The former lad has a history that is quite touching. It seems that some ten years ago a farmer who was returning from the market one dreary autumn night to his home near Buffalo heard somebody crying as he approached his house. Leaving his wagon, he took his lantern, and endeavoured to ascertain the cause of the noise. He presently discovered a golden-haired lad, who begged to be afforded shelter for the night, as he had lost his way. The farmer was so charmed with the boy's sweet, innocent face, that he took him in, and brought him up as his own son. The lad soon gave signs of possessing a beautiful voice, and when he was taken to New York, he easily secured a position in the choir at Trinity. Now he charms the people that go to see The Volunteer Organist.

"THE DUQUESNE" was occupied by Kellar, the magician, and Paul Valadon, the exponent of pure sleight-of-hand. Among the many clever tricks, the Levitation of Princess Karnac, the Simla Seance, and a drum that can't be beaten, proved most mystifying.

MR. THEODORE KREMER'S latest comedy-drama, entitled The Woman Who Did, was presented by Messrs. Forrester and Mittenthal's company at the Bijou, during the past week, under very favourable circumstances. The Woman Who Did is a comedy-drama, turning on the deep love of a greatly-wronged man, who forgives his wife all the intense pain and suffering which her faithlessness had caused him, and rehabilitates her in the sight of the world by taking her once more to his heart and home. One of the most thrilling incidents in the play is met with in the second scene of the third act, when, during a performance at a theatre in New York, the unhappy man witnesses a play portraying his misfortune. Stung beyond endurance, he rises and protests, when the principal actor, who turns out to be his wife's lover, levels a pistol at him, and fires twice in succession without hitting him. As he is about to fire once more, the faithless wife interposes, and with a pistol covering him, commands her lover to desist from his murderous intent. Mr. Edwin Brandt gave a very touching interpretation of the part of John Putnam, the unhappy architect. The vile deceiver, Charles Mansfield, was ably presented by Mr. William Tulley, while Miss Ruth Holt made a convincing Ruth Putnam, the heartless wife.

THE patrons of the Empire were entertained with one of the brightest and merriest musical farces seen at this house during the current season. The play is very appropriately named My Wife's Family, and is full of fun and frolic. Presented by a most homogenous company, recruited by Mr. Bert St. John, the farce received a very satisfactory handling, and pleased immensely throughout. The chief fun-creators are Messrs. Hal. Stephens and Harry Linton, who do their work neatly and well. There is also a musical couple, in the person of Mr. J. Edwarde Pierce and Miss Marie Rosslyn, who come in for much applause for their well-rendered vocal numbers.

THE top line on last week's programme at the Grand was occupied by the favourite comic opera comedienne, Della Fox, who rendered with much taste some of her famous song hits. Another good item were the Zancigs, in feats of mind-reading and second sight. The three Yoscarys presented some clever acrobatic tricks. Harry Rochez's ponies and dogs were much admired. Some extraordinary trapeze work was done by the Aerial Smiths. Billy Carter entertained with banjo, songs, and monologue. Wenona and Frank did some marvellous shooting feats. A Night in Venice was a refined musical idyll of the seventeenth century, presented by Messrs. S. Sciarretti and A. Cibelli.

THE farce comedy, entitled Looney Doings at Luna Park, and the nautical musical extravaganza called Around the World in the Airship Jeannette, which were submitted by Edward D. Miner's American burlesquers at Harry William's Academy last week, proved to be extremely mirth-provoking productions, which kept the audience in good humour from first to last.

THE Terriers' monthly concert held last Sunday was a record. Over one hundred visitors were present, in spite of the counter attraction of the Music Hall Railway Association ball. During the evening Miss Flo. Raynor obliged with "Four Chapters" and "Bread and Cheese and Kisses"; Miss Norman rendered "Father in Heaven Above"; Andie Caine was heard to advantage in "My Novelette" and "The Girl in the Big Black Hat"; Slade Murray gave "Hard to Say" and the evergreen "Balaclava"; Bert Morris was effective in two humorous numbers; and Walter Norman obtained his usual ovation for "Spelt with a Great Big B" and "Longshoreman Billy." "Alice where art thou?" was delightfully sung by W. Lang Murray, a new member. A feature of the programme was the singing of the once-famous ditty of "Sweethearts and Wives" by Mr. Weston. Walter Norman was an efficient musical director, and the chair was ably filled by H. Cory Woodrow, the W.T. for the month, who contributed "Ostler Joe" and his music hall skit, "In the Brave Days of Old."

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

LEROY.—No agents that we know of supply "supers," except by request. The super master attached to theatres and halls where "supers" are employed engages the "supers" required.
HAROLD WOOD.—Charles Seel (Fredk. Charles Brown), music-hall comedian, died Dec. 20, 1903.
C. MORTIMER.—We are unable to inform you.
W. NEWMAN.—Dorothy was produced at the Gaiety, Sept. 25, 1886, and was played at that theatre until the third week in Dec., when it was removed to the Prince of Wales's. Mr. Hayden Coffin played Harry Sherwood in the original cast. The ballad "Queen of My Heart" was introduced in the piece when it had been running about a fortnight.
OLD KENT ROAD.—Miss May Whitty made her first appearance at the Court Theatre, Liverpool, in 1881. Soon after she came to London and played at the Comedy and the St. James's Theatres, after which she appeared as Kate Hardcastle and Lady Teazle on tour. She joined the Lyceum Company in 1895.
M. P.—The Shakespeare Memorial Theatre, Stratford-on-Avon, was opened April 23, 1879, and the first performance was Much Ado About Nothing, with the late Helen Faucit as Beatrice and the late Barry Sullivan as Benedick.
R. S. J.—A Country Mouse was transferred from the Prince of Wales's to the Criterion on April 21, 1902, and on July 14 from the Criterion back to the Prince of Wales's, where it ran until Aug. 23, 1902.
FRED.—Sir Arthur Sullivan's "Lost Chord" was first sung by Mme. Antoinette Sterling at one of the London Ballad Concerts at St. James's Hall, in Feb., 1877.
A BAKER.—The theatre and music hall managers have not come to any agreement as to the length of sketches. The number of actors in the cast, &c. There is, however, every probability that the vexed question will be settled within a few days, on the basis of a time limit of 30 minutes and the employment of six principals.
E.J.A.S.—Write to S. French & Co., theatrical publishers, Southampton Street, Strand.
STANLEY COOKE.—A pantomime entitled The Spider and the Fly, was produced at the Britannia Theatre on December 25, 1880. We can find no other record.
WALTER STEPHENS.—(1) We believe there has never been a debate in Parliament on the question. (2) The "Review of Reviews" publishes in every issue a list of the leading magazines and their contents, to which you might refer for information.
CONECTICUS.—Dorothy, comic opera, by B. C. Stephenson, with music by Alfred Cellier, was first performed at the Gaiety Theatre, London, on September 25, 1886.

THE ERA

SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 11, 1905.

PLAYS AND PESSIMISM.

MR. ALEXANDER H. JAPP, in his recently-published estimate of ROBERT LOUIS STEVENSON, makes the following interesting remarks:—

Considering his great keenness and force on some sides, I find R. L. STEVENSON markedly deficient in grip on other sides—common sides, after all—of human nature. This was so far largely due to a dreamy, mystical, so far perverted, and, so to say, often inverted, casuistical, fatalistic morality which would not allow him scope in hatred of scoundrels. Mr. PINERO was wrong when he told the good folks of Edinburgh at the Philosophical Institute, that it was lack of concentration and care that made STEVENSON a failure as a dramatist. It was elsewhere that the failure lay. STEVENSON was himself an unconscious paradox, his weakness being that he wished to show strong and original, by making the villain the hero of the piece. Now that, if it may, by clever manipulation and dexterity, be made to do in a novel, most certainly will not do on the stage, because, for one thing, there is in the theatre a very varied yet united audience which has to give a simultaneous and immediate verdict; an audience not inclined to some kinds of overwrought subtleties and casuistries, however clever the technique. Beau Austin should be re-writ—re-writ especially towards the ending, and the scandalous Beau tarred and feathered, metaphorically speaking, instead of walking off at the end, in a sneaking, mincing sort of way with no more than a little momentary twinge of discomfort at the wreck and ruin he had wrought, by having acted as a selfish, snivelling poltroon and coward, though in fine clothes, and with fine ways and fine manners, which only, from our point of view, make matters worse.

Pessimism, both in plays and novels, is the result of low vitality. When people are out of health, they believe that the world at large is diseased also. Both HENLEY and STEVENSON were, more or less, invalids. When a whole class or nation becomes morally or physically anæmic, the same phenomenon is observable. "The honest people could rule the world if they chose," said VOLTAIRE; "unfortunately they are most of them cowards." But VOLTAIRE'S bark was worse than his bite; and he lived in an age when justice was hard to get. Still he did get it in the end, for Les Calas. The pessimism of modern French literature is purely personal to the authors. Look at a portrait of ZOLA, for instance. Is it possible that the original could take an optimistic view of life? Look again at a likeness of SCOTT. Can we imagine Sir WALTER a pessimist? The spirit of any art depends upon the view taken of life by the artist. If ZOLA had written "Rob Roy," he would have probably made Rashleigh Osbaldistone end by "ratting" to the government side, and living respected and prosperous," and would have sent Frank and Diana to die in exile of some painful illness; just as the good woman in L'Assommoir is "brought down" to do "charing" for the adventuress, and "faire dodo" with the sexton for a mourner. Modern pessimistic literature "pays" because there are so many unhealthy people in every civilised community. Civilisation, while it reduces the death rate, increases the number of cretins. To use the cant phrase, "there is a public" for "dirty colour" and despondency. In more robust days, it was just the opposite. The hero was always brave and clever; and he always won. This may have been going to one extreme; but, surely, it was better than going to another, and always making him lose. The reason why a theatrical audience will not tolerate a play which takes the latter course is not, as has been cynically suggested, that its members are effusive hypocrites, but that a theatrical audience is a widely representative assembly, with a solid experience of life. Mr. TULLIVER remarked, on his death-bed, that "the raskills had been to many for him"; but the "raskills" very often meet their matches in honest men. It is not the general experience that craft, subtlety, and cynical self-seeking conduce to satisfaction, prosperity, and happiness. Looking at the world at sixteen, one is often tempted to believe this, but at forty one alters one's views. Why, asks one of the characters in DUMAS'S Question d'Argent, do so many people think that vice prospers and virtue goes unrewarded? And the raisonneur of the play replies, "Because they will not wait for the end."

The dramatists of a robust age often show the honest men ruined by the "raskills," they invariably make us feel that the latter "get the worst of it," both in life and death. Take, for instance, the careers of Cassio and Iago. Cassio, at starting, has not, apparently, a hundred-to-one chance. Not only is Iago such a subtle knave that the really intelligent personages of the drama believe him honest; Cassio is kind, affectionate, and open-hearted, with a very dangerous "weakness." But, in the end, what happens? Iago is carried out to be tortured, while Cassio "rules in Cyprus." And, putting aside the "ending,"—Othello's short agony of remorse and quick death-thrust, and Iago's long hell of "cunning torment"—Shakespeare always makes us feel that it is better to have been Othello than Iago, and that the General's triumphs and Desdemona's love were clearly bought by inferiority in the arts of deception and duplicity.

SHAKESPEARE, in short, drew life as he saw it; and he "saw it whole." He did not pretend that the hero always wins; he showed that the result depends upon circumstances. He was very far from holding the dreary and depressing tenets of M. BECQUE and the authors of the comédie rosse. SHAKESPEARE'S view of life was absolutely sane. There was no "bee in his bonnet," no demon of dyspepsia perching upon his pen. He had, by the bye, an excellent object lesson in BACON. The author of the Essays was the wisest and most cold-blooded "raskill" of the Elizabethan period. He took bribes as a judge, and he sacrificed his friend and benefactor to his interest in the most cold-blooded ingratitude. But BACON, with all his shrewdness, "made a mess" of his life. One large fraction of it was passed in scheming and being snubbed; and another as a disgraced and detected courtier. ESSEX, with all his faults, had a better time of it, even if he did die a little younger than BACON did. We agree with Mr. JAPP that Mr. PINERO omitted to mention STEVENSON'S real weakness as a dramatist. Possibly the omission was made because the lecturer himself has, unconsciously, yielded to the influence of the prevailing pessimism in literature; and because the author of The Gay Lord Quex and A Wife without a Smile is—shall we say it?—just a little inclined to rosserie himself.

Hotel Waiter	Mr. CHARLES FERRARO.
Gondolier	Mr. ERNEST WILLETT.
Miss Euphemia Chitty	Miss NANCY PRICE.
Lady Anne Wilmot	Miss FORTESCUE.
Carruthers	Miss MAUD WYNTER.

Captain Marshall, we are afraid, is suffering from his success, and getting careless. We owe so many delightful evenings to the author of His Excellency the Governor, that we find it hard to be unkind to the writer of The Lady of Leeds; and the audience at Wyndham's on Thursday seemed to feel as we do. They neither "booed" nor applauded at the conclusion of the performance; they simply rose and left the house in the approved American fashion of expressing indifference. Yet there is an excellent idea in the piece. The notion of turning The Lady of Lyons into a modern comedy was a good one; the mistake was in taking so little trouble to develop the germ. The Lady of Leeds is a mere first sketch of a comedy; and if Captain Marshall could take his piece off, and "put in" a few weeks more work on it, it might be made a genuine success. At present, what there is of it is amusing; the trouble is that there is so little. It is very much "too thin."

The Claude Melnotte of the farcical romance is Jerome Robinson, an ex-waiter. He has saved a couple of hundred pounds, invested part of it in forming a syndicate for the exploitage of a new mechanical cork which he has patented, and has lost the rest at "the tables." So he finds himself in Venice, stone-broke and despondent. Also staying at the Hotel Fritz is a great heiress, the daughter of a deceased ginger-beer manufacturer. Her name is Euphemia Chitty, and she is anxious to get into "good" society. With that view, she has engaged a certain calm impecunious aristocrat, Lady Anne Wilmot, to chaperone and pilot her, paying her ladyship a thousand a year for her services. Colonel Claverhouse Hodge and Lord O'Gorman, two gentlemen of moderate incomes, have in turn proposed to Miss Chitty, and been rejected; and, in revenge, they agree to impose Robinson on the lady as an Archduke. The introduction takes place; and Euphemia falls in love with him. He takes her out in a gondola, and they fall into the canal, appearing wet through, but engaged. Then Miss Chitty, to test her fiancé's disinterestedness, hands him a false telegram, stating that she is ruined, and is delighted to find that he does not desire to "cry off" in consequence. Eventually they go off to get married; but on the way Robinson loses heart, and confesses his imposture. As, however, he learns from Australia that his father, who emigrated to the colony, has made his fortune, and has been created a knight, and as his patent cork invention turns up trumps and makes money for him, Miss Chitty resolves to make the best of the situation and to annoy the schemers by marrying her adorer.

The first act of The Lady of Leeds is decidedly the best of the three; the second and third are disappointing. Robinson's blunders are often too obvious and egregious for the rather intelligent specimen of his class which he is, at other times, represented to be; and there is too great a contrast between the real wit of the dialogue and the cheaper jests which are introduced.

The artistes engaged in the cast of The Lady of Leeds made the most of their opportunities, and the piece was played unimpeachably all round. Mr. Weedon Grossmith is always good in parts like that of Jerome Robinson. He understands exactly how vulgar to make them—vulgar enough to be funny, but not too vulgar to exclude sympathy from the personage. Mr. Grossmith glided over the weak places of the dialogue with great tact, and made the ex-waiter a very amusing and fairly agreeable individual. Mr. C. M. Lowne, an ideal walking gentleman, played Colonel Claverhouse Hodge with just the colourless completeness required for the rôle; and Mr. A. Vane Tempest was in every way satisfactory as Lord O'Gorman. Miss Nancy Price, with her "put on" drawl and clever suggestion of want of culture, was a most natural and diverting Miss Euphemia Chitty; and Miss Fortescue, with her clear, sharp enunciation, perfect repose, and calmly polished style, was an ideal Lady Anne Wilmot; Mr. E. F. Meads and Mr. Ernest Willett making picturesque and effective gondoliers. Mr. John Rhodes was efficient as a butler, Mr. Charles Ferrars doing well as an hotel waiter, and Miss Maud Wynter deserving praise as Carruthers. It will be a pity if the excellent idea of turning The Lady of Lyons into a modern comedy should be utterly thrown away. Will not Captain Marshall reconsider and "write up" his work?

Mr. Frederick Norton gave his diverting musical monologue before the performance of the "farcical romance," his imitations of a number of Scotchmen proposing each others healths being specially funny, and his sketch generally "going" extremely well.

HENRY IRVING AT PLYMOUTH.

SIR HENRY IRVING was on Thursday entertained at luncheon at the Plymouth Club, by the Chairman, Mr. C. F. Williams, and members. The Mayor of Plymouth (Mr. R. W. Winnicott) presided, and had on his right Sir Henry Irving, and on his left the Chairman of the Stonehouse District Council (Mr. Isaac Pearse).

After luncheon, the MAYOR said that a letter had been received from Lord Mount Edgcumbe, who regretted very much his inability to be present. His lordship felt sure that Sir Henry Irving would have a magnificent reception from those who would now have the pleasure of meeting him, and had not had that pleasure so often as his lordship had. Sir Joseph Bellamy also wrote regretting that the consequences of his recent accident still kept him to his house. He said that he had been an admirer of Sir Henry Irving and of Sir Henry Irving's great gifts for very many years, and he should have liked very much to have met him in private life, and to help to make him feel that he had a host of friends in Plymouth.

The MAYOR then proposed, in eulogistic terms, the health of Sir Henry Irving. The speaker said he was not wanting in appreciation of Sir Henry's great ability. The cheering masses, and those occupying high positions in social life, were always ready to hand the laurel to the successful, but when success had been obtained by perseverance, that man had won for himself, as well as for the profession he adorned, the homage they were prepared to render Sir Henry to-day. There was scarcely a periodical in the civilised world which had not given a sketch of the story of Sir Henry's pathway to fame. One side of Sir Henry's character appealed to all classes of the country without distinction—his benevolent attitude towards those less fortunate than himself—and his large generosity, which had always been unflinchingly given in any great or good cause, was the admiration of everyone. There were to-day benevolent institutions that owed their existence almost entirely to Sir Henry, and he was sure they were all delighted to welcome him there and give him a downright Devonshire hearty welcome. They trusted that Sir Henry would come to them again, even after he had retired from those great duties in which he was now engaged. Let them hope that the many years of well-earned rest that were to follow would bring him happiness and peace. He asked them to drink to the toast of the health of Sir Henry Irving.—The toast was accorded musical honours.

SIR HENRY IRVING, in reply, said: Mr. Mayor and Gentlemen,—There is no welcome like a West-country welcome, and I say that as a West-countryman, and as one who feels very deeply your inspiring and joyous greeting, I am sincerely indebted to you for the kindness which has prompted this gathering, and I thank you especially, Mr. Mayor, for the interest you have had in bringing these friends together, and for presiding over us to-day. Believe me, gentlemen, that if I acknowledge this most friendly toast of yours in a very few words, they are none the less expressive of a grateful sense of obligation. You have spoken very generously and kindly, much more so than I deserve, of what I have done; and you have spoken in most flattering terms—although I am sure they were sincere on your part—concerning my career. I have simply been a devoted servant of an art which is among the humanising influences that none of us can afford to ignore. The dramatic profession, or calling, or vagabondage, or whatever you may please to name it, like all others, has its ideal, and that ideal I have always striven to uphold in a career that is now drawing to its close; but this striving of mine to uphold my calling did not begin with me, and it will not cease when I am gone. My most fervent wish is that others who will carry it on in the future will receive from you support and sympathy as staunch as you have given me to-day. There may be great changes of theatrical taste; they seem to be very rapid, like the taste in many other things. I was very much interested yesterday to learn that—I think it was at the end of last week—700 young fellows who wanted to know the reason why I got in a train at Plymouth and started off to Newcastle-on-Tyne. Well, that is a change from my early days; and I am very glad to see that there are changes taking place and signs of changes. This sort of change in itself is a good thing for a certain class of people; though you must not overdo it. Again, I was very glad to see in a little village in Kent the other day, that two or three worthy gentleman (it was a dull place, and they were a saddened lot of poor fellows: they were all right, but had nothing to occupy themselves with, and naturally fell back into unpleasant and nasty ways, as people in villages always do) conceived the idea that they should get up a play. They said: "We will have a play written; they shall produce this play; they shall revive what our forefathers experienced—some joyousness among our people; they shall cultivate their imagination, and they shall give themselves something to live for, as they did in the old days—when they had morality plays, and miracle plays, and guise-dancing plays, such as I remember so well when I was a boy in this part of the world. Now all these things making for good, and leading to the same thing that led Drake across that water, and led Raleigh too. Yet, gentlemen, whatever may be the changes in theatrical taste, you may be sure that the theatre will always remain a great instrument of social organisation. You will take what I mean seriously. It is a great instrument as it exists, either for good or for bad. It is a terrible one for bad, and it is a most useful one for good. But it is you who determine; you, gentlemen, you citizens; it is you who exercise, and you especially, Mr. Mayor, much influence in civic life. You should see that the highest standards are upheld, and that the theatre should not cease to be a spur to honourable ambition. Here in Plymouth in the old days, in Mr. Newcombe's early days (I say nothing about Vincent Crummles, who must have been associated a little with Plymouth, though, perhaps, more with Portsmouth), here in those days you had a stock company, which maintained a close bond between the players and citizens of the town. Am I right, that there was an old gentleman, a sort of Methusaleh, the oldest actor that ever lived, Mr. James Doel, who belonged to that stock company? I had not the pleasure of knowing him, but I believe he flourished very well. His age was beyond belief, so that it reminded me of a story I heard on the other side of the water. A gentleman was introduced, with much pleasure on his part, to Mr. Methusaleh, and he said to him, "Well, Mr. Methusaleh, I am very proud to meet you. I have heard a great deal about you. They tell me that you are a pretty considerable age." "Well," he replied, "Yes, sir, I was seven hundred and thirty-one on my last birthday." "Really, were you?" said the gentleman. "Well, it is a great pleasure to meet you. Seven hundred and thirty-one! Dear me! Looking at you at this distance, I should not have taken you for more than seven hundred and thirty." Well, gentlemen, I won't occupy you; but that system of stock companies, I am afraid, is gone. I fear that there is little in modern enterprise that stimulates local interest in the drama in the same degree; and this is all the more reason, perhaps, why the agencies of that healthy relish, which does much for a right and intelligent cheerfulness in theatrical matters, should receive all the encouragement we can give to them, can give to plays of a good and wholesome character. It is a true pleasure to find anywhere a theatre well-conducted. It is not always the case, I am sorry to say, in travelling about the country; but I congratulate you on possessing a manager who has so much interest in his theatre, and in making it a place of entertainment for sober-minded and intelligent people, as my friend here, Mr. Williams. Mr. Mayor, I am not here to lecture you on the theatre, but I thank you most warmly for the welcome which you have given me to Plymouth, a city that one can hardly think of without emotion, from its magnificent historic associations for England, and not alone for England, but for the whole free world. I assure you that I shall carry with me memories of your more than friendly greeting, and my association to-day with your ancient and beloved city; and I hope, as Mr. Mayor has hinted to me, that at some future time I may have the privilege of meeting you again—when my work is over, and when we may sit around the social board with, perhaps, you gentlemen numbering yourselves as my guests.

'LORD GEORGE" AND THE LIONS.

Mr. George Sanger lies in a room on the ground floor of his farm house at East Finchley. His bed is placed near the window, with a curtain so arranged that he can see who goes in and who goes out of his front gate. From the big shed at the bottom of the farmyard comes the roaring of a lion, left alone, like the "last rose of summer," while his brethren are receiving visitors at the World's Fair. Lord George has had a bad time of it lately. He has been "down" with three or four troubles, the greatest of which has been sciatica. To relieve his intense agony he has been blistered, and blistered again on "top of that"; and at intervals a fit of coughing interrupts his quaint descriptive speech. Yet the old showman's heart is as cheery and stout as ever; and when we "draw" him on the subject of wild animals, he responds "with all the pleasure in life."

"I never had much trouble with lions," he remarks reflectively, "I always found them all right. You see, wild animals are exactly like human beings; they love those who treat them kindly and attend to their wants. No, I never had any trouble with lions. Mine were always too fond of me to give me any."

"But, surely, you must have had some little difficulties? What was that about the lions who got loose under the stage once?"

"Oh, you mean in Paris, at the Porte St. Martin Theatre," says Mr. Sanger, kindling at the remembrance. "Yes, that was a little awkward. I had a contract to make the arrangements for a drama called The Forest of Bondy. It was written around a 'sensation.' A lover is supposed to be walking in the forest with his lady. Suddenly, in the distance, sounds the roaring of lions. The lady, of course, is dreadfully disturbed. The lover, brave as the King of Beasts himself, reassures her. 'While I am with you, you are safe,' he says. The lady, notwithstanding her affection for him, and her belief in his prowess, is a little bit anxious. She knows his noble nature, but she would prefer a better security. So she begs him to help her up a tree. The roaring sounds louder; the lions are approaching. The gentleman selects a suitable tree, and assists his lady-love to mount into its boughs. As for himself, he knows no fear; he will not climb from craven terror of mere carnivora. Then a mob of raging lions rushes on to the stage, ready to tear the audacious intruder into pieces. The lady screams. 'Alas! he is lost!' But she has reckoned without the magnetic strength of the lover's personality, without the influence of his EYE. He raises both arms in the air; he fixes his gaze on the angry and agitated animals. 'Back to your dens, ye brutes! Back, back!' he cries, suiting the action of his arms and hands to the words. Overcome by the Majesty of Man, the lions quail before his superb predominance. They hang back, and crowd together in a frightened heap. They are cowed, crushed, confounded; and then down comes the curtain."

"How did you manage to work it?"

"I planned and made the necessary apparatus, with the help of a working blacksmith, a very clever little chap. We first had a sketch done of the scene in the usual way—a thick forest, all gnarled branches and foliage. Then, from this design, we made a screen of iron gas-piping. You will understand that the shape of each trunk and branch was followed in piping; so that, when the ironwork was firmly put together there was a very strong framework, which was to go right across the stage. On this we fixed, cut out in profile, the forms of the trunks, branches, and masses of leaves. At intervals we left apertures fairly large, but just too small for the lions to get their heads through. When all was finished and painted artistically, it looked exactly like an ordinary forest-scene. To enact the lover, we secured a magnificent French negro—or rather a negro who spoke French—nearly seven feet high. He was attired in a very splendid costume; and when he dominated the lions at rehearsals he looked really magnificent.

"The lions' cages were placed in the abyss of darkness and disorder under the stage. Of course, when on the boards they were simply in a larger cage, and were quite unable to do any mischief. How it happened I don't know; but, in the evening, an hour or so before the time for the performance, the Directeur of the house came to see me. I shall never forget that man's face. It was not only pale, it was distorted, almost beyond recognition, by terror. 'Monsieur Sangère!' he cried, 'Monsieur Sangère! I am ruined! I am lost!'

"'What's the matter?' I enquired.

"'Ze lions! Ze lions!'

"'Well, what about them?'

"'Ils se sont echappés! Zey are loose!'

"'Loose—where?'

"'Undare ze stage! We will not be able to give ze performance! Ze public will be enragé! Je suis perdu!'

"When I got down to the theatre I found it was as he had said. Somehow or other the lions had managed to get out of their cages, and were roaming about in the cellarage I have alluded to. I called for volunteers; but no one seemed anxious to put himself forward. So I had to do the job alone. I can tell you, I didn't half like it.

"When I got down under the stage, at first I could see nothing; but I could hear the 'pad-pad' of the lions' feet as they walked about. I called to them by their names; appealing to their good nature, so to speak. After a bit I began to be able to see their eyes, and 'locate' their positions.

"You must understand that the cage they in habited was at one end of the place; and, standing about, was a lot of old 'flats,' worn-out scenery, &c. I got one of these, and, carrying it before me like a shield, I began to 'edge' the lions up towards their cage. Then I got another scene; and, using it in the same way, I gradually built the animals into a kind of pen. By working very cautiously, and being careful not to hurry them, I finally got them up against their cage; when, finding that their area was circumscribed, and being in error as to the stability of their surroundings, they one after another went in; and I slipped round a flat, and pushed the bolts."

"And then your troubles were over for the evening?"

"Not a bit of it! That was nothing to what followed. When I had finished with the lions, I found that my magnificent French negro had 'got loose' in another way. The fact was that his splendid courage having got wind amidst the hangers-on of the theatre, they had not only given him liquor enough to make him quarrelsome, but had so inflated him with self-conceit that he was swaggering about, demanding a fabulous salary, and threatening not to 'go on' unless he got it—paid in advance and on the spot, you understand."

"That was worse than the lions; the only difficulty with them was to get them to go in."

"Lions," says Mr. Sanger amiably, "have the greatest contempt for drunkenness. If an intoxicated or partly intoxicated man enters a menagerie, they are 'on the rampage' and uneasy at once. It is one of those curious things in nature that we know, but are not permitted to understand. Whatever other faults they may have—and I never found much the matter with them myself—lions are always sober. That you can say for them. But this negro wasn't drunk, you understand, in the proper sense of the word, but only abusive and obstreperous. Well, I wasted no words on him; I just took off his costume, put it on myself, sent for a stick of black grease-paint, and began to 'make-up' for the part. The sight of my preparations had an immediate effect on the 'nigger.' He threw himself on his knees, begged me to forgive him, and promised never to offend in the same way again."

"And you pardoned him?"

"What do you think?" says Mr. Sanger. "Why, I told you, he was nearly seven foot high! The show took splendidly; the audience went almost 'off their heads' with excitement. So did the Directeur, who, oblivious of the fact that my cheeks were thick with black grease-paint, took me in his arms, cried over me, called me his preserver, and hugged me and kissed me till, what with the perspiration, the tears, and the 'slobbering,' we both cut a very comical appearance.

"No," concludes Mr. Sanger, pensively, "I can't say I ever had much trouble with lions."

MISS FLORENCE TEMPEST, Miss Marie Tempest's understudy, who was called upon at a moment's notice last week to assume the leading part in The Freedom of Suzanne, did so with the greatest success, reproducing Miss Tempest in appearance, voice, gesture, and effect, with marvellous accuracy. Miss Florence Tempest, who, even off the stage, bears an astounding likeness to her sister, made on this occasion her first appearance in London. In the provinces, under the name of Miss Florence Neville, she has played in the Marriage of Kitty with the Marquis of Anglesey's company.

MR. W. S. PENLEY, the Worshipful Master of the Savage Club Lodge, 2,190, was present on Tuesday, at Freemasons' Hall, at the annual gathering of the lodge for the installation of a Worshipful Master for the year. The meeting was presided over by Mr. Herbert Johnson, the W.M. Amongst the Past Masters of the lodge who were present were Mr. Henry Neville, P.Assist.G.D.C.; Mr. Harry Nicholls, G.St.B. (P.M. of the Lodge); and Mr. Robert D. Cummings, G.St.B. Mr. Herbert Johnson installed Mr. W. S. Penley, the Senior Warden, who at the last regular meeting was unanimously elected as W.M., in the Master's Chair. Mr. Johnson was invested as Immediate Past Master, and received a Past Master's jewel. Messrs. Crandon Gill and Holmes Kingston were the Wardens; Mr. Edward Eden Peacock, P.M., the Treasurer; Mr. Eugene Barnett, P.M., the Secretary; and the other offices were filled by Messrs. Rob. Sauer, P. N. Hasluck, Robb Harwood, Lovett King, W. J. Ebbetts, P.M., P.G.Steward, Oliver Fry, S. R. Blundstone, E. G. Salmon, T. Fletcher Fullard, and G. F. Swan (Tyler). After a banquet at Freemasons' Tavern, an entertainment was supplied by Misses Annie Bartle, Ethel Bevans, and Jessie Jolly, with Messrs. Barton McGuckin, Franklin Clive, Robb Harwood, Malini, Mostyn Pigott, Hugh Wright, Harrison Hill, Reginald Groome, Tom Brown, E. J. Odell, Charles Capper, E. G. Salmon, Arthur Helmore, W. L. Barrett, and Lovett King. Mr. Albert Fox was the accompanist.

THE French Society of Dramatic Authors and Composers are the defendants in an action which is being heard in Paris by the First Supplementary Chamber of the Civil Tribunal of the Seine. The plaintiffs are two managers of theatres and two dramatic authors. M. Roy, one of the managers, pleads that after a promise had been given, the Society of Dramatic Authors and Composers refused to treat with him relative to his control of the Bouffes. The other manager, M. Richemond, of the Folies Dramatiques, enters his action because the society refused to renew his contract. M. Chancel, one of the dramatists, has a play at the Folies, but he has been put under a ban by the Society, which is a great power in French stageland, and is so strong that prohibited playwrights are practically "boycotted" by the managers. Another author, M. Forest, is in fear of being put on the black list; and the pair of playwrights have joined their manager in the action against the society and its committee. The rules of the society are surprisingly strict. No French dramatist is allowed to have a play of his performed in a theatre which has no contract with the Society, and authors are barred from entering into private contracts with managers at "fees" inferior to those established by its regulations. Each theatre has to give 100f. worth of tickets to the author who is a member of the Society. He sells them to an agency for 50f., and they are then offered outside the house at prices lower than those of the box-office. The managers offered 50f. a day to avoid this scandal and disadvantage to themselves, but the Society's statutes were opposed to such an arrangement. The case is still proceeding.

MUSIC HALL GOSSIP.

MISS MARIE LLOYD'S condition on Wednesday caused some little anxiety to her medical adviser, and to her family, but the report printed in an evening paper on Wednesday was unnecessarily alarming to the little lady's myriad of admirers. Later bulletins have brought the reassuring intelligence that she is making rapid progress towards recovery, and hopes to leave London in the course of the next ten days. To-morrow is Miss Lloyd's birthday, and in the congratulations that she will receive on her approach to convalescence the words, "Many happy returns of the day," will have an unusually hearty and sincere significance.

THE optimistic report that the vexed question of music-hall sketches will be settled in a few days, was confirmed in our office on Friday, by a popular sketch artiste. The lines of agreement he laid down were a time-limit of thirty minutes, the employment of six principals, no restrictions as to scenery, and twenty supers. Later in the day we consulted a gentleman who has been in touch with the whole question and the chief people concerned, since the Palace prosecution, and he does not speak hopefully of any settlement. Captain Jessel will have charge of the Bill for legalising sketches in the ensuing session.

AN additional feature of interest was added on Saturday to the race for the Derby at the Coliseum. While the stage is revolving at high speed, a crowded grand stand is brought on, and the extraordinary effect which is produced is obtained by means of an overhead railway, which crosses the stage.

THE OXFORD anniversary, which will be held on Friday evening next, is the great annual festival of the music hall year, and commemorates the reopening of this popular hall twelve years ago. From the strength and variety of the special programme, which will include most of the leading artistes in the profession, it bids fair to outdo all previous records.

THE members of the Music Hall Artistes' Railway Association are entitled to the heartiest congratulations of the profession on the immense progress that has been made in their organisation, which celebrated its eighth birthday on Sunday at the Trocadero. The gathering was impregnated with the spirit of jollity, and it was a sight to see Mr. Harry Randall pacing the cake-walk with an admirable partner. Of course, such a brilliant example was followed, and the infection was caught by even the oldest newspaper man present.

THE comment made by Mr. Hugh Astley at the recent meeting of the London Pavilion is no new one, and the terms now obtained by the turns that have won the highest place in the public regard are ever on the up-grade. One artiste, said Mr. Astley, who was glad to sign contracts at the London Pavilion at £8 per week, lately refused to accept an engagement at a town which is two hours' journey from London under £175 per week. It must be remembered that the barring clauses raised by rival syndicates and combinations are largely responsible for the big salaries. Exclusive engagements naturally mean exclusive terms; and, as an example of the demand for the services of the stars, we may quote an instance of a genial "patter merchant" who has just signed a contract with the Payne group of halls until 1912 at £1,500 a year.

A FUNNY face and droll methods may easily lead to a Prime Minister's salary; and therefore the shrewd manager who after a trial performance secures a new comedian for a term of years at a comparatively low salary, considers himself a lucky man. Leybourne, who at one time earned £120 a week, was paid about £4 a turn when he first came to London, and it is doubtful whether Arthur Roberts, when he was singing "If I was only long enough," earned more than this. The late Mr. George Ware, who pioneered Miss Marie Lloyd during her teens and later, prophesied from the stage of the Oxford that that comedienne's salary would one day reach three figures. That prophecy has long since been fulfilled.

MISS ELLEN TERRY was the occupant of a box at the Lyceum, on Wednesday afternoon, when Mr. George Alexander fulfilled a special engagement, and recited "A Lock of Hair." A graceful reference was made to the distinguished and popular actress by one of the Harmony Four. Miss Terry expressed to Mr. Thomas Barrasford and Mr. Alfred Selwyn her admiration of the fine house, and said that it did not seem very long since she was acting at the old theatre with Mr. Alexander. She had a most enthusiastic reception on reaching the street.

MR. SEYMOUR HICKS was the special turn at the Lyceum on Thursday evening, when he appeared with the Gibson girls from the Vaudeville, headed by Miss Camille Clifford, and sang "Rip Van Winkle" from The Cherry Girl," and "A Quaint Old Bird" from The Catch of the Season. Mr. Hicks had to get back to the Vaudeville, but the Lyceum audience became so enthusiastic, that it was with very great difficulty that he got away.

THE designs of the new Royal are well placed in the hands of Mr. Frank Matcham, whose latest building, the Coliseum, marks a new era in variety enterprise. It is intended to place the new Royal stage on the right hand, or southern, side, where it used to be in Mr. Weston's time, and the seating accommodation will be increased by an additional tier. Mr. Walter Gibbons hopes to welcome the public in October next to a building finely equipped in every way, and luxurious to the last degree.

MR. ARTHUR ROBERTS is one of the latest devotees of "the maddening motor." The short provincial tour that he started on the day following his departure from the Palace Theatre ends at Bristol next week. He made a very swift run from Brighton in his new car the Sunday before last, leaving "London-by-the-Sea" at half-past eleven in the morning, and reaching town in time to catch an early afternoon train to Birmingham.

THE decline in the revenue indicated by the reduction in the dividend on the ordinary shares of Moss' Empires, Ltd., from 12½ to 10 per cent. for 1904, is explained on the appearance of the directors' report and accounts by the fact that, in addition to a set-back of £27,800 in the trading profit, a sum of £9,748 is required to pay the dividend on the new shares, while the capital represented thereby has not been to any large extent remunerative. The directors expect, however, that the Liverpool Olympia will be opened at Easter, and the Glasgow Coliseum within a few months thereafter, and they express confidence that both these buildings will add largely to the company's profits.

MR. H. E. MOSS has relinquished his position as a managing-director, but retains his seat on the board and his position as chairman. In future Mr. Oswald Stoll will be the sole managing-director for a period of at least five years, while Mr. Frank Allen will act as assisting-director and chief of the staff. A reorganisation of the staff on a system of district and departmental management, from which the directors anticipate greater efficiency and economies in working expenses, is being rapidly carried through.

THE many friends of Mr. Chas. H. Taylor will be sorry to hear that he is suffering from a sharp attack of influenza at Torquay.

THE numerous friends of Mr. Johnny Thornborrow, the popular and able manager of the Empire, Middlesbrough, will regret to hear that he has had another serious attack of his old complaint, and his condition is grave. Mr. Thornborrow's benefit is announced for the 22nd.

MR. SYLVESTER SAGE concludes his lesseeship of the Empire at Hull this week. Monetary losses and bad trade are the causes of his relinquishing management. He has carried on the place for four years. On Thursday and Friday nights he has a "Farewell" benefit, which will be contributed to by volunteers from both the theatres and the halls.

THEY were having "high jinks" at the Prince of Wales's Theatre, Birmingham, on Monday, for on that day Mr. Byron Bicknelle, the clever clay modeller, and the Mustapha of the pantomime, took unto himself a wife in the sweet and pretty Miss Marie Campbell, who is scoring as Ganem. It had been intended to keep the matter a profound secret, and the ceremony was enacted at a Registry Office with despatch, albeit we are told that the bride missed her "cues"—from insufficient rehearsal, we suppose—and that the bridegroom dropped the ring at the critical moment. However, the "contract" was signed by both parties in firm, bold letters, the witnesses' names being Euphemia Kiddie, Annie Palmer, and Stephen Edward Eastbury. The party enjoyed a wedding breakfast served at a local hostelry, where, the secret having leaked out—as such secrets should—a merry crowd gathered with congratulations.

RECOGNISING with sweet reasonableness that marriage could not be allowed to interfere with business, the happy pair "went back to work," appearing at the matinée as well as at the evening performance, where Ganem met with a merry reception under a heavy shower of confetti and more congratulations, plus Mr. J. F. Graham's blessing. The audience caught the infection, through the adoption by the comedians of white rosettes, and the band played the Wedding March. For the rest, the wedding cake was carried to the dressing-room, where the bride held a reception. The wedding evoked much public interest and the best of good wishes, Miss Campbell having become most popular for her sprightly acting, dainty looks, and undoubted ability.

MR. RICHARD THORNTON, of South Shields, has a magnificent motor carriage, to carry four persons inside, and two out. It is a Daimler machine of 25 horse-power, fitted up in superb style, the seats inside being on pivots. There is a removable table, luncheon cupboards, warming arrangements, speaking tube, and instruction dial to the chauffeur. The material of which the car is constructed is of the very best kind, and the workmanship displays the highest skill. The thick plate-glass windows are draped with rich curtains, and the one at the front and that at the back can be thrown open when desired.

MR. HENRI CAZMAN states that he has played excerpts from the works of the classical composers at the music halls. In our paragraph on the subject last week we referred only to the first lady who gave classical selections on the pianoforte at the halls. The principle is worthy of extensive imitation, and the day is not far distant when first-class performers will give as a selection in a music hall entertainment pianoforte concertos, with orchestral accompaniment. In fact this has already been done at the Palace Theatre by Mr. Herman Finck's orchestra.

MR. WILLIAM GOULD, who at a former professional concert on the R.M.S. Kenilworth Castle collected £25 for the Actors' Benevolent Fund, gave another concert on the R.M.S. Norman for the Music Hall Benevolent Fund, and collected £9. Mr. Gould writes:—"If my brother and sister professionals going to or coming from South Africa will only keep the ball rolling, both worthy charities will derive a nice little income."

MRS. M. JUDGE (of Judge's Cockatoos) sends us the following interesting letter from her son:—"We had a terrible time of it in Lodz (Russia). Over 190,000 men were out on strike. Juliette saw a man shot as she was going to the theatre. We were sitting on Saturday evening in the little theatre restaurant when all of a sudden about 500 people came in to see if anyone was working.

"My animals (Alaska's sea lions) were on the stage, and Juliette was frightened they would do something to them, so she went out and spoke to the ringleaders, and said, 'I am Juliette, and I am on strike as well; nobody is working in the theatre.' They then went to the restaurant, and commanded the people to close and go home. Every place was closed, and the town was under military protection. I only had enough fish for the animals to last two days.

"The director of the theatre recommended us to take a waggon, and go to a village two hours from Lodz. We took his advice, and had got about half-way out of the town when a number of Cossacks came galloping after us, and ordered us to stop. They inquired who we were and where we were going, and then let us go. On our arrival at the village we took train to the nearest village to the German frontier, which we eventually crossed with thankful hearts in a blinding snowstorm."

THE Four Harveys, whose present engagement at the Alhambra ends in a couple of weeks, commenced to work on the wire when they were small children. Their father, a clever foot equilibrist, is an Englishman, their mother is German, and the two boys, Alvin and Percy, with their sister, Ella, speak both languages. The other member of the charming little party, Martha, is a cousin. Miss Ella Harvey was only six when she first performed in public, and she has been steadily improving ever since; one of her best tricks, that of turning a cartwheel, having taken three years to accomplish successfully. The Four Harveys are always assisted in their act by a tall young lady, who wears most effective Court costumes of various colours, passes them the flower-decked, lacey parasols, that take the place of old-fashioned balancing-poles, and encourages them with quiet little "asides," in English and German. Surprising as it seems, this is Mrs. Harvey, who has been their sole teacher, and without whom they never appear. She is always taken for the elder sister, instead of the mother, of the boys and girls.

MR. PADEY PENNINGTON, the Scientific Hypnotist, Thought-Reader, Ventriloquist, and Society Entertainer, will shortly make his re-appearance in public, after seven years retirement. His last appearance was in Australia. He will be supported by a first-class up-to-date variety company, and is booking a tour of theatres and halls.

THE extraordinary meeting of the National Palace of Varieties, Croydon, was held on Monday, at the Hummums, Covent Garden, to discuss a special resolution concerning the future proprietorship. The meeting was adjourned until Monday week.

THE late Mr. G. A. Cooke, whose death we recorded in our columns last week, made his last appearance at the Egyptian Hall in The Entranced Fakir, in which he played the part of Sam Mugridge, who was "levitated", by Mr. Maskelyne, who was seen to much advantage in the rôle of an honest old showman.

THE question has been asked by musical critics why first-class singers consider that they lower their status as artists by singing at music halls; and Mr. Oswald Stoll has replied with the engagement of Miss Alice Esty, the well-known operatic prima donna, and Mr. Robert Cunningham, the Australian tenor, who will appear in the Miserere scene from Il Trovatore. Mr. Cunningham will, of course, be the Manrico, and Miss Esty the Leonora. The staging will be in keeping with the fine traditions of the house.

MADAME ALICE ESTY, the famous operatic prima donna, who will open on Monday at the Coliseum in a scene from Il Trovatore, made her début in England at a Patti concert at the Albert Hall. Her success was instantaneous, and she was immediately approached by concert and operatic managers. Madame Esty, however, decided to go into grand opera, and joined the Royal Carl Rosa Opera Company, making her first appearance as Michaela. During the time she was with the Carl Rosa combination, she appeared in the leading prima donna rôles, including Santuzza in Cavalleria Rusticana, over one hundred times, and the part of Eva in Die Meistersingers, which she sang for the first time in English in this country.

MADAME ESTY was specially engaged to sing the part of Mimi in Puccini's opera, La Boheme, at Covent Garden, on the occasion of the first performance of that piece in England. Her success on the concert platform has equalled that of the operatic stage, for she has sung at the leading musical festivals, and at the most important choral and orchestral concerts throughout Great Britain.

THE clever lady made her American début in the rôle of Juliet at the Metropolitan Opera House, New York, where she created quite a furore. Madame Esty, who possesses a pure soprano voice of wonderful flexibility and rare quality, has a répertoire of some forty operas, and appeared with marked success at Drury-lane Theatre last spring as prima donna in the Moody-Manners Opera Company. On one occasion she sang, by command, before her late Majesty Queen Victoria, at Balmoral Castle, when she was presented with a truly royal gift, consisting of a magnificent pearl and turquoise brooch.

MR. ALFRED BUTT has also an idea that the best traditions of high-class music might be revived at the Palace, which, it will be remembered, was originally opened as the Royal English Opera House by the late Mr. D'Oyly Carte in 1891, and he will therefore stage a musical episode composed by Sir Alexander MacKenzie, who is not exactly a stranger at a music hall, as some time since he conducted an instrumental composition of his own at the Alhambra. The libretto is the work of Mr. Henry A. Lytton, the well-known Savoyard. The result of this collaboration will be seen at the Palace for the first time on the evening of Monday, the 27th.

MISS LOUISE BEAUDET'S success in her clever scena, "Touring the Varieties," has secured for her three return dates with Mr. Henri Gros at each of his halls, and Mr. George Adney Payne immediately placed the charming burlesque artiste in the Oxford bill of Feb. 20, after seeing her at the Chelsea Palace. She will take a well-earned rest next week.

DURING the performance of The Mumming Birds at the Tivoli on Tuesday evening, a young athlete in the stalls, who evidently took the parody of a wrestling bout quite seriously, accepted the "spoof" challenge of the amusing M.C. He was making for the stage, when he was stopped by an attendant, who told him that the whole business on the stage was a huge joke. He was not satisfied, however, and persisted in his endeavour to reach the stage. Eventually he had to be removed from the hall.

AT the Referee Children's Dinner Fund Concert, to be given at the Camberwell Palace to-morrow evening, an exceedingly attractive programme of varieties will be presented. Amongst those who have promised to appear are Messrs. Martin Harvey, Lionel Brough, R. A. Roberts, Bransby Williams, Leo Stormont, and Misses Queenie Leighton, Jessie Preston, Maude Danks, Mary Glover, Annie Bartle, and Maggie Goldsmark.

THE "Reign of Terror," and the rule of the sans-culottes, supply the structure and characters of the dramatic playlet, A City of Shadows, which was produced at the Cambridge on Monday. The piece is founded briefly on the help and succour given to an aristocrat and his wife by Elise, who bears the significant title of "the spirit of the guillotine." At first, Elise would have a sweet revenge, but softer feelings eventually prevail, and as the red-capped mob enter, the fugitives escape by a secret door. Miss Esther Phillips is powerful and passionate as Elise; Mrs. Stanislaus Calhaem, as the mother of Elise, is admirable; Miss Millie Luckstone's study of the young wife is interesting and sympathethic; and Mr. W. Glenney has plenty of aristocratic dignity as the marquis.

CAPTAIN S. C. BROWN, of the R.M.S. Norman, called, on Monday, at the office of the Music Hall Benevolent Fund, and handed to the Secretaries a cheque for £9, being the proceeds of a concert on board his vessel on his homeward journey from South Africa. The concert was given on Saturday, Jan. 28, and was a great success. Mr. and Mrs. Gould, and Miss Helen Chorles were indefatigable in their efforts, as were also the Commander and the band. The President and Committee of the Fund tender their thanks to all concerned.

THE 392nd meeting of the Executive Committee of the M.H.A.R.A. was held on Tuesday afternoon, Mr. Joe O'Gorman, chairman of the committee, presiding. The secretary reported that 51 new members had joined during the past week, making a total number enrolled since the commencement of 11,282. Several cases of refunds for members were dealt with.

DUNCAN AND GODFREY open at the Oxford and Metropolitan on Monday with their now famous coster duologue, Me and 'Er. Some time in March they intend producing an entirely new and original coster scena, entitled The Busmen's Beano. In this we are promised something of quite an original character, and something that has never been attempted in the coster line before.

MR. HENRI GROS naturally objects to being bound over by a police magistrate in the sum of £10 to come up for judgment if called upon; and on his behalf Mr. Philip Rutland applied on Tuesday to Mr. Paul Taylor, at the Marylebone Police Court, to restore to the list for hearing an adjourned summons, taken out in October last, by the Theatrical Managers' Association, against Mr. Gros, for permitting the Metropolitan to be used for the performance of The Fighting Parson, for which offence the company was fined £180 on Oct. 28. Notice of appeal was given by the company, and in the result the penalty was reduced to £90. Mr. Gros now desired that the summons against himself should be disposed of. Mr. Paul Taylor pointed out that in being bound over no reflection was cast upon Mr. Gros's moral character. He was of opinion, however, that in so dealing with the summons against Mr. Gros, his colleague, Mr. Curtis Bennett, finally adjudicated upon the case; but, if Mr. Gros thought to the contrary, he had better make the application to Mr. Bennett himself at the Westminster Court. Mr. Rutland said he would take that course.

WE are officially informed that the Directors of the New Tivoli, Ltd., have decided not to declare the interim dividend usually paid at this time of the year, although it has been earned. The decision has been arrived at on account of the strenuous competition in the music-hall world.

PREPARATIONS for the production of the spectacle of The Siege of Port Arthur at the Coliseum are being rapidly pushed forward. Mr. Bruce Smith's scenes and panoramas have been completed. The "book" written by Mr. Roland Carse has been perfected, and the music, by Mr. Walter Slaughter, has already been rehearsed. Most of the rumours in circulation with regard to the postponement of the production have been erroneous. There has been no cause for the delay in the presentation of the scena excepting the elaborate nature of the production, and the difficulty of compressing the incidents of the attack and the defence of Port Arthur into the necessary time which can be permitted for it in accordance with Mr. Oswald Stoll's programme arrangements. It is intended, we understand, to present those particular incidents of the siege which have attracted the special attention of the public, including the final assault and the meeting of the Russian and Japanese Generals in connection with the capitulation.

THE movements of the troops in their attacks upon the forts will be shown, and over 200 soldiers will take part in the fighting on the stage. Cavalry, infantry, artillery, and Cossacks will be seen in action, and forts will be stormed and captured. In order that the scenes presented should be accurate, the Coliseum will have the advantage of the assistance of Mr. Frederick Villiers, the special artist who was with the besieging Army, and who saw every phase of the fighting. His personal experience of the naval and the military operations are proving of great value to the management. As to the naval side of the spectacle, the revolving stage and its sub-division into three separate tables, which can be moved in either direction, will enable Mr. Marshall Moore to present an extensive view of the harbour and the outer sea, and gunboats and battleships, the designs of which will be exact reproductions of the originals, will be shown in action. Even searchlight effects will be secured by the lighting arrangements, which have now been developed for the purpose. Warships will be shown, apparently steaming at full speed, and there will be illustrations of torpedo practice, mines, and other methods of modern warfare.

THE management of Collins's have for years past given an annual entertainment and treat to the inmates of the Islington Infirmary. This year that pleasant and charitable function took place on Wednesday afternoon, when Mr. Charles Hector and Mr. Harry Lyons conducted all the members of the orchestra and a number of artistes in omnibuses to the infirmary. The kindly disposed ladies and gentlemen who turned up to amuse the poor people were Miss Maud Courtney, Mr. Arthur Gilbert, Mr. Tom Costello, Mr. Pat Doherty, Mr. Slade Murray, Mr. Harry Champion, Miss Beattie Lyndon, and Miss Ena Richards. Bronson's Bioscope added to the attractiveness of the entertainment by the exhibition of an interesting series of animated pictures. The inmates of the infirmary were presented with boxes of snuff, tobacco and pipes, and their gratitude for the generosity of the management of Collins's was touchingly demonstrated.

DURING the return journey to Islington Green an unfortunate accident occurred. Mr. Harry Lyons piloted the foremost omnibus to the hall, another 'bus following in his wake, while behind that Mr. and Mrs. Hector drove in a hansom cab. The horse attached to the latter vehicle either attempted to dash away or swerved violently, with the result that the animal collided with the rear of a tramcar. Both Mr. and Mrs. Hector were violently thrown out of the cab, and, although severely shaken, we understand they escaped without serious injury.

MR. HARRY LYONS is inaugurating quite a new departure in the way of turns at Collins's. He has arranged with Mrs. George Daventry—the well-known actress who was for so many years associated with her late husband in touring the sensational drama, entitled The Indian Mutiny—to appear at the hall on Islington-green to-night. Mrs. Daventry will give illustrated recitals of topical interest, accompanied by specially composed music, the entire performance lasting about a quarter of an hour. Mr. J. O. Stewart, the well-known Scotch actor, who has just finished a successful pantomime engagement at the Camden Theatre, will also be seen and heard at Collins's this evening in a recitation of Burns's famous poem, "Tam o' Shanter."

MISS MARGARET RADCLIFFE, who was one of the guests at the Grand Theatrical Ball, held at the Midland Hotel, Manchester, on Thursday last week, wore a very handsome costume of cream point de Poulle lace, the pattern of which was traced with delicate mauve chenille. Full flounces of accordion chiffon edged the gracefully trained skirt; and the low bodice, which had a lace berthé richly trimmed with brilliants, suited Miss Radcliffe's tall, stately figure to perfection. This talented young artiste has, by the way, been secured for pantomime next Christmas by Mr. Fred Wyndham.

MR. THEO BOUWMEESTER, the Dutch actor, who has been so successfully presenting his episode, Incendiarism; or, Who Is Guilty? at the Middlesex this week, is the son of Mrs. Theo Mann Bouwmeester, the Dutch Sarah Bernhardt, who was decorated by the late King of the Belgians. His uncle, Louis Bouwmeester, also had the highest reputation as an actor on the Dutch stage, and was also honoured by Royalty. With such family traditions, it is no wonder that Mr. Theo. Bouwmeester is enthusiastic in regard to his art, as one may readily learn by the earnestness and nervous intensity he displays in the seven parts he plays in his piece, which he himself translated into English. It was performed in England as far back as May, 1904.

OWING to the stage of the Alhambra being daily required for rehearsals of the forthcoming elaborate new ballet (full particulars of which will shortly be announced), the "Urbanora Matinées" will be temporarily suspended after to-day. Meantime, the realistic films from Port Arthur hold their place in the evening bill, to which a distinct novelty is added in the charming sporting act presented by Miss Kitty Traney.

AT the annual ordinary general meeting of the Alhambra, held last week at that theatre (Mr. Alfred Moul in the chair), the directors' report and balance-sheet were unanimously agreed to, and a dividend of 10 per cent. was unanimously approved and adopted.

MR. LENNOX BARRY, who was some nine weeks ago appointed business-manager of the Battersea Empire, and is now the general-manager of that house, has effected a number of improvements in the hall in the direction of decorations, &c., which have been greatly appreciated by his patrons. Mr. Barry started, on Wednesday afternoon, a series of mid-weekly matinées, and the result of the first afternoon's performance was most gratifying.

WHEN Miss Loie Fuller makes her appearance at the Coliseum on Monday she will present a new scena, The Dance of the 1,000 Veils," the beautiful effects of which will be enhanced by the use of the new illuminant radium.

MISS AMY CLEVERE is actively engaged in rehearsing a new musical scena, of South American Indian interest, entitled Paleface Queen, which has been specially written and composed for her by Messrs. John P. Harrington and George Le Brunn, and which she purposes producing in a week's time at the Tivoli.

MISS GLADYS MONTAGUE, a juvenile American exponent of coon dances and other terpsichorean arts, and the winner of three gold medals in the States, is about to appear at a leading West-end music hall, in an entirely new and original répertoire, expressly written for her by Messrs John P. Harrington and George Le Brunn, which embraces, amongst other numbers, two with the titles, "The Hoodoo Girl" and "How They Danced."

MISS SYLVIA SABLANC, the daintiest of Crosse and Blackwell's "stage" employees at the Coliseum, is suffering from loss of voice, and during the latter part of the week her place has been taken by Miss Bessie Butt, who appears as "My Little Black Pearl" with Mr. Eugene Stratton. This clever little lady has infused such go into the song, followed by such lively dancing, that she has established herself in the good graces of audiences, artistes, and managers alike, and has been complimented on all sides. Miss Butt will be remembered as having played Susan, in The Toreador, Sophie, in A Country Girl, and Thisbe, in The Orchid.

AT the Camberwell Palace on Saturday night, after the singing of "The Boys of the Chelsea School" by Mr. George Leyton, that popular vocalist presented Wm. Freestone, a Crimean veteran, aged seventy-one, with £6 1s. 6d., obtained by selling penny copies of the song in the hall during the week. William Freestone has only 9d. a day to live upon from the Government, and Mr. Leyton deserved the deafening cheers which greeted him for his kindness. He has collected over £700 for these old soldiers in different parts of the country during the past two years.

MR. SAM MAYO'S two latest successes, "The Old Tin Can" and "Programmes!" have both been purchased for publication by Messrs. Chas. Sheard and Co. at a heavy figure.—Carl and Carr, who have just finished a successful pantomime season with Mr. Arthur Carlton, at the Ealing Theatre, start on the Livermore tour next week.—Messrs. Conway and Tindall will produce their new farcical musical duologue, Goosebury Junction, at the Battersea Empire on Monday.

MR. FRED G. BROOKE, who is playing in the dramatic sketch, Todd, Fleet-street, put a little too much vehemence on Monday evening into the evil deeds of the notorious Sweeney, and, in hurling missiles during the last scene in the barber's shop, he struck the leading lady, Miss Dora Deane, on the face with a bottle, inflicting serious cuts, and causing her to become unconscious. The curtain was rung down, and medical aid was promptly summoned.

MR. FRITZ YOUNG, of Sells and Young, who has been in America for the past four years, has just arrived in town on a visit of business and pleasure combined. He is thinking of producing a novel pantomime, to be played by three performers, and has also been seen in the land of patent agents. Fritz is a man full of original ideas.

MR. WILL MEATON, who so ably assists Mr. Harry Tate in his sketches, Motoring, Fishing, and Golfing, was the recipient of a handsome silver-mounted walking-stick, on his (Mr. Tate's) benefit night, at the Marlboro' Theatre, Holloway, in the pantomime of Aladdin.

A FIRE broke out at the Wolverhampton Hippodrome on Sunday, partially burning the building. The auditorium itself has been only slightly damaged, but the entrances, vestibules, ticket office, and refreshment bars have suffered severely, so that for the present the building is to remain closed, and all engagements with the staff, as well as with artists, are cancelled.

MR. W. A. BENNET, who has had experience as a journalist, has been appointed Press representative by Mr. Oswald Stoll for his suburban and provincial Empires. He commenced his duties at the Holloway and Hackney Empires this week.

THROUGH the kind invitation of Mr. Oswald Stoll, over 700 boys from the Duke of York's Military School witnessed the twelve o'clock performance at the Coliseum on the 3rd inst. The excellent band of the school, conducted by Sergeant-Major McMurphy, occupied the space between the orchestra and the stalls, and they performed with great success a selection from The Orchid, and the school march, "Sons of the Brave." At the conclusion of the entertainment a bag containing buns and oranges, and a picture of the Coliseum, was presented with Mr. Stoll's good wishes to each lad, and the youngsters gave ringing cheers for the management before they left the theatre.

MISS DAISY JAMES leaves town for a short tour, and returns on April 3 to the London, Collins's, and Hammersmith.—Miss C. Stroud Wilson has been engaged by Messrs. Keith, Prowse, and Co., for thirteen weeks at the Victoria Pier, Folkestone, commencing Whit Monday.—Miss Alicia Mayne, Australian dramatic soprano song-illustrator, leaves town this week for a two months' tour, returning in the middle of April to fulfill her London engagements.

WHITEHALL has already refused to allow the Brighton Council to borrow £12,000, and an amended scheme involving the expenditure of £16,000 upon the local Aquarium is now put forward by the Corporation. The ratepayers, in a protest, point out that since the Corporation purchased the Aquarium it has been carried on at a gigantic loss, that there is no demand whatever for another theatre or like place of amusement, as has been amply proved by the result of the Corporation trading, and that Whitehall's suggestion that the Council should sell the institution is one meriting serious consideration.

MR. ERNEST MONTEFIORE has secured a powerful little scena from the pen of that promising sketch writer, Victor C. Rolfe, entitled The Little Nipper. It will shortly be seen in the London halls. The Little Colonel, Mr. Montefiore's musical and dramatic triologue, starts on a short provincial tour on Monday at the Hippodrome, Norwich.

MR. SAM MAYO has just acquired a couple of funny songs from the clever pen of William Hargreaves. One is distinctly novel, and bears the title, "The most miserable man on earth!" The other is a very original number, entitled "My little dog was with me all the while!" of which we may expect great things.

MR. HARRY RANDALL, on Wednesday, entertained a hundred children to a high tea at Drury Lane Theatre. Each of the youngsters was given a couple of oranges at the conclusion of the feast, and all enjoyed themselves immensely.

THE Wrestling Competition for Amateurs proved so great a success at the Britannia Music Hall, Glasgow, that it had to be carried into a third week, and was finally decided on Tuesday last. A handsome large bronze clock, a centre piece and two side pieces, and a beautiful flower stand were the three prizes which Mr. Anderson provided for no fewer than sixty-eight entrants, the finalists all being excellent exponents of the art.

THE LONDON MUSIC HALLS.

LONDON PAVILION.

Mr. Frank Glenister, the popular manager of this well-established place of amusement—which by some is said to stand on the finest site in Europe—is especially fortunate in his discovery of new turns. It was only the other week that we hailed the advent on the stage of the Piccadilly-circus house of a Scotch comedian, whose name, if we are not mistaken, will be occupying a prominent position on the bills of the metropolitan halls before the year is out; and now we have to welcome in Mr. Maynard Dakin a comic singer—quite English, we believe—whose methods bear the stamp of refinement, but whose humour is none the less effective. He does not affect either the red nose or the loose trousers, but depends on a sharp, incisive style and well-written verses. In his number concerning a worried householder, he is particularly happy, and wins genuine applause. Other new-comers to the London Pavilion are Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Berry, who are labelled "burlesque sketch artistes," a description that does not quite fathom the depths of their comicality. Mr. Berry has the genuine vis comica, and his facial expression never fails to evoke laughter. He represents the worried husband, troubled with a singing wife. She gives him trills for breakfast, roulades for luncheon, and recitatives for dinner. Urgent protestations are in vain; but at last he hits upon a plan whereby the warblings of the would-be Patti are completely checked. To her high falutin' ditties he replies with the prosaic refrains of comic songs, and the plan works excellently. The turn is one big laugh from beginning to end, and Mr. and Mrs. Berry bid fair to make as big a name as Mr. and Mrs. Harry Clifton did in the days when the music halls were in their teens.

The scheme of amusement submitted by Mr. Glenister includes a sketch dealing with that strenuous period of English history that belongs to the waning years of the Commonwealth and the advent of Charles the Second, the "merry monarch." The title is The King's Hat, and it is produced by Mrs. Charles Cunningham and company. Charles Tudor plays a benevolent part. While in hiding at the Great Hall, Thursby Manor, he discovers the villainy of Colonel Digby and Captain Meers, fellow guests with him of Sir Reginald Delauney, who is the victim of the grossest form of card swindling that it has been our lot to witness on the stage. Delauney loses all his fair estates, and nothing is left but a valuable pearl necklace. Egged on by the unscrupulous Digby, Delauney hopes that the luck will turn, plays his last stake, and loses. The swindling is discovered, and a plot to entrap the fugitive King is foiled. Sir Reginald is made a peer, and his reconciliation with Lady Delauney (Violet), from whom he had been long estranged, brings down the curtain. The piece is played quite in the romantic spirit. Mr. S. T. Ewart, as Sir Reginald, cuts a gallant figure, and realises the hopeless passion for gambling that possesses that reckless young nobleman. Mrs. Charles Cunningham is sweet and commendable as Violet, Lady Delauney; Mr. C. Brooke would improve his rendering of the King by a little more vigour; Mr. H. H. Stewart is an effective Colonel Digby, whose creature, Captain Meers, is adequately presented by Mr. F. France; and Mr. Arthur Fitzgerald, as the loyal Serrier, makes an interesting figure of the old servitor.

Early in the evening Mr. Athas and Miss Collins provide a capital variety show, their singing and dancing and the acrobatics of the gentleman bringing down the house. Miss Dora Clements is the newest lady mimic, and her bright and engaging style is happily fitted for her imitation of Miss Gertie Millar, in her song, "Little Mary," from The Orchid. She also catches with much exactness the mannerisms of Miss Connie Ediss and Miss Marie Lloyd. Athletic turns are always a prominent feature of Pavilion programmes, and we have two fine specimens of muscular activity in the Hermance Brothers, one of whom forces the fun by the clown's favourite trick of removing a number of waistcoats. Their feats are all difficult, and some of them are of striking originality. Vermette and Dionne, horizontal bar performers, leap like cats from bar to bar, and swing to catch under and over, turning double somersaults with grace and ease. They were not quite successful, on the night of our visit, in swinging from the first bar and catching the third, and very wisely abandoned the feat. Alethea's charm and lissomeness rob her feats of contortion of any of the creepiness that often mar similar displays; and Francis, who is a juggler and cannon-ball manipulator, contributes a very fine exhibition of his prowess, the show being much increased in its attractiveness by his comic assistant. Music and comedy were never more happily allied than they are in the entertainment of the Motramos, a lady and gentleman who keep the house in continuous roars of laughter. The versatility of their musical gifts is supplemented by the vitality of their comedy. Mr. Motramo is a capital comedian, and his fatuous self-assertiveness in his burlesque sketch of a dude is very whimsical. As a mere record of their musical achievements we may mention that the Motramos play the flute, the trombone, the saxhorn, and the piano, but so do other musical turns, but without that happy insouciance that keeps Pavilion audiences in the highest state of hilarity. Mr. Chris Richards, surely the quaintest leg-mania dancer that we possess, has funny little ways, and has become quite a favourite. Philosopher Ray is as enlightening as ever with his abbreviated English; Arthur Prince is an incomparable ventriloquist; and Mr. Harry Grattan's company, in the sketch, entitled Packing Up, supply an excellent wind-up to the programme, to which Mr. Walter George, a capital pianoforte humourist, contributes a musical trifle, which he calls "A Funny World." Other turns announced on the bill are Miss Alma Gray, a fine step dancer; Miss Elsie Steadman, who sings with point and expression a society song, concerning the joys and opportunities of courting up-river; Mr. Will English, comedian; and the Emlyn Jones singers, who are heard to advantage in the selections, "Good Company" and "A Dream of Paradise." Mr. William Cobbett is a pleasantly urbane assistant manager; and Mr. Bond Sayers is rightly proud of his orchestra.

THE EUSTON.

There is a run just now upon people of abnormal size as attractions for the variety houses, and much curiosity and no little mirth have been caused at the popular house opposite the big railway termini by the appearance of Miss Lucie, the Russian fat girl. Of the measurements of this Muscovite puella obesa some particulars are given by a lecturer, who assures the audience that the coy Slav maiden is not "ill-convenienced" by the immense amount of adipose tissue—some twenty-five stone in all—that she has to carry about with her. Everybody is interested to learn that Lucie, who appears with her mother, has a calf measuring 23½in., and an ankle of a circumference of 13in. We should say that she is "a gentle sort of girl," though she does not occupy exactly the position of the heroine of Mr Will Evans's song of that name, which he sings with much humour. His pretence of embarrassment at the possible misinterpretation by the audience of what he calls the break-off portion of the refrain is a point in the interpretation that he very humorously emphasises. His well-prepared impromptu burlesque of Robinson Crusoe has plenty of obvious extravagance, and he is much encouraged. Another comic star in Mr Fred McAvoy's attractive bill is Mr Joe Elvin, who is appearing with a specially-selected company in The Wrong House, one of those furiously farcical incidents which Mr Wal Pink knows so well how to write, and Mr Elvin how to play. The Cockney comedian represents an inebriated reveller, who has been making a night of it with his friend Snooks. A strong-minded wife tells him from an upper window that "her husband"—good, easy man—has been "in bed for hours." "Who am I, then?" anxiously inquires Mr Elvin, immediately adding "There's been a misdeal somewhere!" Of course there is a favourite gag. In this case it is "You're blind," a phrase which is applied to all the male characters during lucid intervals in the tipsy jollity, in which the only Elvin is seen and heard at his best. He is an immense favourite with the Eustonians, who also have a hearty welcome for Tom Leamore, who presents an amusing skit on the descriptive singer with limelight effects. As a scraggy female in short skirts Mr Leamore cuts a comical figure. "Sally in the ballet" is representative of a type of caricature not unfamiliar on the music-hall boards, and comedians of a past day have made humorous capital out of the ancient ballerina's "anticipations of the past." Mr Leamore is fairly well provided with patter, and his concluding dance brings down the house. Slippere, the blind pianist, is a much-favoured turn. What may be termed trick-playing is a strong point of his performance. He executes with facility, as is shown by his rendering of one of Tito Mattei's Grand Valses de Concert on a grand with the keys covered. Standing with his back to the piano, he accompanies himself in "Rocked in the cradle of the deep," and further demonstrates his versatility by singing, with a Japanese fiddle obbligato, the beautiful Irish melody, "Eileen Alannah." The New York Nippers present a very lively show, with plenty of variety and comedy to recommend it; and Miss Radie Furman as a Dutch-American girl is not so well endowed with patter as her predecessor and prototype, Happy Fanny Fields. She, however, brings down the house in the dance imitations of a drum solo. Larola is one of the smartest acrobats we have seen, but he is also a clever juggler with a beatific sense of humour. His plate-spinning is followed by somersaults from a table, which he holds on his chin by balancing it on one of the legs. He has also a difficult trick with a lamp and glasses, and, by way of a special finale to his show, he takes flying leaps over chairs and table. Mr Harry Freeman's perky and hilarious style commends him in his comic songs, and Miss Rose Cabani's efforts in serio-comedy are highly valued. Mr Victor Opperman leads an excellent orchestra here, and Mr Charles E. Wellman is a courteous acting-manager.

EMPRESS, BRIXTON.

A good programme, a good manager, who looks after the comfort and convenience of his patrons, and a cosy house, are the chief desiderata in the making of a successful music hall. That the first commodity is invariably provided at the Empress Theatre, Brixton, and that Mr. Nelson Francis provides in his own person the second, there can be little doubt. The establishment itself is both convenient and cosy, as everybody in Brixton will admit. Sixteen items, all of first-rate quality, grace the bill this week. There are, however, a couple of changes. Miss Irene Meldon appears as a deputy in the absence of Miss Childie Stuart. Miss Meldon has a sweet soprano voice, which is heard to advantage in her song, "My English Maid." She also presents some pretty pictures in the direction of the poetry of motion, her dancing throughout being extremely graceful. Mr. Dan Conroy, the comedian, has a couple of amusing songs to offer, one entitled, "I Didn't Know whether I ought to," and the other being a burlesque on "Bluebell." In both he makes good use of his remarkable powers of facial expression, which are no small factor in his success as a comedian. "Touring the Varieties" is the name given to a scena presented by Miss Louise Beaudet. First she tells us all about the "Darling of the Ballet," and addresses herself, in turn, apparently to members of the audience, and then to three of the gentlemen in the orchestra. The conductor comes in for the best share of her banter, and the situations which she forces upon him and other "mere males" is heartily relished by the audience. A change of dress, and then we get "The Game of Shams Called Life," in which several interesting little stories are told in an entertaining manner. One of them concerns a burglar and a banker. The former pays a visit to the latter late at night, while the man of money is fast asleep. Bill Sykes is a desperate man, and vows that any interference with his plans will mean the death of the interferer. In the end he kills the banker, and as the revulsion of feeling creeps upon him in the awful reflection of what he has done, he suddenly looks down at the face of the murdered man, and recognises his own brother. "A Flower Girl in the Streets of London" is Miss Beaudet's concluding "variety." Wan and pale of face, scantily attired, and with the conventional shawl thrown round her shoulders, we are introduced to the retailer of the daintiest of Nature's goods. There is, we learn, a mother lying seriously ill in the little garret called home, and her life almost depends upon the earnings, however meagre, of the flower-girl. Appeals to "Buy my flowers" fall heedlessly on the ears of London's ever-rushing crowd. Necessity, however, knows no law, and the appeal at last becomes a piteous, despairing demand, in heaven's name. And in heaven's name it is answered, for a sovereign is dropped into the girl's hand. Sorrow turns to joy, tears to a shout of delight, as the receiver of the coin recognises what a blessing has been conferred on the invalid mother. The little series of character sketches are cleverly portrayed by Miss Beaudet, who receives the sympathetic appreciation of the audience. We cannot help thinking that a more suitable title could have been chosen than "Touring the Varieties." We suggest "The Varieties of Life," or "Episodes of Life." Mr. Reuben Hill renders in capital style a serious and a humorous song. The first told us that love was blind, and yet in the end we learnt that the lovers were not blind to each other's affections. Mr. Hill has a nice tenor voice, which seems to us to afford evidence of higher things, were he to give himself up to a classical training. His singing of "Liberty Hall" showed him to possess in no small degree the natural instincts of a born comedian. Mr. Jack Lorimer is delightfully comical in his songs and dances and other "business." His "Dear Little Shamrock of Ireland," as sung by an old lady, is intensely funny, and he is equally laughter-provoking with his pianoforte imitations of a banjo, and his mimicking of a little girl reciting. A world of nonsensical notions is crowded into the turn of Wilson and Waring, their comedy duologue being so full of quips and cranks that one's face is "on the move" all the time they hold the boards. In the place of Mr. Fred Elton, who has been unable to perform, Miss Myra Stanfield, the accomplished young comedienne, sings a couple of songs, one of which, "Visitors are Requested not to Touch," deals in an amusing manner with a number of topics. Extremely neat and agile are the acrobatic feats of the Zenary Brothers, some portions of their act causing one to hold one's breath for a few seconds at the daring nature of the springs and jumps indulged in by these athletes. Artistic and graceful are the contortionist attitudes and postures in which La Belle Nello appears. The lady seems to have wonderful command over every limb in her body. Commendable, too, are the dancing and singing of the Collins Stella Troupe, consisting of eight pretty girls in handsome costumes. Frank and Free submit a diverting comedy act; Scott and Pearce give a smart burlesque act; and Mr. Charles Stevens, whose achievements as a comedian we have before referred to, and Messrs. George Gray and company, in The Fighting Parson, are also here this week.

MRS. JOHN LAWSON

IN "A BRIDE FOR A LIVING."

"There is a tide in the affairs of men which, taken at the flood, leads on to fortune." And so it is, especially with the members of the theatrical profession. One may toil and toil, perhaps with credit, and yet without signal success. Perhaps the parts were wrong; perhaps the circumstances were unkindly. There are actors and actresses who have gone through life with the wrong parts, and with the circumstances unkindly; and ended a career of disappointment in a sentiment of disgust.

But when the success does come, how wise to grip it bodily, and follow where it leads. Such is the case of Mrs. John Lawson. For some time now, under the careful tuition of her husband, she has progressed step by step. She was a modest serio when he first knew her; more recently, a useful and effective performer in his sketches. It was A Bride for a Living that lifted her bodily from such a position to one of real prominence. The regular attendant at the theatre sees much acting that is a weariness of the flesh. Now and again he comes upon something so vivid, so faithful in portraiture, so fascinating, that it pays him for all the weariness. It puts him in possession, for a few minutes only, it may be, of the delight of play-going; makes him a full citizen of the land of make-believe. So it is with Mrs. Lawson's Slum-Lady Macbeth. The sketch is a good one; and would, we doubt not, make its way unaided. With the co-operation of Mrs. Lawson, we regard it as one of the most distinguished dramatic entertainments of the time. Its establishment at a West-end hall, for a run, ought to be immediate.—Music Hall, Feb. 10, 1905.

GRAND, CLAPHAM.

The ambition of Mr. Walter Gibbons to make abundant provision for the amusement of the public is realised at every hall he controls, the Grand Palace, at Clapham-Junction, of which Mr. Harry Bawn is manager, being particularly favoured this week. In the strong and well-assorted programme an attraction of a special kind is to be found in Miss Annie Abbott, "the Little Georgia Magnet," who still exercises her magnetic influence over the strongest of the sterner sex, not in the usual feminine way, but by establishing a "contact" by means of placing her little finger on the face. Half a score Battersea stalwarts assemble nightly on the stage, and the petite Americaine successfully resists their united efforts either to raise her from the ground or to move her from her position, once she has expressed her determination to remain. Miss Abbott, who also demonstrates her powers of "hypnotic suggestion" at a distance, conducts her experiments with a cheeriness that embellishes the phenomenal feats she performs, and gains many laurels. Mr. Joe O'Gorman, who receives a popular ovation, selects "Pepita Maguire" as the subject of a quaintly-written serenade of a sweetheart, who appears to combine the personalities of a Spanish senorita and an Irish colleen. Mr. O'Gorman's anecdotes are freshly compounded, and his rich brogue lends a fascination to his stories of "Patsy O'Flanagan," and add greatly to their effect in arousing unbounded mirth. A new version of "Three Men Went a-Hunting" also supplied means of merriment, and the audience are energetic in recalling the comedian, who has afforded so much enjoyment. Bugle and cornet are employed by the Musical Howards in their entertainment, the music of which is merged in the exquisite fun which is developed in a series of droll attempts by the male musician to play "The Broken Melody," and in the assistance of his lady companion, who is a charming comedienne. The claims of St. Cecilia are nevertheless conceded by her at the end, when she gives an excellent rendering of "Let me like a Soldier Fall" on the cornet, being afterwards joined by her partner in a duet of "The Old Brigade." Miss Kitty Rayburn awakens tender feelings with her song of "My Old Man and Me," a ballad of homely sentiment, in which marital felicity figures. Miss Rayburn long since found the most vulnerable points in the armour of sadness which is said to surround the pleasures of the nation, and the shafts of wit contained in "The Christening" are made to pierce the most hardened—to such purpose does the charming artiste employ her gifts of low comedy. Forest and King indulge in dancing in many varied forms, of which a dainty little maid supplies clever specimens. She is particularly expert in a maze of "Catherine wheels," for which she is cordially applauded, no less hearty being the cheers bestowed on the male performer, who does some marvellous acrobatic work on a table. Frank Hartley, the boy juggler, makes himself handy with hat, stick, and cigarette, and other impedimenta, eventually pressing chairs and tables into the service of his art; and the Mozondos, in their barrel and tumbling act, combine fun and skill effectively. The vitality of Miss Kitty Beresford, in her song of "The Parasol," is greatly to be admired, the effect of a taking refrain being aided by a pair of twinkling feet in an accompanying dance. Mr. Charles Osborne touches exhaustively on topics of the day, his references to matters of burning interest being loudly acclaimed. Miss Alma Bignell contributes valuably to the programme, and the evening is ended with the sketch, For the Honour of the Regiment, in which the Bertie of Mr. Frank Hardie still shines conspicuously, and in which the support of Mr. Wm. Felton, Mr. George Grahame, Mr. C. Lilford Delph, and Miss Irene Carlton is invaluable.

THE SOUTH LONDON.

"Work, boys, work, and be contented!" is the refrain Mr. Johnny Dwyer sings nightly at the South London Palace. And the "boys" do work—in applauding the clever comedian, for very contented are they with his performance. Mr. Dwyer deals with a variety of current topics, including, of course, the Russian revolt, about which he has a few stirring things to say. Mr. Wilson Hallett is a clever mimic of children's ways and children's chatter, and he causes a good deal of merriment by his imitations of the irresponsible remarks of the little ones, and his portrayal of many of their characteristics. A veritable worker of wonders is Herr Fritz, who seems to be able to conjure forth at will all manner of articles, as well as various specimens of the feathered tribe. His tricks are smartly and neatly executed. Davis and Davis, in their novel comedy act, explain how to get over one of the greatest difficulties in the path of some men who are bound Cupid's way. One of the Davis's comes on the stage dressed up as a girl, the disguise being most effective. The turn is a most laughable one. Gymnastic exercises on a wire in mid-air seem as comfortable an operation to Celest as walking is to the ordinary individual. One of his most daring feats in this direction involves his mounting a ladder, while the base of the ladder is balanced on the wire. Celest also knows well how to manipulate a heavy baton, his nimble twirling and whirling of the weapon exciting general admiration. Mr. George Fairburn discourses in an entertaining fashion on the many types of men a hairdresser is called upon to attend to. Miss Victoria Monks, as usual, makes her entry and her exit to the accompaniment of volumes of loud applause. As usual, too, there is a noisy outcry from the "gods," who compete with one another in the noisiness of their demands for such-and-such a song, for the clever American comedienne has left pleasant memories of all the ditties she has sung. She appears in two of her songs, "There's a Girl Inside," and the extremely popular "If You Want to Have a Row, Wait till the Morning," the melody of which is chorused with gusto by the gallery. Miss Monks has a delightful style of her own, which would almost make any song a success. Mr. Frank Gerald presents his dramatic sketch, Captain Starlight, in which he shows conspicuous ability as an actor in the title-part. This sensational equestrian spectacle, as it is called, has been written by Mr. Gerald, who is the author of several other successful "episodes." Captain Starlight possesses considerable merit from the point of view of authorship, and it is well played throughout by Mr. Gerald's little band of followers, the leading lady being Miss Evelyn Vaudray. The Florodora Girls, speciality artistes; Little Queenie May, the juvenile wonder; Kitty Clay, comedienne and dancer; and Ruff's Imperial Bioscope also contribute to an attractive programme.

HOLLOWAY EMPIRE.

A leading feature in the excellent programme at the Holloway Empire this week is Selkirk's naval spectacle entitled The Handy Man, performed by one hundred Holloway children. The scene represents the deck of a man-of-war, and here is given a series of drills and exercises by the young people of both sexes. The girls take their turn first, and show alertness in their drill. Next come the boys, who are in command of a young lady, who represents a naval officer. The lads display expertness in gun and other military exercises. After they have had their turn a little comedy is introduced, in which a diminutive Jack Tar takes a prominent part, the boys and girls gathering round in a semi-circle to enjoy the fun and frolic. Another diversion is introduced when the young lady already mentioned sings an appropriate song, which is received with applause. The production finishes in dramatic style in the form of a naval attack, the victory of the sailors being signalised by cheering and other demonstrations of joy. The spectacle is a very pretty and interesting one, and, besides, it gives useful employment to an appreciable number of Holloway boys and girls. Another turn which affords great delight is that given by Paul Sandor, whose circus entertainment is on novel lines. A number of dogs are made up to look like small ponies, and on the back of each is firmly seated a doll representing a lady or gentleman rider. For the supposed edification of a lady and gentleman in a motor-car the animals go through a circus performance. The figures in the car, as well as those on horseback, are cleverly worked by Mr. Sandor, who exercises his ventriloquial powers with amusing results. This is particularly the case when one of the "ponies" appears with a "lion" on its back, and the King of the Forest is prevailed upon to answer questions. The well-trained dogs represent a jumping pony, a waltzing pony, a quick-stepping pony, and a pony that travels on three legs. Altogether, this is a capital show. Ludwig Amann is here again with his truly admirable impersonations of characters and notabilities. Recent additions include the leading Russian and Japanese Generals, and amongst other eminent people whose portraits are thus cleverly presented are the late Mr. Gladstone and the living Mr. Chamberlain and Presidents Loubet and Roosevelt, the series concluding with a capital representation of His Majesty the King, whose popularity is attested by the applause with which his picture is received. Unthan, "the armless wonder," continues to make remarkable use of his feet, which in his case take the place of hands. He plays the fiddle, draws a cork from a bottle, and pours out a glass of wine, from which he drinks. He also smokes, and has a hand at nap, concluding his performance by playing a solo on the cornet. Mr. Pat Carey, the popular Irish comedian, makes a hit with his ditty, "They were all Irish," and his step dancing is very neat. Mr. Johnny Gilmore is also in the bill, and does well with his songs, "I didn't get home for weeks" and "All through that Navvy." Signorina Verera sings the Jewel song from "Faust" in admirable style, and meets with a very favourable reception. So, too, do the Bros. Webb, amusing clowns, who show much artistic skill in their handling of various musical instruments. Walker and May, coloured singers and eccentric dancers, also contribute. The experienced musical director at this well-patronised theatre of varieties is Mr. Thomas Gray, and Mr. Charles W. Adams is the energetic acting-manager.

AMUSEMENTS IN AUSTRALIA.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

SYDNEY, Dec. 13, 1904.—Miss Tittell Brune holds sway at Her Majesty's Theatre in Mr. J. C. Williamson's magnificent production of Theodora. Never in the history of the Australian stage has an actress, practically unknown to playgoers, so completely captivated her audiences by genuine artistic merit as has Miss Brune. Certain it is that as long as Miss Brune likes to stay, or as often as she likes to come, she will be heartily welcomed and lustily cheered. Theodora will be repeated to night and to-morrow, Sunday on Thursday, and the season will conclude on Friday with Romeo and Juliet.

"The World" was one of Mr. Bland Holt's earliest successes, and his own impersonation of Moss Jewell lives in the memory of playgoers. Of the original cast of principals he alone remains. J. L. Hall and H. N. Douglas are dead, Myra Kemble has long since retired, and Charles Holloway has become an actor-manager on his own account. But the story and sensations are as strong as in 1882, and Mr. John Brunton has framed the play in most befitting scenery. The chief novelty in the cast is the casting of the company's traditional villain, Mr. Albert Norman, as the hero, Clement Huntingford. The explosion, the lunatic asylum, the wreck, the raft, the Crystal Palace, and the fancy dress ball, with its electric ballet, all are as attractive and as loudly cheered as ever. Mr. Holt's Christmas bill at the Theatre Royal will be A Desperate Game.

Mr. J. C. Williamson's Bio-Tableaux opened at the Queen's Hall on the 10th, and achieved instant success.

SYDNEY, Dec. 20.—Miss Tittell Brune concluded her season at Her Majesty's on the 16th, with Romeo and Juliet. The theatre was packed, and Mr. J. C. Williamson's staging of the Shakespearean tragedy was greatly admired. Miss Brune acted better than at any time during her stay, and floral offerings were as numerous as the applause was fervent. When the curtain fell, the young American actress was called many times, and a speech was insisted on. Miss Brune unaffectedly, but warmly, thanked the Sydney public for its appreciation and support (unprecedented for the month of December), and Mr. Williamson and Mr. Ramaciotti for their personal kindness and courtesy to her. She said, "You laughed with Sunday, you sighed with Juliet, you encouraged me as Theodora, and you took me to your hearts as the Eaglet." People waited at the stage door until midnight to get a farewell glance at the favourite. Miss Brune will not return to Sydney until the end of 1905. Meanwhile she will tour the other States of the Commonwealth and New Zealand.

The Gilbert and Sullivan series of revivals began at Her Majesty's on the 17th with Patience. The occasion was remarkable for two things. First the acting of Bunthorne by Mr. Howard Vernon, who created the part in 1881 in this city. On Saturday he acted, sang, and danced better than ever before. It was also a noteworthy occasion, because Miss Dolly Castles made her début in Patience, having only previously appeared at a matinée in Melbourne. The young Australian sang well, and in acting and speaking surprised all who expected a crude novice. Another newcomer was Mr. Frank Wilson (from the Savoy), who was Colonel Calverly, a crisp impersonation. Mr. Charles Kenningham had the comparatively small part of the Duke of Dunstable. It was well done, as is all his work. The Archibald Grosvenor of Mr. John Ralston, clear of diction and resonant of voice, and Major Murgatroyd fell to Mr. H. H. Wallace. Miss Celia Ghiloni as Lady Jane sang the music in excellent form, and her violoncello scene evoked laughter and applause. The three ladies Angela, Ella, and Sophie were charming in appearance, style, and vocalism as represented by Misses Aggie Thorne, Vinie Deloitte, and Sara Hyman. Mr. W. Ford was a funny Mr. Bunthorne's solicitor.

The American Travesty Stars at the Palace are running through their previous répertoire with Miss Celia Mavis and Mr. Edwin Lester in the parts formerly played by Miss Maud Amber and Mr. Winfield Blake.

The Tivoli has Hackenschmidt as its chief attraction; this is his last week, as it is also the last of the Frasettis, Tom Dawson, Irving Sayles, Miss Hilda Lane, Kearns and Rosslyn, the Diamond Duo, Lal Logic, Tom Leonard, Carden Wilson, Doris Baker, and Wanda Radford. Remaining are the Salambos, Historicus, James Opie, and Harry Atkinson.

Mr Harry Rickards, his company, and Mr. W. F. Hawtrey, and Miss Winifred Austin, give a matinée at the Tivoli to-morrow to raise funds for a Christmas dinner to 1,000 poor people. The City Council grants the use of the basement of the Town Hall for this charitable purpose.

Wirth's Circus in Phillip Park is doing holiday business, the latest attraction being "Chifalo" in his daring feat called "Kilpatrick's Death Trap."

This week's bill at the Tivoli, Kidderminster, is headed by Rozel in his daring high-rope performance; Lillie Barrington, Dan Idle, J. H. McCoy, Marie Leon, The Longfords, and Leslie and Player. Miss Alma Curzon, who is also billed, was unable to appear on Monday, owing to the loss of her dresses on the railway.

Will the Collectors for Mr Thomas Barrasford's appeal for the Music Hall Home Fund kindly send in their lists to The Era Office to the hon. treasurer, Mr F. H. Pedgrift. They will be duly announced in our next issue. Those artistes who desire a collecting card please apply to Mr J. T. Fruin, secretary, 31, Wilson-road, Camberwell, S.E.

HERBERT CAMPBELL MEMORIAL.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—A memorial to the late Mr. Herbert Campbell in the shape of a bust, either in marble or bronze, is to be obtained, and placed, if possible, in the vestibule of the Theatre Royal, Drury-lane, the scene of so many of his triumphs. Mr. Harry Randall has kindly consented to act as president, and Mr. Edward Ledger, of The Era, as treasurer to the fund.

It is the intention of the committee to engage an artist of repute to execute this work to the memory of the above-mentioned generous and genial comedian. The committee will esteem it a great favour if his old friends and admirers will assist in making this memorial a success. All subscriptions will be duly acknowledged in The Era.

Yours faithfully,
FRANK HEATH,
(Secretary).

ALEXANDRA PALACE.

On Saturday evening, in the Central Hall, the Alexandra Palace Choral and Orchestral Society, under the conductorship of Mr. Allen Gill, gave a sucessful performance of Sir Charles Stanford's "The Revenge," the words by Lord Tennyson. This was followed by the "Jewel Song" from Faust, the recitative and air being excellently rendered by Madame Louise Burns. Mr. G. D. Cunningham's solo and organ concerto were listened to with due appreciation. The air from Judith, "God Breaketh the Battle," sung by Mr. Charles Sanders, was rapturously encored, and he replied with "Sigh no more Ladies." The Italian Symphony, "Andante and Tarantella," by the orchestra, brought the first part of the concert to a conclusion. German's "Welsh Rhapsody" opened the second part. This work was written for the Cardiff Festival of 1904. It introduces some well-known Welsh airs, including "Hunting the Hare," "The Bells of Aberdovey," and "The March of the Men of Harlech"—all of which numbers were meritoriously executed. Madame Louise Burns's sweet soprano was heard to great advantage in the song "The Lord is My Shepherd," in which she was accompanied by the composer, Miss Kate Cholditch Smith, on one of the finest organs in England.

MISS ROSAMOND LEY'S RECITAL.

At the Bechstein Hall, on Tuesday evening, Miss Rosamond Ley gave her first Pianoforte Recital, under the direction of M. Vert, to a fashionable, crowded, and appreciative audience. She played Schumann's Sonata in G minor, Chopin's Impromptu in F sharp, Op. 36, Polonaise in C minor, Op. 40, Barcarole, and Brahm's Intermezzo, Op. 118, with remarkable brilliancy and technique. Miss Ley also gave admirably Chopin's "Ballade in F Minor," Ed. Schütt's "Concert Paraphrasen uber Walzer von Johann Strauss," and Liszt's Melodies, Polonaises, and Rhapsodie Hongroise. The above selections were interspersed with some charming songs by Miss Mary Morgan, whose rich contralto won hearty appreciation. The accompanist, Mr. Ivor Morgan, deserves a special word of praise.

PRESENTATION.—Mr. Harry Lorreano, producer and stage-manager of Mr. Arthur Carlton's highly-successful Ealing pantomime, Aladdin, was presented on Saturday last, at the Theatre Royal, Aldershot, with a very handsome portmanteau, travelling gloves, and cigar case, by the members of the company, as a mark of their respect. Miss Jennie Richards made the presentation in a very appropriate speech.

MUSIC HALL ARTISTES RAILWAY ASSOCIATION DINNER.

WHERE is Bohemia? asks Mr. Henry Hamilton in his fine play Harvest. Anywhere, everywhere! On Sunday evening it had its temporary abode at the Trocadero, where a large and representative gathering of the variety profession gave itself over to the heartiest enjoyment, and swelled the chorus of congratulation that was sounded on all sides concerning the immense progress of the Music Hall Railway Association. This society germinated some eight years since, as the result of a meeting of a few artistes at a Lambeth hostelry. A provisional committee was formed, and the weakly plant, favoured by the encouragement of the railways, became, with the dawn of the century, a hardy tree, well established in the confidence of the profession. The advantages it offers seem to increase year by year. An excellent system of agency, by which parties of artistes are continually advised as to the cheapest systems of travelling, has been among the chief and most valuable results of the working of the Association in the provinces, and several of these gentlemen were present on Sunday evening to receive the congratulations of their friends in the profession on their highly valued labours. But gallantry compels us to give the first place among these agents to Mrs. Egerton, who is perhaps better known in the two hemispheres as "Ma" Egerton, who is the presiding genius of the American Bar in Lime-street, Liverpool, a professional house as well known as the York in Waterloo-road. Mrs. Egerton is always an honoured guest at these pleasant réunions, and from her place of honour on the left of Mr. Eugene Stratton she responded in a short and kindly speech to the toast of "The Ladies," which had apparently been forgotten in the list on the menu. Her reception was of the heartiest description. Mr. Harry Randall, the President of the Association, was the chairman of the occasion, and set a good example by making his speech commendably short. He referred in sympathetic terms to the regrettable absence of Miss Marie Lloyd, but had some good news for the guests when he informed them that the latest reports concerning the bright little lady's health, that most of them had probably read in Sunday morning's papers, were much exaggerated, and that he was pleased to say that Marie was making most favourable progress to convalescence. In 1903, it wil be remembered, the late Mr. Herbert Campbell presided over the annual function; and his fellow-player, Mr. Dan Leno, filled the position in 1902. Mr. Randall made a touching reference to his dear friend Campbell, and referred in the most eulogistic and kindly terms to his predecessor at Drury-lane—the comedian who could never be replaced, the comedian of the century.

The Association is still anxious to secure a further reduction of the privileged number travelling on tour from five to three. Some five years ago, when an agitation for this reduction was started, Sir Loftus Wilkinson pointed out the impossibility of complying with the request. Then it was the war that had increased the working expenses of the company. This year, as Mr. A. H. Hoyle, of the South-Western Railway, pointed out, it is the depression of trade that has decreased the dividends of the various companies, and the much-desired reduction cannot be granted.

The Association has a business character, but such is the economy of its administration, and so great is its popularity, that it has been able to distribute the large sum of £940 in charity. In these benefits professional and railway benevolent institutions have shared, and the amounts grow larger every year. The scope of the Society's objects has long included legal aid; and now gratuitous medical aid, where necessary, can be obtained by members, for no less than six specialists in London have offered their services in necessitous cases. Altogether, the Music Hall Railway Association is doing an excellent work, and its administration by a devoted secretary, a hard-working and practical committee, and a number of agents has gained, and thoroughly deserves, the confidence of every member of the profession.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Randall received their guests in the Alexandra Room, adjacent to the Empire Room, where supper was served and the dance afterwards enjoyed. "General Hilarity," an excellent commander for such a gathering, ruled the proceedings. Representatives of comedy of every kind—from acrobatic to Hibernian—"took the flure." Expert dancers were everywhere, and the mere layman felt some trepidation when he timidly solicited the honour of a polka with a lady who had perhaps won the admiration of both hemispheres by the most intricate forms of step dancing. But the prime donne of Terpsichore were graciousness itself, and the spirit and entrain of the whole affair were kept up until nearly four o'clock. Mr. Bob Hutt would insist upon conducting the band, and did so with a seriousness and a steady beat that suggested an academy training; and there were many humorous incidents that kept the gaiety of the occasion in a constant whirl.

After an excellent dinner, served in the perfect style which is invariable at the Trocadero, Mr. HARRY RANDALL briefly proposed the loyal toast, and voiced the sympathy of the assembled guests with the King and Queen in their great anxiety concerning the health of their daughter, Princess Victoria. The toast was received with musical honours, the National Anthem being sung "with heart and voice."

In proposing "The Association and Its Provincial Agents," he said that it was with immense pleasure that he proposed prosperity to the Association, which had now reached its eighth birthday. It was the first time that he had taken part in a public function connected with the Association since he had been honoured by his election as president, and he took that opportunity of thanking them. There was an element of regret mingled with his pleasure. Two years ago a very dear friend of his, the late Mr. Herbert Campbell, took the chair at that gathering, and his interest in everything that concerned the profession was well known. He had to deplore, and they had to deplore, the loss of another dear old friend in Mr. Dan Leno, the comedian of the century, one who can never be replaced. They were very sorry not to see there that evening a very popular lady and a patroness of their Association, and they were still more sorry at the cause that kept her away. He referred to Miss Marie Lloyd. She had sent him the following telegram :—"Serious illness prevents me being present to-night. Wish the Association every success. Hope you will have jolly time. Kindest regards to all.—Marie Lloyd." He wished to correct the reports that had appeared in some of the Sunday papers. Miss Lloyd had had no relapse, and the doctor hoped that she would be out and about within a week. He was glad to say that their Association was going on swimmingly; and combined with their business, now so prosperous, they were able to give a helping hand to charities. He learnt from Mr. Stuart that since its formation the Association had distributed between £900 and £1,000 between the Railway and Music Hall Charities. This was a record of which they as artistes might well feel proud. What had astonished him most was the enormous increase of members and the smallness of the staff that controlled the working of the M.H.R.A.; and, in speaking of the administration, he would refer to the two "Douglases"—Douglas Stuart and Douglas White—who were among the founders. They had the honour of being members of the first deputation to the railway managers. Mr. Stuart, he knew, looked upon his duties as a labour of love. He put heart and soul into his work. Then there were many zealous workers in the provinces, who assisted in the travelling arrangements of 150 people every week—no light task—and they had a committee giving valuable time continuously to the multifarious details of the management of the Association without fee or reward. They were a happy family, with plenty of money in the bank, and they were entitled to self-congratulation. He had much pleasure in coupling the toast with the name of Mr. Douglas Stuart.

MR. DOUGLAS STUART said: "I assure you I feel it a high honour to be permitted to reply to this toast for our Association, of which I have held the proud post of secretary since its formation, and have watched its birth, infancy, its growing years, and its now lusty boyhood. I can therefore realise, perhaps better than many, how marvellously successful it has been even from its start. We have now an average number of new members joining each week of over forty. Don't be alarmed; I am not going to read the names of last week's enrolment out to you. The names are so long, and so difficult to pronounce, that I could not if I would. If I did, you would find that they are not all British, and some required nearly 20 letters—chiefly consonants. As you know, we speak several languages at the office, and are about to attend night classes to learn other foreign languages that may be useful—such as Russian, Japanese, and American. The mention of our alien friends reminds me that when I was expounding the other evening to a London manager how for a dollar our members were allowed 25 per cent. off their railway fares; that they obtained free legal and medical advice; that they were doubly insured, and other privileges, he remarked, 'What about us poor managers? Can't you do something for us?' I at once replied that we were contemplating a home for proprietors and managers disabled from pursuing their business avocations through lock-jaw from the too frequent pronouncing of cracked foreign cognomina. Naturally, so many new members benefit the smaller artiste, as parties of five can be more readily made up; but they also increase the office work, and it would be mock modesty on my part not to tell you that I do have to work all day and nearly all night to keep pace with what there is to do. The office labours, however, are brightened now and again by a little sunshine in the way of amusing incidents. For instance, there was the gentleman who thought the station for Liverpool must be Liverpool Street; another who wished to travel to Manchester from Victoria; and still another who put on the list for Carlisle or York, thinking these towns were within twelve miles radius. One lady who was engaged for Bloatertown found herself stranded one Sunday afternoon on the beach at Yarmouth in the Isle of Wight, and there have been others. Again, there are members who place their names on the list—or else write to me—and never put their address. When I do not communicate with them they become indignant. I remember one member who was careful to put his address in full, but never signed the letter. I do not wish to detain you, but there is one subject which I would like to impress upon the minds of all members, and that is how great a benefit is the one recently obtained for you in the way of free medical advice. Not only in nearly every provincial town are there doctors who are kind enough to attend you without any payment, but we have six West-end London specialists—some of the most noted in the world—who would give you the best advice entirely free. Let me give you but one case which occurred the other day. The wife of a member was lying very ill, and, although satisfied with the doctor attending her, her husband thought he would like to have the best advice procurable. I gave him a letter, and he went to our specialist, who said he thought it would be better if he saw the lady. So he went down all the way to the S.E. district, and paid two visits. His ordinary fee would have been some £10 to £15, but what did he ask? Nothing. Why? Because the lady was a member of the M.H.A.R.A. These doctors have also promised, with much kindness, to obtain beds when necessary in the principal hospitals for our members at once, instead of waiting sometimes weeks. I think you will agree with me that our very best thanks are due to these members of a class noted for its philanthropy for their great generosity. On behalf of the committee and myself, I thank you most sincerely for the heartiness with which you have drunk this toast, and I thank you, Sir, for the kind words of appreciation you have said about myself. I can only promise to do all that is possible on my part to increase the smooth working of the wheels of the Association, and to attend assiduously to my duties; but as it is human to err, but divine to forgive, forgive me if in the arduous stress of my labours I now and again make a mistake. If I do, I hope and think I shall be able to remedy it. I thank you one and all."

MR. EUGENE STRATTON, who was called upon to speak to the toast of "The Railway Companies," pointed out the courtesy of those companies' representatives in providing free trucks, and in every way looking after them. They had given a concession of five people. He hoped they would make it three. Some good pressing might make them kinder; and, if they didn't ask for it, they would not get it. He thanked the companies for their consideration, and he would not even leave out the South-Eastern.

MR. A. H. HOYLE, the representative of the South-Western, whose name was coupled with the toast, said if there was one thing more pleasing than another it was to be patted on the back. The concession for parties of three had been in their minds before that day; but the companies had had to face reduced dividends, due to the depression of trade. When that depression disappeared he hoped that the concession would be favourably considered. He thanked the Association for their charity towards railway benevolent institutions, and he desired to acknowledge the readiness with which artistes gave their services at their charitable entertainments.

MR. FRANK GERALD, in eulogising the Press, referred to the nice things journalists had been writing about their chairman, and deservedly so. He made a kindly reference to Mr. Dan Leno, whose memory would ever be held dear in the hearts of the Press, the public, and the performer. The Press and the music-hall artiste belonged to the most Bohemian of the professions, and might the bonds that united them never be sundered.

The toast was briefly acknowledged by MR. CHARLES BERTE, part author of The City of Millions.

MR. JOE O'GORMAN, in proposing the health of Mr. Randall, spoke with much heartiness of the popularity of their chairman and president. Mr. O'Gorman was brief, and Mr. Randall, in acknowledging the many kind things that had been said concerning him, was even briefer.

Some little amusement was caused by the rising of MR. PHIL RAY to propose "The Ladies," and MR. RANDALL eventually announced that Mr. Ray would make a speech concerning the fair sex, "by one who knows." Mr. Ray was impressively eloquent on the subject, and for the compliments he showered upon our sisters, our cousins, and our aunts he was very prettily thanked by Mrs. Egerton, of the American Bar, Lime-street, Liverpool.

There were nearly 200 guests present. Among them were Mr. and Mrs. Harry Randall, Mr. and Mrs. Dickson, and Mr. H. Ward. From Drury Lane Theatre came Mr. and Mrs. Tom Hearn, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Woottwell, and Mr. W. Cummings; Mr. and Mrs. Joe O'Gorman (chairman of committee), Miss O'Gorman, Miss Dolly O'Gorman. Other committeemen present were Messrs. Harry Freeman, Paul Martinetti, Bob Leonard, Jack Collinson, Frank Gerald, Eugene Stratton, Bob Hutt, Frank Coyne, and Phil Ray. The railway companies were represented by Messrs. A. H. Hoyle (L. & S.W.R.), Frank Lunnon (G.N.R.), W. Simpson (G.W.R.), and W. Barton (G.C.R.). The provincial agents of the Association present were Mrs. Egerton (Liverpool), Messrs. Bert Wilson (Birmingham), M. P. Tench (Manchester), Mrs. Whybro (Portsmouth), Messrs. Chas. Evans (Margate), W. Colbrook (Grimsby), David Crombie (Bristol), A. Epps (Maidstone), Fred Wood (South Shields), E. Moyce (Chatham), Fred Parker (Bradford), and T. W. Rosser (Cardiff) and wife. Mr. Harry Bawn and Mr. Frank Weekes represented the managers, and others we noticed included Mr. Charles W. Snell (Ocean Accident Company), Mr. Douglas White (hon. treasurer) and Mrs. White, Mr. and Mrs. Mayville, "My Fancy," Miss Selina Seaforth, Mrs. F. Coyne, Mrs. Wal Pink, Miss Vulcana and Mr. Atlas, Mr. and Mrs. Fawkes (the Foxes), Ralph and Nellie Howard, Larola and wife, W. The president wishes it to be known that the funds have almost given out, and that immediate help is required.

MR. FRED CONQUEST, in consequence of his great success this year, has been re-engaged by Mr. J. M. Chute for a special part in next year's pantomime at the Prince's Theatre, Bristol.

MR. EDITOR.—Sir,—In your last week's account of the Pavilion Theatre, Leicester, you were kind enough to say "Walter Driscoll is a capital comedian." It should have been, yours faithfully, WILL DRISCOLL.

MR. EDITOR.—Sir,—Last week, in your account of the performance of The Chinese Honeymoon at Rugby, you stated that the part of Mrs. Pineapple was played by Miss Alice Newton. It should have been, yours faithfully, ALICIA NORTON.

MR. BLAKE ADAMS, who is playing Mr. Cyril Maude's part of Captain James Barley, in Beauty and the Barge on tour, received from the students of Aberdeen, on January 31 (that being Students' Night), a sailor's canvas bag marked "Barley" in large letters on either side. This was handed up from the orchestra; and, on opening the bag, Mr. Adams found a box of cigars tied with the 'Varsity colours. At the end of the performance there were loud cries for a speech; but Mr. Adams indicated that, having performed his part in the play, he was not inclined to orate.

BROWN'S BRONCHIAL TROCHES.—

THE RUSSIAN GIANT.

Machnow, the Russian giant, arrived at Victoria on Tuesday morning from Berlin, and was conveyed in a pantechnicon van to the Hippodrome, where he made his first appearance on Wednesday afternoon. The giant, who is twenty-three years of age, was accompanied by his wife and child, and Mr. H. W. Garrick, of the Hippodrome, travelled with him from Queenborough, where he had arrived in the early morning. He was born at Tcharkoff, in Asiatic Russia, and has been previously exhibited at Berlin and elsewhere. His arrival at Victoria was witnessed by a large crowd, many of the members of which followed the pantechnicon van on its passage through the streets to the Hippodrome. The giant, whose name is Machnow, and who speaks only Russian and German, was seated on a couch 9ft. 6in. long. A stoppage was made at two points on the journey, first to allow of a photograph being taken, and secondly at a tailor's shop in the Strand, which Machnow entered to be measured for a dress suit. At both places the crowd was so great that the police threatened to summon those in charge for causing an obstruction. The tailor's assistant was compelled to mount a pair of steps in order to take the gigantic man's measurements. It was stated that fifteen yards of double-width cloth would be required for the suit, the quantity used for an average man's suit being from 3¼ yards to 3½ yards. The measurements were as follows:—Neck to waist, 32in.; total length of coat, 65in.; across the shoulders, 31in.; shoulder to elbow, 36in.; total length of sleeve, 55½in.; across the chest, 30in.; round the chest, 60in.; round the waist, 55in.; side-seam of trousers, 72in.; side-seam inside the leg, 50in.; and thigh, 40in. round. Machnow, whose boots are 2ft. long and who wears 26in. collars, is said to be the tallest man in the world. As a matter of fact, the Hippodrome management claim that the mighty Machnow is not only the greatest living man, but the greatest human being who ever walked the earth. This statement may possibly be questioned. The tape measure and weighing machine of the Hippodrome, however, are not to be challenged by the vague pronouncements of Homer and Æschylus. They tell the ungarnished fact that Machnow stands 9ft. 8in. in his socks, weighs 32st., has a foot two "feet" long, a hand 1ft. 7in. from fingertip to wrist, and a head three-quarters of a yard round. Thus it may be noted that he can light his cigarette from a street lamp with ease. He did so at Sheerness quite casually. He has also a curious habit of thrumming absent-mindedly with his fingers on the crowns of the top-hats of bystanders, most of whom reach about up to his elbow. Machnow is an artistic as well as an arithmetical giant. He looks the part. He is broad and massive, and strides the earth like a really well-ordered Colossus.

A Press representative, who saw the giant standing in the dim light of dawn on the deck of the little steam-packet which brought him over from Flushing, thus vividly describes the scene:—Then in truth he loomed upon the imagination with really haunting effect. As he rose in greeting he seemed two or three times huger than he is. Frankly, one hardly knew where he was going to stop. He might have been some vast spirit-shape from Dante. Even then he was wearing the silver-braided uniform and great white head-dress of Persian lambswool that was the wonder of the London crowd later in the day. Seen in the half-shadow of the dawn, this gave only an added eeriness to the huge, solitary figure that towered up from the little deck. Once introduced, Machnow disclosed himself as gentle a giant and as amiable a fellow as one may meet on a February day, though his intelligence can hardly be judged from the sole English words he knows, "That's good." Terrible as he may appear at a distance, he is by nature essentially domestic. With him, indeed, he has brought to England not only his young wife—a pretty peasant woman from Tcharkoff, a place far away on the Persian frontier, whence Machnow himself hails—but a three months' old daughter. This the wife carries always fondly in her arms. Both wife and baby are of normal size, the wife reaching about to the giant's waist. Machnow was himself a quite normal peasant boy until he was seven years old, when he suddenly took it into his head to grow. At ten he was taller than any St. Petersburg policeman.

From his little family Machnow will hardly allow himself to be parted for a moment. His devotion is quite touching. Even on the voyage, which Machnow stood admirably, though his wife did not prove quite so excellent a sailor, the giant would not let them out of his sight.

"Madame" was naturally invited below by the courteous stewardess. But Machnow preferred to tend her himself. Accordingly the largest saloon was prepared for the giant; and there he and his family remained throughout the night, Machnow laying himself out with moderate comfort along the whole of one bench, with a few chairs at the end of it.

Towards the captain and the other passengers, when he came across them, Machnow was the soul of courtesy, and allowed photographs of himself to be freely inspected. Again, when he had made his way up the groaning gangway, Machnow's first thoughts were of his wife and child. Through the amazed little crowd on the Queenborough platform he stalked with a deliberation and promptitude that surprised even his escort straight to the refreshment bar.

Porters, passengers, everybody, naturally crowded round the door to see what fiery liquor the giant would demand. To the surprise of everybody he pointed to a tin of biscuits. He wanted some for his wife.

As for the giant's own tastes, they may be best suggested perhaps by his average "official" bill of fare for the day. This is it:—

Breakfast: Two quarts of milk, twelve eggs, and two fairly large loaves.

Lunch: Two or three pounds of potatoes and a quart of beer.

Dinner: Three to five pounds of fresh meat, with vegetables, 3lb. of bread, and two quarts of beer

Supper: Ten to fifteen eggs, bread and butter, and a quart of tea.

On Wednesday afternoon Machnow made his début at the Hippodrome. He was introduced by Mme. Chiquita, a little lady only eighteen inches high, who led her huge companion into the arena, having first told the audience the brief history of Machnow's marvellous development. The giant saluted in military style, and there was much merriment when "the biggest man on earth" commenced a tour of the stalls, with "Madame" leading the way. As he went, Machnow thrust out a massive hand to greet the ladies, and even the children, doubtless thinking of the Gulliver of their picture-books, seemed anxious that he should take notice of them. And he never forgot to do so, for Machnow is said to be a genuine lover of children. Afterwards, with his midget guide, the giant returned to the arena, and then, once more saluting the audience, he proudly stalked out—to satisfy the cravings of his appetite.

He was presently asked, through the interpreter, how he liked London. "Why," he replied, "you won't let me see anything of it. You bring me here from the station in a pantechnicon, and now, of course, I cannot go out. But I'm well content."

It was discovered that Machnow had added another word to his scanty knowledge of the English language. That word is "hungry." And although it wanted half an hour from his appointed luncheon hour, he kept on repeating it. Meanwhile, Machnow was regaling himself with oranges, cakes, and sandwiches. These are always kept on a little table beside him, so that he can ward off famine between his meals. Indeed, in this way he manages to get through three dozen oranges every day. At last, much to his satisfaction, a messenger was sent for his luncheon. With the prospect of another substantial meal, the giant's spirits seemed to revive wonderfully. At length on a huge tray, part of the "frugal" meal was brought in, steaming hot. When the giant espied it his eyes glistened, and he smiled again. Then, in his shirt sleeves—he usually takes off his coat at meals—he began to assail the various dishes. First came a large plateful of soup. This speedily vanished. Then he attacked two and a-half pounds of beef, ready sliced, three pounds of potatoes, a pound of spinach, and a loaf of bread. From time to time he "sipped" a quart jug of beer. Even this meal did not satisfy him. Like little Oliver Twist, he asked for more. And so he was given half a pound of cheese. Then once more he fell to eating oranges.

THE production for copyright purposes of a piece called Valiant of the 9th took place at the Pavilion Theatre, Winter Gardens, Southport, on the 28th ult.

MR. GEORGE DAVEY, the lessee and manager of the Grand Theatre, Islington, entertained over 350 children of the members of the 21st Middlesex Rifles last Saturday afternoon. 3,500 school children of the district also enjoying the pantomime of Babes in the Wood. Buns and oranges were also provided for the little ones by the management.

OWING to the illness of one of the principal members of their company, the directors of the German Theatre were obliged to postpone the first performance of Ludwig Fulda's Maskerade, which was to have taken place last Thursday night, to Wednesday next. This (Saturday) evening Der Raub der Sabinerinnen will be revived.

CLOSE upon a thousand persons assembled at the Grand Hall, Acton, on Friday evening last week, to enjoy a concert held under the auspices of the Acton Club. The programme was a most interesting one, and was notable on account of the "discovery" of a clever little girl of seven years, namely, Miss Marjorie Gummerson. For a child who has had no connection whatever with the stage, either through relatives or otherwise, Miss Gummerson exhibited remarkable histrionic gifts. Possessed of an abundance of self-confidence, a pretty voice, an engaging presence, and, most valuable of all, the dramatic instinct, the tiny woman sang, danced, and recited with an easy naturalness that came as an agreeable revelation to the audience. In her singing of "The à la Girl" she portrayed the characteristics of ladies of the "Smart Set" of different nationalities, and she was scarcely less entertaining in her recitation entitled "The Bald-headed Man." Miss Gummerson, who was born in Berlin, of British parentage, can speak the German language as fluently as the English, and her knowledge of the former tongue was evidenced in her rendering of Meyer-Helmund's "Liebeslied." A dainty and picturesque little figure she made, too, as a coon, her performance of the song, "I'se a-waitin' for yer, Josie," and her execution of the accompanying dance, affording further demonstration of the diminutive maiden's versatility. We should not be surprised to see Miss Gummerson occupying an important position on the boards at some future date. Before finally leaving the platform, she was presented with a handsome pearl brooch, mounted in gold, and bearing the initial "M."

MR. J. H. BARNES next week returns to England from New York, where he has been fulfilling a special engagement under Mr. Frohman's management. It is about thirty-four years since this popular actor came out at the old Lyceum. He played Sir Henry Irving's "double," on the first night of The Bells. "Jack" Barns has written a good many verses, including a serious poem called "The Mission of Judas," and a lament on the death of Queen Victoria.

Heart of Gold, a one-act Russo-Japanese play by Beatrix De Burgh and Lawrence Grant, will be produced at the Coronet Theatre this (Saturday) evening, following the performance of Joseph Entangled. It is Mr. Grant's first appearance as a dramatic author, and he himself will create the part of a Russian officer, Dimitri Korsakoff, while Mrs. Mouillot is cast for the character of a Japanese girl, O Hana San (Blossom). It will not be her first attempt at representing a lady of the Land of the Rising Sun, as she acted Madame Butterfly some years ago with great success. Members of the Japanese Embassy will be present at the Coronet this evening. Incidental songs will be sung by a Russian Male Choir, several of whom have recently returned from the war in Manchuria.

MR. ERIC LEWIS, who heads the cast of Mollentrave on Women, to be produced at the St. James's Theatre on Monday evening, gained much of his early training as a comedian in the German Reed's Entertainment at St. George's Hall. Mr. Leslie Faber, who is to play Everard Swenboys, is of Danish descent, and married a daughter of Mr. Henry Arthur Jones. Mr. Vivian Raynolds, who will appear as Mr. Dexter, has been the St. James's popular stage-manager since Mr. H. H. Vincent gave up that position to go to Australia.

MR. CHARLES ROCK, who is playing in The Taming of the Shrew, at the Adelphi, is a son of Surgeon-General W. F. de Fabeck, and entered the theatrical profession about twenty years ago. He has played over two hundred parts—in drama and pantomime, in sketches, comedies and tragedies—and has adapted some of Mr. W. W. Jacob's stories for the stage, perhaps the biggest success being The Ghost of Jerry Bundler, which ran for a long time at the Haymarket. Mr. Rock is the husband of Miss Cybel Wynne.

MR. TOM J. MORTON, and his charming wife, Miss Maggie Bowman (one of the clever Sisters Bowman), have been appearing during the week at the Palace of Varieties, Southport, where they have been presenting, as a special attraction, in the interlude, The Butcher and the Slavey. It has been a complete success, and the introduction of the couple's original speciality dance, "The Giant Gollywog," first done by them in the Grand Theatre, Birmingham, pantomime, 1902-3, made an instantaneous hit.

MESSRS. C. W. MURPHY and DAN LIPTON have supplied Miss Jessie Preston with some new and up-to-date Irish numbers for special production at the Oxford, where the popular burlesque actress commences an engagement on Monday, the 20th.

MR. HARRY BURNS is now on the road to speedy recovery, and hopes to be able to get to his work again during next week. To the many kind inquirers who showed their solicitude during his illness he sends his hearty acknowledgments.

IN celebration of the ninety-third anniversary of the birth of the world-famous novelist, the Dickens Fellowship held, on Wednesday evening, a large and enthusiastic meeting in the Memorial Hall, Farringdon-street, simultaneously with similar gatherings in various parts of the country. The Fellowship has a membership roll of 7,000, and thirty-one branches. Mr. Henry F. Dickens, K.C. (the novelist's son) and other vice-presidents addressed the gathering, which reciprocated fraternal greetings from provincial branches, and greatly enjoyed selections from Dickens, by the chairman, Mr. Arthur W. Hayes, and Mr. Frank Speaight. Character impersonations by Mr. Bransby Williams proved to be a highly popular feature of the evening's programme.

THE SHOWMAN WORLD.

MR. GEORGE SANGER asks us to express his gratitude to the senders of telegrams and letters, and to those who have called upon him during his long and painful illness. He is confined to his bed at his farm, at East Finchley; but he is on the road towards recovery, and hopes to be up and at work again shortly.

PLYMOUTH Winter Gardens are offering many attractions to the pleasure-loving public, and the proprietors, Messrs. Hancock Bros., are to be congratulated on their enterprise. In addition to a fine collection of cinematograph films, there are variety turns by Cissy Loman, Sam Benders, Roy Anderson, a dramatic spectacle, and a trumpet-blowing contest.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

Sir,—I am much interested in the discussion now going on in the columns of The Era regarding the attempted abolishment of fair privileges in some parts of the kingdom. This attempt is all the more surprising to me, because I hail from Yankeeland, where we regard the people of our Mother Country as not only the greatest lovers of wholesome amusement in the world, but as the fairest and most tolerant in a judicial way. Although you have first claim on Frank Bostock, we are proud to own him as an American. It was he who first showed us the way to street-fair success, and James W. Bostock and Francis Ferrari, Anglo-Americans, are at the present time leading promoters of that class. They receive handsome bonuses from the merchants of the leading cities to encourage them to occupy principal streets with their fairs during certain seasons of the year. What is more exhilarating for old or young, after a hard day's work, than a visit to the side-shows, round-abouts, shooting galleries, and "Koker" shies of "ye olde English Fair"?

We embark on a three years' Continental tour with the Wild West on April 2, and I assure you we all leave Great Britain with keen regrets and sincere good wishes for the welfare of her hospitable people.

Yours faithfully,
CHARLES ELDRIDGE GRIFFIN.
30, Blythe-road, West Kensington.

MESSRS. BOSTOCK AND WOMBWELL'S MENAGERIE is at Reading to-day, and will be there also on Monday.

WIDESPREAD sympathy has been manifested with Messrs. W. C. and S. Hancock, travelling showmen, now at the Winter Gardens, Plymouth, in the loss of Joseph Sutton Hancock, the nephew and adopted son of William and Miss Sophia Hancock, aged four-and-a-half years, who died on the 1st inst., from croup. Deceased had been attended by Dr. Burke and Nurse Roberts for an abscess on the lung. The funeral took place at the Plymouth Cemetery, when there was a large attendance of relatives and friends, and included was Mrs. Majendie, of Ilsham Vicarage, Torquay. Handsome natural and artificial wreaths were sent from the following:—"Daddie and Mammie"; "His loving Uncle and Aunt, W. C. and S. Hancock"; "Aunt Harriett"; "Teddie, Charley, and Dodo"; "Uncle W. Frampton"; "Dooner Family, Bridgend"; P. H. Kneebone, Miss Ray Anderson, Mrs. Lyons and Savina, Mr. and Mrs. Spinney, Mr. and Mrs. Alf. Wright, Nurse Roberts, B. Hayes, "Vinnie," Mr. and Mrs. Oldridge, Mrs. Thomas, Mrs. Lock, Louisa, Selina, and Joey Whitelegge, Vera and Zoe Beavill, Mr. and Mrs. Dalrymple and family, "The Employes of Messrs. W. C. and S. Hancock," and Mr. and Mrs. J. Jones.

THE Colne Bill is now in the hands of local showmen for signature. It is hoped that the Colne Corporation will take serious note of the failure of other public bodies to injuriously affect the show business. In any case, the duty of showmen is clear; all attacks must be met and repelled. The executive officers of the Guild are following up the fine frontal attack on the Wigan Corporation, which was made a few weeks ago. Mr. Watson Wright, the Guild's solicitor, has visited Wigan, and has been quietly impressing the "powers that be" with the legal weakness of the case for the Corporation.

WE record with great pleasure the improved state of Lord George Sanger's health. The serious nature of the veteran's illness has only been known to the family and his immediate friends. For over six weeks he was utterly helpless in bed. It was an agony of suffering to be moved even. However, his really magnificent stamina and hardy physique have again triumphed, and "the King of the Road" hopes to be tenting again at the end of the next six weeks. Of this we are quite sure, that the whole of Showland—a wide Empire—will rejoice in his recovery, and wishes speedy restoration to his accustomed strength and energy.

CHARITY, we are told, begins at home—and the saying is true—yet of all men showmen are proverbially slow in remembering their own interests. Their hearts go out to all sorts and conditions of all in need meet with the showmen's ready pity—people—and hundreds of pounds every year are given to local charities by the generosity and kindly forethought of showmen. We refer to the hospitals and other good institutions helped by showmen with benefit performances. "Why not," asks James Leo, in a short note on the subject—"Why not remember our own charities as well as the good work of others?"

WE quite agree. Mr. Leo suggests—and he is not alone in this thought—Why not, when asked to give a benefit performance for some local charity, stipulate that 20 per cent. of the gross proceeds be sent to our own charity, the Showmen's Guild? The Guild is our Society in the matters that touch the whole life of the travelling showmen. Why not arrange for your own charity to have a share in the benefit performance? Surely no Hospital Committee would dare to object. They must remember another proverb, "Never look a gift horse in the face." What we give freely they will gladly take. Besides, it will be good to bring before the charitable public—and public bodies at the same time—the fact that showmen, as a body, have their own charities to maintain.

AN example of the help showmen render in all times of distress comes from Hyde, where Colonel Clark, who with his cinematograph theatre has been doing excellent winter season business, gave the money taken at two performances to the fund for the unemployed instituted by a local news-

AT Tylorstown, in Wales, the following important concerns are on the ground:—Crecraft's Menagerie and the No. 2 Concern, the Novelty Booth, Phuston Bros., Double Overboats, the Big Wheel, and their Coker Sheets; Goodwin's two concerns, the Shooting Range and the Striker; Page's two Shooting Stalls; and Harry Smith's Varieties.

SHOWMEN will do well to remember the sale at Lynn of Messrs. Savage Bros.' surplus stock of roundabouts, engines, &c. Also the annual meeting of the Guild, and the important business meeting of the Roundabout Proprietors and Showmen's Union, particulars of which will be found in our advertising columns.

AT Debrancas' Novelty Exhibition, Kirkgate, Leith, are Captain Eagle Davis's Far West Wonders, the troupe of lady knife-throwers and revolver experts; also Sylvia Vigor, the Mexican armless lady, who performs with her feet and toes, and pleases the audience by playing "The Blue Bells of Scotland" on a small cottage piano with her toes. Business is very good.

STAGE STAFF GOSSIP.

(SPECIAL TO "THE ERA.")

ON TUESDAY the staff of the Grand Theatre, Woolwich, had their fifth annual supper at the Lord Raglan Hotel, Plumstead. Mr. Gladwin, the manager, presided, fifty sitting down to the table. After dinner, the chairman said he knew they would all loyally join him in drinking the health and future prosperity of Mr. and Mrs. Sounes, the esteemed proprietor of the Grand Theatre. Mr. Sounes regretted exceedingly being unable to attend, owing to a previous engagement. The toast was drunk with musical honours. Mr. Court, the stage carpenter, then proposed the health of the chairman, and said those present were proud to have him among them. The toast was received with ringing cheers, and Mr. Gladwin briefly responded, thanking the guests on behalf of Mr. Sounes and himself for their good wishes. It was impossible, he said, to "run" a theatre without an able and willing staff. This he was proud to acknowledge they possessed. The rest of the evening was devoted to music. Mr. Claude Mackenzie kindly officiated at the piano, and also gave a musical sketch. Songs were sung by Messrs. Court, Grey, Newell, Angel, the Call Boy, Isherman, Palmer, Nolan, Jewett, Berry, and Gus Valmore; and Mr. George Dane, the electrician, danced a Scotch reel. A happy and convivial evening ended with all joining in singing "Auld Lang Syne."

THE stage staff of the Grand Theatre, Islington, will hold their annual dinner on Sunday next, at the Nag's Head, Floral-street, Covent Garden. Mr. George Davey will occupy the chair, supported by Mr. Oswald Brand, the manager of the theatre, and others.

THE meeting of stage employees, held at Glasgow last Sunday, was a great success, many new members of the local society being elected. The next meeting will be held on the 19th, when the election of officers and a committee will take place.

MR. J. T. SHERIDAN, who went to Australia a couple of years ago to take charge of the electrical departments at Messrs. Williamson and Musgrove's theatres, has returned to London. He was on a visit to his father, who resided in Peckham; but, unfortunately, his father died a day or two before Mr. Sheridan arrived. The many friends of the family in London and Dublin showed their sympathy by sending wreaths. Mr. Philip Sheridan, electrician at the Crown Theatre, is another son of the deceased.

THE Heads of Departments Association announce that Mr. H. Beerbohm Tree has kindly consented to preside at their third annual dinner, the date of which is not yet fixed. Full particulars will be obtainable in due course from the Hon. Secretaries of the association, at 29, Wellington-street, Strand.

AT the last meeting of the No. 1 Branch, N.U.T.S.E., several applications for a grant from the Benevolent Fund were considered. In the case of two members incapacitated from work it was decided to allow 10s. per week. In the case of the wife of a member who was in hospital, a similar grant was made for one month. The financial statement for the past year was also presented. The summary of the accounts appear below:—

MISS MARIE DE ROOS has been re-engaged to play Lady Langford (the name part) in Mr. Victor Widnell's successful play, A Woman of Impulse, which starts tour the end of this month.

A NEW Russo-Japanese play, entitled Heart of Gold, by Beatrix de Burgh and Lawrence Grant, will be produced at the Coronet Theatre this evening, with Mrs. Mouillot and Mr. Lawrence Grant in the cast.

AT North London Police-court, on the 3rd inst., Thomas Gould, butcher, of Clarissa-street, Haggerston; Horace Sutton, cabinetmaker, of Spencer-road, Stoke Newington; and George Darter, tobacconist's assistant, of Shakespeare-road, Stoke Newington, were charged with acting as pedlars without the necessary licence. They were taken in Palatine-road, Stoke Newington, on Thursday evening, going from house to house hawking music. Mr. Fordham: Any publishers' names on the music? Police-constable Boyce: No. Accused said they were out of work, and wanted to earn an honest shilling. The officer said he had ascertained that each of the accused was respectable. The magistrate asked the men where they got the pirated music, but they gave no further details than "Clerkenwell." Mr. Fordham: Three respectable men hawking pirated music. It does not seem to me very respectable. Each pay 5s., or go to prison for five days.

Never shall thy memory fade,
Sweetest thoughts shall ever linger,
Round the spot where thou art laid.

From his loving wife and daughter.

TISSOT.—In loving memory of my dear father, Jules Tissot, who died Feb. 6, 1900. Never forgotten by his daughter, Marie (Mrs. Will Rosaire).

THEIR Royal Highnesses the Prince and Princess of Wales witnessed the performance of John Bull's Other Island, by Bernard Shaw, at the Court Theatre, on Tuesday afternoon.

THE Direction of the German Theatre will undergo a change at the expiration of the present season in March. Mr Hans Andresen will be the sole director, with the full consent of the present hon. committee, Messrs J. T. Grein and H. A. Hertz, Mr Max Behrend having been appointed director of the Municipal Theatre at Mayence.

THE Grand Theatre, Stalybridge, has been enhanced in its attractiveness by a complete electric installation, both behind and in front of the house. The improvement is thoroughly appreciated both by the touring companies and the habitués of the house. Special attention has been paid to the illumination of the stage, more than 600 lamps, including mediums and arc lamps, having been fixed. The whole of the plant is fitted with the latest improvements, and the lighting of the auditorium has caused much complimentary comment. The foyer, entrances, and grand circle, have been redecorated, and, with the addition of the elaborate electroliers, present a very attractive appearance. Mr. Carlton has to be congratulated on these much-desired improvements.

AT the usual weekly meeting of the Council of the Actors' Association, held last Tuesday, Miss Férike Boros and Miss Rosie Stevens were nominated for election. The Hon. Solicitors reported they had advised several members, and were arranging to take proceedings to enforce a member's claim. It was resolved that a special meeting of the Council be held on Friday, the 17th inst., to settle the agenda for the 14th annual general meeting, to be held at the Garrick Theatre on the 23rd inst., and also to confer with Mr. Arthur Bourchier, the chairman appointed to preside on that occasion. A case of alleged insanitation at a provincial theatre was under consideration. It was resolved that members of the profession should be admitted to the annual general meeting upon presentation of professional cards.

AT Highgate Police-court, on Wednesday, Mr. Brydon-Phillips, of the Brixton Theatre, was summoned by Joseph M. Grant, the stage carpenter, and nine other stage hands at the Opera House, Crouch-end, for wages. The amounts varied, and made a total of £15. The men were engaged upon work in fixing the scenery for the pantomime which defendant was going to produce, but there was no performance owing to the disastrous fire which occurred at the theatre on Christmas Eve. Mr. Moritz, who appeared for the defendant, said that it was a question of principle. The usual custom was that the work of moving the scenery in was paid for by the resident manager, and not by the touring manager. Mr. Brydon-Phillips said that he had been responsible for the production of eighty pantomimes at eighty different theatres. It was the universal custom that the resident manager paid for getting scenery in, and the travelling manager paid for getting it out. He objected on principle to paying for moving in the scenery. The Bench made an order for the payment of the amounts claimed and £2 2s. costs.

MISS MUIR and MR. HUBERT BARTLETT, after a successful visit to London, with their répertoire of comedy duologues, are leaving, on Sunday, for an eight weeks' tour, opening, on Monday, at the City Varieties, Leeds. This week completes their second anniversary in the halls, during which period they have had only two weeks' vacation.

THE management of the Islington Empire are determined to add still further to the attractiveness of this popular variety theatre. For this purpose a permanent cinematograph apparatus is to be fitted up over the balcony in the spacious auditorium. The plans have been passed by the County Council, and in about a week's time Mr. Spearman, the energetic manager, hopes to give his numerous patrons a fine display of up-to-date pictures.

A MAN named Evans, who was known as the "Pirate King of Birmingham" some time since, had his premises raided by the officers of the Musical Copyright Association, who seized 30,000 copies of illicit music, and the seizure led to the discovery of some stolen jewellery. The man was, during the week, sentenced to seven years' penal servitude.

A TIMELY reminder may be given that Mr. J. E. Nolan's benefit will take place on Monday evening at the Athenæum, Shepherd's-bush, when the programme will be contributed to by a number of popular artistes.

BLACKPOOL COLOSSEUM.—
BLACKPOOL COLOSSEUM.
BLACKPOOL COLOSSEUM.

SEASON 1905.

Situate at the junction of the Blackpool and Lytham Tramways, on the Marine Parade, opposite the Manchester Hotel, in the heart of Blackpool.
The Building (which is 127ft. in diameter, 41ft. high to the eaves, and 83ft. to the Lantern) is Lighted by Electricity, and as a place for Animal Entertainments is unique, it being the only building in Blackpool that, in consequence of its being free from pillars and other obstructions, affords the necessary height and space for Diavolo's performance of "Looping the Loop."
The Walls are covered with the World-renowned picture "Niagara" painted by the great artist Phillipoteau.
For the last eight or ten years Blackpool has been extending around and for miles south of the Colosseum in a marvellously rapid manner. Thousands of houses have been built and are occupied, and there has not been any place of Public Entertainment provided for the Masses of the People south of the Tower.
The Colosseum provides a long-felt want in this New and Populous Neighbourhood.
The Authorities estimate that about Four Million Persons visited Blackpool last Season.
The great Popularity of the Colosseum is shown by the fact that, although only partially occupied during a part of a Blackpool Season, upwards of 100,000 paid for Admission during the remaining part of the season.
Offers for the 1905 Season on Sharing Terms should be made to the Undersigned, who will furnish any further information.

WANTED, March 27, on, including Easter, for Miss Emma Litchfield's Drama,
"A LONDON ACTRESS."
"A LONDON ACTRESS."

The scenic effects are very appropriate, and all upon an elaborate basis. Indeed, the drama is one which could hardly fail to gain favour with the most exacting.—Liverpool Echo, Feb. 24, 1905.
Miss Emma Litchfield, playwright, actress, and expert in stagecraft, is again with us in her many-sided capacity. Miss Litchfield's influence, brought to bear in houses where lurid melodrama is not a stranger, cannot but be for good. In writing, she eschews the thundering steam-roller or the whizzing circular saw; in her acting, she is content to appeal, in a natural manner, to the emotions of her audience. . . "A London Actress" presented at the Alexandra Theatre this week, is one of her typical plays, typically presented. Herself a bewitching adventuress, who flirts with, and ruins, one man, marries another, and succeeds in falling in love with a third, she has a large piece in the scheme. A liberal sprinkling of excellent comedy, a happy ending, and a picturesque mounting, add attraction to the piece.—Birmingham Gazette.
The piece is altogether superior to the usual run of melodramas.—Glasgow Herald.
Vacant, March 27, on. Wire or write.
Easter, Whitsun, and August Bank Holiday Open
Many thanks for offers, but must have fair terms
Wire, STUART CLEVELAND, Fleetwood.

WANTED, Theatres with Big Stages and Auditoriums, for "The Life of a Showman," the Greatest Novelty and Strongest Attraction Touring. First-class Company of Eighteen Artistes. Five Tons Scenery Carried. Read what Manager Battersby says: Theatre Royal, Wednesday Feb. 7.—Dear Mr. Sante, I really must congratulate you on your latest production, "The Life of a Showman," and at the same time to state that although I anticipated a good show, yet it more than realised my expectations. The scenery and mechanical effects, the all-round excellent company, combined with a most original drama should prove a veritable mascot. Managers and the public have only to witness the performance to endorse every word I have said. You have my best wishes for the success the show deserves.—Yours truly, Harry Battersby. Vacant May 1 and Autumn. SANTE, This, Bilston, Next, Wednesbury

THE LAW OF COPYRIGHT FOR ACTOR AND COMPOSER,

BY
ALBERT A. STRONG, LL.B. (Lond.).

Chapter I.
COPYRIGHT AS OPPOSED TO PERFORMING RIGHT.
Chapter II.
PERFORMING RIGHT.
Chapter III.
INFRINGEMENT AND REMEDIES.
Chapter IV.
MUSICAL COPYRIGHT.
Chapter V.
INTERNATIONAL AND COLONIAL COPYRIGHT.

"The Law of Copyright for Actor and Composer," by Albert A. Strong, LL.B., solicitor, author of "Dramatic and Musical Law" ("The Era" office), seems to be the one compendious and indispensable authority on the subject, as vexed as "the Bermoothes" and as tortuous as a Chancery suit, that has long been wanted. It is in every essential a text book for the perplexed layman, and no solicitor or barrister worth his salt ought to think of taking or appearing in "proceedings" without consulting its pages. It must suffice, after what has been said, to state little more than that the contents include five chapters respectively named "Copyright as Opposed to Performing Right," "Performing Right," "Infringement and Remedies," "Musical Copyright," and "International and Colonial Copyright." The work, for all its precise authority, is not dry reading. The statutes, with the elucidatory notes, necessarily impose a task on the reader which takes some tackling, but they had to be there. The cases adduced, however, are full of interest. Certain of them might fitly find a place in the romance of copyright. There was the fight of Charles Reade with George Conquest over "It's Never Too Late to Mend," for instance, and the equally interesting conflict of Mr. J. A. Cave with Chatterton over "The Wandering Jew." The latter was a famous battle. Chatterton took it to the House of Lords, and was finally beaten, to the unspeakable relief of Mr. Cave, who is never weary of relating the story. Had the result been otherwise, it would have meant his ruin. I well remember meeting him on the day of his victory and "crashing a cup with him" in honour of the same. "The Law of Copyright" is dedicated to Mr. A. W. Pinero.—Sportsman, July 31st, 1901.

Copyright confusion is, like the poor, always with us, and as it seems likely to remain so until at least the crack of doom, it were well for all concerned, or likely to be concerned, to take immediate steps to secure a copy of Mr. Albert A. Strong's new work entitled "The Law of Copyright." Mr. Strong is already favourably known to the profession for his text-book on "Dramatic and Musical Law," which, like his latest production, is published at "The Era" Office. "The Law of Copyright for Actor and Composer" essays to make clear to the non-legal mind what is—or, in some cases, what probably is—the law as to musical and dramatic copyright. The chapters on the Berne Convention and on the Chase Act, passed by the United States Congress last March, are full of interest.—Referee, July 28th, 1901.

Mr. A. A. Strong has published a book on "The Law of Copyright for Actor and Composer," which should be in the hands of everyone who is obliged to know about this perplexing subject. Dramatic copyright in England is in a particularly unsatisfactory state, and it is much to be hoped that ere long some more rational method of securing protection for a play may be devised than the slovenly and sometimes costly "production for copyright purposes," which is at present required.—St. James's Gazette, Aug. 2nd, 1901.

PROVINCIAL THEATRICALS.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENTS.)

ABERDEEN.—HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE.—Managing Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. C. Cavanah.—The stage is occupied this week by the Aberdeen Amateur Opera Company, who opened with Faust. The other pieces for the week were Il Trovatore and Maritana.

PALACE THEATRE, LIMITED.—General Manager, Mr. Ernest Sheldon.—Mr. Charles Vandyke's troupe of pantomimists appear in a clever and amusing farce, Sensations; and an entertaining turn is provided by the Two Bees. The Sisters Judge, with their wonderful cockatoos, parrots, and macaws, give a novel and attractive exhibition; and the musical act by the Romaine Trio is also highly popular. Mr. Will Godwin contributes an acceptable turn; and Maxwell and Francis, comedians and vocalists, are delightfully sprightly and piquant. Among the other successful artistes are Mr. Herbert Le Martine, vocalist and dancer; Miss Lilian Rigby, a clever mimic and dancer; and Mr. O. H. Kurtz, a remarkably dexterous juggler.

ABERTILLERY.—THEATRE METROPOLE.—Lessees, Messrs. Arthur Carlton and Sam Duckworth; General and Resident Manager, Mr. Geo. W. Ventom.—Mr. Wm. A. Armour's company appeared here on Monday, in What a Woman Did. Mr. A. Armour's reading of Conrad De L'Orme was powerful; Mr. Percy E. Wright did equally well in the rôle of Raffaelle Duroe; Mr. Will Simpson was capable as Fritz; Mr. Fred Rignold made a capital Peter Pippin; and Mr. J. Stewart was good as Piton. Miss Dora Price deserved the enthusiastic reception accorded her; Miss Alice Raynor scored as La Papillon; and Miss Norah Wayllett submitted a fine portrayal of Manette.

ACCRINGTON.—PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. J. B. Ormerod; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. E. Barnes.—On Monday Messrs. Dottridge and Longden's Co. opened here with The Midnight Mail. A very good performance of Harry Steyne was given by George Harvard; Leonard Royle was cleverly depicted by Edward Forbes; Mr. Arthur Gilroy must be complimented on his representation of Hassan Padisha. Another good performance was given by Fred Evison as Billy Brewer; Mary Steyne was excellently portrayed by Miss Ada Oakley; and Miss Mildred Carr made an ideal Nancy Brewer.

THE NEW HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Wilmot, Potter, Vandy, and Weisker; Director, Fred Wilmot.—On Monday night the New Hippodrome opened under new management with a very good bill. It includes The Waldrons in their screaming absurdity The Silly Burglar; Carne Curre and his dog; Tom O'Neil in club swinging, boxing, and wrestling; Herbert Maden, descriptive vocalist; J. H. McCann, comedian and roller skate dancer; Young and Mac; Walter King, and the Carina Sisters, a really smart musical turn.

ALDERSHOT.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Clarence Sounes; Resident-Manager, Mr. G. E. Williams.—Three Little Maids is again being presented to Aldershot theatregoers, on this occasion by Mr. Charles Macdona's company. The musical play is tastefully staged, and the performance throughout is made bright by excellent dressing, whilst the musical portion is cleverly negotiated. The company is talented, the principals of which are:—Misses Vera Vallis, Nellie Groves, Mabel Lavelle, Mdme. Ilma Norina, Laura Wright, N. Cunningham, Gertrude Luiche, Mabel Sarle, Grace Hardy; Messrs. Arthur Longley, Edgar Farelles, W. Piercy Morgan, Gus Oxley, and M. Jules Charmettes; whilst there is a large number of ladies and gentlemen who assist in minor parts and the choruses.

ALTRINCHAM.—NEW PAVILION OF VARIETIES.—Proprietors, Messrs. Budd, Howe, and Taylor; Acting-Manager, Mr. Arthur Gilman. This week a change from the ordinary run of variety has been made by the engagement of Miss Winifred Chalmers's company in the drama, A Woman's Revenge. Miss Chalmers gives a fine delineation of Mary Lonsdale; and the success of the piece is largely due to the spirited acting of Mr. Henry L. Osmond. Mr. Dunlop Stewart makes a good heavy man; and several songs are rendered in good style by Miss Mabel Hall. On Friday and Saturday, East Lynne was presented.

ARBROATH.—NEW PUBLIC HALL.—Hamilton's Excursions are here for the week. On Monday a large audience enjoyed "A Trip Round the World," under the able guidance of Mr. Claude Howell. A variety entertainment is also provided, including songs, sand dances, a fine exhibition of rope walking, and the Sisters Urma, trapeze artistes.

ASHTON-UNDER-LYNE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr. Chas. Revill; Acting-Manager, Mr. Armstrong Fairbairn.—A third pantomime, Dick Whittington and His Cat, is being presented by Messrs. Griffin and Drake's Company. Miss Lily Jackson is an ideal Dick Whittington, and she sings and dances with great charm. She is ably seconded by Miss Emmie Hands as Alice, Dick's sweetheart. There are numerous other ladies who contribute to the vocal, terpsichorean, and comedy features of the pantomime. The chief fun-makers are Mr. Will Dennis as Idle Jack, Mr. Ben Ford as Alderman Fitzwarren, Mr. Bert Allen as Capt. Seabreeze, Mr. E. Jazon as the Emperor of Morocco, and Mr. Jack Simpson as the cat. The specialities deserve special mention, including the performances of Mdlle. Luba de Sarema, with her new sensation "Transkaukasia" Sports, from the Far East. The Estos introduce a pleasing speciality, and Jazon and White's performance attracts attention. A good feature is a bevy of Yorkshire mill lasses; the Sisters Brenton do some sand and skipping-rope dances, and the Sisters Grosvenor, operatic vocalists, furnish some good music.

HIPPODROME.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. C. Revill; Director of Entertainments, Mr. F. Wilmot; Acting-Manager, Mr. L. Campkin.—There is plenty of variety in the programme at the Hippodrome this week. The popular singing comedians, Verno and Voyce, elicited much applause; Essman, the juggler, is remarkably expert; Lozelle scores in his difficult gymnastic feats; the Barlows, high-class duettists, are very successful. Other "turns" of a more or less interesting kind are the Ashers (Agnes and Little Mike), in their refined act, The Dude and the Soubrette; J. H. Harris, Scotch comedian; and Vassey and Ramsey, comedians and dancers. The Bioscope pictures are very diverting.

EMPIRE HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Sons; Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy B. Broadhead; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Leech.—The programme this week includes Fred and Maude Vypond, society entertainers, in their latest little drawing-room play, The Honeymoon; Harry Pleon, assisted by Tom Kent, introduces a racing absurdity, entitled How to make a Book, which is extremely funny; the acrobatic marvels, Donatos, are remarkably expert leg artists; the famous animal mimic, Leo Tell, introduces some new and funny ideas. Other artistes, whose versatile abilities are well appreciated, are Rem Lang, in his original burlesque act; Henrietta, Carr and Rose, in an original act, Their First Quarrel; the Sisters Russell, humorous duettists; Cyrus Dare, refined comedian; and the Mozondos, the barrel jumpers and clever acrobats. The Cinematograph pictures have prominence in the programme.

ATTERCLIFFE.—THEATRE ROYAL, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. Claude Seaton.—Mr. Gus Levaine's pantomime, Babes in the Wood, is drawing crowded houses here this week. It is a bright, merry show, full of life and humour from start to finish. Robin Hood finds an able exponent in Miss Lily Ennis, who makes a dashing outlaw; Miss Beatrice Wilson, as Maid Marion, gives a good performance; Miss Frances Wells, as Fairy Snowdrop, is most attractive, singing her songs in good style; Allan-a-Dale and Marjory Daw are entrusted to Miss Annie Webster and Miss Florrie Anderson, who make the most of their opportunity; the Babes are nicely played by the Misses Ivy and Daisy Rochefort; Mr. Will Cutler is humorous as Baron Badlot; Mr. Harry Taylor is responsible for much fun as Friar Tuck; Mr. Harry Levaine is highly amusing as Dame Durden, and Mr. Dave Anderson and Mr. Gus Granville as the Ruffians, Snatcher and Sneaker, cause much laughter by their broad comedy. Specialities are introduced by the Two Zemblas, acrobats and jugglers, Leon and Leoni, musical experts; the Rhondda Glee Party; Vulvo, chapeaugraphist; the Rizonis, paper manipulators; and the Sylvan Quartet of Lady Dancers. An old-fashioned harlequinade terminates a good all-round show.

PALACE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Mr. T. Allan Edwards; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Lacy Lyne; Assistant-Manager, Mr. J. Gibbons.—The Brothers Ashley, who top the bill this week, give an amusing boxing sketch, entitled Next Please, in which they are assisted by Mr. W. Barnes and Mr. Frank Yapp. Walter Wallis's songs are provocative of hearty laughter; an excellent musical turn is provided by the "Seebolds" (Shack and Bertha); Sleath and Aldin score a success with their musical scene, Dashing Duval; Frank Hope, as a trick cyclist, is clever; Jimson's performing dogs show great skill; and Lue Lord is a young comedian and dancer of great promise.

AYR.—NEW GAIETY THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry W. Day.—On Monday, Mr. Chas. Macdona's company opened a three nights' engagement with A Chinese Honeymoon. Miss Cissy Scofield as Fi-Fi, the nimble little waitress, delighted her audience. Mr. George P. Ascot, as Mr. Pineapple, acted his part with a true appreciation of what was wanted in such a character. The Emperor Hang Chow was in the capable hands of Mr. Lester Carey, and his Lord Chancellor and Lord High Admiral were well played by Mr. Percy Stephens and Mr. Tom Birch. The Tom Hatherton of Mr. H. Welchman was most commendable. Miss Mable Carlton played the part of Mrs. Pineapple with vivacity and grace, and was well seconded by Miss Marel Florence and Miss Beatrice Charle as the bridesmaids. Miss Jule St. George was most effective as Mrs. Brown. Mr. Chas. Frohman's company, in Sherlock Holmes is billed to appear on the last three nights of this week.

BACUP.—NEW COURT THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Frank Denman-Wood; Acting-Manager, Mr. Richard Nightingale.—Mr. W. H. Hallatt's company is appearing here this week with Two Little Sailor Boys. Miss May Day and Miss Ethel Frances Greene impersonate the Two Little Sailor Boys admirably; Mr. W. H. Sams plays the part of Commander Noel Tregarthen with much success; Miss Blanche Steele as Lola Grey, alias Lola Yorke, presents this villainous character in a sufficiently forcible manner; while the gentle womanly qualities of Mildred Grey are cleverly played by Miss Mabel Scudamore; Miss Lizzie Chambers is archness itself as Lucy Wilson. The fun of the evening is supplied by Mr. Oscar Power as Jack Jolly; and Mr. Tom E. Sinclair as Ben Baxter; Mr. Leonard Booker as Lieutenant Richard Redstone is a sufficiently convincing villain, and Mr. Ambrose Horton as Jim Royston, a burglar, is most successful; Mr. W. H. Hallatt, in the small part of Captain Tom Yorke, scores heavily. Mention should also be made of Mr. George Cecil Murray as Admiral Grey, and Mr. George Drew as Inspector Johnson.

BARROW-IN-FURNESS.—ROYALTY THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Stone.—Mr. Jas Kiddie's pantomime, Cinderella, is here. Hilario is commendably taken by Mr. William Verto; and the Malicio of Mr. J. H. Hawtry is also very good. The Sunbeam of Miss Rose Pareezer is nicely done; the Baron is adequately played by Mr. Will Saunders; and the two sisters are amusingly represented by Messrs. H. C. Lovell and Fred Denman respectively. Pimples, as played by Mr. Charles Harvey, is always to the fore; and Miss Florence Watson, as the heroine, wins every sympathy. Madamoiselle De Rose, as Prince Perfect, shows excellent taste; and Miss Susie Rowan looks and sings well as Dandini.

TIVOLI.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Signor Pepi; Stage-Manager, Mr. Whiting.—Austin and Hartley top the bill here this week, their barrel jumping being really marvellous. Fred Lloyd and company, in the humorous sketch, The Blind Spinster, evoke roars of laughter. A novel turn is given by the Cirnocs, who show how the handcuffs and box tricks are done. The Les Bollingers produce clever pictures with pieces of rag upon a screen; Alicea Mayne has a fine soprano voice; Chas. Johnson, the black diamond, is a good turn; and Morris Bros. are smart comedians.

BATH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Egbert Lewis; Acting-Manager, Mr. Lewis A. A. Long.—The theatre remained closed the first three nights of the week in anticipation of the eagerly looked-for visit of Sir Henry Irving and his company, which commenced on Thursday, when Waterloo and The Bells formed the opening attraction. The booking is phenomenal.

PALACE THEATRE.—Proprietor Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. W. Trussell.—Claiming a foremost position in the current bill here come the Royal Zerbinis, whose musical electrical scena, In Fairyland, is much enjoyed. The Sarnthalers, national singers and dancers, are very popular; Miss Raffin's performing monkeys are on a return visit; Miss Janet Reynolds, who has formerly been seen in musical comedy locally, wins further laurels in her new surroundings by her sweet singing of ballads; Henriot and Sauvion, burlesque conjurors, get plenty of fun out of their business; Vandinoff's lightning painting of floral and landscape panels, is an artistic and smart effort; Rosie Cass, comedienne, also appears with success; and H. J. Kisbey, in his Call Boy interlude, makes a hit by a really smart coon dance.

BEDFORD.—ROYAL COUNTY THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. E. Graham-Falcon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Walter R. Wilson.—This week the boards are occupied by Mr. Howard Hinton's company in the pantomime Dick Whittington. The production is under the careful supervision of Mr. H. C. Clements. Miss Kitty Phelps makes a hit as Dick, her dashing style and the spirited manner in which she sings, being greatly to the liking of the audience; and Miss Daisy Clements quickly instals herself a prime favourite, this being her second visit to Bedford. Vivacious and handsome, she throws herself with evident enjoyment into the rôle of Alice Fitzwarren. Miss Gracie Clements, as the Fairy Goodwill, is quite a success. Another clever artiste is Miss Maud Leonard, whose singing of "The Old Bull and Bush," fairly captivates the patrons of the theatre. Screamingly funny are the antics of the Bowery Boys; Mr. Harry Rennior, as Idle Jack, possesses a humorous style; the Emperor of Morocco finds a stately representative in Mr. H. H. Hastings; Miss Kathleen Mervyn as Princess Charming quite justifies her description. Mr. Harry Cardoe deserves great praise for his "a-mewsing" representation of Tibby, the cat. The humour is also well sustained by Mr. Tom R. Seymour as Captain Bunting, Mr. Steve Cook as Mary Ann, and Mr. Mount Stephens as Alderman Fitzwarren.

CORN EXCHANGE.—At this house of amusement a large audience assembled on Monday to witness Dr. Seaton's animated photographs, and numerous other items of a well varied entertainment.

BELFAST.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred W. Warden; Acting-Manager, Mr. Jas. McCann; Assistant Acting-Manager, Mr. Wilfred Stanford.—This week The Belle of New York is being presented by Mr. Ben Greet's No. 1 Company. In the title-rôle Miss Daisy Lake is charming, her singing being good. A delightfully vivacious impersonation of Fifi is presented by Miss Ada Elliston; as Ichabod Bronson Mr. Harry A. Meymott is decidedly amusing; and a clever character sketch of the polite lunatic is furnished by Mr. Walter Emro. As Blinky Bill Mr. Norrice Holmes contributes to the success by his remarkable whistling. A charming impersonation of Cora Angelique is submitted by Miss Louie Codman, her singing and dancing being exceedingly meritorious. Mr. Harold Wardroper as Harry Bronson succeeds admirably, especially in his vocal efforts with Miss Ada Elliston. Praise must be accorded Miss Florence Hersee for her happy and diverting assumptions of Mamie and Kissie Fitzgarter, her dancing being first-class. Satisfactory impersonations of Snifkins and Kenneth Mugg are furnished by Messrs. Colin M. Johnston and Bert Danson; and the rôles of the Portuguese Twins are humorously treated by Messrs. Lionel Yeoman and R. L. Cody.

PALACE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred W. Warden; Acting-Manager, Mr. John P. Beardmore.—The Austins head the bill, and these clever comedians and jugglers have been very successful with their smart act. Wal Pink and company appear in one of their diverting sketches, entitled, Uncle's Wife; and the Boccaccio Troupe of Italian vocalists and instrumentalists have made a big hit, the performance of Signor Francia, the celebrated mandolinist, being most artistic. The cultured vocalism of Dahl has been accorded a good reception; and Barrington is an eccentric pianist of considerable talent. Belloni's wonderfully trained cockatoos furnish an interesting performance. Also included in the programme are Miss Sybil Montague, a charming balladist; and Miss Hettie Leo, comedienne.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES, LIMITED.—General Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles Brock.—The Jackson Family, who head the bill, have been most successful with their musical entertainment, their selections on the violin, harp, flute, &c., being remarkably clever. Miss Florrie Gallimore has made a big hit with her vivacious rendering of several catchy songs; the sweet and cultured singing of the Sisters Jonghmans has delighted all; and Mr. Barney Vox, who is undoubtedly one of the best ventriloquists before the public, has been accorded a hearty reception. Geoffrey and Benson appear in their amusing sketch, Spoofed, which has created much amusement. Frazer and Mac, a capital duo, take immensely; as does Mr. Arthur Lennard, who concludes to-night his successful two weeks' engagement. Also appearing are Miss Daisy Ray, coon singer; and Miss Lizzie Fletcher, comedienne.

NEW ALHAMBRA THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—General Manager, Mr. Henry T. Downs.—The leading attraction here is the startling acrobatic performance of Les Francois, their marvellous feats being hailed with enthusiasm. The ventriloquial act by Mr. David Poole is both novel and attractive; and the second sight performance by the Steens has certainly amazed the crowds. Weisker Brothers' Bioscope provides some new and interesting pictures this week. Miss Flo Atkins, described as the champion lady concertinist, has strong claims to the title, her selections so capably rendered being exceptionally clever. Mr. Ted White, "the long comedian," is decidedly funny; also appearing are Miss Edith Sylvester in her unique and decidedly smart speciality act; Miss Marion Edwards, a very clever comedienne; and Miss K. Corrie, comedienne. A word of praise is due to the energetic manager of this hall, Mr. Henry T. Downs, for his indefatigable efforts in the interests of his many patrons.

BILSTON.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr. H. Battersby.—Mr. John Wainwright and his company are here in It's Never Too Late to Mend. The part of Tom Robinson has the right exponent in Mr. Wainwright himself. Mr. Wilfred Graham's George Fielding proves a most meritorious performance. Mr. Fred Owen puts plenty of spirit into the part of Jackey. Mr. Charles F. Johnson appears as the serious Rev. Francis Eden; Mr. Henry Lee as the rascally Peter Crawley; Miss Kate Randolph as the distracted Susan Merton; and Miss Millie Wilton as the poor waif Josephs, each artiste playing carefully and consistently. Others who give a good account of themselves are Messrs. W. Harmour and L. Simpson as the bushrangers; Mr. Edwin Davis as Isaac Levi, the Jew; Mr. W. R. Wilson as Governor Hawes; Mr. Harold Webb as Meadows; Mr. Charles Carlton as William Fielding; and Mr. W. R. Weldon as Susan's father.

BIRKENHEAD.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr. W. W. Kelly; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles Pell.—Mr. W. W. Kelly, having retired from the lesseeship of the Metropole, has wisely concentrated his attention on the management of the Royal, at which house on Monday his own company appeared in A Royal Divorce. It is at all times a pleasure to witness the charming and artistic rendering of the Empress Josephine by Miss Edith Cole. On the present occasion she is admirably supported by Mr. Frank Lister, who portrays the character of Napoleon with undoubted ability and incisiveness. The wily old diplomat, Talleyrand, is finely played by Mr. H. Gray Dolby. Miss Ethel Murray does remarkably well in the rather uphill part of Marie Louise. Miss Helen Richmond is a captivating Stephanie. Mr. Cecil De Gue plays the Marquis de Beaumont with finish and General Augereau is well represented by Mr. Alfred Glenville. The humour of the piece is ably sustained by Mr. Dennis Bryan as Grimaud, and the play is staged with that completeness of detail that characterises all Mr. Kelly's productions.

ARGYLE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Manager, Mr. D. J. Clarke.—Mr. Fred Harcourt, an expert magician, is presenting his bewildering mystery, entitled "Leveto," with telling effect, and in conjunction with a clever display of legerdemain supplies a most attractive turn. Mr. John Alexander and his pantomime company, in an entertaining sketch, entitled Troubles of a Tourist, are cordially received, and Mr. G. W. Hunter, an excellent comedian and raconteur, is on a welcome return visit. Illustrated songs are well represented by Miss Lilian Warren; Miss Helen Charles is a contralto vocalist of ability; the Karno troupe are favourites with a funny sketch; and Miss Lottie Siegenberg is a prominent favourite in a quick-change musical sketch. An excellent company also includes Mr. J. H. Hurst, a capital vocal entertainer; Oakdene, a smart ventriloquist; and Mr. Charles Ridgwell, character comedian.

BIRMINGHAM.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing Director, Mr. Tom B. Davis; Acting-Manager, Mr. Philip Rodway.—The Babes in the Wood, which was fully noticed in our last week's issue, is now in its ninth week, and meets with undiminished patronage.

PRINCE OF WALES'S THEATRE.—Lessees, Messrs. Rodgers, Limited; Manager, Mr. J. F. Graham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Henry Johnston.—The Forty Thieves, which is enjoying the most liberal favour, is noticed in another column.

GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. J. W. Turner; Manager, Mr. Victor Turner.—Dick Whittington concludes its highly-successful three weeks' run to-night (Saturday), when the members of Mr. J. F. Elliston's company will, peradventure, get a merry "send off." The Foys (including Mr. Tom Foy), Mr. Bert Byrne, Mr. Will Musgrave, Miss Ethel Newman, Miss Clara Reid, Miss Nelly Dade, and Mr. Charles Goff, have been very popular in their parts, their efforts being appreciated in the most liberal spirit.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Lester Collingwood.—Dick Whittington comes under notice elsewhere in our columns.

METROPOLE THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Walter Melville; Resident-Manager, Mr. J. Hindle Taylor.—The Female Swindler has been transferred hither from its Aston environment, and prospers exceedingly.

CARLTON THEATRE, SALTLEY.—Owner and Manager, Mr. Arthur Carlton; Resident-Manager, Mr. Ben Sydney.—Greed of Gold is swaying the emotions of good Carltonians with its clever mechanical properties and dramatic situations. Mr. T. Morton Powell's company does excellent work, and Mr. B. Fox, as the dumb man, otherwise Tom Welstead, elicits stentorian cheers by his clever acting. Mr. Carthage Caldcleugh, as Harry Hood, excites horror by his well acted schemes, and affords an effective contrast to the manly and vigorous bearing of Mr. W. Heilbron as the hero, Arthur Erroll. Miss A. Verity as the heroine, Dora, wins much favour; and Mr. W. M. Cameron, Mr. H. Creamer, and Miss Winnie Donovan are successful in the comic rôles.

THEATRE ROYAL, ASTON.—Lessee, Mr. Charles Barnard; Manager, Mr. Dan Barnard.—Defending His Honour, in which Messrs. Carson and Granville's company is successfully engaged, has met with cordial patronage here this week. Mr. John Davidson has gained enthusiastic cheers for his telling study of the hero, Douglas Bryce; Mr. Clifton Boyne acts the evil life of Stephen Grald with much effect; Miss F. Melrose-Millett appears as the heroine, Ethel Bryce, with the utmost charm and success; and Mr. Charles H. Herbert as George Duncan, Mr. Thompson Carruthers as David Peller, Mrs. Edmond Lyons as Mrs. Version, and Miss Gwendoline Talbot as Nurse Sugden distinguish themselves. The humorous rôles are rendered in a smart manner by Mr. Terry Davis, Mr. Kenneth Black, jun., and Miss Jessie Glenn.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Resident-Manager, Mr. W. H. Matcham.—Miss Vesta Tilley is causing quite a furore here this week, singing four songs at each performance with her accustomed artistic finish. Tom Edwards is a most entertaining ventriloquist. The long programme also includes the names of the Lumars, Mersano, Conway and Leland, George Bohee, Chas. Adams, Amba Austa, and the Aurora Troupe.

GAIETY THEATRE.—General-Manager, Mr. Albert Bushell.—That quaint comedian, Sam Mayo, is making a deep impression here. Cheevers and Kennedy, in their quick-change turn, are applauded. The Sisters Aindow have a smart musical entertainment; and the Darrell Trio remain for another week. As a pianiste, Leslie Harris is expert; Harry Coate's excellent voice is heard to advantage; the Bros. Lloddge and the Three De Veres are smart acrobatic comedians.

HIPPODROME, Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford.—Tarro Myaki gives his display of wrestling here to crowded houses; and a sketch, Packing Up, in which Edmund Campbell appears, is amusing. Meier and Mora, Brinn; Vivian Dell, dansense; Mons Valoni, juggler; Gus Harris, Hebrew delineator; Arthur Royd, tenor; and Harry Allister, in his clever character impersonations, all win loud applause.

BORDESLEY PALACE.—Resident-Manager, Mr. George Foster.—The Agoust Family, in their humorous juggling performance, are loudly applauded, as also is the bar act of the Bros. Artois. Alice Yorke and Royston Keith have a really smart duologue, A Yacht for Sale. The Leslie Bros., in their "Music Mad" scena, are entertaining; the MacGovern Quartette gain great popularity by their novel dancing; Little Uno, the Sakers, and Will Haines, are excellent comedians; and Vernando is highly amusing with his ventriloqual entertainment.

CURZON HALL.—Hamilton's Excursions continues to attract large and appreciative audiences here. Will Souls, a local laughing comedian, has been added to the variety company.

BLACKBURN.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor, Mr. Harry Yorke; Business-Manager, Mr. Reginald Yorke.—The evergreen Uncle Tom's Cabin, under the direction of Mr. John Tully, pays a visit here this week. Mr. J. Tully enacts the part of Phineas Fletcher; Uncle Tom is well sustained by Mr. William Taylor; Miss Edith Blanche undertakes the dual rôle of Eliza and Cassy with great ability; and Miss Kitty Wood is an effective Topsy.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. E. H. Page.—Miss Marie Dagmar's company pays a return visit this week in A Life's Revenge. Mr. Fred Somerfield gives an excellent rendering of the villainous Prince Boris Strogoroff; Mr. Walter Roberts makes an excellent Michael Orloff; the Princess Vanda Ivyala is played by Miss Amy Ellam in a manner which fully sustains her reputation; and the adventuress, Marcia Vittoria, is ably acted by Miss L. Moncton. The comedy is in the hands of Mr. Charles E. Warne and Miss Maudie Grayson, who keep the audience well amused.

PALACE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. F. Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Will Murray; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry Drury.—The top of the bill this week is filled by the Tom Davis Trio, in the sensational act Whirling the Whirl. Ginaro gives an excellent exhibition of Japanese juggling. Martinetti and Grossi in their novelty act afford great satisfaction; A. Ba Bee's pictorial postcard album is a pretty and effective turn; and Signor and Madame Prosper Benn, the Sisters Petram, Prof. Hulbert, Monsieur de Lil, and the Harris L. Bell and Lily Pearl company all contribute their share to a programme of more than average excellence.

BLACKPOOL.—HER MAJESTY'S OPERA HOUSE.—General-Manager, Mr. J. R. Haddlestone.—At Cripple Creek is the title of a play submitted here this week by Miss Ida Molesworth and Mr. Mark Blow's company. Miss Emilie Polini plays with marked ability the rôle of Ann Marbury; and Miss Daisy Carlton contributes a very pleasing embodiment of Maggie Mason. Mr. Charles D. Pitt is in every way successful as Manuel Alvarez; Martin Mason has a capable exponent in Mr. Walter Thornton; Mr. Mark Blow plays well as Joe Mayfield; and Mr. Reginald Harley-West appears as Wahketah. Under Two Flags was down for Friday night.

GRAND THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. T. Sergenson.—The original Leopolds are here this week in New Frivolity, and their wonderful acrobatic feats are much enjoyed. A very clever eccentric dance is contributed by Mr. Barry Lupino.

PALACE.—General-Manager, Mr. G. H. Harrop; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Waller.—Harry Ford tops the hill here this week; then comes Cord's and Buffalo, rope spinners and lariat manipulators; Charles Danton, an able comedian; Gertie Ganton, in an amusing monologue; the Glenroy Troupe, dancers; the Autos, in a musical act; the Venola Bros., gymnasts; Brett and Orford, comedians; and Joad Heteb, conjurer.

BOLTON.—THEATRE ROYAL, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. F. Elliston; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles Hermann.—The first visit to Bolton of the charming musical comedy, The Earl and The Girl, has this week drawn large audiences to the Royal. The company presenting it is Mr. William Greet's. Mr. Reginald Switz in make-up and manner as Jim Cheese looked the dog trainer to the life, and by his odd style and dry humour as the Earl of Stoke repeatedly brought down the house. Mr. Alex Fraser plays in a bright and breezy style the character of Dick Wargrave, and his song, "My Cosy Corner Girl," was deservedly encored. Mr. Haddon Cave was good as the Hon. Crewe Boodle, and his two songs, "Thou, My Listening Rose" and "The Grenadiers," have been well received. Mr. H. B. Brandreth was passionate and revengeful as A. Bunker Bliss, the American uncle; Mr. Frank W. Cane gave a crisp impersonation of the smart American lawyer, Downham; Mr. W. T. Hybert was very amusing as the Hebrew solicitor, Mr. Talk; Miss Mary Fraser charmed everyone by her delightful performance as Elphin Haye, and gained a well earned encore for her song, "In Zanzibar"; Miss Cynthia Carey played with artless humour in the part of 'Liza Shoddham; Miss Maud Adams, as Mrs. Shimmering Black, displayed much energy and emphasis; Miss Maud Ashton was a charming Daisy Fallowfield, and Miss Mary Morison looked every inch the part of Miss Virginia Bliss. The friends of Crewe Boodle and the ladies of his party had competent representatives.

GRAND THEATRE, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. F. Elliston; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry Kenyon.—Mr. Elliston's pantomime of Cinderella finishes to-day its second and last week of a successful run.

OHMY'S CIRCUS AND HIPPODROME.—The programme here comprises the John Fredericks troupe of lady and gentlemen gymnasts; Mdlle. Angelini, lady juggler; Alfrano, on the flying rings; the Bros. France, acrobats; Miss Santane, equestrienne; and Claude Ohmy; the Sloan Family, and the rest of Mr. Ohmy's circus company.

BOSCOMBE.—GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. F. Mouillot; Manager, Mr. Rowland Stewart.—Mr. William Greet's company is presenting Lucky Durham here this week. Mr. William F. Grant's impersonation of the title-rôle is talented and forceful; Mr. Henry de Solla gives a really excellent rendering of Lord Mountfallon; and Mr. Daniel McCarthy's Richard Vallerton is a praiseworthy piece of work; Mr. Paul Belmore is capital as the Hon. Reginald Steighton; and Mr. A. Gambier Melford's Ben Verstein is an amusing little sketch. The part of Helen Vallerton finds a delightful exponent in Miss Molly Pearson; Miss Jessie Winter is excellent as the Hon. Margaret Steighton; Miss Louisa Gourlay does well as Mrs. Durham; Miss Emily Levittez submits an effective rendering of Lady Mountfallon; and Miss Gertrude Robbins makes a good impression as the Duchess of Hovecourt.

BOURNEMOUTH.—THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole proprietors, David Allen and Son; Sole Lessee, Mr. Mouillot; Manager, Mr. Rowland Stewart.—Mr. and Mrs. F. R. Benson's Shakespearean company commenced their second week here on Monday, when Romeo and Juliet was presented. The ability of Mr. F. R. Benson in the part of Romeo is admitted and too well known to need further comment. That finished actor, Mr. Cyril Keightley, played Mercutio with delightful ease. Other excellent studies were the Capulet of Mr. H. O. Nicholson, the Tybalt of Mr. B. A. Pittar, the Peter of Mr. G. R. Weir, and the Friar Laurence of Mr. Arthur Whitby. Mrs. Benson captivated the audience by her charming impersonation of Juliet, and was most ably assisted by Miss Alice Arden as the Nurse, and Miss C. Saumarez as Lady Capulet. Other productions this week are Macbeth, The Tempest, and The Rivals.

BRADFORD.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr. John Hart; General Manager, Mr. T. F. Doyle; Acting-Manager, Mr. F. Pemberton. Big audiences continue to patronise Mr. Hart's charming pantomime Cinders, in which there is not a dull moment; the laughter is continuous, and great applause greets the magnificent spectacular effects.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Francis Laidler; Acting-Manager, Mr. N. Hepworth. Life's Sweetest Sins, a drama of thrilling interest, was presented here on Monday by Mr. T. Arthur Jones and his capable company. The acting is good all round, and a feature of the production is the sinking of a sub-marine, a scene which appeals strongly to the sensation loving portion of the audience. Mr. Jones, in convincing manner, plays the part of the hero, Captain Manston, and Miss Madge Morley gives a finished performance of the character of the heroine Doreen. The accomplished old villain of the story, Dr. Colbrooke, is represented with marked effect by Mr. Oswald Douglas; his daughter Fay being also an excellent effort on the part of Miss Amy Rudd. In the part of Ernie Mr. C. Sewel is good, and capital comic relief is afforded by Mr. F. Russell in the part of Bob, and Miss Sara Dudley as Bess.

EMPIRE.—Moss Empires, Limited; Resident-Manager, Mr. J. J. Kelly.—The Japanese Guards, eleven smart young ladies, whose drilling is briskly and cleverly accomplished, provide a novel turn here. Tom Stuart is a good mimic and actor of ability. There is some capital mimicry and ventriloquism provided by James's humorous quartette of strolling players, and The Three Victorias form an excellent trio of burlesque singers and dancers. Belle Davis and her Pickchick Actors, who are exceedingly droll, and very smart dancers, are applauded heartily. An amusing turn is provided by Peppo's trained monkeys. The musical entertainment given by Virto and his daughter Irene is received with well deserved favour. Signor and Madam Borelli reappear in their clever vocal entertainment with all their old success, and Hermann Melot, the clever conjurer, is again perplexing audiences here.

PALACE THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. F. Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. J. W. Berry.—There is a fine exhibition of muscular training in the clever gymnastic act given here by The Four Cliftons. The American Song Illustrations by Martine and Son are received with favour. Susie and Protti provide good speciality dancing. Hal Forde's comic songs are acceptably rendered. With bewitching grace Miss Lily Black, of recent pantomime fame here, delights her admirers as a comedienne. There is much excellent burlesque in the turn by The Sivronis, viz., Opera Gone Mad. The Seddons entertain with clever juggling and comedy. Geo. Bendon's coon songs are rendered with vigour. George Penn poses as a raconteur with a little eccentricity in a musical way, and Raymond's Biotableaux provides an entertaining half hour.

ST. GEORGE'S HALL.—Manager, Mr. S. H. Carter.—Close upon three thousand people are crowding the vast hall nightly to witness the handcuff feats by Harry Houdini, and the excitement as the tests proceed is intense. All sorts of manacles are brought into use, but every effort to secure Houdini fails. There is a clever variety company in addition to support the "Handcuff King," namely, Sadie Seymour, comedienne; The Herald Comedy Four; The Sisters Leoni, duettists; Martin Conway, comedian; Rennie, ventriloquist; Yetta, wire walker; Olive Watts, comedienne; together with the bioscope.

BRIGHTON.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. H. Cecil Beryl; Assistant-Man comedienne; Starr and Jerome, speciality vocalists and dancers; Ida Ross, comedienne and Tyrolean vocalist; and Fred Earle, comedian; the entertainment concluding with some new animated pictures.

PALACE.—Managing-Directors, Messrs. Livermore Bros.; Resident-Manager, Mr. Horace Livermore; Secretary, Mr. Welchman.—There is a strong company here, headed by Burke, Moller, and Teller, in their amusing musical farce, The Professor and his Pupils. Lind, Swedish artiste, presents a very clever turn of dancing, &c.; J. W. Rickaby, comedian, is appreciated; the Hudson-Powell troupe of five acrobats are expert in their line; Carl and Carr are amusing comedians; Ruby Bijou is a pleasing dancer, &c.; Louis Lavater's canine Kilties band is novel and interesting; Clorinda Thutrell sings well; "K. and K." have a good eccentric musical speciality; Fred Balham, comedian, obtains applause; and a new set of Vernon's animated photographs concludes a good entertainment.

BROMLEY. — LYRIC THEATRE. — Lessee, Mr. Arthur Carlton; Resident-Manager, Mr. F. B. Woolstenhulme.—On Thursday, Friday and Saturday of last week, Mr. J. F. Buckley's No. 1 company presented The New Clown. Mr. Frank Stanmore, in the title-rôle, gave a capital performance; Mr. W. T. Elworthy's impersonation of the character of Thomas Barker, was well conceived; and Mr. G. H. Suazelle was quite a typical showman in the part of Mr. Dixon. Mr. Charles Pierpoint, as Captain Trent, acted well; and Mr. Douglas Payne shewed much ability in the character of Billy. Miss Beth Elliott made a captivating Rosie Platt; and Miss Kathleen Maitland as Winnie Chesterton and Miss Mona Wynee as Maude Chesterton were highly creditable.

BROUGHTON. — VICTORIA, LTD. — Managing-Director and Licensee, Mr. James W. Haworth; Acting-Manager and Secretary, Mr. W. B. Astin.—Sentenced for Life, by Frank Bateman, was well received by a good house on Monday. The company is under the direction of Mr. Bulmer. Mr. Walter Purvis is very droll as Percy McGentle; and Miss Madge Douglas as Adele Gray and Miss Mary Dalby as Lady Stilwell are charming. Mr. Ernest Vaughan ably sustains the evil character of Captain Paul Derrick, and Sir Wallace Stilwell, Lieut. Roy Stillwell, and the Rev. Martin Orris are respectively in the capable hands of Mr. W. Berkley Hawthorn, Mr. Edward E. Lewis, and Mr. C. Wordley Hulse. Mr. T. C. Glenville as Bill Sharkey, Mr. Frank Zara as Toby, Miss Gladys Hawthorn as Kate, and Mr. Frank de Bulmer as Henry Beckwith give adequate support.

BURNLEY. — GAIETY. — Proprietress, Mrs. T. Culeen; Manager, Mr. James Culeen.—Messrs. Fred Maule and E. D. Nicholls' company appeared on Monday in The Grip of the Law. Mr. E. D. Nicholls, in his favourite character of Zeph Sorrel, gave an amusing performance. Mr. Henry Beaufort puts plenty of energy into the rôle of Dave Arkwright; Mr. William Matthews portrayed Sergt. Frank Paul with dramatic effect; Mr. Sam Roberts and Miss Ada Frank keep the audience in good humor as Andy Blunt and Beaulah Bliss; Mr. Courtney Robinson renders excellent support as Jack Hockaday; Mr. Herbert Evelyn gives a capital embodiment of Noel of the Night; Miss May Grayce's impersonation of Rose Hackaday is a fine, sympathetic performance; and Miss Ada Lucelle delivers her lines well as Mrs. Baddiscombe.

EMPIRE.—Lessee, Mr. W. C. Haines.—A capital evening's enjoyment is provided here this week. Charles Matthews, the human kangaroo, gives a demonstration of his marvellous jumping, and gets an enthusiastic reception. The Rigoletto Brothers appear in their daring equilibristic performance; Primavesi, juggler, performs a variety of clever tricks; Mr. G. W. Foster, comedian, proves a popular turn; Mr. Leslie Race earns applause; the Lannons submit some good pedestal dancing; the Bros. Ralston are watched with interest; and the Empire biograph provides effective pictures.

BURTON-ON-TRENT. — NEW THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Bennett; Acting-Manager, Mr. John Walter.—Mr. Lawrence Brough and Company are here this week with The Lady of Ostend and The Cruise of the Saucy Sally, opening with the former piece. As Dick Whortles, Mr. Harry Hampson plays well; Mr. Percy Marshall gives a meritorious representation of Joseph Carbury; a fine piece of character acting is submitted by Mr. Lawrence Brough as Le Baron de Longueville; the part of Toby Krockitt is vigorously handled by Mr. L. Cory Thomas; and Mr. W. Dexter, Mr. Hewson Elliott, and Mr. Harold M. McMay all do well. Miss Kate Milford is exceptionally good as the injured wife, and a clever sketch of the irate mother-in-law is presented by Miss Eleanor Gilbart.

CAMBRIDGE. — NEW THEATRE. — Managing Director, Mr. W. B. Redfern.—This week If I were King is here on a return visit, but on the present occasion the company is controlled by Mr. Frank Fenton, who himself appears as Francois Villon, and gives a highly creditable display. The part of Louis XI. is undertaken by Mr. E. Bellenden Clarke. Miss Louise Vansittar has a good grasp of the possibilities of the part of Huguette du Hamel, whilst Miss Elsie Roberts is a charming Katherine de Vancelles. Mr. Laurence Grove is an acceptable Noel le Jolys. On Thursday the Ben Greet company appeared in The Darling of the Gods.

CARDIFF.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Robert Redford.—The boards here were occupied the first part of the week by the Cardiff Amateur Operatic Society, who presented a very creditable performance of The Gondoliers. On Thursday and Friday Mr. and Mrs. Kendal made a welcome return visit, and performed The Housekeeper and The Elder Miss Blossom.

KING'S THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Frank Bateman; Business Manager, Mr. Robert Sawin.—Mr. Fredk. Melville's Co. is here with the play entitled Between Two Women. Mr. Hugh Metcalfe, as the Rev. Philip Carton, gives a capital delineation of a difficult part; Mr. Harry Marlow deserves much credit for his excellent portrayal of Harry Millard; James Durwood has a clever exponent in Mr. Fred Morgan; Mr. James Powell's rendering of the Earl is particularly good; and Mr. George Montford as Major Strangeways and Mr. Fred Sandy as Dick Burgess are capable and reliable artistes. The important part of Carmen de Savereux is safely entrusted to the accomplished actress Miss East Robertson; Miss Vashti Wynne makes a captivating heroine, and a sympathetic rendering of the Blind Boy is given by Miss Alice Bowes. Mr. Frank Ayrton (Jack Pringle) and Miss Madge Seymour (Polly Dopp) are successful in considerably enlivening the piece with their excellent comedy.

EMPIRE.—Managing Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll.—The capital programme provided this week includes Cliff Berzac's racing act; Lukos Herford, with his canine acrobats; Jas. Bard; Ida Heath, the dainty dancer; Sable Fern, in her latest successful songs; Rumbo Austin and his troupe of parody acrobats; Marie Collins, comedienne; Prof. Bernar's miniature theatre and marionettes, and the American Bioscope.

CARLISLE. — ALGIE'S HIPPODROME. — Proprietress, Mrs. P. E. Veitch; Manager, Mr. C. Algie.—A distinct novelty is introduced here this week by the engagement of the celebrated Kira Cingalese Troupe of Dancers. The native dances of Ceylon afford the performers ample opportunity of displaying a wonderful amount of energy and agility. Mr. Alfred E. Gaertner contributes a clever juggling performance. It is some time since an equestrienne occupied the ring, and Miss Daniels, a charming and graceful performer, delights the audience by her agile and daring feats. Miss Vinnie Terry, comedienne and dancer; Mr. Fred Land, eccentric comedian; Mr. Syd Herman, vocalist; Paddy, the clown; and the Hippodrome pictures are all popular turns.

CASTLEFORD.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Proprietor and Licensee, Mr. Chas. Gadsby; Business Manager, Mr. Hy. Masterman.—Mr. John F. Preston and company, in The Rogues of the Turf, are occupying the boards here. The rôle of Joe Flaxman is admirably undertaken by Mr. John F. Preston, whose work throughout deserves great praise; Arthur Somerton is exceedingly well played by Mr. Ernest R. Allen; the villain, Capt. Dudley Clinton, is capably acted by Mr. Walter S. Clifford; while the unscrupulous Lady Heathcote receives satisfactory treatment at the hands of Miss Helen Stuart; Nellie Flaxman finds an excellent exponent in Miss Hilda Shirley; Mr. H. W. Rignold does good service as the grasping Jew, Moses Solomons; Miss Mabel F. Barlow is a sprightly and amusing Phyllis Warzell; plenty of fun is also caused by Mr. Harry Benson, as Sam Flaxman; Mr. Hardy Marco is a first-rate Sir Gerald Heathcote; and Mr. A. Hartley does well as Mr. Peter Dawson.

CHATHAM. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Proprietors, Messrs. C. and L. B. Barnard; Acting-Manager, Mr. Lionel Barnard; Secretary, Mr. George G. Ridley.—Capital audiences are assembling here to witness Mr. Arthur Hart's company's representation of My Lady Molly.

BARNARD'S PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. L. B. Barnard.—The Lukushima Troupe of Japanese equilibrists top the bill here and give a remarkable display. Chas. Whittle, a singer with a style of his own, is greatly appreciated; the Musical Palmers give their well-known scena; the Knick-Knacks are a lively couple; while others appearing are Daisy Palmer, serio; Dan Filmer, comedian; Hans and Lux, patterers; Walter Howard and Ellen Snow in After the Races; and new pictures by Lacey's Erascope.

GAIETY THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Capt. H. E. Davis; Manager, Mr. Frank J. Donne.—That popular comedienne, Peggy Pride, is the chief attraction here; Wee Mona's contributions are greatly enjoyed; and the programme also includes Lily Simmons, comedienne; Major Moss and Son, vocal artistes; Harry Barker, comedian; Ethel Loftus, comedienne and mimic; pictures by the Edisonograph; and Jack Lorimer, comedian.

CHELTENHAM. — OPERA HOUSE. — Managing Directors, Lieut.-Col. Croker-King, Col. Rogers, J.P., Mr. A. J. Shinner.—This week The Cingalee has been played by Mr. George Dance's chief company. Miss Ethel Negretti, in the title-part, is charming. Mr. Lauri de Frece, as Chambhuddy Ram, is responsible for most of the fun. As Boobhamba, Mr. Fred. W. Pattrick is very imposing; as Sir Peter Loftus, Mr. F. W. Ford is the embodiment of official dignity; Mr. Kenneth Wynne, as Harry Vereker, is a good lover; Mr. George Mudie, jun., as Bobby Warren, acts easily and possesses an attractive stage presence; Miss Madge Temple is accomplished as Lady Patricia Vane; Miss Mabel Sealby is a piquant Peggy Sabine; and the remainder of the company give excellent support. The chorus has been carefully trained, and the orchestra is under the direction of Mr. Edward H. Whitehall.

CHESTERFIELD.—THEATRE ROYAL, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. Holbery Hardy.—Mr. George Dance's No. 1 company is drawing crowded houses here with A Chinese Honeymoon. Mr. Phillip Haydon makes a most acceptable Emperor, and a better exponent of Pincapple than Mr. Foster Courtenay it would be hard to find. Miss Vera Vere, as Fi-Fi, deserves great commendation.

CHORLEY.—GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. G. T. Sante; Secretary, Mr. J. Clay.—This week we are having a return visit from the marvellous Craggs in Laughter Land. The dresses and scenery are pretty and effective, as usual, and the company is fully capable. Mr. Cremorne Cragg, a comedian of the highest quality, keeps the house in continuous laughter; The Craggs give their world renowned performance as the premier gentlemen acrobats, and fully sustain their high reputation. The various musical numbers and dances are acceptably rendered, the performance being given with brilliance and dash from start to finish.

CLYDEBANK.—NEW GAIETY THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Wilson.—These boards are occupied this week by Miss Rose Moncrieff's Company in Little Red Riding Hood. Miss Moncrieff undertakes the title-rôle in a satisfactory manner; Mr. W. E. Matthews is very amusing as Granny; Miss Jessie de Grey is a dashing Prince Truelove; and Miss Nellie Montague as Fairy Bluebell, Miss Sadie Hart as Jack, Miss Nellie Culver as Jill, all help to keep the merriment going. The Coopers, instrumentalists, are well received, and so are Mr. Harry Willot, the wicked wolf, Mr. James Hammond as Lawyer Fox, and Mr. George Tearle as Baron Badlot.

COLCHESTER.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. Chas. Macdona; Resident-Manager, Mr. F. Graham Macdona.—Messrs. J. A. Thomson and J. D. Hunter's company presented Red Riding Hood to a full house, on Monday. The scenic effects were above the average, and the gorgeous transformation scene formed an acceptable finale. Mr. John A. Thomson was a very popular and effective Dame Trot; Mr. Charles Colman a nimble Baron; and the antics of Tommy Green (Mr. Fred Anderson) were highly diverting; but the hit of the show was the Simple Simon of Mr. Lovell Rowland, his drolleries bringing forth roars of laughter. Miss Ella Willmer was a charming Red Riding Hood, her dancing being extremely clever; and Miss Jessie Corrie an acceptable Boy Blue. On Wednesday the company paid a flying visit to Clacton-on-Sea, holding a morning performance in the Opera House.

COLNE (LANCS.).—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Gerald Harding.—Mr. Bert Coote's Company is here this week, with The Fatal Wedding. The piece is well staged, and capitally played. Mr. Ernest Owtrim gives a good portrayal of the hero, Howard Wilson; Mr. Cecil A. Collins works well and hard as Robert Curtis; Mr. J. Carl Lyle scores as Toto; Miss Beatrice Whitney admirably sustains the part of Coro Williams, Miss Theresa Osborne plays cleverly as Mabel Wilson, Miss Carrie Fenton submits a lively impersonation of the rôle of Bridget, and Miss Jones's rendering of Jessie is quite natural.

CONSETT. —NEW THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. Hugh Robinson; Resident-Manager, Mr. Lloyd Clarance.—The marvellous Pardoes are here this week with Cinderella. Miss Lottie Holland is a pleasing Prince Charming; Miss Crissie Kedward, in the title-rôle, is most attractive; Mis Ivy Leafe, as Maud, and Miss Violet Rivers, as Eva, are most amusing; Mr. George Hyam, as Scoot, is very good; and as Father Time, Mr. Tom Griffitt has an excellent voice. The Pardoes are a host in themselves; and the Sultan Bros., herculean equilibrists, are wonderful. The Sisters Tyrell are worthy of mention; and Zenith, as Jacko, is to be commended. The scenery and dresses are gorgeous. Crowded houses have been the rule during the week.

CORK.—OPERA HOUSE.—Manager, Mr. John Horgan.—Mr. C. Finch Hatton's company, in When London Sleeps, opened a week's engagement here on Monday. The principal parts are taken by Miss Hilda Clyde, Miss Mabel Cluer, Miss Nellie Hook, Miss E. Clare, Mr. A. Wray, Mr. W. H. Wilson, and Mr. D'Arcy Kelway.

PALACE THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Henry Kemble.—The programme here is excellent. The principal turn is given by Theo. Hardeen, who releases himself from regulation and other handcuffs on his wrists. His performance is a most extraordinary one. Rea and Rea, eccentric comedy gymnasts, introduce some novel feats; Vere and Royal are excellent vocal comediennes; The Sisters Asquith sing and dance well; Julian Mack amuses in readings from Lis Doomsday Book; the Stoll Bros. create much laughter in their comedy bar act; Mozzotti, the Boy Juggler, gives an interesting turn; and the Esdale Bros. are capital comedians and dancers.

COVENTRY.—OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietor, Mr. W. Bennett.—The successful comedy Merely Mary Ann, by Zangwill, and produced by Messrs. Addison Bright and Walter Maxwell's company, is paying a welcome visit to the above house this week. Miss Nita Faydon admirably portrays the part of Mary Ann, giving a simple and pathetic rendering; Miss Gwynneth Galton makes an up-to-date and sharp-tongued lodging-house-keeper, Mrs. Leadbatter; Miss Kathleen Coleman is responsible for Rosie, her daughter; Mr. Douglas Gerrard shows force of character as Lancelot; Mr. A. Carlaw Grand is seen to advantage as Peter; and Mr. J. W. M'Donald makes a typical country parson, the Rev. Samuel Smedge.

CREWE.—LYCEUM THEATRE.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr. Henry Taylor.—This house has been occupied this week by Mr. Herbert Fuller's strong company, with the racing drama, entitled The Fiends of London. The chief villain of the play, Captain Crawley, is well represented by Mr. H. Carmichael, and he is ably assisted by Mr. H. Delmar as Peter Shark, and Miss Alice Lane as Mother Murphy. Joe Ormerod is suitably sustained by Mr. Harold Weston, and Mr. Herbert Fuller makes a lively Bob Archer. Miss Nelson Ramsey and Miss E. Lewis are well suited to their respective parts, and Miss Agnes Collier also scores. The mystic play called The Sorrows of Satan was represented on Wednesday, with Mr. H. Carmichael and Miss Nelson Ramsey in the leading rôles.

CROOK.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, Wallace Davidson, Limited; Managing-Director, Mr. Wallace Davidson.—This week we have Mr. J. A. Campbell's company in The Sin of her Childhood. In the principal character of Mary Haysel Miss Mary Fulton is sweet and pathetic; Mr. W. H. Hargreaves makes a manly hero; Mr. Austen Milroy is a suave Stephen Haysel; and Mr. J. A. Campbell a typical Indian officer. Miss Jennie Hicks doc well as the depraved Maria Haysel; and as Eliz Little Dott Moss is intelligent. Amusement caused by Mr. Fred Elvin (Barney) and Miss Nell Freeland (Hannah).

CROYDON.—GRAND THEATRE.—Manager, Mr Lawson Lambert; Acting-Manager, Mr. Reginal Lawrence.—At the special matinée on Saturday las Sousa and his band attracted a full house. Thi week Miss Emma Hutchison and Mr. Percy Hutchison's company is being warmly received i Cousin Kate and A Case for Eviction. In the piece de-resistance Mr. Walter Ringham deserves high praise for his earnest and skilful acting in the character of Heath Desmond. Miss Edith Walker in the title-rôle, plays with care and gives an ar tistic performance from first to last. Mr. Donal Maclean is well placed as the Rev. James Bartlett Master Vyvian Thomas is satisfactory as Bobby Spencer; Miss Nina Cressy leaves little to be de sired as Mrs. Spencer; Miss Hilda Honiss i charming as Amy Spencer; and Miss Betty Castle makes capital out of the rôle of Jane. The comedietta gives opportunity for smart acting by Mr. Donald Maclean (Frank), Miss Betty Castle (Dora), and Miss Hilda Honiss (Mary). Mr. Lawson Lambert is an able and courteous manager, who looks well after the comfort of visitors.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Samue James; Acting-Manager, Mr. Newman Maurice.—A thrilling melodrama, entitled The Guilty Man, is being staged here this week. Mr. Douglas Vigors is good as George Seymour; Mr. H. H. Barrington is well suited as General Seymour; Mr. J. J. Bartlett is commendable as James Redman; Mr. Henry St. Leger is adequate as Esau Ebron; Mr. C. W. Standing is reliable as St. Laurence Farrant; and Mr. James McWilliam i well placed as Bob Sparrow. Miss Daisy Scuda more acts cleverly in the rôle of Audley Priestley; Miss Lucy Beaumont is praiseworthy as Sukie Barton; and Miss Florence Dalton is successful as Nell Radford.

PALACE THEATRE OF VARIETIES, LIMITED.—Resident General-Manager, Mr. Eustace H. Jay.—A palatable bill-of-fare is submitted here. Miss Ella's lions cause a sensation; Newham and Latimer are a whimsical pair of comedians; Will Van Allen, musical comedian, makes a hit; Myra Stanfield comedienne, is excellent; Edith Finlay and company score in the musical scena, Jane Shore; George Prince is a clever comedian; Roy and Fenton win applause in the musical comedy absurdity, A Warm Reception; Snow and Farren are good as coon piccaninnies; Kittie Bell is a lively serio; Elna May is a delightful comedienne; the Bransbys (Harry and Louie), comedy artistes, are well received; and Mr. Fred S. Partridge's orchestra deserves compliments.

DARLINGTON.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Manageress Mrs. T. W. S. Jennings.—Mr. Bert Coote's company is paying a return visit here this week with The Fatal Wedding. Mr. S. Herbert Humber acts well as Howard Wilson; Mr. Oliver Rogers is an acceptable Robert Curtis; Mr. Tom Macfarlane is a good Toto; Mr. Charles Kenney gives a fine performance as Peter Schwartz; Mr. Jack Waring is very popular as O'Reilly; Miss Nora Hoffe as Mabel Wilson is capable; Miss Gertrude Harrison is successful as Cora Williams; and a word of praise is due to Miss Harriet Clifton, a humorous Bridget. Miss Marjorie Lawrence is excellent as Jessie, "the little mother," and is heartily encored for her vocal efforts. A special feature is the children's scene.

DARWEN.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr. E. L. Ormsby.—The American-Indian actress Go-won-go-Mohawk and company form the attraction here this week in an Indian drama entitled Wep-ton-no-mah. Mr. George Courtney is responsible for a clever portrayal of the villainous Manuel Lopes, Mr. C. W. Charles makes a capital Colonel Stockton, and Mr. Isaac Shawcross is good as Captain Franklin. Mr. Guy D. Hackney as Sam White and Mr. Dan Ryan as Garry Cullen are well suited in their respective parts, and introduce some good singing and dancing. Nellie Stockton is impersonated by Miss M. Goepel, and as Matilda Sniffles Miss Jessie Hart is humorous. A great deal of interest is centred in Go-won-go Mohawk, who is a decided success in the title-rôle.

DERBY.—GRAND THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Proprietor and General Manager, Mr. J. Allan Edwardes; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Charles Denley.—The last week of the popular pantomime of Goody Two Shoes promises to be every bit as successful as the first. On Monday there was again a capital house, and the performance went off with commendable evenness and "go." In the name-part, Miss Minnie Cunningham has made herself a prime favourite; and in every way successful is Miss Georgina Leonard as principal boy; Miss Cunningham's assumption is marked with great grace and charm, and Miss Leonard's personation has voice, dash, and resourcefulness to recommend it. The other ladies mentioned last week continue to give the utmost satisfaction. Messrs. Harry H. McClelland, Geo. French, Fred Lincoln, Hy. Rensby, and Downer and Langford, are comedians of rare merit, and score each and every one all through. The gem of the pantomime from a scenic point of view, is the "Fairy Grotto," which is one of the prettiest spectacles ever staged locally. The Five Sunbeams are a distinct treat, and their "Lou, Lou, Lou," song and dance has attained general popularity.

PALACE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. J. Allan Edwardes.—An excellent programme here this week is headed by the Ando Troupe, whose performance, which includes Japanese dancing and some daring balancing feats, is heartily appreciated. Another praiseworthy turn is that of Ben Hur, juvenile athlete, whose weight-lifting feats secure him well-earned recognition. The Countees, singers who are possessed of capital voices, render their songs in a very acceptable manner. The Wiltons are clever and diverting in their triple bar act; and Jubal and Joyce, comedians and storytellers; Minnie D'Aubyn, a pleasing burlesque artiste; and Chas. Beauland, natural comedian, contribute in no small way to the general enjoyment.

DONCASTER.—NEW GRAND THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. W. Chapman.—Aladdin was successfully staged here on Monday by Mr. James Kiddie's company. Abanazar was skilfully enacted by Mr. Arthur Austin; Miss Mabel Roberts was a persona grata as Radia; and Mr. Fred Buxton's assumption of Nante Oof was a distinct feature of the production. The titular rôle was daintily upheld by Miss Marie Beresford; Witty Watty Walton was a generous subscriber to the mirthful element as Widow Twankey; and the Two Kelsos and the Caenville Troupe of lady dancers contributed to the success, Miss Maude Clarke being a very neat dansense.

DOUGLAS.—EMPIRE THEATRE.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr. Alfred Sugden.—The new dramatic enterprise has proved a real success in Douglas. Mr. Robert Lena's company has the capacity for real hard work, and has the talents to make that effort as artistic as possible. The first attraction this week is The Dumb Man of Manchester. The Jane Wilson of Miss Lena Lewis was a firmly-drawn character; Mr. Will Priestley was clever as Edward Wilson; and Mr. Robert Lena excellent as the Dumb Man. The drama was enlivened by songs and dances, in which Miss Lena Lewis, Miss Gertrude Lovell, Mr. Ernest Percival, Mr. Frank Fox, and a popular local favourite, Little Evelyn, took part. A benefit to Mr. Jim Williams, the popular Manx and Lancashire Comedian, took place on Thursday, when a special programme was presented; and, on the other nights, Under the Russian Flag was played by the full strength of the company.

DOVER. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Proprietors, The Dover Theatres, Limited; Managing-Director, Mr. F. C. Dew.—The Indian Mutiny, presented by Mr. Frank E. Burdett's company, is having a successful run this week. Mr. H. Rveland-Leigh plays Lieut. Manley in a bright and cheery manner; Captain Manley is presented cleverly by Mr. H. G. Brandon; Mr. W. S. Tindall puts a notable touch of individuality into his portrayal of Major Ingleby; and Mr. Villiers Stanley impersonates Nebu Singh with considerable power. Mr. J. S. Shedden plays well as Abul; Ra Goonga is capably rendered by Mr. Ernest Keand; Mr. John Hignett wins success with his humorous impersonation of Terry O'Brien; and a most amusing character study of the martinet, Mrs. Major Ingleby, is contributed by Miss Kate Bruce. Miss Agnes Kingston is a bright and charming Kate; and Miss Maude Digby is to be congratulated on a brilliant and altogether commendable portrayal of Ghuz-nah.

DUBLIN.—GAIETY THEATRE.—Lessees, Michael Gunn, Limited; General Manager, Mr. Charles Hyland.—Mr. Leigh Lovell's company opened here on Monday, when The Duke of Killicrankie was played before a large audience. The title-rôle is admirably portrayed by Mr. Herbert J. Bentley; and Miss Octavia Kenmore makes a captivating Lady Henrietta Addison. Mr. Leigh Lovell's impersonation of Henry Pitt Welby is a remarkably humorous one; and as Mrs. Mulholland Miss Naomi Nelson is all that can be desired. The comedietta, Jerry and a Sunbeam, preceded.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. J. W. Whitbread; General Manager, Mr. Kennedy Miller.—Mr. T. Morton Powell's company is here this week with the sensational drama, Honour Thy Father. Mr. J. W. Evelyn cleverly acts the rôle of Gabriel Garth, and as Gertrude Miss Kate Newton is remarkably good. The part of Duncan Bly is in the capable hands of Mr. Juan D'Alberti; and as Violet Wilfred Miss Maud Grey is most effective. Mr. Douglas B. Watson is successful as Jack Halyard; and Miss Mabel Coleman is seen to advantage as Lilian Garth. The dual parts of Job Merry and George Bloggs are capitally played by Mr. Claude Merton; and the rôle of Mercy Merry is acted with good effect by Miss Kitty Russell. Ned Pennycomquick is admirably played by Mr. W. H. Melrose; and as Poppie Cornleigh Miss Lizzie Moorley is excellent.

EMPIRE THEATRE.—General Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. S. Figgis.—The principal feature here this week is Fred Karno's troupe in the laughable burlesque, Mumming Birds, which is well received. Morris and Morris supply a clever acrobatic act; and Arthur Melrose, whistling comedian, scores; Brown and Robinson's sketch, Harmony in the Kitchen, elicits applause; and Billy Hobbs is a smart comedian and dancer. Lily Tiso is a chic comedienne; and the pantomimic absurdity, Hilarity, is much enjoyed. Katie Futler, comedienne, who remains from last week, is as popular and as strong as ever; and the Empire pictures are up-to-date.

TIVOLI.—General Manager, Mr. Charles M. Jones; Secretary, Mr. H. A. Murphy.—The International Quartette of Vocalists and Glee Singers head the bill here this week. The Bros. Bellong, in their cycle balancing act, receive a well-merited encore; and Mabel Kessler, soprano vocalist, and Post Horn soloist, is an excellent turn. The Abadaroffs, the pre-historic Mountebanks, are highly amusing; and Ernie Leech, ventriloquist, meets with success; Deller and Oxford, comedy duettists, meet with approval, and the same may be said of Robbins and Collier in The Lady and the Porter. Kyoto, in an original act, The Mysterious Japanese Box; May Geraldine, a pleasing comedienne; and Salmon, trick cyclist, complete the programme.

WORLD'S FAIR AND MUSIC HALL.—Proprietor, Mr. C. A. James.—The following artistes are appearing here:—Madame Hypa, clairvoyant; Abe Laxey, comedian; Swane and Fieldon, comedy artistes; Prof. Anderson, ventriloquist; Oreste, musical clown; and Eugenie, palmist.

SAMUELS' EXHIBITION PALACE.—Proprietor, Mr. S. Samuels.—The company engaged here includes:—Lead and Lead, duettists; Mildred Vaughan, serio and dancer; Holnev Hatch, comedian; Prof De Novo, conjurer; Oakdene, ventriloquist; Geo. Harcourt, tenor vocalist; and Sheelah, palmist.

DUDLEY. — OPERA HOUSE. — Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. Maurice Clement; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. W. Tilley.—Mr. Leslie Norman's company, in the musical comedy, A Trip to Chinatown, is paying a welcome visit here. Mr. Charles Seguin hits off the character of Welland Strong admirably; and Miss Kitty Marion, as Mrs. Guyer, acts and sings in the most charming manner. These two also contribute two or three clever songs and dances. Mr. Gerald Manville, as Ben Gay, is excellent, as is also Mr. Leslie Norman, as Rashleigh Gay; Mr. Oswald Grey is well placed as Saxon Blood, and his rich tenor voice is highly appreciated. Miss Daisy Revett, as Flirt, is very chic, and, together with Mr. Will Smith, as Noah Heap, gives some pleasing songs and dances.

EMPIRE.—Managing Director, Mr. Tom Prichard.—A Russian troupe of vocalists and dancers head the bill here this week, and are proving a great attraction. The programme also includes such capable artistes as Will Cornish (musical bell act). Marcus Boyle (comedian), the Two Weirs, Sisters Elton (duettists and dancers), Fred Percy (impersonators of Negro life), and W. F. Moss (character comedian), and that popular comedienne, Ada Fawn.

DUNFERMLINE.—THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr. W. E. Potts.—Mr. F. R. Benson's North Shakespearean Company is here this week, opening on Monday with Hamlet. Mr. Henry Herbert appeared in the title-rôle, and gave a masterly rendering of the part. Ophelia was successfully portrayed by Miss Catherine Boyce; Mr. Arthur Phillips gave an excellent rendering of Claudius; Polonius was in the able hands of Mr. Arthur Fayne; Horatio was well placed in Mr. Courtenay Foote; Mr. T. A. Shannon made an admirable Laertes; Mr. Mayow, as Rosencrantz, and Mr. Guy Leigh, as Guildenstein, gave a good account of themselves; Mr. C. H. Croker King was exceptionally successful as the First Gravedigger; Mr. F. Owen Chambers gave a creditable rendering of The Ghost; Miss Roxy Barton scored as the Queen of Denmark. Others who rendered good service were Mr. James Annand, as Marcellas; Mr. Plinge, as Bernardo; and Mr. Holliday Attlay, as Francisco. The Taming of the Shrew, Romeo and Juliet, The Merry Wives of Windsor, She Stoops to Conquer, and Twelfth Night completes the répertoire for the week.

EASTBOURNE.—DEVONSHIRE PARK THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. A. Standen Triggs.—During the latter part of this week Miss Lillian Dundas and her company were appearing here in The New Magdalen.

PIER PAVILION.—Manager, Mr. George Hayes.—Mr. Godfrey Lamplugh's company is appearing here in Miss Michief. The bulk of the comedy work falls to Mr. T. E. Conover, and as Private Harris he sings, dances and patters to everybody's amusement. Mr. Cecil Curtis sings in a pleasing manner as Captain Jack Bethune; Mr. Beresford Lovatt is an effective Hiram Q. Pegg; Mr. Arthur Jenner is a hard-working Admiral Bethune; and Mr. Frederick Mantell makes much of his part as Lord Percy. Mr. H. Ellesmere as Von Himmelblau, and Mr. T. L. Lane as Jules do efficient work. Miss Evelyn Hughes is a very dainty and charming Kitty Malone, and her brightness is a great factor in the performance. Miss Crissie Francess is a very animated Mary Ann Smith; and Miss Eileen Guilbert a smart and pleasing Lady Orrery. Miss Zara Zriesberg, Miss Nellie Renton, and Miss Royston are admirable parlourmaids, and their several dances are given in the best of style. Miss Nellie Rene, Miss Madge Brander, and Miss Ida Campioni give capital help in the smaller roles. Mr. Spencer Dickenson, the conductor, leads an efficient chorus.

THE HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Samuel Lloyd.—At the head of the variety bill stands the Dayton Family of Risley acrobats, whose wonderful performance is marked by smartness, agility, and neatness. Farley, Rennie, and Farley are a clever trio; the Goldinis are extremely skilful juggling-equilibrists; Miss Daisy James is a smart comedienne with a fine figure; and Gustave, Fasola, Johnson, and company are sensational conjurors and mystifiers. Leighton and Mona include a clever lady-dancer and a skilful gentleman pianist; Miss Cissie Heath is a bright and chic comedienne; Mr. Fred Fox a good pattering comedian; and the Hippodrome pictures are brought well up to date by an exhibition of photographs of the recent opening of Parliament.

EBBW VALE.—KING'S THEATRE.—Sole Lessees, Messrs. Arthur Carlton and Sam Duckworth; Manager, Mr. Arthur Knight.—A special attraction is provided here by Mr. Charles W. Poole's myriorama. A powerful array of artistes includes Miss Daisy Graham, with her collection of trained birds; Miss Kitty Woodford's canine circus and orchestra, another high-class turn; the Six Clevelands are clever and refined; Mr. Harry Stewart, the old and popular protean change artiste comes in for a fine reception; and the Sisters Zetina are heard in some charming duets, accompanied by acrobatic performances of a brilliant nature. Leonard and Mac, and Little Dretta, and the latest animated photos, complete a really first-class programme.

EDINBURGH. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Proprietors, Messrs. Howard and Wyndham, Limited; Acting-Manager, Mr. Walter Hollister.—The last week but one of Jack and the Beanstalk is announced here, and, judging from the crowded and fashionable audience present on Monday, there seems to be no abatement in its popularity. Several new songs were given on this occasion, Miss Lily Harold having another of these descriptive soldier-ditties that have had so great a run of late—in this instance, "Good-bye, little girl," a tuneful number, that was received with real enthusiasm. "You can't stop the sun from shining," was warbled in melodious fashion by Miss Daisy Le Hay, who has proved so attractive as principal girl; while the "Sunshine of Love" received expressive rendering from that cultured vocalist Miss Cecilla Wilman, who has filled the rôle of Fairy Queen with so much distinction. Mr. Malcolm Scott has also varied his vocal programme, introducing a quaint creation, "Massa Bee," where he had agile assistance from that wonderfully clever boy, Master Lupino Lane. Illness has made some changes in the cast, and on Monday we found the second boy (Miss Violet Englefield) and the second girl (Miss Lilian Grahame) both absent. Miss Nellie Blythe looked and acted the character of Major Hortitoff well, speaking her lines with pleasant emphasis, and proving musically equal to all demands; while Margery had a bright and sparkling representative in Miss Kitty Wells, who displayed abundant vivacity, and played the part in a way that left nothing to be desired. But the most striking features of the pantomime are the fine orchestral music by Mr. George Burnley (he introduced a fresh overture on Monday), and the effective dancing of the talented Tiller Troupe, eight young girls, who sing as well as they dance, and whose artistic qualifications and captivating appearance have been received with marked favour from the very first.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll.—The Two Bostons are great favourites in this city, and had a splendid reception on Monday, when they reappeared. Clark and Argyle's interesting mélange of pipe playing and Highland dancing has been much admired, and they get a lot of applause nightly. The Five M.P.'s present a first-class musical turn; while that of Miss Winona Winter, a talented artiste, who has valuable ass

George Harris; Mr. Fred Charles, Marks; and that versatile actor, Mr. John Henry Rogers, Simon Legree, a part he plays with vivid realism, and which he has long made his own in every corner of the kingdom. Little Minnie was a delightfully intelligent representative of Eva; and Miss Sylvia Stella played Topsy with characteristic effect. The slave festival of singing, dancing, and banjo and tambourine playing, was again a prominent feature of the entertainment, and, as given on Monday by a full company of real negroes, proved highly interesting.

Pavilion Theatre.—Manager, Mr. Tom Ellis.—The attraction here this week is The Shadows of a Great City, presented by Mr. Wilson Bartlett's company. There was a capital attendance on Monday, and the principal characters received adequate treatment at the hands of Messrs. J. Armitage, A. Thomas, and Misses Kate Somerville and C. Henderson, and the company.

Cooke's Royal Circus.—Proprietor, Mr. John Henry Cooke.—Monday's performance was for the benefit of Silly Syd, one of the most popular among the comic men of the company. There were several competitions, designed to amuse the more youthful portion of the audience, and these were in every way successful. For the general company, some high-class engagements have been made. Very bright and captivating was the performance of Mdlle. Melita (International dancer), and the Jalvans (Oriental entertainers), gave a really marvellous show. Mitzi showed neatness and ability as a Japanese juggler; and Mons. Nivri's foot-equilibrism was clever. Miss Ernestine Rosa's appearance with the horse, Kentucky Beau, pleased everybody; and the return of Talberto and Douglas, the première funny men, was hailed with huge pleasure by the house. The principal novelty of the evening was The Scottish Harvest Home, a thoroughly enjoyable piece, that went as well as ever. Other benefits take place this week, that of Mr. Leicester Alfred on Thursday including, among many novelties and costly gifts to the public, a grand parade dog show, for which, we understand, there have been a very large number of entries. A similar show last year was immensely successful.

EXETER.—Theatre Royal.—Secretary and Manager, Mr. Fred Pollard; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy M. Dunsford.—Sir Henry Irving and Co., are here this week, opening on Monday in The Bells and Waterloo. The veteran actor's performance in both plays was greatly admired and appreciated by an enthusiastic audience. Sir Henry was well supported by the other members of the company. On Tuesday afternoon, Shakespeare's comedy, The Merchant of Venice, was played, with Sir Henry as Shylock; the Jew was portrayed to the very life. In Mr. James Hearn, Mr. Gerald Lawrence, and Mr. H. B. Stanford, Antonio Bassanio, and Gratiano found excellent representatives; while Mr. Charles Dodsworth as Launcelot Gobbo was admirable. Miss Edith Wynne-Matthison took the part of Portia in a delightful manner. On Wednesday night Becket was staged.

FALKIRK.—Grand Theatre and Opera House.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. Horace W. Ebbutt.—Something new for the theatre was witnessed for the first three nights of the week, when the Falkirk Operatic Society gave their annual performance. The opera produced was The Mikado. The chorus was under the direction of Mr. T. W. Blakey, of Falkirk, and the orchestra, augmented for the occasion, was directed by Mr. W. H. Cole, Glasgow. On Thursday evening, Otto the Outcast was presented by Mr. Harry Starr and company.

FARNWORTH.—Queen's Theatre.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. T. Morton Powell.—Mr. William Greet's company, in the Sign of the Cross, is paying a welcome visit this week. The cast includes some well-known favourites, prominent among these being Mr. F. B. Woulfe as Marcus. His is a sound performance from beginning to end, and the part could not be in better hands. Miss Evelyn D'Alroy as Mercia is excellent, bringing out the beauty of the character with fine effect; Miss Ivy Millais gives a pathetic rendering of Stephanus; and in the characters of Poppœa and Bernice Miss Nellie Bonser and Miss Alma Bolton are admirable. Mr. A. B. Turner as the cruel Nero acts the part excellently; and Mr. F. Wood gives a humorous representation of the part of Glabio; whilst the crafty Tigellinus is capably played by Mr. C. Aldred.

FOLKESTONE.—Pleasure Gardens Theatre.—Manager, Mr. H. W. Rowland.—Mr. A. Clifton Alderson and company in the Military Play, A Soldier and a Man, are the attraction here. This week Mr. A. Clifton Alderson figures as the hero Harold Sinclair with much success. Mr. Paul Beckett gives a powerful portrayal of Hubert Walgrave; Mr. Harry F. Wright acquits himself well as Jim Farrow; Mr. A. W. Norman as David Melbury is admirably suited to the part; Mr. H. K. Aylliff is excellent as Jake Harding. Mr. T. Kirkwood and Miss Hilda Leslie create amusement in their respective rôles of Sergeant Wicks and "Sergeant" Jane Wicks. Miss Daisy England as Norah Melbury proves herself a skilful actress, and Miss Beare Doyle plays in a sympathetic manner the part of the heroine, Rose Melbury.

GAINSBOROUGH.—King's Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Arthur Carlton.—Mr. H. Swinerd's Dare-Devil Dorothy company, under the direction of Mr. J. W. Cordiner, paid us a third visit last week. Mr. Arthur Verne repeated his most amusing impersonation of Silas Crump, being well supported by Miss Nellie Harcourt as Judith. Miss Marjorie Cecil was a charming Dorothy, and the rest of the characters were excellently played. This week we have Messrs. Moule and Nicholls's company in The Life That Kills. The drama is well staged. Mr. Fred Moule and Miss Kathleen Cavanagh as Kendal Croat and his daughter supply the villainous element, and are well assisted by Mr. Harry McFarland as Captain Montague. Mr. William E. Passmore gave a clever rendering of Lord Kelmarche; Mr. Ernest G. Fare is a manly Hector Rodney, and Mr. Wilton Drury, Mr. A. Hall-Menzies, and Miss Lucy Murray are amusing. Miss Marie Menzies gives a pathetic rendering of Laurie Liden, and Mr. Morris Maud gives a clever character sketch of Valentine Telford .

GATESHEAD.—Metropole Theatre.—Lessees, Messrs. Bolam and Bacon; General-Manager, Mr. Sidney Bacon; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Straughan.—Mr. Fred Karno's company, in His Majesty's Guests, has played to crowded audiences during the week. Mr. R. H. Kitchen makes the most of the character of Sergeant Lightning, keeping the house in roars of laughter throughout the evening; Mr. Chas. Cardon is a good Fritz, and Mr. Wellesley Smith gives a sound portrayal of Mr. Miffin. Mr. Chas. F. Howard gives a capital embodiment of Lord Easem; Miss Clara Moore gets much amusement out of the part of Miss Manley; and Miss Jessamine Newcombe is an excellent Lady Maude.

GILLINGHAM.—Transfield's Hippodrome.—Proprietor, T. G. Transfield.—The success of this week's programme is Kardoc, billed as the Manacle Monarch; variety turns include Gus Daniels, descriptive vocalist; Florrie Beckwith, serio and dancer; the Denmark Pair, Hercules comedy sketch; Fred Allsopp, comedian; pictures by the Bioscope; and the sketch, The Enemy of Man, by Mackay, Harrold, and Co.

GLOUCESTER.—Theatre Royal.—Owners, Messrs. C. W. and J. R. Poole; Manager, Mr. W. H. Weller.—Mr. John H. Morton's company is entertaining this week with The Rajah of Ranjapore. Mr. Alwin Sawyer gives a diverting rendering of Horatio Chicks, his dancing being especially good. The real Rajah Ernest Travers is excellently represented by Mr. Philip Percival, whose songs are much applauded. Miss Nell Ascott makes a capital Primrose Stubbs; she has a good voice, which she uses to advantage. Mr. Bert Harrow, as Thistles, proves a smart eccentric comedian, and Mr. Harry Cornwall is humorous as Mr. Stubbs. Captain Hertage is well played by Mr. Arthur Reid. Miss Marion Walker infuses a good deal of life into her part, Eliza, and receives suitable recognition. Mr. George Trevor is praiseworthy as Ted Perkins. The Rajah Troupe of Dancers introduce some cake walk and acrobatic dances, which are well received.

GOOLE.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee, Mr. John E. Tomlinson.—Messrs. Collins and Stephenson's pantomime, Sinbad the Sailor, opened here on Monday to a crowded house. Miss Gertie Rowan is a captivating Sinbad. Miss Annie G. Brevitt a pleasing and attractive Haidee, Miss Lola Rosslyn scores as the Princess Florizal, and Miss Florence Goldstone is a charming Princess Zaza. Mrs. Sinbad is capitally depicted by Mr .George Casey, who, along with Mr. Billey Moore as Captain Scuttleum and Mr. Dan Harley as Bacca Stooper, keep the house in roars. Mr. Tom Castle is a lively Tinbad. The specialities introduced in the palace scene are worthy of special mention, and include Percy Victor's Musical Dogs, The Zazá Girls, Eddie Clay, Billy Moore, Mr. Dan Harley, acrobatic clog dancer, and Johnny and Edna, cake-walk artists.

GREAT YARMOUTH.—Royal Aquarium.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. W. Nightingale.—Messrs. James Stillwell and Paul E. Teuten's company is here this week, with the sensational drama Queen of the Night. Miss Lilla Wilde, as Pauline, acts admirably a difficult role; Mr. James Stillwell is successful as Frank Cavendish; Mr. Chas. V. Stanford is effective as Philip Stoneleigh; Mr. F. Thorpe-Tracy contributes a capital character study as Old Briskett; Mr. Bert Atherton amuses as Adolphus; Mr. Paul E. Teuton gives a realistic sketch as the Miser; Dick is cleverly acted by Miss Irene Tracey; Maude Sylvester finds a capable exponent in Miss Katherine Barnett. Efficient aid is rendered by Miss Becky Elliston, as Kitty White; Miss Marie Moore, as Mrs. Briskett, Miss Bertie Hope, as Gladys, and Miss Evelyn Chester as Muriel Walford.

GREENOCK.—Theatre Royal.—Lessees, The Executors of the late Mr. Alex. Wright; Managers, Messrs. A. B. Wright and J. J. Wright.—Mr. J. H. Savile's company is here this week with Aladdin. Mr. Willie Garvey causes roars of laughter as Widow Twankey; Mr. Will Sherlock is a quaintly humorous Abanazar; Mr. James Grant an amusing McKasrac; Mr. Karl Mora an excellent Emperor of China; and Mr. T. W. Kelly a satisfactory So Sli. The Boston Twins are responsible for much of the fun as Chinese Policemen, and they at the same time sing well. Miss Florence Wilton, a charming Aladdin, wins applause for her singing; Miss Gertrude Branscombe is a dainty and attractive Princess Badroulbadour, singing very sweetly; Miss Gladys Warren does well as Bohee; and Miss Florence Somers is good as Petti Sing. Miss Kitty Jones is excellent in the part of Flamma, as is Miss Isa Stirling as Circa. An exceptionally strong and capable chorus and orchestra are ably directed by Mr. Bert W. Stephens.

Empire Theatre of Varieties.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. H. S. Skidington.—The Three Juggling Geraldos, who head the bill here, provide an excellent turn; Lincoln Calthorpe, actor-vocalist, is applauded; Frank Cumminger is a clever sand dancer; James Brady, the Eccentric Joker, is amusing; Mabel La Blanche, songstress, sings sweetly; the Fordyces are talented comedians and dancers; and Rice, Rose, Davis, and the Half do a very funny turn.

GRIMSBY.—Prince of Wales' Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. H. Curry; Assistant-Manager, Mr. S. Tolfree.—Mr. E. Hill-Mitchelson's latest drama, Revenge, has been presented here this week, and has proved every bit as popular as his former works. Mr. Hill-Mitchelson himself takes a prominent part, portraying Prince Orloff in his characteristic manner; Mr. Wellesley Draper makes a manly Captain Vanessa. The Queen is charmingly represented by Miss Violet Carlyle; and Mr. Theo. Balfour acts with dignity as the King. Miss Grace Aimers is good in the somewhat pathetic part of Lieutenant Maurize; Miss Alice Barber infuses pleasing vivacity into the part of Cora Brook. Mr. Fred Yarnold makes a breezy Jim Jennings; whilst other characters are ably taken by Miss Lelgarde Atheling as Tusha, Mr. Edwin Jenner as Captain Carr, and Mr. Sinclair Holden as Stepan.

New Palace Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. Frank Macnaghten, General-Manager, Mr. Steuart Cecil.—The smart manœuvres of Captain Bevan's Gordon Highlanders have evoked unqualified admiration from all who have witnessed their performance. Their drill and wall-climbing were especially neatly accomplished. The comedy provided by Doody and Wrights was both original and entertaining. Viviana, simply described as a dancing girl, was responsible for some pretty dancing. Remarkable statuesque tableaux were presented by Mdlle. Lorette and her dog. Other turns were given by Clemart, ventriloquist; a trio of singing cardboard box makers; the Walonells, acrobats; Wat Tyler, character vocalist; and Lennie and Hast, in a dream sketch.

The Hippodrome.—Proprietor, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes.—Tom Lloyd, an old Grimsby favourite, has appeared here this week, and his amusing songs and business have greatly pleased the Hippodrome audiences. A novel turn was that contributed by Zanfretti and Napio, the musical knife-grinders; Dan Noble's coster and other songs have been much appreciated; Mr. E's impromptu poetry, upon any subject suggested by the audience, has been the cause of much merriment. Other artistes appearing were Will Hall, mimic; the Evalos, comic jugglers; Marie Yorke, vocalist; Grey and Welford, comedy boxers; and Max Merlin, contortionist. Arrangements were made for Marcello, the Manx walking champion, who was passing through Grimsby on a 5,000 miles tramp, to give a short account of his experiences at each performance on Wednesday.

GLASGOW.—Theatre Royal, Limited.—Managing Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy Humphreys.—The pantomime of The Forty Thieves is still drawing large houses, but it is now running its last week. Miss Annie Purcell seems to have quite recovered and is acting and singing with her usual charm of manner. Messrs. George Lashwood, Tom E. Murray, Fred Griffiths (as the donkey), Harry Claff, Percy Clifton, and William Benson keep the audience in constant good humour. Miss Pearl Lyndon, Miss Annie Braddan, and Miss Marcelle Chevalier continue to give unalloyed pleasure; and the Diamond Troupe of dancers are graceful and vivacious. Friday was set apart for a grand complimentary benefit to Ali Baba, Mr. Tom E. Murray. This pantomime will long be remembered as one of the most sumptuous ever seen at the Royal.

Royalty, Limited.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. M. Downie.—At this house Mr. John Tiller's pantomime has been succeeded by Mr. M. Russell Rosse's company in Facing The Music. A bright and entertaining performance is given, and considerable credit is due to Mr. Ernest Cossart for the humour and energy which he infuses into the character of John Smith. The Rev. John Smith of Mr. George Percy is an excellent bit of satire; and the part of Dick Desmond is played with a deal of spirit by Mr. Cecil Newton; Colonel Smith and Sergeant Duffell being cleverly represented by Mr. Gerald Alexander and Mr. George N. Wallace respectively. Miss Ida Phillips is well suited in the sympathetic part of Mabel; Miss Florence Tyrrell makes a dashing Nora; the Miss Fotheringay of Miss Dolly Beaufey is another attractive performance; and the Mrs. Ponting of Miss Rose Carew is a characteristic study. The comedy is preceded by a curtain-raiser entitled A Breezy Morning.

Royal Princess's.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. R. Waldon; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Murdoch.—That Goosy Gander is as successful as any of the preceding pantomimes at this house is evident by the crowds it has attracted. Miss Daisy Dormer, Miss Lily Morris, and Mr. John E. Coyle vie with each other, and their efforts are much appreciated. They are well supported by Messrs. Regan and Ryan, John Preston, Arthur Poole, Dawson Dewick, George Preston, and the Sisters Cora. The last-mentioned ladies in "My Golden Belle" and "Maimie" have been seen and heard to great advantage. The chief factors in the great success of Goosy Gander are novelty, an abundance of good, clean, wholesome fun, sprightly singing and dancing, and a most excellent all-round company.

Grand Theatre, Limited.—Managing Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan.—The pantomime at the Grand continues its prosperous career, and the audiences are nightly taxing the capacity of the house. Miss Florence Smithson's charming unaffected style makes her an ideal Cinderella, and her acting is graceful. As a singer, too, she is highly popular. As a principal boy Miss Maude Mortimer has before now proved her merit in Glasgow, and as the Prince she is excellently suited. Her appearance and manner are strong points in her favour, while her spirited singing meets with enthusiastic approval. The popular success of this pantomime has undoubtedly been greatly due to the quaint personality and humour of Mr. Dan Rolyat, whose Baron is one of the funniest of pantomime impersonations. His comical appearance and quietly effective style keep the audience in fits of laughter. In amusing contrast with Mr. Rolyat's slight physique come the massive proportions of Mr. John Humphries as the Baroness, and most of the fun is worked up between these two clever comedians. Their bye-play is excruciatingly funny. Miss Winnie Browne and Miss Lillie Soutter are well placed as the two daughters of the Baroness, and the dignity and poetic language of the first is amusingly contrasted with the coster style and ready wit of the other. Mr. John A. Warden as Dandini gives a clever bit of eccentric comedy acting, and his quiet style proves most effective. His song, "Spoiled," takes well. As Choddles, Mr. Stephen Adeson puts in a lot of hard work, and his fun is much enjoyed. Miss Gwennie Haste as the Princess looks charming, and makes a feature of "Navahoe," with accompanying dances, at which she proves herself an adept. In this she is assisted by Mr. Dan Rolyat. Miss Gertrude Kuzelle makes a handsome Equerry, and gives her dialogue with good emphasis and point. In scenic effect, gorgeous dresses, and brilliant mise-en-scene generally, Cinderella makes a distinct advance on any of the Grand's pantomimes since Tom W. Charles held sway, and the heartiest congratulations can be extended to the management and to Mr. Robert Courtneidge, who is responsible for the entire production.

Metropole, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. Arthur Jefferson; Acting-Manager, Mr. John Dunbar.—This week When the Lights are Low is being presented by a company under the direction of Messrs. J. C. Vaughan and Edward Heanley. The part of Guy Goldsworthy has a good interpreter in Mr. Edward Heanley, and Miss Grace Baring is sympathetic and powerful as Nan Christie. Mr. Tom Ronald depicts cleverly the evil nature of Ronald Goldsworthy; Miss Cicely Desmond acquits herself well as Violet Christie; Mr. Arthur Fitzherbert is effective as Admiral Goldsworthy, as also is Mr. Bernard Lovett as Ikey Isaacson. Miss Mabel Ronald is a clever child arctress.

Lyceum.—Proprietor, Mr. Rich Waldon; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. H. Oakden.—The first three evenings of the week were devoted to Under the Red Robe, presented by Mr. Norman V. Norman and company. Of Gil de Berault Mr. Norman gives a vigorous and effective impersonation; Cardinal Richelieu is well represented by Mr. Robert Hilton; the Captain Larolle of Mr. Percy H. Vernon is humorous; the Lieutenant Manet of Mr. Norman Leslie is subdued and dignified; and the parts of the Marquis de Pombal and Sir Thomas Brunt are in the capable hands of Messrs. Herbert Morgan and Lionel Gadston. The latter also takes the character of Clon. A fine impersonation is given by Miss Beatrice Wilson of Renee de Cocheforet; and Miss Margaret Frame sustains in a graceful manner that of Madame de Cocheforet.

Empire, Limited.—District-Manager, Mr. S. Gething; Resident-Manager, Mr. Arthur Aldin.—Harry Lauder is cramming this hall to its utmost capacity, twice nightly, and his new songs, "Daisy" and "Absolutely Fou," are going strong. McPhee and Hill contribute a neat and daring horizontal bar act. The musical turn of Seely and West is well worked up, and they have got a lot of smart patter. Gena Mason takes well in her impersonations of various types of singers. The Trapnell Family contribute a clever acrobatic turn; Tilly Bébé is still here with her performing lions; Daisy Mayer gives some clever American songs and dances; and H. F. Wilson, tenor; Fred Terry, comedian; and Burns and Evans complete a varied list of attractions.

Tivoli and Queen's, Limited.—General Manager, Mr. S. King Alexander; Acting Manager, Mr. T. J. Colquhoun.—Another fine programme is being presented here this week. Jean Seul, Indian mystifier, gives a bewildering performance; Vincent, a table expert, with a unique turn, shows great daring; Gladys Mavius and Ethel May are great favourites; the Two Neros are a pair of smart contortionists; and the Rhodda Bros. appear in a capital equilibristic act. Florence, a refined lady mimic, is repeatedly encored, and Robert Gilmour, Joe Mac, and J. H. Kavanagh are comedians of outstanding ability. Geo. Dardini gives a capable juggling act, and Harry Thornbury, ventriloquist, is responsible for a varied performance. Master George is a young vocalist of great promise. Instrumental music is well to the fore; the Vance Bros., Eugene and Willie, and the Redfern Girls being all players of great ability, who submit very entertaining items.

Palace.—Proprietors Messrs. Rich Waldon and Thomas Barrasford; Assistant-Manager, Mr. H. M'Kelvie.—Captain Davis and his Black and White Zouaves show wonderful dexterity and precision in their intricate drills and wall scaling. The Hartley Wonders in their jumping act introduce some wonderfully clever feats. Smaun Sing Hpoo, the coloured midget, is a clever and interesting little mite; the Laares Troupe give a good display of balancing and tumbling; Mdlle. Kloet in her Artist's Model pictures takes well; Maggie Welsh, the Lancashire mill-girl, has a sweet and sympathetic voice; and De Marse, in his shooting act, and Wal Croft, Scotch comedian, complete a good programme.

Britannia.—Lessee, Mr. James Anderson; Manager, Mr. Harry Henfrey.—The special attraction this week is the Pioneer Picture Company, with the latest up-to-date films of the war in the East. David Reed, Scotch comedian, is heard to advantage in several well-known songs; the Singing News Boys fairly bring down the house with their songs; the Brothers Hannaway, comedians, are clever dancers and patterers, and John Quin, extempore vocalist, also contributes to the programme.

Harmonic Concerts.—Musical Secretary, Mr. Wm. Biggam.—A special comic company includes the reliable J. B. Preston in his latest ditties; Archie Freedman, the Glasgow coster; Bella Leaburn, descriptive vocalist; the Albano Troupe of musicians; the Lindsay Trio; in the sketch Military Tactics; and the Fordyces, smart dancers and vocalists.

GUERNSEY.—St. Julian's Hall.—Lessee, Mr C. Robert Perkins.—On Monday Mr. Frank Fenton, a favourite here, brought his season successfully to a close with If I Were King. Mr. Fenton's Francois Villon is a carefully studied performance; Miss Elsie Roberts submits a decidedly artistic rendering of Katherine de Vaucelles; Miss Una Guilbert appears as Mother Villon; and Mr. E. B. Clarke is responsible for Louis XI. Mr. Fenton was enthusiastically received throughout, and in a neat little speech thanked the audience for their kind appreciation of the efforts of his company.

HALIFAX.—Grand Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr W. Robinson; General Manager, Mr Otto C. Culling.—Sherlock Holmes is again drawing good houses at this theatre. Mr. Charles Frohman's company does complete justice to the play, and the staging is a prominent feature of the show. Mr. H. A. Saintsbury repeats his wonderful performance of the noted detective, and is, if possible, more successful than ever. A capital Moriarty is seen in Mr. W. F. Stirling, who plays the part with sound judgment. Miss Vera Longden is pathetic and lovable as Alice Faulkner.

Palace Theatre.—Lessee, Mr Frank Macnaghten.—A varied performance is being presented to the patrons of this popular house this week. The Dainez Comedy Circus is an entertaining and clever show; the Teins, flying gymnasts, are smart in their trapeze work; Charles Coverdale causes hearty laughter by his funniosities; the Sisters Maginell Mullini are expert players on brass instruments; the Two Jagos shine in song and dance; Barton and Ashley keep the house in constant merriment; and a laughable sketch is given by Nannie Goldman, William Holles and another, entitled The Little Charwoman.

HANLEY.—Royal, Limited.—Managing Director, Mr. Chas. Elphinstone.—The attraction this week is Saturday to Monday. On Monday the piece was received with enthusiasm, and the company is most capable. Lord Culvert finds a worthy exponent in Mr. Stuart Champion; Mr. Jack Hampton's performance is most creditable; Mr. Dallas Welford is exceedingly good as Stanley Pidding; and Miss Moyra Creegan makes a capital Mrs. Wendover. Miss Kitty Doyle as Angela contributes a performance of excellence; and Miss Adeline Lester, Miss Josephine Rae and Miss Ida Laurie are seen to much advantage. Mr. Edwin Ling as the Rev. Samuel Toop is excellent, and the maid Thompson is well played by Miss Olive Leyton. Judged by Appearances opens the evening's entertainment.

Grand.—Managing-Director, Mr. Chas. Elphinstone; Manager, Mr. James Wynes.—Another capital bill is submitted this week. At the head is a truly wonderful illusion, viz., Dida, which meets with much appreciation. Mark Melford's Sketch company presents Black and White, which is admirably enacted; the Harvey Boys in their boxing act contribute a smart turn; the Clarkes as banjoists are much appreciated; the Eight Lancashire Lads are smart vocalists and dancers; and Haig and Novel in their acrobatic act are capital. The Bob Hanlon troupe on the trapeze have but few rivals; Chas. Vincent is a pleasing comedian, with good songs; Lillian the trick cyclist is well received; and Maudie Ford is a smart comedienne and dancer.

HARROGATE.—Grand Opera House.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Peacock; Acting-Manager, Mr. Cyril Fielding Smith.—Mr. Charles Macdona's Co. in The School Girl opened here on Monday for three nights. Miss Nellie Hodson was very graceful as Lilian Leigh; Miss Jenny Bonney, as Cicely, was also very attractive; Mr. Alfred Leslie, in the part of Tubby Bedford, was extremely humorous, and Sir Ormsby St. Leger was effectively played by Mr. Herbert Darnley. Mr. C. W. Anson, as Peter Overend, was thoroughly efficient; and Mr. W. Kendall and Mr. F. Lennard as the artists were also good. Mr. and Mrs. Calvert Routledge's company in a musical production of The Cricket on the Hearth is billed for Thursday.

HARTLEPOOL.—Empress.—Proprietors, Messrs. Councillor Everton and J. W. Cragg; Manager, Mr. Harry Burns.—Grais' Baboon prodigies, which head the bill here, give a performance that does every credit to their training; the Three Escaladers submit a smart and neat turn; and Sheila McNeill possesses a sweet voice that is heard to advantage in two favourite songs. Massona performs some difficult feats of juggling; Tony Iveson, an old favourite, takes well, and Harrison Brothers, comedians, and Tom Berrick, the "Black Tit-bit," contribute amusing turns. Burns' Pictures continue to be an attraction.

HASTINGS.—Gaiety Theatre.—Manager, Mr. Geo. H. Gaze.—Miss Rosalind Scott-Watson's company is here this week with C. S. Beaulieu's sensational drama The Scarlet Woman, produced under the direction of Mr. Charles Draycott, and with the advantage of stage management by Mr. J. E. Cowell. At the opening performance on Monday Miss Rosalind Scott-Watson in her presentment of Marie Brandon did not spare herself, and made a thoroughly unscrupulous stage adventuress. A clever performance was given by Miss Bertha Adams as Jeanne; Mr. Reginald Fox played capably as the hero, Richard Marchant; and Mr. Harry E. Robinson fully sustained the despicable rôle of Will Raymond. The lighter vein was successfully contributed to by Mr. Tod Squires in the réle of Samuel Hopkins, Miss Ruby Hamilton as Charlotte Simpkins, and Miss Lily Marshall, a sprightly Fanchette.

Hastings Pier Pavilion.—Pier-Master, Mr. R. Turner; Entertainment Manager, Mr. J. D. Hunter.—The comedy drama Judy is being played here this week by Mr. George and Miss Mary Neil's company. Miss Mary Neil cannot be too highly praised in the dual parts of Polly and Alice. The rôle of Blake is played with bright animation by Miss Violet Langley; with much merry humour Miss Florrie Groves successfully depicts the part of Judy. Mr. George Kirk plays the important character of Grip very forcibly; Jim the coster is well acted by Mr. Will Casey; Mr. W. H. Hurford is diverting as Giddles the showman. A good character sketch is submitted by Mr. Richard Ferriss as Duburg.

The Hippodrome.—General Manager, Mr. Harold Penny.—Miss Rosa Gilbert is an attractive comedienne and dancer; a skilful exhibition of ball punching is shown by Mr. Ernie Plummer; Miss Cecelia Maud displays excellent taste as a vocalist; Messrs. Hart and Leo are successful in their amusing sketch; Mr. Harry Leybourne is a capital comedian; the acrobatic feats of the Picquays are smart; Messrs. Steeley and Dowton, comedy duettists, are much applauded; Mr. Frank Bernard and Miss Ethel Royle are associated with Messrs. Dan Hope, G. W. Millington, and William Macray in an extremely funny sketch.

HEREFORD.—Garrick Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Arthur Carlton; General-Manager, Mr. Louis Karpe; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank J. Pitt.—Miss Emma Litchfield's Company is here this week with A London Actress, a strong piece, that holds the attention of the audience from beginning to end. Miss Emma Litchfield submits an admirable representation of the unscrupulous Hilda Mannering. The ill-used Phyllis Crawford finds in Miss Violet Lawson a sweet and simple exponent. Mr. Stuart Cleveland undertakes the rôle of Sergt.-Major Clive Crawford. It is a strong character, and Mr. Cleveland possesses the qualification for it, his portrayal being most realistic. Miss Violet Vivian is admirably suited as Biddy Maloney. Mr. Louis Lingard acts with agreeable naturalness as Lieutenant Kingston; and as Pat Maloney Mr. Sam Welford gets a great deal of humour out of the part.

HOYLAND.—Metropole Theatre.—Owner, Mr. Arthur Carton; Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr. Geo. S. King.—Madame Willoughby's pantomime company in The Babes in the Wood opened here on Monday. Miss M. La Ray as Robin Hood is all that could be desired, and Miss Winnie Wentworth is a charming Maid Marian. The babes are represented most daintily by the Misses Violet Mottley and Daisy Mottley. Miss D. Alberti is a graceful Fairy Queen, and she sings admirably. The Brothers Smith and Jones, as the robbers, and Mr. Alf. Foy, as the nurse, provide plenty of fun. The speciality turns include the Two Flowers, coon dancers; Mdlle. Robson, mezzo-soprano; Halma, juggler and equilibrist; Brown and Harker, American cross-talk comedians; and B. Gardner, double-voiced vocalist.

HUDDERSFIELD.—Theatre Royal.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Acting Manager, Mr. Percy G. Arthur.—Mr. H. A. Jordison's pantomime of Babes in the Wood, is here for six nights and a matinée, and meets with warm approval. Miss Madge Daley's fine figure and swagger style are well suited to the part of Robin Hood, and Maid Marian is daintily played by Miss Ada Martine. A pretty representation of the babes is given by the juveniles, Dolly Cullen and Elsie Jordison. The comedians are a merry, tireless group, which includes Mr. Edward Avon—cleverest of leg mania dancers, as the Baron; and Mr. Rowland Hill as Dame Peggy, whose success is none the less because of a judiciously restrained humour. Little Cluley's diminutive person meanders inconsequently but funnily through the piece. Messrs. Cullen and Carthy are quaintly sham heroic as the two ruffians; Miss Edie Duncker is a pretty fairy Venus, and Mr. W. Francis Greene sufficiently aggressive as the villain Herne. A notable feature is the introduction of Mr. George Chanti, the cosmopolitan dancer, with his very elaborate accessories. Other specialities are contributed by Avon and Crest, and the Jordison Empire Quartette of dancers.

HYDE.—Theatre Royal, Limited.—General Manager, Mr. Joseph W. Maloney.—Mr. Alfred B. Cross and company are paying a welcome return visit here this week with The Manxman, and are doing very good business. Mr. Cross gives a masterly performance of Pete; Mr. William Burchall is a polished Philip Christian; Mr. Edward McLean is very good as Ross Christian, and Mr. Henry Heller submits a capital character sketch as Cæsar Cregan. Miss Winnie Watersford impresses the audience by her finished portrayal of the rôle of Kate Cregan; Miss Nancy Mitchell is a bright and vivacious Nancy, and Miss Leslie Adair makes a dignified Miss Christian. The other characters are in safe keeping.

ILKESTON.—Theatre Royal.—Managing-Director, Mr. L. F. A. Rogers.—Miss Grace Warner's company is here in the comedy, The Little Widow, for three nights, and My Artful Valet for the remaining evenings of the week. On Monday, The Little Widow was selected, in which Miss Warner played as Mrs. Constance Rattlebrain with much skill and finish. Mr. George Gordon deserves praise for his clever acting as Mr. Wilkins Potter; and Miss Marion Fawcett as the jealous wife was most amusing. The rôle of Dr. Arthur Potter was rendered with much emphasis by Mr. St. Bernard Wyntour; and Miss Maud Warburton was an acquisition as Emily Randal. Mr. Dan Clifford was well received as Auguste Bousier; and Miss Kathleen Cranston made a hit as Sophonisba. As Morton Mr. Vyner Rayner found a suitable place.

IPSWICH.—Lyceum Theatre.—Manager, Mr. W. G. Fisk.—The costume play, Monsieur Beaucaire, has been played here during the current week. Mr. Norman Macowan secured a triumph in the title-rôle, his acting throughout being repeatedly applauded. Mr. Stuart Willson was the orthodox villain in the part of the Duke of Winterset, and Mr. H. Owen was a manly representative of the gallant Major. Due justice was done to the part of Captain Badger by Mr. Ramsey Forman, who raised a storm of hisses by his realistic portrayal. In the dual part of the Marquis and Francois, the servant, Mr. Hans Schlesinger proved himself an accomplished artist. A word of praise is due to Miss Florence Lincoln as Lucy Rellerton. Other parts were well sustained by Miss Marion Holt and Miss S. Izzard.

Hippodrome.—Manager, Mr. Fred. Barrett.—The novelties introduced at the Woodbridge-road place of entertainment this week embrace the Sulima Matrapa Troupe of Arabs, whose marvellous exhibition as equilibrists caused a furore of applause. Other items included Vesta and Minnie Pine, in a bright sketch entitled A Kitchen Rehearsal; the Leonards, vocalists and dancers; Prince Kuroki, a Japanese juggler, and Charles Ashdown, eccentric comedian.

JARROW.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Hugh Robertson.—Messrs. Little and Darcy's pantomime company is here in The Forty Thieves, under the management of Mr. Will White. Miss Minnie Silcott is good in the part of Abdallah, and Miss Violet Silcott gives an excellent rendering of the part of Ganem; Morgiana is very capably handled by Miss Marie Silcott; Mr. George Beverley is well placed as Ali Baba; Mr. James Ferguson makes a good Dame; Mr. Ted Wootton is quite at home in the rôle of Cassim Baba, and also stage-manages admirably. Messrs. Malone and Conley score in the part of Hasarac and Hasaric. Some excellent specialities are introduced by the Three Sisters Silcott, speciality artistes; the Three Woodbee Wonders in a burlesque acrobatic act, and the Daunton Shaw Troupe of Cyclists.

JERSEY.—On Monday the Jersey Opera House was literally packed from floor to ceiling, when a concert was given in aid of the widow and children of the late Mr. Patrick Condon, who had acted as stalls attendant since the opening of the Opera House by Mrs. Langtry, in July, 1900. His Excellency Major-General H. S. Gough, C.B., C.M.G. (Lieutenant-Governor), and Mrs. Gough, and the élite of the island, were amongst the audience. Mr. Charles Thomas's comedietta, Breaking the Ice, was played by Mr. R. Richmond Raymer and Miss Ethel Peyton. Two harp solos were finely executed by Lady Otway; violin solos were well rendered by Miss Mary Ould, L.R.A.M., and Mr. A. W. McKee; and the numerous singers included the Rev. Father Tremble, Miss Mary Haynes, L.R.A.M., Madame Chappuis, and Miss Ethel Malzard, whose beautiful voice was heard to great advantage in "Crossing the Bar."

KETTERING.—Avenue Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Payne.—Miss Lena Stanton and company are here with the pantomime of Dick Whittington. Miss Stanton is a distinct success in the title-rôle; Miss Marie Gerrard is successful as Alice; and Miss Flo Wilmot charming as Fairy Bowbell. The comedians work well together. Mr. Geo. James as Fitzwarren, Mr. Alf. Brooks as Idle Jack, and Mr. Bruce Green as Margarina, are responsible for a lot of genuine fun. Some clever variety turns are admirably contributed by Jay and Ginger, The Musical Melbahs, Joe Pauletti, Le Voll, and the Cecil Troupe of Dancers. Little Keeno, the boy comedian, causes quite a furore by his clever singing and dancing.

KIDDERMINSTER.—New Opera House.—Licensee and Managing Director, Mr. Jas. P. Moore; ActingManager, Mr. R. C. Gudgeon, jun.—The boards are occupied this week by Mr. Charles Macdona's company in the musical comedy, entitled, A Country Girl. Mr. Richard Telford, as Barry, is very funny, and a prime favourite. Geoffrey Chaloner is in the capable hands of Mr. Herbert Standing, jun.; Mr. Bernard Vaughan, as the Rajah of Bhong, is very success; Mr. Albert Chapman sings and acts well as Captain Harry Romney; Mr. Ernest Mozar, as Lionel Bland, is very good: Mr. H. Gladwin Hunt makes an excellent Sir Miles Coverdale; and Mr. George McCloskie is the cause of much wholesome merriment as Mickey O'Dowd.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Lieut-Col. J. A. Winstanley; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. C. Candler.—When Darkness Falls, presented by Mr. William Bourne's capital company, is the attraction here this week. Prominent in various parts are Miss Amy Vennimore, Miss Enid Elmore, Miss Lydia Hart, Miss Clarrie Ash, Miss E. Litchfield, Mr. Frank Elwood, Mr. Ellis J. Preston, Mr. Frank Liston, and Mr. E. H. White.

PALACE THEATRE, LIMITED. — Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; District Manager, Mr. Hatton Wharton; Acting-Manager, Mr. Leonard Vidal.—Premier position here is held by Bella and Bijou, society entertainers, who submitted with the greatest success, on Monday evening, their latest sketch, Divorced. At the other end of the bill the Three Sisters Klos and Alexandra Dagmar hold equal positions. The former ladies give a remarkably clever, clean, and daring athletic display. Miss Dagmar also is seen to great advantage in a new and novel burlesque scena, The Duchess of Dantzic. The Five Delevines, who are so well and favourably known to Leicester audiences, score their usual big success with their musical mélange, Flirtation. Lotto, Lilo, and Otto are excellent trick cyclists. Syd May's mimicry is exceptionally well done; Clown Zertho's dogs are examples of the perfection of training; Cabby and Shirker are extremely funny in their eccentric bar act; Ada Cerito is a most sprightly and attractive comedienne; and Ike Scott and Son, in a burlesque of officer and private, also entertain.

PAVILION THEATRE.—Proprietor and Director-General, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Acting-Manager, Mr. Walter Lapworth.—The following artists contribute to an entertaining programme here this week:—Laurie Wylie and his mimicking mannikins; Silly Billy Elliott, eccentric comedian; Linton, acrobatic bounding marvel; Lidden and Hayward, in musical absurdity, A Quiet Rehearsal: Cliff and Kean, comedy artists and speciality dancers; Rosa Rosetti, the goddess of music; Gilbert Rogers, comedian; Les Bois, burlesque jugglers; and Herbert Betts, eccentric comedian.

LEIGH.—THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. J. Dewhurst; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Dewhurst.—The Babes in the Wood is presented here with much success this week by Mr. A. E. Smith's company. Mr. J. C. Matthews is heard to great advantage as the Demon King; Miss Lily Coleman, as the Fairy Queen, sings her songs with much charm; Miss Edith Wallis is an admirable Robin Hood; Miss Beatie Howard, as Maid Marion, is very successful; Mr. Arthur Slater is quite happy as Baron Balderdash, introducing some very smart whistling; Mr. Chas. Gladwell is seen to advantage as the Dame; Weary Willie and Tired Tim are in the hands of Mr. Bob Padley and Mr. F. Wheatcroft, both of whom contribute largely to the general success. Several good specialities are introduced in the Palace scene, amongst them being The Colleys, contortionists, &c.

LINCOLN.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Manager, Mr F. King. — Mr. Lingford Carson's company with The Drama of Life, is meeting with much appreciation here. Mr. Jerrold Ord represents the character of Harry Beech extremely well; Mr. J. J. Hooker scores as Walter; a fine impersonation of Lawton comes from Mr. Bulwer Pitt; Mr. L. Thackeray is well placed as Crane; and the rôle of the detective is safe with Mr. Walter Steele. Mr. Owen Redmonde and Miss Muriel Inglis do extremely well with the comedy parts; Miss Cissie Bellamy wins sympathy as the much-tried wife: Miss Marie Murray shines in a child's part; and Miss Nellie Daly, as Betty Black, has decided ability.

PALACE.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; General-Manager, Mr. Sydney Arthur.—A particularly smart bill is presented here this week. Virginia, with her quartet of piccaninnies, earns a greeting of the heartiest kind. The Loma Trio present a gymnastic turn of the highest excellence; Harold Hughman is a good mimic; and a clever show is that of the Franks Brothers, midget conjurors. Martin Henderson, the blind musician, makes one of the biggest successes of the evening; and Ella and Rose give a genuine burlesque of melodrama.

LIVERPOOL.—PRINCE OF WALES'S THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. J. H. French; Acting-Manager, Mr. Sidney Beltram.—The children's pantomime, after a run of about seven weeks, was withdrawn on Saturday. A short season has been opened with an adult one, bearing the title Cinderella. It is produced by Mr. Herbert Barrs' company, and includes dainty dances, lively music, and many pretty scenes. Mr. Paul Pry, as Buttons, the page, is very amusing, and creates endless laughter. In the course of the pantomime, which is charmingly dressed, a number of special turns are introduced, the Yan-Pyn Keto Family of Oriental magicians providing a clever entertainment, and the Geronds giving a series of delightful dances and songs. At the Wednesday and Saturday matinées, a children's harlequinade is presented.

ROTUNDA THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. M. Montgomery; Acting-Manager, Mr. M. Montgomery, Jun.—For the first time in Liverpool, Mr. Frank M. Thorne's Napoleon the Great has held the boards here this week. The play is presented by an able company, under the direction of Messrs. Carson and Granville, who bring with them charming dresses and excellent scenery The title-part is in the capable hands of Mr. Hugh Montgomery, an actor of undoubted ability. The scheming Colonel Lavarennes could scarcely have been entrusted to a better artiste than Mr. Henry Earlesmere; Mr. Phil. Harper was a good Colonel Meuron; Mr. Frank M. Thorne proved humorous as Pierre Pomponnet; Miss Chrissie Dunbar enacted with care and discretion the rôle of Marie Walewska; and Mr. J. G. Maine capably undertook the somewhat unpleasant part of Paul Lacinska, a Pole.

LYRIC THEATRE OF VARIETIES. — Lessee and Manager, Mr. Henry C. Arnold; Directors of Entertainments, Messrs. T. Barrasford and F. Willmot; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Coles.—An entertaining programme has been compiled for this week, and patrons have not been slow in showing their appreciation. The house has been packed nightly. Tom Grave tops the bill in his sensational cycling feat—a performance that is daring in the extreme. Hanco's exposure of various handcuff tricks and the box-trick is greatly enjoyed. He is also very good in card manipulating. The Bros. Kroney, the lazy coalmen, are exceedingly funny acrobats; Cissie Cutler's "Farm-yard" song is a decided hit; Russell Hatton is very good in Dickens' characters; the Bensons (Frank and Lucy) are the cause of much laughter; Walter Emmerson is as laughable as ever; Wartenberg Bros. are very original in their foot-juggling act; Rivington and Gordyn are good in a sketch; and Johnny Warman, comedian, is amusing The Bioscope is exceptionally good this week.

STAR THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. H. Fineberg; Acting-Manager, Mr. M. Simmons.—A very acceptable visit of In Old Kentucky has drawn large audiences here during the week. The company presenting it is that of Mr. J. F. Elliston. Mr. J. George Steel is a good Frank Harley; Mr. Alfred S. Bankes carefully handles the part of Colonel Beauchamp; the rôle of Jasper Grafton is in the good keeping of Mr. Eric Hudson; and Miss Amy F. Hermann is winsome and graceful as Madge. Speciality turns are presented by Jimmie James, bone soloist; Will Whittaker, bird imitator; and the Dahomey eccentrics, Messrs. Charles Gibbs and George Perkins.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Carson and Granville; Manager, Mr. Fred Granville; Business Manager, Mr. Fred L. Arthur.—The attraction here is Sapho, given by Miss Annie Bell's capable combination. Miss Bell plays the part of the notorious French adventuress with marked effect; Mr. Frederick Ross, an actor of ability, is an admirable Jean Gaussin; the Cesaire of Mr. George Antley is a finished impersonation; Miss Lottie Ray shows to advantage as the child; and Mr. H. Wallace Curnock is an excellent Paul Dechelette.

EMPIRE, LIMITED. — District Manager, Mr. T. A. Cook; Acting-Manager, Mr. George Stratton.—The remarkable performance of Miss Annie Abbott, "The Little Georgia Magnet," has been the principal attraction here this week. Mendel, a blind piano-player, displays wonderful gifts as an executant. The Five Olracs, a wonderful troupe of acrobats, remain another week; the Caledonian Boys' orchestral and concert combination are greeted with loud applause; the Three Sisters Hayden score with several chorus songs; Madame Alice Simmons is a good soprano; Keno, Welch, and Montrose render a funny acrobatic turn; and others in the programme are Rastus and Banks, comedy singers and dancers; the Three Nevarros, equilibrists; Mdlle. Emmy and her Pets; and Harry Martell, comedian.

ROYAL HIPPODROME. — Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford.—At the head of a long programme given here during the week are the Jack Haggerty troupe of English champion wrestlers. The Barra troupe of musical exponents provide an acceptable turn; Leonard and Francis create much laughter with their burleque bull-fight; R. Judge's acrobats and leapers give much satisfaction; Toch and Tard are a clever pair of burlesque artistes; Sydney James displays unusual powers as a ventriloquist; and others who appear are Fred Curran, comedian; Clarus Bros., equilibrists on the rolling globe; and Harry Lewis, comedian.

ROYAL PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Manager, Mr. M. Montgomery; Acting-Manager, Mr. F. O'Toole.—Heading the bill here this week is a company of sketch artistes, controlled by Mr. J. St. Clare, in The Gambler of Liverpool. Tom Hall's Nippers provide a funny show as comic acrobats; Elgar and Gaskell create much laughter with their eccentric musical performance; Mr. George Scott comes with a number of new songs; a good descriptive vocalist is Mr. Walter Arnold; and the comical Lahmot gives an acceptable turn with his performing monkey, "Coffee," and his acrobatic dog, "Fox."

NEW PARTHENON. — Proprietor, Mr. Edwin W Smith.—Principal at this popular place this week are the Albano troupe in an admirable drawing-room musical act. Tom and Florrie Poole are a couple of eccentric acrobats and high pedestal dancers; Alf. Frampton, a favourite, displays unusual mimetic powers; Annie Laurie sings and dances prettily; Fred Dunstone has a budget of good songs; and Harry Jennings is an expert dancer. The Bioscope, with a series of new pictures, continues to prove a strong feature of the programme.

PADDINGTON PALACE, LIMITED.—General Manager, Mr. J. Kiernan.—Mr. Percy Boucher's sketch company is here this week with When Rogues Fall Out, a neat trifle in five tableaux, which is followed with much interest. The bill of fare also includes Harry Tresham, an actor-vocalist of merit; Jack Stewart, a smart comedian; Florrie Hall, soubrette; Dalton J. Bosher, character comedian; Rosa Lenmann, vocalist; and Edith Elliott, burlesque actress.

WESTMINSTER.—Proprietor, Mr. M. Montgomery. The great attraction here this week has been Will Hebden's good all-round company, with the local sketch, A Day in Paddy's Market, which contains a deal of rollicking fun.

PARK PALACE.—Director, Mr. James Kiernan.—At the top of the bill here is Kennedy Allen, in clever songs. The Barger Trio of sketch artistes present a laughable item, Quits, in which Miss Beta Barger as the Slavey is exceedingly good. Mr. and Mrs. Allan Wye are also responsible for a deal of merriment with their trifle, What Happened to Watt. Steb displays surprising ability as a modeller in clay; and others who appear are Beattie Foster, vocalist; Bob Pearson, humorist; Lily Pender, with her vaudeville show, In Ten Minutes; Wallace Whitney, comedian; and Agnes and Arthur Lynch, with American picture songs.

HAYMARKET. — Lessee and Manager, Mr. Fred Willmot.—Here this week are Tennyson and Wallis, comedians, and patterers; the Marconis, electric wonders, in exhibitions of wireless telegraphy; Walter Emerson, comedian; Gillin, comedy ventriloquist; Tom Hays, boy comedian; and the Bioscope.

LONG EATON.—LYCEUM THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. T. Meakin.—The company in The Poor Must Live gave a benefit to the Cork Sick Recommendation Society on Friday, the 10th inst. This week the Dare-Devil Dorothy company is paying another visit, and has had a flattering reception. Miss Marjorie Cecil is the clever Dorothy; Miss Kathleen Garnon apears as Ruth; Miss Nellie Harcourt joins Mr. Arthur Verne in the comedy business, and both are amusing; Mr. Cecil W. Parke is a capital vocalist, and his songs are nightly encored. Plenty of variety is introduced, the menagerie scenes keeping the audience in merriment right through. There are also some clever dancing and skipping.

LONGTON.—QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. H. S. Howard.—The well-known tragedian, Mr. Edmund Tearle, accompanied by Miss Kate Clinton and company, is presenting an attractive bill here this week. On Monday Virginius was given, Mr. Tearle appearing with every success as the Roman Father. Miss Esther Tearle as Virginia was seen to advantage; Appius Claudius was strongly portrayed by Mr. Wm. J. Miller; and Mr. Vernon O. Crabtree was good as Caius Claudius. The Three Musketeers, Ingomar, The Merry Wives of Windsor, Under the Red Robe, and Hamlet are also in the repertoire.

LOWESTOFT.—MARINA THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. E. A. Smith.—Following a successful run of pantomime, a strong attraction is provided this week with the drama Bigamy, which is presented for the first time locally by a well-balanced company under Messrs. Fred Moule (the author) and Alf. Denville. The chief interest centres in the doings of Miss Grace Lester, who plays the alluring bigamist (her original part) with charming grace. A sympathetic reading of Sylvia Dresden is submitted by Miss Cynthia Matthews; and Miss Lydia Mannington is well cast as Dido, "The Strong Woman." Mr. Monson Thorpe makes a stately Sir Chas. Dresden; and Mr. Kenneth Smith's strong impersonation of Lionel Craven is warmly appreciated. The humorous rôles are sustained by Messrs. Alfred Denville and Francis Serle.

MACCLESFIELD. — ROYAL. — Proprietor and Manager, Mr. W. K. Gatley.—The Way of the World is the title of the interesting and sensational drama presented here by Mr. Montague Beaudyn and Miss Sydney Crowe's company. Miss Crowe, as Adele de La Roche, gives a finished impersonation of the part. Mr. Beaudyn gives a skilful and artistic portrayal of Cecil Montague. Mr. Herbert Skardon is successful as Captain Fred Slade. Mr. Louis Scott as Horatio Bluff adds much to the enjoyment of the play. Mr. Foulis as Matthew Malyon makes the most of his opportunities. Mr. E. V. Rees is good as Silas Montague. Mr. Fred Stanley scores as Ned Montague. Miss Violette Virienne is very graceful as Polly Bell, and Miss Irene Munroe as Kate Montague is popular.

HIPPODROME.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. H. Bendon.—The programme this week is headed by Phil Herman; his songs are amusing and his eccentric business causes much laughter. U. C. Ugo, conjurer, is a good turn. Louie, thought reader, astonishes the audience. Mademoiselle Magna in her classical statuary act is well applauded. Emily Lloyd, Gipsy singer, has a good reception. Frank Roden, comedy cyclist, gives a clever performance. The Ladies' Quartette are doing well, and Charles Huda, coon delineater, deserves mention.

MAIDENHEAD. — GRAND THEATRE. — Lessees, Messrs. Edgar Dereve and F. L. Schmitz.—Mr. Leonard Royal's company opened on Monday with the pantomime, Dick Whittington, Miss May Nelson appearing in the title-rôle. Miss Freda Clare acts and sings pleasingly as Alice Fitzwarren, and Mr. Tom Nelson dances acceptably and plays his part well as Captain Porthole. Mr. George Leonard scores all through as Lisa, and Mr. Roy Relbut is energetic and entertaining as Idle Jack. Mr. Syd Dunn is excellent as the Cat, and in a later scene contributes a clever turn as acrobat and contortionist.

MANCHESTER.—ROYAL OSBORNE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. W. H. Broadhead; Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead.—Messrs. G. M. Polini and Austen Melford's company are seen here this week in The Silver King, which is always a big attraction. The well-known drama is played with considerable spirit from beginning to end, Mr. Herbert Ford giving a fine interpretation of the unfortunate Denver, while Miss Lilian Bethel acts with sympathy and effect as Nellie, his wife. Mr. Edward J. George retains his original part of Jaikes, which he presents with his usual success. Mr. Charles Levey makes an excellent Captain Skinner; and other good parts are well played by Mr. Byron Pedley, Mr. Arthur Rooke, Miss Amy Manfree, Mr. Eric Store, Mr. W. Linton, and Miss S. Wenden. The play is admirably staged.

METROPOLE THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead.—An excellent programme here this week includes Mr. Charles Carte's impersonation of Jerry, the Tramp, in the sketch, A Noble Brother—a very successful performance; Fanny Robina, comedienne, in her favourite songs; Fred Casburn, an excellent character comedian; Emma Don and Co., in a fine vocal scena; Florrie Cooper, comedienne, in her latest successes; the Three Shipbuilders, musical artistes; Little Dando, an amusing eccentric comedian; Curtis Leo and his black piccaninni, in a speciality sketch; and Billy Bint, comedian, in popular songs.

GRAND JUNCTION THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead.—Messrs. Little and Darcy's company in Robinson Crusoe are the attraction here this week, after a successful week at the Royal Osborne Theatre.

ST. JAMES'S THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. R. Flanagan; Acting-Manager, Mr. M. Potasch.—Mr. Edmund Edmunds's company occupy the stage here this week in an attractive version of The Babes in the Wood, a pantomime concocted of popular ingredients, and well suited to an audience desiring at least an ample proportion of fun. Mr. Edmund Edmunds figures successfully as one of the comic villains, his companion in crime being Mr. James Albert, who also is a capital comedian. Miss Maud Nelson sings and acts well as Robin Hood, and Miss Nita Clavering makes an engaging Maid Marian. Other parts are agreeably rendered by the various members of the cast. The action moves through nine effective scenes, and is embellished by numerous popular songs and clever dances; while the general staging is all that could be desired.

HIPPODROME (Hulme).—Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead.—Dr. Carl Herman, hypnotist, electrician, and scientist, is drawing crowded houses here this week, after a most successful week at the Salford Hippodrome. He demonstrates his ability to cure paralysis and rheumatism by the aid of electricity, and the passing of 10,000 volts. of electricity through his body for two minutes partakes of the sensational. Mirth-provoking antics are caused by several young men under the hypnotic influence of Dr. Herman, and altogether the turn is highly popular. Charles Coborn, the well-known comedian, is excellent in songs and burlesque; the Seven Setinas, a troupe of clever lady and gentleman acrobats, give a fine performance; and enjoyable turns are contributed by Dale and Dale in a singing and dancing speciality; and W. H. Morgan, character vocalist. On Monday evening, an unnamed artist provided an exceedingly smart turn in rifle and baton manipulation. A series of animated pictures complete.

QUEEN'S PARK HIPPODROME.—Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead.—This week, Max Gruber, with his wonderful, well-trained elephant and horse, heads a list of talented artistes. Ernesto, a juggler and equilibrist of first-class order, meets with cordial appreciation; the Famous Brontes, in their amusing sketch, The Saucy Maud, obtain hearty applause; and Swan and Stanley are good in a series of character representations. The Three Greysons give a humorous sketch excellently; as do also Deakin and Rankin, in an act entitled A Hodge-Podge of Nonsense. Guy Ryder is a clever whistler; Harry Tomlinson is a good chaaracter vocalist; and Harry Hayton sings a good comic song. An extra turn, which receives loud applause, is added by Conway and Garland, and the animated pictures are interesting.

TIVOLI.—Managing-Director, Mr. Charles A. Wilkes; Manager, Mr. Arthur B. Wilkes.—The programme here is excellent. George Leyton, the renowned actor-vocalist, makes a big hit with his scena, Britannia's Babes, and meets with a hearty reception. Park's Eton Boys give a capital singing turn, and the Maples contribute some amusing duets and pretty dances. Lily Lena, a dainty comedienne, sings two enjoyable songs, and is well received. A. P. Boswell, the black-faced comedian, causes much laughter with his funny antics, smart patter, and clever balancing added ;and De Vere and Kenwick introduce some effective and novel burlesque pictures and a smart sand dance. Other good turns are G. W. Hastings, character comedian; Leslie H. Murray, magician and card manipulator; and Kitty Gower, who dances nicely. On the occasion of our visit, Alf Levarni did not appear.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. Will Collins.—The programme here this week is made up of a number of remarkably good items, at the head of which are the wonderful balancing feats of the Wille Brothers, whose performance brings down the house. Morcashani, La Belle Creole, eccentric chanteuse, is also a highly popular turn, scoring especially with a song, entitled "If you want to make the baby laugh, show her the white of your eyes." Manning's Entertainers add considerably to the fun by their sketch, Outside the Steam Room of a Turkish Bath; Harry Lamore, the silent comedian on a wire, gives a smart and successful show; and Marguerite Broadfoote, comedienne, is well received in her various popular songs. The Arthur Saxon Trio of Athletes perform some amazing feats of strength, and are deservedly applauded; while entertaining business is contributed by Will Mitcham, vocal and musical comedian; the McGregors, in a musical speciality; and Maud Ross, comedienne and dancer; the programme being completed by a series of very good pictures on the Bioscope.

GRAND.—Lessees, Messrs. Thomas Barrasford and Will Sley; Manager, Mr. H. C. Arnold, jun.—The Human Magnet, Dr. Walford Bodie, still remains the attraction here, and creates as much interest as ever. This week he introduces the Beautiful Mystic Marie, the real Trilby, and in conjunction with her gives a most weird and mysterious exhibition of mental telepathy, which fairly fascinates the audience. Owing to lack of time on Monday evening, the amusing display of mesmerised subjects had to be omitted, and from the same cause three of the artistes whose names appear on the programme, did not appear. Many other satisfactory items were given, however, amongst which may be mentioned Norman Mills, actor-vocalist; the Sisters Lyle, duettists; the Garden Troupe of graceful dancers; the De Roys, comic conjurers and acrobats; and Helen Henri, vocalist.

PALACE.—Manager and Secretary, Mr. P. Watson; Assistant-Manager, Mr. J. H. Stringer.—A distinct novelty here this week is the sensational shooting act of Col. Bordeverry, the champion rifle and pistol shot, who holds the audience in a state of breathless excitement whilst firing from most difficult positions, and smashing tiny glass globes fixed on his attendant's head, and also elicits great applause by his pianoforte solo performed by means of shooting at small discs connected with the keyboard. The height of effect, however, is reached by the entry of a handsome lady, dressed in elaborate evening dress, which appears to be fastened with black ornaments at various parts. She takes her stand on a pedestal, and at a range of thirty paces the Colonel proceeds to undress her. Shot after shot rings out, and as each ornament is smashed, the dress gradually falls away until the lady is disrobed. Another important item of the programme is Kopski, the eminent pianist, who plays several classical selections, and is enthusiastically received. Chinko, the boy juggler, gives a most expert exhibition of juggling and club swinging, and his lady assistant also contributes a smart turn with the clubs. Lola Dalby sings well and dances gracefully; Fred McArthur cleverly recites in various styles, "The Charge of the Light Brigade"; the Bennecelli Troupe are exceedingly clever gymnasts; Dan Kennedy tells funny stories and sings a comic song; Spring, Spring, and Rosie Carlo present a very smart and daring acrobatic barrel-jumping act; Lilieth Leyton and J. A. Bentham score with their smart little sketch The Order of the Bath; Inez Clough, ballad vocalist, has a good voice; and Hazel Burt sings a dashing military song. A series of pictures conclude a capital show.

MANCHESTER HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. E. P. Morgan.—This week's fare here is excellently varied and well up to the usual standard. Prominent are the Dandies' Entertainers, whose performance is exceedingly bright, refined, and pleasing to the house; and the Florenz Family, eleven in number, who touch the highest mark in difficult acrobats by their novel and daring drawing-room act. Beside these, we have Toile D'Araignee, the Human Spiders, in an electrical gymnastic novelty; Margaret Ashton, a clever American vocal entertainer; the Cee Mee troupe of skilful and comic aerial artistes; Newhouse and Ward, in a clever and humorous cycle act; My Fancy, whose sand dancing is remarkably expert and pleasing; Duncan's Dogs, in a highly trained "fire brigade" act; an illustrated song, "Be Satisfied," sung by the Hippodrome Choristers; and a series of attractive pictures on the American Bioscope.

MARGATE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr. E. Macknight; Business-Manager, Mr. Charles E Hardy.—Miss Winifred Maude and company are occupying the boards here this week with Miss Nita Rae's drama, The Sins of a City. Mr. Horace E. Herbert makes a vigorous and manly hero; and is ably supported by Miss Winifred Maude, as Seaweed, afterwards known as Norah, who acts the rôle with marked ability. Mr. Victor Du Cane, under whose direction the piece is produced, works very hard in the dual-rôle of Joe and Jasper Woodleigh, and in a large measure is responsible for the success. Mr. Leslie Beaufort, as Ralph Blackwater, K.C., the villain of the piece, enacts the part in a powerful manner; and Isaac Levi is capitally played by Mr. Victor Moors. Mr. Ivan Gore displays feeling in the part of Donald McIvor; and Mr. W. E. Simpson is successful as Police Constable Johnson. Miss Marie Lyons does well as Lesbia; and Miss Jenny Hacket, who is responsible for the greater part of the comedy, as Midge, the servant, proves herself a talented comedienne.

MERTHYR TYDFIL.—THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Will Smithson; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Albert J. Lewes.—The attraction this week has been provided by the Osmond Tearle Shakespearian and classical répertoire company, with performances of the legitimate. Virginius was played on Monday, with Mr. Alexander Marsh in the title-rôle, and Miss Carrie Baillie as Virginia—both highly effective representations. On Tuesday The Merchant of Venice was presented, with the talented young actor, Mr. Alexander Marsh, as Shylock, his performance of this difficult part being highly satisfactory. Mr. George Weyland was good as the Duke of Venice; Antonio was well played by Mr. John Nesbitt; and Bassanio and Gratiano found efficient representatives in Mr. Cyril Grier and Mr. John Burton. Miss Carrie Baillie's Portia was graceful and picturesque; and Miss Emma Rainbow gave a capital reading of Nerissa.

MEXBOROUGH.—PRINCE OF WALES' THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. W. H. Melton.—Messrs. Carson and Granville's company is this week presenting the drama, A Modern Adventuress. Mr. L. Aardale gives a good interpretation of Pietro Donelli; Mr. Royce Carlton is a thoughtful Harry Delby; as Wallace Danton, Mr. E. M. Hamilton plays capitally; Mr. E. Roland makes a bluff, good-hearted Yorkshireman of John Crompton; Mr. G. P. Lester is excellent as the detective Walter Beal; and Mr. J. Montgomery does well as Steve Meredith. Miss B. M. Anderson submits a fine rendering of the unscrupulous adventuress, and the Vivette Delby of Miss Alice Defoe is an attractive and highly cultured rendering.

MIDDLESBROUGH. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Proprietors, The Middlesbrough Theatres, Limited; Manager, Mr. Charles Imeson.—The visit of Mr. Cyril Maude's company in Beauty and the Barge has been eagerly looked forward to, and there was a crowded audience on Monday night to witness the initial performance here. Mr. Blake Adams, who appears as the breezy Captain Barley, gives a capital portrayal. As the irritated Major Smedley Mr. Walter Pemberton is laughable, and the same may be said of Mr. Fred Knight's John Dibbs. Mr. Percival Knight does well in the rôle of Herbert Manners; Mr. Charles Goold does not fail to amuse as Tom Codd; Mr. Charles Caffrey and Mrs. J. W. Braithwaite, as the proprietors of the "Old Ship," add much to the fun; and Mr. Fred Lake is successful as Ted. Miss May Fairclough proves a charming Ethel; and Miss Ethel Stalman, Miss Mary Deverell, and Miss Mary Griffiths do excellently well in their respective rôles. The company is an excellent one, and the scenery is pretty. That Brute Simmons proves an interesting curtain riser.

OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors, The Middlesbrough Grand Opera House Company, Limited; Licensee and Manager, Mr. T. Hopcutt.—Mr. Hopcutt is to be congratulated on having secured Mrs. Bandmann-Palmer and her company, whose visits to Middlesbrough are always welcomed. On Monday, when Mary Queen of Scots was produced, the gifted actress as the unfortunate Queen gave a powerful and pathetic portrayal. Miss K. Herbert ably sustained the rôle of Elizabeth; and Mr. F. Skein, as the Earl of Leicester, and Mr. A. St. Aubyn as the Earl of Shrewsbury, did well. Leah, East Lynne, Nell Gwynne, Sapho, and Jane Shore are also in the répertoire.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. Brill; Manager, Mr. J. W. Thornborrow.—Terry and Lambert, in a speciality turn, are great favourites here. Burke, Andrus, and Frisco, in a sketch entitled Trafalgar Square, are extravagantly droll; and Lavers and Lake are amusing in My Landlord. The Sisters Albert dance above the average; the Five Ashleys please in a comedy act entitled Fun in a Laundry; Lord, Murray, and Lord, in an acrobatic sketch, are clever; and Burns and Burtley prove themselves to be smart patterers and dancers. Chris Baker provides an acceptable turn, and the films flashed on the "Bio." are interesting.

OXFORD.—Lessee, Mr. William Peacock; Manager, Mr. William Ainsworth.—The New York Comedy Four, a most amusing quartette, head the bill here. The Pichel Troupe do some astounding feats, and the Bros. Narow are smart comedy cyclists. The other turns are Doris Lillian, comedienne; Craig, Roze, and Craig, gymnasts; Ford Williams, vocalist; the Wedburns, comedians; Ray and Miles, comedians; Alex. Day, vocalist; and the Bioscope completes the bill of fare.

MOTHERWELL.—NEW CENTURY THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. W. Gillespy.—Mr. Chas. A. Chandler is paying a visit here with his company in The Bells of Haslemere. Mr. Leonard Yorke makes a great success as Frank Beresford, while the John Silkstone of Mr. Montague Turner is admirably acted. Mr. C. A. Chandler shows to advantage as Captain Vere; and of equal merit are Mr. Chas. Cecil and Miss Stafford Smith in the parts of Reuben Armstrong and Dorothy Tremble; Miss Florence Chandler, Miss Mary Hadacre, Messrs. A. Tucker, Harry Montague, Charles Clark, Powell James, and Chas. Edwards are also members of a very strong cast.

NEATH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Albert W. James.—The attraction here this week is Mr. Henry Bedford's Company in Gipsy Jack. Mr. Henry Bedford is successful in his manly acting of the title-rôle; Mr. Arthur Tomlin is excellent as the Rev. Francis Harvey; Mr. I. Worth is effective as Mr. Skinner; and Mr. Alec Alexander does well as Gerald Skinner. Miss Gertrude Gilbert is charming as Dorothy Dexter: Miss Bessie Bedford is good as May Harvey; and Hagar, in the hands of Miss Ada Antley, is capital.

NEWCASTLE-ON-TYNE.—GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietors, the Newcastle and Gateshead Theatres, Ltd. Managing-Director, Mr. Sidney Bacon; Acting-Manager, Mr. E. W. Bacon.—Another pantomime, Jack and Jill, an old favourite, is this week appearing here. As principal boy, Miss Frances Earle has delighted everyone with her singing and dancing. Miss Millie Warde makes a charming principal girl, being both a good singer and dancer; Miss Jessie Templeton is a most attractive Page, and shows ability in everything she does. Miss May Sharples submits a clever performance of Fanline; Miss Mabel Higson repeats her delightful impersonation of Jill; but as Jack we have a new artiste in Miss May Merry, whose singing and dancing are excellent. Mr. Leslie Styles as Baron Jollyboy, proves himself an excellent vocalist; Mr. Harry Conlin, who repeats his clever sketch of the Dame, is full of boisterous humour, entirely free from the slightest vulgarity. Freddy French is as funny as ever as Ginger; Mr. Harry Nelson is excellent as Sergeant Spiff; and Corporal Spaff, as played by Mr. Barney Dixon, is most amusing.

TYNE THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Business-Manager, Mr. Fred C. Sutcliffe.—Cinderella is unquestionably creating something like a record at this theatre. At each performance the spacious auditorium is scarcely large enough to accommodate the crowds which seek admission, and even at this date the overwhelming popularity of the sparkling entertainment seems to be still further on the increase. Mr. Mark Sheridan simply revels in the part of the Baron, while his efforts are supported with unflagging zeal by Messrs. Josh. Dixon, Gus Le Clerq, the Egbert Bros. (the cleverest and most amusing of knock-about comedians), Misses Bessie Featherstone, Alice Russon, and Lena Verdi.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. F. Teale Lingham.—There is an abundance of pleasure to be derived from the performance of the pantomime, The Babes in the Wood, which is approaching the end of its lengthy run, the last night being announced for the 25th inst. Unmistakable successes have been scored by Miss Dolly McCalla and Miss Hanid Alexander, the clever and charming representatives of the babes. Miss Maud Prenton, too, has made many friends by the spirit and dash she infuses into her acting and singing as Robin Hood, while Miss Valli Valli is a pleasing representative of Maid Marion. Miss Lottie Govell and Miss Winnie Govell have rendered valuable service. Much pleasure has been afforded by the various interludes provided by The American Comedy Four, and those well-known comedians, Messrs. T. E. Dunville, R. H. Douglass, and the Poluskis maintain their reputation.

PALACE THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. T. W. Rowe.—Messrs. Knight and Denham's company are engaged in giving representations of the famous drama, The Grip of Iron. Mr. Fred Powell continues to give his remarkable impersonation of the strangler. Simmonet, with unabated success, and he is well supported by other members of the company.

PAVILION.—Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford; Resident-Manager, Mr. Will H. Boardman.—Although the programme at the Pavilion this week contains the names of several artistes frequently seen in this city, it still serves to attract large audiences, and it has been found necessary to arrange for matinées each Tuesday and Saturday, the experiment of giving a Saturday afternoon performance being tried last week for the first time with success. Carl Nobel, with his walking and talking ventriloquial figures, is scoring his usual hit, and deserves the numerous encores he receives. Charles Baron introduces his amusing burlesque menagerie, including Leodini, the famous jail breaker dog. This entertainment proves very popular, and is both original and diverting. Alix Lukos is a vocalist with new ideas, and is an excellent actor. The Max Trevally Harley acrobats perform some startling feats, and Josephine Casaboni, danseuse, is most graceful. The Pollo Jerome lady athletes give a trapeze act which meets with much approval; and Nancy St. John (comedienne), Amiel (contortionist), and Reddick Anderson (comedian), also appear.

NEW EMPIRE PALACE. — Resident-Director, Mr. R. Thornton; Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Assisting-Director and Chief of Staff, Mr. Frank Allen; District-Manager, Mr. S. Gething; Resident Manager, Mr. E. Leslie Conroy. —Staley's Novelty Transformation company, introducing Cass, Andrew and Miss Ada remain for another week, and the celerity with which changes of costume and scenery are accomplished is simply astounding A really excellent comedienne and dancer in Miss Ella Retford, repeats a previous success here, her reception being particularly hearty. Horace White introduces much witty patter into his ventriloquial entertainment, and in singing, accompanies himself on the piano. Richard List presents a troupe of performing bears; in the course of the performance there is a wrestling bout between one of the bears and the trainer. A coon artist and dancer of merit is Mark Leslie, and the Labakans display cleverness and humour in their performance as acrobatic grotesques. Eccentric comedy has a capable exponent in Harry Lawson; and the Three Donals, Continental athletes, and Collins and Rice, speciality artists, also contribute successfully. Hugh Stanton's company, in Bargain Mad, brings the entertainment to an enjoyable conclusion.

NEWPORT. — LYCEUM. — Lessee and Manager, Mr. Sidney Cooper.—Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Kimberley's company is here with the drama, Bound to Win, this week. The hero, Harry Lyndon, is admirably portrayed by Mr. F. S. Kimberley; Philip Ayre, the villain, is done full justice to by Mr. F. Strickland; Mr. Sydney Rennef acts cleverly as Squire Forbes; and Mr.

vides an interesting ventriloquial turn. Helen Martin sings some attractive songs; Walter Bellonini, with the aid of his humorous page, does some clever feats of juggling; and Fred Poplar sings comic songs with success. Kahn and Kahn provide a clever display of modern necromancy. Mr. A. C. Lilly and his company, in Drummed Out, complete the bill.

NORTHAMPTON.—OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Resident-Manager, Mr. W. J. Andrews.—Miss Ada Reeve and company are here in Winnie Brooke, Widow. Miss Reeve plays the widow with chic and subtlety, and with grace and feeling that make her impersonation very charming. Mr. Charles Weir, as Dudley Mayne, acts with true artistic feeling; Mr. Harry Halley is very clever as Montagu Brent; Mr. E. Alexander, as Ernest, acquits himself well, and his singing is highly appreciated; Mr. Ulick Burke gives a good impersonation of Toby Blossom, as does Mr. Donald Price-Evans of Hercules Grant. Mr. Frederick Tyrrell, as the Rev. Elihu Garside, is graphic and characteristic; and the Mrs. Elihu Garside of Miss Alice Lawrence, is excellent. Miss Drusilla Wills, as the Laundry Girl, and Mrs. Charles Maltby as Hannah, are most amusing. Mr. Edgar Stevens, Mr. Leon Ashton-Jarry, Miss Cecile Beresford, Miss Ruth Garside, Miss Kitty Clinton, Miss Freda Stanley, Miss Lucienne Meard, and Miss Florence Leigh all gain warm commendation.

PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Fred H. Anderson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Robert Barton.—The Seven Savonas, musical marvels, are very popular here; and the celebrated Elliott Troupe of Cyclists are achieving brilliant success. The coster ditties of Walter Levalle, the refined comedy of Duncan and Morton, whose turn is applauded, the eccentric comic singing and dancing of Arthur Drew, the acrobatic medley of the Woellhafs, the singing and dancing of Miss Jessie Reed, and the powerful singing of Nellie Lucrecee, comedienne, are all appreciated.

NORTH SHIELDS.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Arthur Jefferson; General-Manager, Mr. Horace Lee.—Mr. Charles Chard's company, with the popular pantomime, Goody Two Shoes, has again attracted large audiences here this week. Miss Annie Casey is deservedly appreciated, and Miss Ida Gladstone is cordially received. Mr. Charles Chard is very amusing; Mr. James Kurry has made himself quite a favourite; and Messrs. Bliss and Bliss, the Sisters St. Julian, Messrs. Pete and Juno, the Mikado Troupe of Dancers, and others have all worked hard, and have succeeded in making the production one of the most successful that has visited the town.

CENTRAL PALACE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. William Mould.—The premier position here is held by Mr. and Mrs. Paul Knox, with Down on the Congo, which has been warmly received. Mr. Arthur Albert, comedian, has scored a distinct success; and Messrs. Bishop and Vale, acrobatic comedians and dancers, cause much merriment; Mons. Oswald, equilibrist, is clever; and Miss May Tyler, comedienne and dancer; Mr. A. Duncan, club manipulator; and the Bio-Photoscope, also meet with favour.

NORWICH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Manager, Mr. Fred Morgan.—Mr. Frederick Melville's company is here for the week in The Ugliest Woman on Earth. Mr. Stanley Bedwell is good as Jack Merriman; and Mr. Leyton Cancellor is successful as Hubert Gold; Mr. Charles Barrett deserves praise as Antonio; and Mr. Tubby Edlin excellently represents Herrick; Mr. Fred De Vere efficiently embodied Raggles. Miss Margaret Watson is well received as Morita; Miss Nellie Jackson is very successful as Aggie Brown; Miss Rosabel Dodd deserves praise for the character she represents, whilst Miss Beatrice Homer admirably acts the part of the Veiled Lady.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. E. H. Bostock and F. W. Fitt; Manager, Mr. F. W. Fitt.—The management presents an excellent programme this week, including Herr Fritz, illusionist, who heads the bill, and whose performance is watched with wonderment. The Solari Duo, a couple of ladies, are pleasing in their vocal and instrumental act; Celest, the wire walker and baton manipulator, is an entertaining turn; Harry Morris excels as a comedian and humorous mimic; the Scandia Troupe show ability as gymnasts; Percy Maye, lady impersonator, is well received; Ernest Montefiori and company give a pleasing sketch, The Little Colonel; Smith and Johnson are amusing coloured artistes; and Mr. Albert Voyce's company, in their novel vocal scena, Jack Sheppard, or the Burglary at the Barn, displays pleasing vocal ability. Mr. Austin Rudd's success was so marked last week that he is retained this week.

NOTTINGHAM.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. Howard Finney.—A return visit of The Girl from Kay's has drawn large and appreciative audiences. Mr. H. C. Barry's portraiture of Max Hoggenheimer is so amusing and clever that the laughter ripples along whenever he occupies the stage. He is capitally seconded by Mr. Fred. Rolph, as the Hall Porter. Mr. Garnet Wilson plays the lover nicely, and sings with taste, and Mr. Leslie Roy Cathie well sustains the part of Percy Fitzthistle. Miss Nancy Hervyn acts daintily and discreetly as Winnie Harborough, and Miss Rita Leonhardt supplies a charming impersonation of Norah Chalmers. A pert Ellen is seen in Miss Mabel Thornton, and Miss Mabel Champion earns distinction as Mrs. Chalmers. There is some graceful dancing, and the staging and dressing are excellent.

GRAND THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Charles P. Cooke.—Messrs. Dottridge and Longden's company is presenting the pantomime, The Forty Thieves, this week. The staging and dressing are worthy of the highest praise, and Mr. Adderley Howard is to be congratulated on the smoothness of the performance. The Ali Baba of Mr. James Danvers is, as may be expected, exceedingly good, and this clever comedian brings out the laughter at every point. Mr. Ernie Myers, as Hassarac, is a continual source of amusement, and he deservedly merits his enthusiastic reception. Miss Dolly Elsworthy makes a sprightly exponent of Ganem, and also sings tastefully. Miss Lily Lonsdale, as Morgiana, is altogether a winsome and attractive artiste, and her vocalism wins the heartiest plaudits. As Captain and Lieutenant of the Forty, Misses Cissie Kingsley and Ada Beaumont work with the happiest results, and the part of Zorilda is pleasingly taken by Miss May Fallowfield. Mention should also be made of Messrs. Cliff Dover, Forsyth Bruce, Phil Leonard, and James Dubois, the last-named being seen in a smart rope performance. Specialities are also introduced by the Reed Oetzman Troupe, in the sketch, En Voyage, and the Ichmed Ibrahim trope of Bedouin Arabs, in an acrobatic act.

KING'S THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. A. W. Bull.—Mrs. T. Morton Powell and company are appearing here in a new drama, entitled A Woman's Devotion. Mrs. Powell gives an excellent portrayal of Gilberte le Grande, her spirited acting receiving the warmest approval. Miss Maude S. Drewry plays Maisie Loyale daintily, and with touching pathos. Miss Alwynne Ermon essays the unthankful rôle of Cora Eversleigh, making the callousness of this character stand out in no uncertain manner, and the easy nonchalance of the villainous Philip Dangerfield is capitally shown by Mr. Frank R. Robertson. Mr. George Davis acts Richard Chesney in an acceptable way, and Mr. W. B. Somerville is easy and natural as Paul Eversleigh. Mr. Edward Mervyn is quickly a favourite as Bob Savage, and Miss Dot Seilby satisfactorily impersonates Mrs. Savage. Mr. E. T. Kisby (Reginald Montmorency), Mr. Henry Cameron (François), and Miss Alice Buckland (Kitty) supply the lighter vein.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Managing Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting Manager, Mr. Chas. H. Bowmaker.—The smiling face and lively "patter" of Fanny Fields ensure her a warm welcome here, and merriment is in full swing while she occupies the stage. The vocalism of Harriett Vernon wins the heartiest plaudits from all parts of the house. The Klein Family of cyclists are seen in some new and dexterous feats, which gain them an unmistakable tribute. The mimicry of O'Gust is smart and clever, and he fully merits his enthusiastic reception. The boxing sketch of the Brothers Horne is so exceedingly funny that it never seems to pall. Carrie Laurie's Juveniles again submit their charming entertainment, with the happiest results. A juggling act by the Alphonso Trio cleverly combines skill with humour. Ethel Ra-Leslie, a daintily-attired character vocalist, sings with spirit, and Chas. Deane is well rewarded for his song, "What you can do with a penny." The Bohemians, musical and comedy artistes, close a good all-round programme.

NUNEATON.—PRINCE OF WALES'S (Theatres and Entertainments Co., Ltd.)—Managing-Director, Mr. A. F. Cross; Acting-Manager, Mr. Walter J. R. Beyon.—On Monday and Tuesday, Mr. C. W. Somerset's company presented here The Sorrows of Satan, which was received with much appreciation. Mr. Somerset, as Prince Lucio, was powerful and convincing; Mr. Talbot Homewood made a good Paul Carruthers; Mr. Richard Norton was well suited in the part of Crafton Lyle; Lord Burrows found an apt exponent in Mr. Keith Fraser; The Countess was capably represented by Miss Laura Clements; and as Lady Delila, Miss Leah Marlborough displayed considerable ability. Miss Geraldine Somerset was quite a favourite as Jack. Miss Agnes Russell gave a refined and pathetic reading of the part of Margaret Foster, and as Mary, Miss Daisy O'Neil was very winsome. As Midnight Chimes was announced for Thursday.

OLDHAM.—EMPIRE, LIMITED.—Manager, Mr. Ernest Dottridge; Acting-Manager, Mr. Hulme.—A hearty welcome was accorded The New Barmaid on Monday by a crowded audience, with Miss Nance O'Niel in the title-rôle. Mr. Joseph B. Montague, as Bertie White, kept the house in excellent humour; Mr. Leslie Austin, as Capt. Lovebury sang very well; Mr. Alexander Loftus, as William White, played in excellent style. As Colonel Claymore, Mr. Arthur Rodney was very effective. Miss Violet Osmund, as the lady journalist, was charmingly effective; Miss Jean Gilmour was stately as Lady Moulton; and Miss Hilda Blanche capital as the old barmaid.

GAIETY, LIMITED.—Manager, Mr. E. J. Dexter.—The attractions here this week includes Harry Tate's company in a comical sketch, Motoring; Zanna and Mdlle. de Louie, in their refined act, Gymnastics on the Lawn; Geo. Trusty, comedian; the Lovelaces (Jack and Lucy), in their illustrated song; Whimsical Musical Wilbert, with his clever musical entertainment; Miss Gracie Logan, serio and dancer; and Miss Florence Carlow, vocalist. The Bioscope is up-to-date.

THEATRE ROYAL, LIMITED.—Manager, Mr. Ernest Dottridge; Acting-Manager, Mr. George Knowles.—An exceptionally good programme includes Juma's Octoroons, the miniature minstrels; Whit Cunliffe, a favourite comedian; the Levinos, in their act, The Rival Arts; Harry Zetter, comedian and grotesque dancer; Clown Ferreros, who gives a clever musical entertainment, assisted by his wonderful dog; the Resna Trio, equilibrists and tumblers; Dainty Maggie Rimmer, comedienne and dancer; the Raies, graceful dancers; and Charlie Craston, comedian.

OXFORD.—NEW THEATRE.—Managing Director, Mr. Thomas Lucas, J.P.; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. C. Dorrill.—The Carl Rosa Opera company is this week paying its extremely welcome annual visit; opening on Monday with Tannhauser. Herr Julius Walther, as Tannhauser, sang magnificently, and acted with real power and artistic finish; Herr Charles Victor was an extremely satisfactory Wolfram; Mr. Arthur Winchworth played the dignified Landgrave to the life, and sang effectively; and Mr. Edward Davies scored a complete success as Walther. Madame Sobrino was successful as Elizabeth; Madame Augusta Renard, as Venus, used her splendid voice to advantage; and Miss Ethel Pender-Cudlip rendered the small part of the shepherd-boy prettily. The chorus sang finely throughout, and the orchestra did real justice to the music. On Tuesday night, Faust was performed, the orchesta being conducted by Mr. Walter Van Noorden.

EMPIRE THEATRE. — Lessee and Manager, Mr. Albany Ward; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. G. P. Wells.—Pantomime still rules here, and this week Mr. Herbert Barr's company is here with Aladdin. Mr. Eric Leslie sustains the Emperor of China with commendable ability; while Mr. Herbert Grapho is full of life as Abanazer; Mr. Carl Bernardo makes a capital Yu-Go-Hang; and Mr. George Harvie is good as Washee; Mr. Billy Jackson does his work well as Widow Twankey. Miss Kitty Clayton is successful as Aladdin; Miss Ethel Condor is well-placed as Pekoe; and Miss Nellie Dyson makes a charming Princess Badroulbador. Excellent specialities are introduced by Ada Majutti, the flexible Venus, Travella, Marti and Julietta, Grapho and Jackson, some comic juggling by Bernardo being applauded. The Empire Troupe of acrobatic dancers are well received.

PAISLEY.—PAISLEY THEATRE.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. H. Savile.—The Orchid, which is certainly enjoying all the success which its merits warrant, is being presented by Mr. George Dance's company under the direction of Mr. W. E. Wilson. Keen enjoyment is realised by Mr. Charles R. Walenn's highly characteristic impersonation of Meakin; to Mr. Ernest Darrell belongs much credit for his carefully studied portraiture of Mr. Aubrey Chesterton; Mr. G. Davy Burnaby displays excellent artistic qualities in his depiction of the Hon. Guy Scrymgeour; and Mr. Edmund Hollick submits a clever study of Dr. Ronald Faussett. The Lady Violet Anstruther of Miss Ethel Bryant is charmingly attractive, if only on account of its winsomeness and delightful simplicity, whilst as Josephine Zaccary Miss Irene Desmond is fascinating, piquant, and debonair. Miss Sylvia de Lacy as Zelie Rumbert is excellent; Miss Chrissie Ralland makes a vivacious Thisbe; Miss Madge Lucas displays considerable skill in her rendering of the rôle of Caroline Vokins; and Miss Ida Chichester is a becomingly dignified Countess Anstruther. Mr. Edmund Page is distinctly funny and clever as Comte Raoul de Cassignat, whilst his seconds are faithfully portrayed by Mr. Colin Campbell as M. Merignac and Mr. Cecil Frere as M. Frontenbras. Mr. Arthur P. Hemsley is capital, and dances well in his assumption of Zaccary, and other parts are satisfactorily played by the general members of the corps.

EMPIRE.—Lessee, Mr. J. H. Savile; Manager, Mr. Delno Fritz.—The star turn this week is Charles Morritt, who mystifies with his startling illusions. Others contributing to an excellent programme are Madge White, serio; Andy Fagan, comedian and dancer; Charles Clifford, harp soloist and humorist vocalist; Sam Thomson, with his comical clerks; and the Wonderful Blind Man, in marvellous feats of memory and calculation. There are also the Empire animated pictures, with some latest films.

PERTH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr. J. H. Savile; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Aldridge.—Mr. Arthur Hart's company is here this week in the comedy opera My Lady Molly. On Miss Reydon Dallas devolves the title-rôle, and to her marked ability the success of the piece owes much. No less conspicuous is Miss Enid Alexander in the part of Alice Coverdale, and the vocal talent of both is appreciated; Miss Annie West makes an admirable Hester; Miss Belle Gray is well placed as Mdlle. Mirabeau, her singing being highly appreciated; Mr. Reginald Cooper and Mr. Herbert Ranson are excellent exponents of Captain Harry Romney and Lionel Bland respectively, their vocal efforts being much admired; Messrs. Gordon Begg, Joseph Tipler, and Walter Wright faithfully depict the parts of Sir Miles Coverdale, Reuben Oates, and Judge Romney; Mr. H. Walsh is amusing as Mickey O'Dowd; Mr. F. Dorman as head groom and Miss Mary Glanbran as the housekeeper at the inn contribute ably towards the success achieved.

PETERBOROUGH. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Manager, Mr. A. Darville Vernon.—Messrs. E. Marris and H. W. Kirby's company is fulfilling a week's engagement here in the pantomime Dick Whittington. There is the usual amount of fun and jollity, and some of the latest songs, with some clever dancing, make up a capital show. Miss Winifred Preece puts plenty of life into the part of Dick; Miss Mamie Iris is pleasing as Alice; Miss Cordelia Knight makes a capital Melodia; the Cat is excellently played by Mr. J. R. Tyrrell; Alderman Fitzwarren is judiciously presented by Mr. Dickie Clare; and the fun is well maintained by Messrs. Ryde and Beeman, as McFlip and O'Flop. Mr. W. H. Kirby is quaintly funny as Jack; and Mr. H. Griffiths is an amusing Betsy. Specialities are given by Miss Lillian Sirvado, in a graceful trapeze act; the Three Rays; Madame Iris, sand dancer; The Dunlops, comedy dancers; Mr. A. Griffiths, walking speciality; and the Two Balzens, Japanese top-spinners.

PLYMOUTH.. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Lessee and Manager, Mr. C. F. Williams; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Langdon Lee.—The Plymouth Dramatic Association is appearing here this week in Jim the Penman.

GRAND THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. C. F. Williams; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. Williams.—The late Wilson Barrett's drama, The Sledge Hammer, is being staged here this week by a company which does full justice to the piece. Mr. W. V. Garrod as Everard Derrick makes a manly and popular hero, and some fine acting is also forthcoming from Mr. Alfred Northey and Mr. Charles Halling. Mr. Lawrence Konrad intelligently plays John Marlo; and Mr. F. Litchfield makes a typical British workman. An emotional actress of great skill is Miss Bertha Kingston, the heroine, and unstinted applause is nightly secured by Miss Fanny Thorne. Other successes are scored by Miss Ellaline Thorne, Mr. F. Dallas, Mr. L. St. Clair, and Mr. Walter Vincent.

METROPOLE THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Arthur Carlton.—Mr. J. Malvern's company is doing good business here this week with I Defy the World. Mr. R. Fortescue, as Leon Darville, acts impressively, and considerable histrionic ability is displayed by Mr. R. Vane (Count de Beaulieu) and Mr. H. C. Hunt (Andre). The heroine is impersonated by Miss T. St. Albans, who, together with Miss Maud Malvern (Blanche Darville), does well. Praise is also due to Miss Flo Bevan.

PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Managing-Directors, Messrs. Livermore Bros.; Manager, Mr. J. Field.—An exceptionally attractive programme here this week includes the Szarvasi-Ferenz Troupe of Hungarian singer, dancers, and acrobats, who submit a most entertaining and wonderful turn. Gilbert Girard's remarkable mimicry of animals, instruments, etc., arouses much enthusiasm. A funny couple are the Leotard Bros., whose balancing and hat throwing tricks deserve warm praise. Quaint songs are amusingly rendered by George Formby, and the Smythsons appear with success in the sketch, The Lie-Alarm. Miss Edith Grey and her coons, Childie Stuart, and animated pictures, complete a capital bill-of-fare. The matinée this week in aid of the Soldiers' and Sailors' Help Society was kindly assisted by all the above-mentioned artistes, whilst the Palace Trio, Messrs. H. Grigg (conductor of the orchestra), F. Gill and C. J. Jane, contributed a pleasing musical selection. Mr. John Field, the manager, is to be congratulated on the success which attended his efforts.

PONTYPOOL. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Lessees, Messrs. C. and J. R. Poole; Resident-Manager, Mr. J. H. Stephens.—Messrs. Poole's popular myriorama is attracting crowded houses here this week. Interesting scenes from the arena of the war in the East are presented, together with a series of the latest animated photos. The programme is enlivened with an up-to-date variety organisation. The Anndale Quartette deserve special mention, A Night on the Tiles being excruciatingly funny; Mons. Henri, the gymnastic wonder, performs the feat of balancing a full-sized dog-cart on his chin; the Almo-Trio also performs some wonderful feats on the horizontal bar.

PONTYPRIDD.—ROYAL CLARENCE THEATRE. — Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr. Milton Bode; Business-Manager, Mr. Rex. Dooley.—The attraction this week is Miss Olga Audre. Messrs. Travis Green, and Arthur Hinton's company in the play entitled When a Man Hates. Mr. Arthur Hinton's assumption of Professor Vigo is full of dramatic grip. The peculiar character of Paul is admirably portrayed by Mr. Gerald Byrne; Mr. Graham Arthurs submits an excellent rendering of Lawrence Hastings; the comic element is cleverly introduced by Mr. Tom Taylor as Peter Simple; and he is ably seconded by Miss Marie E. Robertson as Dolly Dimple; Miss Leila Zillwood displays ability as Olga Gwynne; and Miss Marion Forrester enhances her reputation as the white angel.

PORTH.—POOLE'S OPERA HOUSE.—Manager, Mr W. Bynorth.—A return visit is being paid here by Messrs. Mitchelson and Fineberg's company in The Traitor. Mr. John C. Carlyle displays ability as Prince Rudolph and Colonel Nervi; Mr. Stephen E. Scanlan gives a masterly portrayal of the title part; Miss Isabel Hunt plays remarkably well as Lieutenant Nicholas; Mr. Edward Swinton as General Hertz, and Mr. Edward Lowri as Soff, contribute much amusement; Countess Zicka is cleverly played by Miss Frances White; Mr. T. W. Hurst is exceedingly good as Captain Ross; Miss Hettie Senior gives a powerful rendering of Elsie Duprey; Zula is meritoriously played by Miss Ruth Shepherd; Miss Anena Walton deserves mention as Cen-Cen; and Mr. Frank Sutherland does well as Jack Boult.

PORTSMOUTH. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Licensee and Manager, Mr. J. W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr. Armstrong Bell.—Mrs. Lewis Waller, with her excellent all-round company, is here, presenting during the week Zaza, Vilma, and an original comedy, Miss Jack. On Monday, Zaza was the fare, and Mrs. Lewis Waller, in the title-rôle, gave a finished performance. Cascart was ably portrayed by Mr. Edmund Waller; Mr. Eric Mayne gave a spirited and careful interpretation of Bernard Dufresne; Mr. Edgar J. Coyne made the best use of his opportunities as the Duc de Brissac; Rosa Bonne was capitally played by Miss Kate Kearney; Florianne was well taken by Miss Rosemary Rees; and the Nathalie of Miss Minnie Rayner was very good. Miss Maudie Ray made a sweet little Toto.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Licensee and Manager, Mr J. W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. E. Agate.—The Convent Bell, or The Secret of Sinners' Point, is occupying the boards here this week. Mr. Howell Webb's company doing the drama full justice. Mr. Stanley Carlton, as the minstrel hero, Philip Vautier, gave a capital personation, and sang his songs well; Mr. Oliver Birrell was the embodiment of a stage scoundrel of the deepest dye; Pickle Podds, in the hands of Mr. Howell Webb, created much amusement; and Mr. Teddy Myles, who was responsible for Jean, a page boy made the most of a laughable part. Miss Ruby Maude, as the afflicted heroine, Marguerite Courier, made a good impression by her acting; and Miss Emily Hubby played the part of Christine Valgrave in a highly creditable manner.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Secretary, Mr. W. Pratt.—An exceptionally good programme is provided here this week. Topping the bill is Professor Inman Hockinge, the American hypnotist, electrician, scientist, and healer, who apparently does some marvellous cures. Selbo, club juggler, is clever; Johnny Dwyer, a versatile comedian, sings some capital songs; Kitty Clover and Co. are still here in a laughable sketch, entitled Mistaken Identity; the Three Laurels, with their original speciality on the ping-pong table, are responsible for some able acrobatic work; and Beatrice Renée, soubrette, is well received. Also appearing are the Sisters Reveri, vocal duettists; Ellis and Watts, dancing experts; and Harry Luck, eccentric.

PRESTON.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager, Mr. Stephen Pritt.—Mr. Geo. Dance's principal company is presenting The Country Girl here this week. As Geoffrey Challoner, Mr. Cyril Thompson gives a manly impersonation, and sings expressively; Sir Joseph Verity has a capital representative in Mr. H. C. Morton; Mr. St. John Hamund commendably depicts the Rajah, rendering his songs in clever style; Douglas Verity is creditably embodied by Mr. Willie Hartill; Mr. Scrope Quentin is well suited as Lord Anchester; and Mr. Johnny Osborne deservedly scores a success as Barry. Miss Maud Harvey, as Marjory Joy, Miss Nina Carlton as Princess Melaneh; Miss Addie Lennard, as Madame Sophie; and Miss May Glen as Nan; display ability in acting, singing, and dancing. The chorus contributes appreciably to the excellence of the performance, and the orchestra, under the direction of Mr. Otto Manns, must be accorded praise.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. Sawyer and Woodruff.—Messrs. Dottridge, Longden, and Livesey's company is appearing here this week in The Village Blacksmith. Mr. Sam Livesey makes a very powerful John Strong, the Village Blacksmith. The villainy of Captain Leo is well portrayed by Mr. Joseph Carter; Mr. Fred. Wells depicts Lucas Marlow in a praiseworthy manner; Mr. George Campbell evokes much laughter as Billy Twig; Mr. Thos. E. Marshall is a clever impersonator of Jeremiah Parkins; Little Christobel, as Harry Strong, deserves much credit. Miss Laura Walker displays great ability in the rôle of Kate Strong; Miss Maggie Edwards is a successful Ruth Parkins; Sal Parkins is ably presented by Mrs. T. C. Livesey; Miss Edith Giddens is a very good Martha Mopps. The drama is well staged.

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Sons; Resident-Manager, Mr. Clement Freeman.—At the head of the bill here this week are De Gracia's baby elephants, and their performance is very clever and amusing. James De Voye's educated pony shows almost human intelligence. The Three Romas are excellent in their gladiatorial feats. Two enjoyable musical turns are contributed by Harland and Rollinson, and Stidder, respectively. The Lavelles are smart comedy acrobats. Post Mason, American baritone, renders his songs with success. Fred. Horsfall acquits himself well as a double-voiced vocalist, and Emmie White is a praiseworthy comedienne and dancer.

RAMSGATE.—AMPHITHEATRE.—Proprietor, Lord George Sanger; General-Manager, Mr. Henry Bowman.—Dyson's Gipsy Choir and Diorama fill the bill at this place of amusement. The various vocal and instrumental artistes contribute items in a manner which calls for distinct praise, while the dioramic pictures of places of interest all over the world are quite works of art. Much amusement is afforded by the exhibition of some clever humorous animated photographs.

RAWTENSTALL.—GRAND THEATRE. — Co-proprietors and Lessees, Messrs. W. Johnson and J. Potter; General-Manager, Mr. J. Potter; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Ellis Miller.—A hearty welcome was on Monday accorded to Mr. Peter Thompson's fine pantomime company, in Babes in the Wood. As Robin Hood Miss Maude Beaumont makes a great hit, being a prime favourite; Miss Molly Hackett makes a charming Maid Marion; as the wicked Baron Mr. J. Templar Ellis is distinctly good; and the Danbys are intensely comical as the rumans. Mr. Fred Danvers keeps the house in roars with his amusing gag; the Sisters Grahame are good as the two babes, their musical turns being admirable; Miss Katie Lever is clever as Bluebell; Miss Fanny Humber is a smart Will Scarlett; and the same can be said of Miss Nellie Hilton, Miss Minnie Moran, and Miss Rosa Walmsley in their respective characters. The specialities include N. T. Kioto, a Japanese, who gives a startling performance as an equilibrist; the Yankee Quartet, Little Rene, and Miss Fanny Humber. The costumes are charming, and the scenery is considerably above the average.

READING.—ROYAL COUNTY THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Milton Bode; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. E. Barnett; Secretary, Mr. Reginald Taylor.—Mr. Mouillot's principal company is appearing this week in A Message from Mars. The part of Horace Parker is taken in powerful style by Mr. Rawson Buckley; the Messenger is impressively represented by Mr. William H. Brougham; Miss May Saker plays artistically as Minnie Templar, and the other parts are well impersonated. The play is excellently mounted, and the electric effects are well worked.

BOSTOCK and WOMBWELL'S menagerie was here on Saturday and Monday, and attracted a large number of visitors.

ROCHDALE.—NEW THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing Director, Mr. W. Robinson; General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling; Resident-Manager, Mr. Charles Clucas.—Dottridge and Longden's pantomime, Aladdin, opened on Monday evening to a house packed in all parts. Some very pretty music is given, and the dresses and scenic effects are exceptionally bright and tasteful. Mr. Fred Cary is a host in himself as Abanazar; Miss Phyllis Grey sings sweetly as Rhadianta. The title-rôle is filled with vivacity by Miss Mimi Fisher; Miss Harriet Fawn charmingly acts the part of the Princess; Mr. Fred Graham is amusing as Widow Twankey; and Mr. John Donald is a most imposing Emperor. Miss Leno Veere as Prince Hi-to-nee; and Miss Cassie Walmer as Loo-Liah-Tee, are both favourites with the audience. The Bros. Brooks cause much amusement as the two policemen; and Keith and Merson do some clever acrobatic business; and Les Belles Americaines execute a series of smart acrobatic dancing.

CIRCUS AND HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. Smith and Lee; Business-Manager, Mr. S. L. Lee.—Ralph Pringle's North American Animated Photo Co. is fulfilling a second week's engagement here. An entire new series of pictures are shown, one illustrating the life of a collier proving most interesting. Baroni and Kemp, quick-change artistes; Miss Le Clair, vocalist; and Prof. Lehman, shadowgraphist, create a diversion greatly appreciated.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES. — Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Thomas Hargreaves; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Hargreaves.—Adams and Ward, comedy acrobats, in addition to being amusing, are clever in their feats of agility; Will Dalton, comedian, causes roars of laughter with his impersonations of a country yokel; Annie Cohen, comedienne; Mary Young, ballad vocalist; Stanley and Vandyke, comedians; Len Lever, coloured coon; Alec Thomas, comedy artiste; and The Empire Bioscope, with The Lost Child, provide a capital evening's entertainment.

RUGBY.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, The Rugby Theatre and Entertainments Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. A. F. Cross; Acting-Manager, Mr. E. Parker-Royston.—On Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday, As Midnight Chimes was presented by Messrs. Marris and Bickford's company. Mr. Melville Bickford as Luke Dezzard gave an able rendering; Mr. Frank E. Petley is manly and effective as Dave Stannard; as Ezra Lamble, Mr. Herbert Belmore made a success; and Mr. James Salter caused a lot of amusement by his acting as Tat Sparmin. Miss Gertrude Rice as Mary Stannard submitted a good representation; and Miss Nita Imeson was a vivacious Suzette.

FOSSETT'S HIPPODROME.—The programme this week is augmented by several items which are much appreciated. Mr. R. Fossett is excellent in his Cowboy act, on the flying steed; Miss Emmie in her wire-walking act is very successful; Miss Nellie Fossett in her jumping act is very capable; and the Senorita Frascuelo gives a clever exhibition. Messrs. Robert and Thomas Fossett in their double jockey act repeat their former success; and Miss Fossett in her trick act on a barebacked horse is responsible for a fine performance. Mons. Otto in his hand-balancing and Arab tumbling is very clever; and Charlie Beckett is as good as usual. Topsy, the performing elephant, is a good illustration of animal training; and the comic sketch, Rejected Remounts, causes a deal of amusement.

RUNCORN.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr. H. W. Caddick.—A Wrecker of Men is the attraction this week. The company are under the direction of Mr. Alfred Maurice, and the play has met with an enthusiastic reception. As Risca Mallison, Miss Hilda Hatton is effective; Miss Alice de Lacey plays the part of Doris Melville in a charming manner, and soon wins the sympathy of the audience; Miss Kitty Melville excites much laughter, and is deservedly applauded. As Jim Murley, Mr. W. F. Travers plays with force, and looks the burglar to the life. In the sympathetic part of Guise Strange, Mr. Alfred Maurice is excellent. The scenery deserves special mention.

SALFORD.—PRINCE OF WALES.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. E. B. Goulden; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harold Goulden.—Mr. Robert Perris's company, in the American drama, A Fight for Millions, with its many exciting incidents, drew a large house on Monday, when Mr. Robert Perris kept the audience in excellent humour as the tramp, Willie Neverwork. Miss Eva Purcell was in every way suited to the charming character of Pearl Rivers. Richard Dudley, the villain, was well sustained by Mr. Horace Booth. The hero, Tom Manley, was capably played by Mr. Vincent W. Carlyle, and Miss Florence Lovell presented Mrs. Hudson Rivers with advantage. Much droll business was contributed by Mr. Karl H. Edwards as Solomon Moses, Mr. Nicholas Conway as Harold Hobbs, and Miss Lottie Pearce as Betty, and also as Mag Brady. The deserted wife and child, Helen Dudley and little Madge, were well portrayed by Miss Elma C. Turner and Miss Dora Lyons.

REGENT THEATRE OF VARIETIES, LIMITED.—Licensee, Mr. Wilberforce Turner; Secretary and Manager, Mr. Frederick Yates. — Much pleasure was evidently given by Mr. and Mrs. Edward H. Lucas on Monday, when they gave several scenes from Dickens, and Matt Wilkinson and company kept the house in roars with The Registry Office. Bob Hamilton also caused much laughter with his songs. The Brothers Edgar, comedians; Leah Arden, ballad vocalist; Stave, a comical musical comedian; John Callan, American comedian and dancer; Alskarno Trio, comedy acrobats; Edie St. Clair, serio and dancer; and Fentoni, sand and smoke cartoonist and paper manipulator, also contributed to a capital programme, which ended with some amusing animated pictures.

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy B. Broadhead; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr. J. B. Taylor.—The principal contributors to an enjoyable bill this week are Ford and Hanson, American musical millionaires; H. O. Wills, with his droll songs; Morgan, Palmer, and Co., in the comedy sketch, All About Nothing; Moto, Continental eccentric musician and comedian; Alfred Seigel, middleweight wrestler; Bros. Hampson, patter vocalists and smart dancers; Flying Zedoras, trapeze and versatile gymnasts; Ralston and Francis, in a nautical musical scena; Stanert and Yondi, comedy and musical act; and Johnson and Pelham (Kid and Masie), American novel speciality artists, also give good turns. The animated pictures contribute to the pleasure of the entertainment.

PRINCE OF WALES'S THEATRE.—Lessee and Manageress, Mrs. J. W. Gordon.—When Woman Hates is being presented here. Miss Elaine Verner is particularly clever in the rôle of Cora Daintry; and Miss Ada Ryder, as Marie Rokeby, achieves success. Mr. William Yates does excellently as Gen. Sir Henry Rokeby; and Mr. Albert Guyon acquits himself with credit as Godfrey Lawton. Mr. Eric Campbell, as Bill, is very amusing; and Mr. Will Percy, Mr. Murray Yorke, and Mrs. Edgar Colona are responsible for much fun. Miss Louise Brandon and Little Vera also deserve commendation for their acting. The scenery and effects are admirable.

PALACE.—Manager, Mr. Chas. Marte.—The Five Sisters Warwick, clever trick bicyclists, top the list here. Millie Engler and Co. score in a farcical sketch, Beauty and the Burglar; and the Four Estrellas do a very fine acrobatic turn; Orpheus gives his interesting musical act, and is as popular as ever. Others who put in good work are C. H. Baldur, the Sisters Caselli, Flo Penley and George English, and the Sisters Hall.

SOUTHEND-ON-SEA.—EMPIRE THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. W. Marlow, sen.; Manager, Mr. W. Marlow, jun.—This week's attraction is provided by Mr. Harry Firth's grand pantomime entitled Cinderella, which is being presented in a very successful manner. It is excellently mounted, and the singing and dancing both are good. Mr. E. Wilson is well suited as Baron Pebbly-Beach; Miss Madge Osmond gives a good portrayal of Cinderella; Messrs. J. Binns and H. Haines as Butterina and Margerina respectively, make two humorous characters; Pimple finds an able impersonator in Mr. Fred Park; Miss Dora Denmark as Prince Perfect is pleasing; Dandini is well taken by Miss Ethel Mohr, who possesses an exceedingly fine contralto voice; Messrs. W. Marsh and W. Morris are equally good as Ping and Pong; Miss Maude Francis deserves mention as Dorothy; Cinderella's Godmother is well presented by Miss Dot Beresford; and Miss Edith Kingston gives prominence to Crystal, the Fairy of the Slipper. Miss Clarisse Mignon gives some clever banjo selections; Lieut. Charles Valvo is well received in his ventriloquial entertainments; and Mr. Fred Earle, as an illusionist and card manipulator, is very smart.

SOUTHPORT.—OPERA HOUSE. — General Manager, Mr. Alfred Hemming.—The local lovers of Grand Opera are this week favoured by a visit from the Moody-Manners principal opera company. This combination of high-class artistes is always sure of a hearty reception, and a brilliant performance of Tannhäuser was given on the opening night. Madame Fanny Moody, in the rôle of Elizabeth, played with impressive feeling, her singing being superb. Miss Toni Seiter as Venus and Miss D. Eshelby as the shepherd were both meritorious impersonations. Mr Joseph O'Mara, who was in excellent voice, sustained the title-rôle very successfully; Mr. Charles Magrath gave a capital portrayal of the Land grave; Wolfram had a strikingly effective representative in Mr. William Dever; and the orchestra under the conductorship of Herr Eckhold, performed admirably. The programme for the week includes Faust, Carmen, Lohengrin, La Traviata and the Bohemian Girl.

PALACE OF VARIETIES. — Lessees and Managers Messrs. Murray King and Clark.—For what is locally known as the "Waterloo" week, the management has provided a very attractive bill of fare at this popular place of entertainment. Miss Kitty Loftus, who represented the star turn, was specially engaged for the occasion, and delighted a large audience by her vivacious and clever rendering of her various numbers. The programme also includes Speedwell, the demon portrait painter; Harry Phydora, comedian; Dorothy Frostick, comedienne and dancer; Wyotti, quaint comedy juggler; Percy Farrimond, the singing collier; Mr. and Mrs. Walter Casson in their sketch, Honours are Easy; and the Haydn Comedy Four.

SOUTH SHIELDS.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees and Managers, Messrs. J. and F. Coulson.—Mr. Louis Calvert's company is here in the new play Sunday. Miss Jean Stirling Mackinlay's charming presence and delicate treatment of the title-rôle greatly enhances the performance. Mr. J. Edward Pearce gives a capital embodiment of Colonel Brinthorpe; Mr. Ernest A. Douglass acts quietly and ably as the genial Tom Oxley. Mr. Whitford Kane appears with striking effect as Jacky, and the remaining boys, Towzer, Davy, and Lively respectively, have equally admirable exponents in Messrs. Frederick Powell, John H. Manley, and T. Norman Walter. Mr. Charles B. Vaughan advantageously sustains Arthur Brinthorpe. Miss Helen MacGregor is an acceptable Nun, and Miss Elizabeth Watson is a distinctly pleasing Mrs. Neasby.

EMPIRE PALACE THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Richard Thornton; General Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Resident-Manager, Mr. Geo. F. Thompson.—The bill is headed by the Phillipi Bros. in their farcical absurdity, Shunting; A Musical Trip Round the World, by Rackett and Hazard, receives hearty appreciation; Katie Holloway, a bright comedienne, sings a taking coon song; and the American Bioscope is again an addition to the programme. The Four Royal Welshmen constitute an agreeable glee party, Martin and Quigg are funny comedians, and some capable dancing is furnished by Geo. Tustin. Harry Clifford, comedian, and Geo. Adams, baritone vocalist, are both successful.

TIVOLI.—Proprietors and Managers, Councillor J. K. Hall and Mr. Jos. Sweeney.—Devoy, Hurst, and Ricks, a burlesque trio, are exceedingly amusing, and an interesting film entitled "The Stowaway" is shown by the Royal Italian Bioscope. A varied entertainment is introduced by Speeks and Thorne. Others appearing are La Belle Rosa, Moyan and Merle, Edie Endon, James Lowery, and Collin and Irene.

SPENNYMOOR.—CAMBRIDGE THEATRE.—Lessee Mr. Harding Thomas; Resident-Manager, Mr. Herbert Vere.—Pantomime is once again seen on the boards of the Cambridge. This time Mr. Peter Eland's company is delighting local patrons with Little Red Riding Hood. Miss Dollie Hook is handsome, cheery, and vivacious as Robin, and is ably seconded by Miss Rito Vincent as Bluebell, who sings "Navaho" in a pretty style. Miss Jennie Whitehead makes an attractive Fairy, her beautiful voice being heard to great advantage in "Excelsior," which she sings in conjunction with Mr. W. Raynor, the Wolf. Red Riding Hood is nicely acted by Miss Mabel Manley; as Widow Bailey Mr. George Royle is the soul of mirth; Mr. H. Flockton Foster is a great success as Sir Seely Chump; and Mr. Charlie Howarth is funny as John William. Miss Watson and Mr. Eastwood render "My Pretty Japanese" exceedingly well, and Master Lennie Ankers is also very good as P.C. J9. As a juggler Mr. Syd Mountford contributes a clever turn.

ST. HELENS.—THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors, The St. Helens Theatre, Limited; General-Manager, Mr. McLeod Loader. — Mr. Frank Macnaghten's pantomime, Robinson Crusoe, is meeting with gratifying success here this week. The title-rôle finds a delightful representative in Miss Louie Herman. She has an excellent voice, which she uses with artistic effect. Miss Rose Bartlett makes a sweet and winsome Polly Perkins. Mr. Will Dytton is exceedingly droll as Will Atkins, and keeps the house in continual laughter; Messrs. Harris and Worth as Sammy and Dick also create much mirth; Miss Flora Leonard is well cast as Fairy Coral; Mr. Harry Morgan has a congenial part in Friday; Miss Delia Cherry and Miss Dora Laugham score well as Midshipman Merry and Nancy Lee respectively; Mr. Jack Foley (Dame Crusoe) and Mr. B. R. Adford (Davey Jones) make the most of their opportunities in their respective rôles; Miss Ivy Lane's troupe of dancers are exceptionally good. The scenery, dresses and music are excellent.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. T. Barrasford, Will Sloy and F. Willmott; Manager, Mr. A. V. Carnell.—The Babes in the Wood is being played here by the Six Brothers Luck. The piece is mirth-provoking from start to finish. The brothers are well supported by Miss Mabel Thorne (Robin Hood), Miss Hylda Dugdale (Maid Marion), and Mr. C. Dillon (Madriley), and the piece is well staged.

ST. LEONARDS.—KURSAAL.— Pier-Master, and Entertainment Manager, Mr. Elvey Thomas.—The closing concerts given by the Kursaal Orchestra are in every way as attractive as the earlier ones. An innovation is made this week by the introduction of several well-known amateurs, also the addition of an excellent vocal quartette party under the guidance of Mr. Herman Brearley.

STOCKPORT. — NEW THEATRE ROYAL. — Sole Owner and Manager, Mr. Charles Revill; Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. Revill.—Mr. George Dance's company is here, in The Duchess of Dantzic. Miss Rita Presano acts the part of Catherine delightfully; and Miss Lilian Drake is a charming Empress Josephine. Miss Edith Carlyle and Miss May Harris, as the sisters of Napoleon, are stately; and Miss Alice Coverick, as Renee, is exceedingly pleasing. Mr. Colin Mackay is amusing as Papillon; and Adhemar has a capable representative in Mr. Thomas C. Maxwell. Mr. Frederick Moyes impersonates Napoleon with much cleverness.

OHMY'S CIRCUS.—Proprietors, Messrs. Davenport.—The Moxon family of acrobats and foot equilibrists are the chief attraction here, their clever feats commanding much applause. Volosky meets with success in his roller skating performance; and the Three Sisters Adrienne (vocalists and dancers) give a pleasing entertainment. The Hannaford Quartette of daring equestrians continue their success of last week.

STOCKTON-ON-TEES.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietress, Mrs. Weldon Watts; General Manager, Mr. Sidney Bacon; Acting-Manager, Mr. R. G. Elder.—Mr. John Tiller's pantomime, Dick Whittington, is here. Mr. Harry D. Lyndon, as Fitzwarren, is successful; Mr. Dan Thomas, as Eliza, shows considerable humour; Jack Idle, by Mr. Bob Selvidge, is full of eccentricity and "go;" Sammy Saltpeter and Horatio Marlingspike, by Messrs. Will Mackney and J. G. Aitken, aid greatly in the fun; The Cat is nimbly acted by Mr. Barrie Gilmour; Miss Fanny Harris, as Alice, is well-suited; Miss Edna Morgan's Emperor is dashing; and Miss Gracie Graham's Dick is played with charming spirit. The dances by the Diamond Quartette, the Excelsior Troupe of Children, and the Pony Ballet Troupe, are all done with precision and grace.

GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. J. Batty; Manager, Mr. W. Batty.—The extra good company appearing at this house includes Franco Piper, the unique banjoist; Fielding and Hull, in their comedy sketch; Onda and Leon, quaint bar performers; Charles Serra, a clever gymnast; Tom E. Hughes, comic; Anthy, tight wire performer; Jack Pleasants, the quaint songster; J. P. Carroll, expert tambourine player; and Payne's entertaining bio. pictures.

STOKE. — HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr Allan Edwardes; Manager, Mr. H. Miller.—The bill this week is full of interesting turns. At the head are Lockhart's Elephants, in a truly wonderful exhibition. The Brothers De Wynne contribute a novel and clever turn; Booker and Narbis are seen in a clever duologue, The Interviewer; Alec Aubrey is a gymnast of extraordinary ability; Miss Frederica introduces her cleverly-trained dogs and pony; Sandy and Carl cause much amusement in their patter turn; Charles Russell sings a capital song; and the animated pictures shown are capital. Mr. Frank Egerton takes his benefit on March 3, and the late popular manager is sure to have a huge house.

STOURBRIDGE.—ALHAMBRA THEATRE.—Manageress, Miss Maude Lynton.—On Monday Mr. Bert Coote's company paid a return visit with The Fatal Wedding. Mr. Stuart Lomath finds great favour with the audience as Howard Wilson; Miss Eva Moss, as Mabel Wilson, scores a decided success; Jessie, the Little Mother, is prettily played by Miss Emmie Thomas; Miss Dora Gilham is effective as Cora Williams; and Mr. Albert Wainwright is capable as Robert Curtis. Mr. W. E. Chewd, as Toto, contributes plenty of fun; Mr. T. W. Ford is also droll as Peter Schwartz; and Miss Maud Locker, as Bridget, evokes laughter.

SUNDERLAND. — AVENUE THEATRE. — Proprietors, Sunderland Theatres, Limited; Managing Director, Mr. Chas. E. Machin; General-Manager, Mr. Percival Craig.—The enterprise of the management in bringing Mr. J. F. Elliston's gorgeous pantomime of the Sleeping Beauty and The Yellow Dwarf here is meeting with the warm approval of the patrons of the popular Wearside theatre. Miss Esme Gordon makes a fine dashing and handsome Prince Faithful, putting much vigour into her various songs; Miss Daisy Stratton is a dainty and winning Beauty Allfair; Miss Mabel Kempton, as Silver Star, has jumped into favour, her smart appearance and fine vocalism being highly appreciated; the Sisters Cunningham, as Bon-Bon and Bonnie Bouche, contributes some good dancing; La Superbe's terpsichorean acrobatic phantasy, is remarkably clever; and Mr. Lonnen Meadows' Yellow Dwarf is a masterly performance. Mr. W. J. Churchill, as the Count Incognito, is amusing; Mr. Alf. Bishop is happily placed as King Half-a-Crown; and in Mr. James Chippendale Queen Half-a-Crown has an admirable foil. Mr. Donald Keir, who is responsible for the rôle of Old Mother Baneful, scores in his duet with Silver Star. The Morton comedy trio create quite a furore with their well-sung ditties.

THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Chas. E. Machin; General-Manager, Mr. Percival Craig.—A big house assembled here on Monday to witness the popular drama, The Ladder of Life. Mr. C. Finch Hatton, in the part of David Gordon, acquits himself excellently; Mr. C. H. Mathews gives a masterly impersonation of Fergus Gordon; and the rôle of Ivan Kirkovitch is capably filled by Mr. J. Cooke Hinton. A special word of praise must be accorded the Feros (acrobats), who are engaged for the human ladder in the rescue scene. Mr. F. Morton Wright is seen to advantage as Sergt. Donald MacDougal; Mr. J. F. Turner makes the most of Fritters; as Olga Sobinsky, Miss Nesta Sandford is capable; Miss Hilda Young is a pleasing Mary Jane Jolliboy; and Miss Flora Leslie makes a clever Meg Merilees.

PALACE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Managing-Directors, Messrs. Livermore Bros.; Acting-Manager, Mr. George V. Wybrow.—The star turn here this week is Albert Wyndham and company in the successful Shakespearean sketch, Prince Arthur. The part of Hubert is capably filled by Mr. Albert Wyndham; and Miss Ross St. John is a winsome Prince Arthur. Mdlle. Zvette, with her miniature hippodrome, is heartily appreciated; and other acceptable turns are T. C. Callagham, comedian; Rose and Lewis, in their clever musical and dancing act; Bros. Hersleb, novelty artistes; the McRays, in their comedy act; Florrie, St. Clair, and Marion Hood, comediennes. Vernon's animated pictures are also presented.

SUTTON-IN-ASHFIELD.—KING'S THEATRE.—Proprietors, Sutton Theatre Syndicate; Manager, Mr. Edward Grey.—This week Mr. Cecil Clayton, managing-director of the theatre, has brought down his pantomime, Dick Whittington, in which Miss Millie Beckett plays the title-part in captivating style; the acting of Miss Gertie Lovedale, as Alice, is greatly appreciated; and Miss Gertrude Grey (Mrs. Cecil Clayton), in the part of the Fairy Godmother, receives a hearty welcome on each appearance, her songs being given in excellent style. Mr. Sam Clyto is an active Cat, and contributes a special acrobatic and contortionist turn. Mr. Albert Evremond, Mr. James Glover, and Mr. Tom Kenealey, in the respective parts of Old Fitzwarren, Idle Jack, and Clementine, create much amusement. The whole concludes with a beautiful transformation scene entitled Blue Bell in Fairyland.

SWANSEA. — GRAND THEATRE. — Proprietors, Messrs. David Allen and Sons, Limited; Lessees and Managers, Messrs. E. Oswald Brooks and J. W. Woodbridge; Resident Partner, Mr. E. Oswald Brooks.—Mr. and Mrs. Kendal and company opened on Monday with The Housekeeper. The perfarmance was most charming, and deeply interesting from first to last, the two principals, as Colonel Trent and Lady Audrey Whitby keeping the audience in the best of humour throughout. Excellent support was given them by the company. Still Waters Run Deep was played on Tuesday, and The Housekeeper was repeated on Wednesday night.

NEW STAR.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. T. Morton Powell; Acting-Manager, Mr. William Coutts.—The attraction at this house during the week has been Mr. Horace Stanley's sensational drama, The 10.30 Down Express, played by himself and his company.

NEW EMPIRE.—Managing Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. Albert Mitchell.—The capital programme provided here includes the Kellinos, clever acrobats, in a speciality act; Ambrose Thorne, in his light-comedy songs; Cora Caselli, with song and dance; George Ross and Ella Grayson, in a sketch, The Professor and the Pupil; Lily Burnand, a charming comedienne; act, Ye Brown Cow Inn; Arthur Gill, yokel Burg, Haud, and Wise, in the acrobatic comedy speciality; Baker and Balfe, xylophone experts; F. V. St. Clair, comedian; and Les Brunins, musical lady jugglers.

THE PALACE.—Lessees, The Swansea Varieties, Limited.—The engagements at this house for the current week are the Brighton Boys, comedy acrobats; Beattie Lyndon, comedienne and dancer; Major Newell, pedestal skater and dancer; the Palace pictures; Florence Gwynne, comedienne; Harry Luck, comedian; Amy Elvira, comedienne; and Oakley and James, speciality artistes.

SWINDON.—QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Sole Lessee and Responsible Manager, Mr. Alfred Manners.—A Victim of Villainy, a sensational drama, new to this town, is the attraction this week. The piece is well staged, and performed by Mr. Walter Howe's Company. Mr. Howe must be highly complimented on his effective impersonation of Frank Manton. The gross villainy of the despicable Stephen Cavanagh is cleverly depicted by Mr. C. E. Wilton. Miss Rosa Lehmann undertakes the part of Mary Manton with telling effect; and Miss Muriel Dean is successful as Alice Cavanagh; while Miss Adela Harvey is very bright and pleasing as Norah Maloney. Others who are seen to considerable advantage are Mr. Len Howe, as Walter Lennox; and Mr. J. Faulkner Cox, with many touches of humour, as Constable Patrick Maloney.

TON-Y-PANDY. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Lessees, Messrs. Carlton and Duckworth; General Manager, Mr. Sam. Duckworth; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry Counsell.—Mr. A. Gibbon's company is here with Beauty and the Beast. Miss Linda Keston shines as Beauty; and the "Beast" is ably presented by Mr. F. Mansion. Miss M. Beaufort merits favour as Prince Charming; and some clever specialities are introduced.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. Carlton and Duckworth; Lessee, Miss A. Alexandra; Managing-Director, Mr. Dd. Taylor.—Heading a good bill here are the Brothers Zampah; Wilfred, the flexible wonder, is well received; Eleanora displays great cleverness as an aerial artist; and Baby Lloyd also evokes much applause. Vernon's Bio myrograph throws some good pictures on the screen.

TUNBRIDGE WELLS.—THE OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee, Mr. Charles Carey; Manager, Mr. F. Edgar Manaton.—The New Magdalen was presented by Miss Lilian Dundas and Company on Monday. Miss Dundas gave a powerful impersonation of Mercy Merrick, being well supported by Miss Amy Johnson as the relentless Grace Roseberry; and Miss Estelle Dennison gave a charming and sympathetic study of Lady Janet. Mr. H. Dundas, as the clergyman, and Mr. A. W. Tyrer as the impetuous Horace Holmcroft, both submit clever studies.

WAKEFIELD. — ROYAL OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors, Sherwood and Co.—The Still Alarm is being played here this week by Messrs. Mathew H. Grenville and Fred Osmond's company. Mr. Mathew H. Grenville impersonated in a manly fashion the hero, Jack Manley; the part of the villain, John Bird, is well rendered by Mr. Paul Lovett; Mr. Milton C. Curtis is capable as Franklyn Fordham; Mr. Tom Beasley is well placed as Willie Manley; Mr. Fred Osmond is amusing as Doc Wilber; the part of Joe Jones is well filled by Mr. Lewis Gordon; Elinore Fordham is ably interpreted by Miss Mary Lovett; Miss Connie Meadows (with song and dance) does well as Carrie Wilber; and Miss Mabel Veriton is good as Mrs. Manley.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, the Wakefield Hippodrome, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. Geo. S. Douglass.—Datas, the Memory Man, astounds audiences here by the ready manner in which he gives dates, and wins hearty applause; Messrs. Hilton and Hilton are clever bar performers; Eno, mimic, is successful; Silent Tait, eccentric wizard, is very amusing; the Two Graces are charming comediennes and dancers; Austin and Cowan, vocalists, are highly appreciated; Miss Ruby Ashton, comedienne, wins favour; and Walter Payne's bio-photoscope also delights.

WALLSEND. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Proprietors, The Wallsend Theatre Company; Manager; Mr. Tony Richardson.—Miss Ada Wallis and company are here this week in The Major. Mr. T. C. McQuire gives a commendable presentation of Major Barney; Mr. A. Godfrey, in the rôle of Jeremiah Stoney, proves himself to be a comedian of more than usual ability; Mr. Frank Hartley, in the part of George Goodman, acquits himself in excellent fashion; Miss Ada Wallis is most successful as Angelina; and Miss Ethel Poole plays most effectively as Grace Gampney. Some clever dancing is introduced by the National Troupe.

WALSALL.—HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE, LTD.—General Manager and Secretary, Mr. W. H. Westwood.—The success of the second week's engagement of Mr. James Kiddie's pantomime Dick Whittington is amply proved by the large audiences it continues to draw. The artists work well together, and receive well-merited applause. The principal boy's part is assigned to Miss Bessie Willow, who makes a charming Dick, her singing being well received. Miss Leah Laurie ably undertakes the part of Alice; Mr. Allan Carruthers is as lively as ever as Idle Jack; Messrs. Clifton and Gibson are most humorous as Silly Peter and Lazy Lary; Mr. Cyril Dundas makes a capital Fitzwarren; Mr. W. V. Vido is effective as the Cat; the specialities include Curtis and Vanity, who are greatly appreciated, Messrs. Clifton and Gibson, and the Three Sisters Kilner.

GRAND THEATRE. — Proprietors, The Walsall Theatres Company, Ltd.; General Manager and Secretary, Mr. W. H. Westwood.—Mr. Herbert Fuller's company is here this week in Passion of Life. Mr. Francis Everard gives a good portrayal of Horace O'Neal; Mr. Charles Webb capably enacts the rôle of Daddy Kenny, and Mr. Harold Wallace does well as Jack Kenny. As Ralph Flint Mr. H. Evan Gibbon is well placed; Mr. William Gardiner is exceedingly good as Dan Sprouts; Miss Edith Mitchell makes a charming Nitra O'Neal, and Miss Agnes Collier is successful in the part of Belle O'Neal.

WALTHAMSTOW.—PALACE.—Managing-Director, Mr G. Adney Payne; Manager, Mr Arthur J. Barclay; Acting-Manager, Mr Geo. F. Slatter.—Two items in the programme here stand out prominently. Mr. John Grun Marx certainly deserves his description as the Modern Hercules, and if the Homeric hero himself did half as well as his modern prototype, there is no doubt that he must have astonished Olympus. The ease with which Marx toys with weights that would tax the strength of a team of Clydesdales must be seen to be appreciated, and he reaches a climax when he supports a large "merry-go-round" carrying eight men. The other popular display is supplied by Mr. Prinz, with his seventeen forest-bred (not Epping Forest) lions. Mr. Prinz's power over these kings (and queens) of the forest is simply marvellous, and the beautiful animals seem to enjoy their own performance as much as the audience. Mdlle. Marcella enters the lions' den and executes a clever fire dance most effectively; Miss Dora Lyric is a charming comedienne; Mr. Lawrence Barclay is an immense favourite, his rich humour finding plenty of scope in two or three clever songs; and the Five Sisters Julian look pretty, dress prettily, sing with expression, and dance divinely. Miss Alexandra Edwin is the possessor of a fine and highly-cultivated soprano, which she employs artistically in high-class songs. An immense reception is accorded to Mr. Harry Champion, whose volubility is surprising.

KING'S THEATRE.—The play for the week at this house is the four-act comedy drama Parson Thorn, written by Messrs. Rass Challis and Ormonde G. Smethurst. Mr. Smethurst himself appears as the Rev. John Thorn, and gives great distinction to his portrayal. Mr. Horace Moseley, whose company it is, extracts considerable amusement from his part of a comic constable, Napoleon Buonaparte Mutton; and Mr. Jack Haughton is brisk as the footman, Paddy O'Quirke. Miss Jessie Chandler (Lady Maud Dashwood), Miss Mollie George (Dorothy Thoroughgood), Miss Violet Wood (Dorothy Doddles), and Miss Nellie Stuart (Mrs. Jeremia Greenwood) fill their parts in a manner that leaves nothing to be desired.

WARRINGTON.—ROYAL COURT.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. Johnson and J. Potter; General Manager, Mr. J. Potter.—Messrs. Haddon and Loader's pantomime company in Jack and the Beanstalk is the attraction here this week. Miss Bessie Shelley as Jack is a vivacious mortal, singing and dancing alike with a sprightliness that wins all hearts; Miss Pattie Bella is a charming Dora; and Charley Bright and Nancy Smart as portrayed by Miss Sybil Inez and Miss Cissie Trent, are a winsome pair. Mr. Jay Laurier is quite an up-to-date comedian, his quaint sayings always commanding attention; Mr. Harry Harrop is well placed as the Dame; and the Squire has an able representative in Mr. R. Bolton. The Kydd Brothers, as the Squire's Flunkeys, always please; and Miss Evelyn Robson as Discordio, and Miss Minnie Walsh as Harmonee, the two fairies, are both able representatives. The specialists include the Wragg's, expert swordsmen; the Continential Trio of Dancers; and the Cameron Glee Singers.

ROYAL THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. Johnson and J. Potter; General Manager, Mr. J. Potter; Director of Amusements, Mr. F. Willmot.—Lady Mansell and her juvenile troupe have scored an immense success here this week. The Three Bros. Huxton are expert acrobats, and the Sisters Ernest sing several operative numbers charmingly. Other excellent attractions are Lea and Lovell, song illustrators; Loudoun Cameron, conjuror; Harry Wright, comedian; Peggy Fame, comedienne; Nellie Gannon, vocalist; and the Royal bioscope pictures.

WEDNESBURY. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Lessee, Mr. Harry Battersby; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. J. Cranston.—This week Mr. George Testo Sante and company are appearing here in The Life of a Showman. Mr. George Testo Sante, who appears in the rôle of Brien Leader, a circus acrobat, displays marvellous talent in his acrobatic and heavy weight-lifting exhibition; Mr. J. K. Walton, as Sir Noel Hartland, is most capable; and as Hendrick Marias Mr. Sam Arthur does some clever work. As the Rev. Cyrill Arliss Mr. Edward Warden makes the most of his opportunity; Mr. J. G. Sante does well as Laurie Grey; and Miss Enid Edoni as Lena Hartland and Miss Amy M'Neill as Agatha Winter are both exceptionally good in their respective portrayals. The humorous part of Angelina is amusingly interpreted by Miss Alice Granville. The introduction of the Bros. Testo in their musical and acrobatic display adds greatly to the success.

WEST BROMWICH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. P. Moore.—The attraction here this week and next is Miss Daisy De Roy's up-to-date pantomime, Dick Whittington and his Cat. The title-rôle is played with much vigour by Mdlle. Lucretia, who gives a fine exhibition of top-boot dancing. The Alice Fitzwarren of Miss Daisy De Roy is smart, and she gains great applause with her songs; Mr. Paul Courtney is good as the Alderman, and so is Mr. J. C. Bland as Idle Jack. The Barrasford Boys, James and Percy, do their best and create great fun in their respective parts of Captain Shipwreck and Bosun. Miss Poppy Lytton makes a pretty Princess Zuleka; Eliza, the cook, is in the capable hands of Mr. Sydney T. Pease; Roseberne and Chamberlane are smartly played by Miss Madge Allen and Miss Violet Eplett; Mr. Harcourt Russell does full justice to the character of the Emperor of Morocco; Little Jupiter displays his talent as Whittington's cat Tommy, and the large chorus is good and well balanced.

WEST HARTLEPOOL. — GRAND THEATRE. — Manager (for Mrs. Weldon Watts), Mr. Sidney Bacon; Resident-Manager, Mr. Fred Conneaux.—Mr. Frank Macnaghten's company is presenting The King's Pardon here. Mr. Charles Whitlock is responsible for a masterly conception of the rôle of Clifford Yorke; Noel Blake has a capable exponent in Mr. Charles Stirling; Mr. Horace Butler shows power in the rôle of Simon Leigh; Mr. Harry Belford is seen to advantage in his original part of Major Dobbs; Miss Georgina V. France's acting as Barbara Yorke appeals strongly to the sympathy of the audience; and other characters have able exponents.

PALACE.—Director-General, Mr. Frank Macnaghten.—The perfection of animal training is exemplified here in the performance given by Rosina Casselli's wonderfully clever midget dogs. The Ross-Clyde company, of four artistes, are well received in a funny sketch; Vanola's wonderful foot balancing act evokes thunders of applause; the Bandurrias, in their mandolin and guitar speciality, have a hearty reception; the ventriloquial speciality of Capt. Slingsby is novel and amusing; intensely funny business is introduced into songs by Chas. Paver; Clara Victor makes a favourable impression; and the Sisters Desmond are well received.

WEST STANLEY.—THEATRE ROYAL, LIMITED.—Managing-Director, Mr. Mark H. Linden.—The Wearing of the Green, as presented by Mr. and Mrs. Chalmers Mackey is the attraction here this week. Mr. Chas. Horner is a capable Shamus McDermott; Mr. H. Sainsbury an able Sir George Courtney; and as Michael Kenny Mr. John S. Chamberlain is exceptionally good. Miss Lalla Stanhope is a pleasing Biddy McGinn; and as Barney O'Hea Mr. Chalmers Mackey is full of vivacity. He is well suported by Mrs. Chalmers Mackey, as Norah McGrath.

VICTORIA THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. T. C. Rawes; Resident-Manager, Mr. F. Williams.—Mr. Gus. C. Livesey's Crimson Club company is doing good business here this week. As Richard Fenton, Mr. Gus C. Livesey is an able hero; and as the heroine Muriel Lockwood. Miss Muriel Wyniard is really good.

WEXFORD.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor, Mr. E. P. Ronan.—Mr. Kennedy Miller's combination of Irish players is here this week. On Monday Sarsfield was presented, and met with an enthusiastic reception. In the name part, Mr. Robert Faulkner gave a careful reading, achieving an undoubted success; the part of De Ginkle was entrusted to Mr. Dane Clarke, who, as usual, gave a finished performance; and Mr. Ion Ireland, as General Talmash, was excellent. Mr. Albert Sinclair, as the Duke of Wurtemberg, evoked the execrations of the audience by his powerful rendering; Mr. James O'Brien, as Gallopin' Hogan, added another to his many past successes; and the same may be said of Miss Monica Kelly, who, as Eily Blake, ably seconded his efforts. Lady Honor was played in a dignified manner by Miss Annie Hylton; Miss Helen Forest, as Lady Rose, portrayed the woman scorned to the life; and Miss Arnott, as Molly, was also good.

WHITEHAVEN.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. J. Clark.—Mr. W. H. Kirby's No. 1 company is appearing here this week in The New Mephisto. Mr. Albert Weston, in the title-rôle, fairly convulses the audience with his impersonations; Mr. Herbert St. John is capital as Hummingtop; Mr. Arthur Randall is good as Major Bantam; Mr. Clarence Lindon, as Dick Pilgrim, works hard; and Miss Marion Armitage is most amusing as Becky. Miss Nellie Burdette sings well as Dolly; and the Thalian Glee Singers are well received. The Moody-Manners Opera company was announced for Thursday.

WIDNES. — ALEXANDRA THEATRE. — Proprietor, Mr. James Kiddie; Manager and Secretary, Mr. Thomas Swinton.—We are this week favoured for the first time in Widnes with a visit from the Moody Manners Opera company in their excellent repertory. In Faust on Monday, Miss Enriquetta Crichton enacted with much spirit and zest the difficult rôle of Marguerite, her singing throughout being superb. As Faust, Mr. Chas. Carter sang finely, and his acting of the part was impressive. Mr. Tom Wood's Mephistopheles was a true representation. Lohengrin, The Daughter of the Regiment, Cavalleria Rusticana, Carmen, Pagliacci and Maritana are also in the repertoire. The large chorus of thirty-five voices do justice to their various tasks, and the augmented orchestra plays the music with rare feeling and taste.

WIGAN.—ROYAL COURT THEATRE.—Managing Director, Mr. John Worswick.—Mr. Fred J. Little and Mr. Fred Darcy's company provides the fourth pantomime of the season in Sinbad the Sailor. Miss Lily Beverley takes the part of Sinbad, whose sweetheart, Zorilda, is admirably represented by Miss Kitty Brewster. Capt. Cook has an extremely humorous exponent in Happy Attwood. As specialities, the Walleys are clever jugglers, and the Brewsters are capital acrobatic dancers and banjo song and dance artistes.

THE GRAND HIPPODROME.—Managing Director, Mr. J. Worswick.—George Gilbey, the well-known patter comedian, and the Hoopers, comic jugglers and hoop manipulators, are the great attractions this week. Bandoni, concertina expert, is a popular artiste, and Clown Barker, with his comic equestrian dogs, monkeys, donkey and pony, provides a most interesting and amusing turn. Baker E. Belpher, baritone vocalist, sings very well, and Hector and Paulus are smart comedy acrobats and equilibrists. Flo Elvin is an up-to-date comedienne, and Howard and Collinson are pleasing in their original absurdity The Porter and the Parson. Walter Adams, comedian, and Vosper, facial mimic, completes the programme.

EMPIRE MUSIC HALL.—Manager, Mr. W. Birchall.—A good programme is provided this week. The Eltenos, comic knockabouts, are amusing; the Dunvilles are clever comedy musical artistes, and Barney Noble, character comedian, is good; Chris Vic, ventriloquist; Smart, comedian and dancer; Miss Kitty Lavigne, comedienne; Togo, Japanese juggler; and Miss Olive Poole, comedienne and dancer, complete the list of artistes.

WOKING.—PUBLIC HALL.—Manager, Mr. Joseph Lewis.—The attraction here this week is Miss Jessie D'Alton's Christmas pantomime, entitled Dick Whittington. Miss D'Alton herself is a charming principal girl, her Alice delighting the house. In the title-rôle Miss Alice Ramsdale captivates all hearts. Mr. George Ritter is a distinct success as the choleric Alderman, Hugh Fitzwarren; Mr. Will Terry is a satisfactory Idle Jack; while Bedelia, the cook, finds an able exponent in the person of Mr. Dennis Lyndon. Mr. Vere Russell is a stately Emperor of Morocco, and Miss Beatrice Witham is an attractive Princess Charming. A feature of this production is several really good variety turns, amongst which figure Mons. Jean Pizet, the twistological puzzle; Walter Levetto, high pedestal and jockey dancer; Lyndon and Terry, the peculiar pair; and the Cerito Troupe of lady acrobatic dancers.

WOLVERHAMPTON. — GRAND THEATRE. — Lessees and Managers, Mr. E. H. Bull and Mr. Milton Bode; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy Percival. —This week's attraction consists of Sergeant Brue, which is played by Mr. Frank Curzon's company. Mr. Victor Widdicombe affords plenty of amusement, and does admirably as the Sergeant; Mr. E. Percy Rogers is an efficient Michael Brue; Mr. Cecil Burt scores as Mr. Crank, and Mr. T. A. Shale is an excellent Crookie Scrubbs. As Lady Bickenhall Miss Violet Dene is graceful and effective; and Miss Constance Lait is a capital Aurora Brue, her singing being much appreciated. Various other characters are in good hands, and the scenery and dresses are worth seeing.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Chas. Barnard; General-Manager, Mr. W. H. Lennon.—The great feature of interest here is The Magic Kettle, which is introduced to local audiences for the first time by Mr. B. F. Taylor, who mystifies and entertains with his various performances. The bill also includes the Three Sherrys in their novelty act and acrobatic feats; Fred Clements, comedian; Mabel Hind, a charming little Geisha; Billy Williams, the Australian comedian; the Falcons, acrobatic hand balancers; Hughes and Elliott, sand and buck dancers;

LONDON & SUBURBAN THEATRES.

CORONET THEATRE.

On Monday, Feb. 13,

"THE DUKE OF KILLICRANKIE."

Captain Robert Marshall's sprightly wit and clever characterisation, as expounded in his Criterion success, The Duke of Killicrankie, is finding high favour at the pretty Coronet Theatre this week, and is played to an accompaniment of roars of laughter. The whole idea of the abduction of Lady Henrietta, and her incarceration in the fastnesses of an old Highland castle, together with her unwilling chaperône, Mrs. Mulholland, in this, the twentieth century, is so supremely extravagant and far-fetched an idea, and so deliciously droll in the telling, that we can but marvel at the author's audacious wit. Then, too, the wooing of the pair by their self-constituted jailors is so ludicrous, and the dawn of love in the breasts of the wayward fair ones under such romantic circumstances so natural, that we are quite carried away by the charm of the idea. What funnier picture could be desired than the frantic and unavailing efforts of Eon and his accomplice to drown the female amenities of their abducted sweethearts in Pommery '92 at the little supper party in the morning-room of Crag-o'-North Castle?

Mr. Scott Craven is delightful as Eon, the Duke of Killicrankie, and he makes a fine handsome figure of a man in the "kilties." He acts with earnestness and sincerity as the somewhat erratic and self-sufficient scion of a noble race, his unconscious egotism and overbearing impatience of restraint are admirably depicted, and his love-making is manly and natural. Mr. Arthur Grenville causes a continual ripple of laughter by his quaint character-sketch of the mercenary pusillanimous Henry Pitt-Welby, M.P., whose eccentric manners and mode of speech, allied to his craven fear of danger, and his persistent pursuit of the "glue king's" heiress, earn him the befitting epithet of "the worm." Mr. Grenville supplies a well thought-out and consistently droll caricature. Miss Doris Templeton acts with winsome simplicity and charming vivacity as the capricious Lady Henrietta Addison; Miss Aïda Jenoure is admirable as the rich widow, who can wither Pitt-Welby with a glance, and who finds it so difficult "to preserve her reputation," and yet enjoy the "fleeting hour." She deftly suggests the shrewd woman of the world, not exempt from feminine weakness in affaires des cœur, under an assumed frigidity and an austere manner. This quartette really constitute the dramatis personæ of the play, but good work is done in minor parts by Mr. Pat Newall, who makes his mark as the enterprising journalistic postman, Ambrose Hicks; Miss Margaret Damer, as the Countess of Pangbourne; Messrs. Guy B. Watson, Jno. Waring, J. F. Anson, and Misses Helen Kay Robertson, Gillian Scaife, and Lottie Belmore. The Duke of Killicrankie is preceded by Jerome K. Jerome's dainty and pathetic curtain-raiser, Barbara, the story of a sister's self-sacrifice. Therein Miss Margaret Damer contributes a very pretty and pleasing portraiture of the altruistic heroine Barbara, and Miss Gillian Scaife acts with appropriate verve and vivacity as the coquettish Lilie, her foster sister. Mr. Pat Newall as Cecil, and Mr. Frank McDonnell (who is the stage-manager) as Finnicum, do all that is required of them. Mr. Arthur Grenville is the stage-director, and Mr. Stanley Preston, as representative of Messrs. Charles Frohman and Arthur Chudleigh, assists the clever and courteous resident-manager, Mr. Edward Lytton, in the front of the house.

THE CAMDEN.

On Monday, Feb. 13, the Play, by John Rutherford, entitled

"THE BREED OF THE TRESHAMS."

Mr. Martin Harvey is appearing here once more, and his popularity increases with each visit. On the opening night, The Breed of the Treshams was staged, and an opportunity was thus afforded of seeing Mr. Martin Harvey in his latest success. The play is full of life and incident, and in the character of Reresby, the Rat, Mr. Martin Harvey is seen to the utmost advantage. It is a part which suits him admirably, and he gives a magnificent rendering of it. His vigour is amazing, and it was quite evident from the reception accorded to his performance by the immense audience, on Monday, that Reresby, "the Rat," will rank second only to Sydney Carton in Mr. Martin Harvey's répertoire. Clement Hungerford is not a character which enlists sympathy. However, Mr. Charles Glenney scores heavily by his masterly acting, and deserves high praise. Mr. C. J. Cameron gives a dignified portrait of Viscount Dorsington; Sir Henry Curwen is ably portrayed by Mr. Albert E. Raynor; and that fine old actor, Mr. Fred Wright, sen., brings all his ripe experience to bear on the part of Colonel Bagshaw. Miss N. de Silva is to be congratulated on her performance as Batty, Reresby's faithful follower. Margaret Hungerford finds a charming exponent in Miss Coleridge, who plays it with much effect. Miss Edith Coleman does well as Mrs. Bagshaw; Miss Bessie Elder lends valuable assistance as Helena Pierrepoint; Mr. Percy Anstey presents a manly picture of Francis Tresham; and Captain Stanhope is suitably played by Mr. Reeve Denbigh. The various minor characters are all capably filled. The play is splendidly mounted, and the costumes are most picturesque. For the last three nights of the week, The Only Way was announced, Mr. Martin Harvey, of course, appearing as Sydney Carton.

KING'S THEATRE, HAMMERSMITH.

On Monday, Feb. 13, 1905, the Musical Comedy, by Seymour Hicks and Ivan Caryll, entitled

"THE EARL AND THE GIRL."

The first production in Western London of this successful musical comedy was heralded on Monday evening with enthusiasm by a crowded house, which in no uncertain manner ratified the verdict of the past year's Adelphi and Lyric audiences. The comicalities of Mr. Seymour Hicks's dialogue caused immense laughter, and the musical numbers of Mr. Ivan Caryll, together with the interpolated songs and choruses, gave great satisfaction. The acting of Mr. Wm. Greet's company left nothing to be desired, one and all working hard, and to a generally successful effect. Jim Cheese introduced an actor new to Hammersmith in Mr. William Stephens, whose impersonation was one of the funniest ever witnessed. The whole time he was on the stage laughter reigned supreme. A fresh and pleasant representation of Dick Wargrave was given by Mr. Percy Carr, his rendering of the celebrated "Cosy Corner Girl" being in every way highly commendable. The Hon. Crewe Boodle was well undertaken by Mr. Fred Hill, and Mr. Wm. Walshe was sufficiently capable as Bunker Bliss. Downham, the American solicitor, was racily played by Mr. Will Hindson, and his English confrère, Mr. Talk, was excellently sustained by Mr. J. C. Graves. Mr. Tom Redmond, in the small part of Mr. Hazell, was exceedingly good, and Mr. Frank Melville made a capable Dudley Cranbourne. Miss Aimee Grey was a refreshingly bright and fascinating Elphin Haye, who soon made herself a popular favourite. An extremely clever rendering of Liza Shoddam was presented by Miss Dot Carey, and the irate Mrs. Shimmering Black was vigorously presented by Miss Gladys Fontaine. Miss Florence Imeson's Daisy Fallowfield was delightful, her vivacious singing of "Freddy" bringing down the house. An elegant Virginia Bliss was portrayed by Miss Helen Langton. The ladies of Crewe Boodle's party were taken by Miss Millicent Vernon, Miss Hilda Davies, Miss Violet Vaughan, Miss Frances Levey, and Miss Millicent Field, who all proved the excellent taste possessed by that young gentleman. The novel effects were greatly appreciated, and the scenery and dresses evoked much admiration. The orchestra, including special instrumentalists from the Lyric Theatre, played with harmonising effect.

THE TERRISS.

On Monday, Feb. 13, the Musical Farce, in Three Acts, entitled

"HIS MAJESTY'S GUESTS."

The arrival of His Majesty's Guests at the Terriss has been coincident with an influx of mirth, hilarity taking full possession of the house as the result of the exertions of Mr. Fred Karno's company. The play is admittedly manufactured for humorous purposes, and the guarantee of 1,000 laughs at every performance has been very nearly attained. The antics of Mr. Harry Roxbury, as the ubiquitous Sergeant Lightning, have kept the audience agog with mirth, his resources for creating laughter being boundless. The drollery of the part is accentuated by the capacious smile and by the innate sense of humour possessed by the comedian, which he imports unfailingly into everything he does. Applause of an enthusiastic nature is lavished upon him, the cleverness with which his many and varied disguises are assumed being also recognised. Mr. Frank Morton employs a fine presence and vigorous declamation in the part of Lord Easem, acting with dashing emphasis and energy. His song of "The King of the Burglars" is rendered in fine style, his resonant baritone greatly aiding the theme. Suitable material for his voice is also supplied in "The Yeoman's Wedding," while the quality of tenderness is evidenced in the love duet, "Too Late," sung in association with Dolly Miffin. That young lady is prettily played by Miss Edith Ager, who acts with girlish ingenuousness and charm. Lady Maud Easem is admirably personified by Miss Leonora Castello, whose brunette beauty, elegance, and grace combine to bewitch all, in spite of the evil career upon which she is launched. Mr. Charles Usher is dryly droll as Mr. Miffin, the "universal provider"; and his nephew Harry is invested with the proper foppish propensities by Mr. Sidney Bolton. Mr. Harry Stuart acquits himself ably of the duties of the clerical Mr. Minks; and as Fritz, the doorkeeper at Minks's Emporium, Mr. W. Rokeby, whose physique is admirably suited to the part, is responsible for many a hearty laugh. Bunker has a nimble exponent in Mr. H. Taylor; and the acrobatic skill of Mr. Harry Howe as Selina, the servant, gives rise to enthusiasm. Miss Amy Rogerson is masculine to a degree as Miss Manley, the "new woman"; and as Josiah Giles, Mr. R. Wise assists the humour of the piece. A comely corps of ladies add to the attractiveness of the production, and quite a feature of the evening is made of the "Burglars' Sextet," which is warmly encored. The scenery is quite appropriate to the play, the only reproach that can be extended being towards the spelling of the word "Linoleum" in the Emporium scene.

BOROUGH THEATRE, STRATFORD.

On Monday, Feb. 13, the Play, in Three Acts, by Robert Neilson Stephens and E. Lyall Swete, entitled,

"MISS ELIZABETH'S PRISONER."

Generally speaking, Stratford playgoers, by their patronage of the Borough Theatre, betray a proclivity for musical productions or highly-spiced dramatic fare, yet the large area for which this handsome suburban playhouse caters contains many to whom high-class plays, bearing the "hall-mark" of West End approbation, specially appeal, and consequently Monday night's audience had a piece after their own liking in Miss Elizabeth's Prisoner. Mr. Lewis Waller's Company, under the direction of Mr. Peter Davey, gives a highly creditable interpretation of the piece, which is mounted exceedingly well. Mr. Norman Partriege, as Captain Harry Peyton, is endowed with an excellent stage presence, and he acts with fluency and ease, being equally good either as the defiant soldier or in the softer passages when feigning love for his fair but obdurate captor. Miss Essex Dane's embodiment of Miss Elizabeth Philipse is a delightful piece of acting, at once sympathetic, natural, and charming, vieing very favourably with anything this clever actress has previously done. To Mr. Elliott Ball is allotted the unthankful task of portraying Major John Colden, and the craven nature of the officer is graphically illustrated, the while always retaining the outward semblance of a gentleman, and never degenerating into the ordinary melodrama villain. Mr. J. Harold Carson supplies a ripe sketch of the amorously inclined Mr. Valentine, playing with a dry humour and quiet facetiousness admirably suited to the part; and Miss Leonara Braham acts in true comedy vein as Mistress Sarah Williams. Molly Edwards is brightly personated by Miss Marguerite Cellier; Mr. Arthur Somers does exceedingly well as John Edwards; Sergeant Carrington is smartly played by Mr. F. Cellier, jun.; and Mr. Tom Taylor makes an excellent Black Sam.

A curtain raiser is provided by a new comedietta by Tom Gallon and Leon M. Lion entitled

"THE BORROWED UNCLE."

John Griffin	Mr. Arthur Somers
Dr. Arthur Wakefield .	Mr. F. Cellier, jun.
Timothy Filby	Mr. J. Harold Carson
Lucy Winwood.....	Miss Marguerite Cellier

This proved to be an interesting little trifle, in which mirth and pathos alternate. It was received with enthusiasm, and should long serve its purpose. The story deals with the plight of a pair of lovers, he poor, she with a bad and obdurate guardian. To their aid comes an escaped convict, who has a hold over the wicked guardian, as they were partners in crime, though only one was detected. The good-hearted convict knows he is certain to be recaptured, but resolved to do the young couple a good turn forces the other, under threats of exposure, to part with a large sum of money, and to consent to the marriage. To the astonished but happy couple he poses as the girl's "fairy uncle" from abroad, and then leaves to go back—to prison. Chief acting honours are carried off by Mr. J. Harold Carson as the convict Timothy Filby; Mr. Arthur Somers is excellent as John Griffen; and Arthur Wakefield and Lucy Winwood are appropriately played by Mr. F. Cellier, jun., and Miss Marguerite Cellier.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE, N.

On Monday, Feb. 13, the Musical Comedy, in Two Acts, by Jas. T. Tanner, Composed by Ivan Caryll and Lionel Monckton, entitled

"THE ORCHID."

A return of Mr. George Edwardes's company with The Orchid, which is still being presented at the Gaiety, is the attraction for the second week of the season. The production is sent on the road with all the completeness and care that one looks for in any undertaking of Mr. George Edwardes's, and the company, not only the principals, but also the large and well-trained chorus, work energetically throughout, and with the best results. Mr. George Gregory, as the gardener Meakin, is a great favourite, and incessant laughter accompanies every scene in which he is concerned; especially is this the case in the duel scene, the honours in which are fairly shared with Mr. Gregory by Mr. Clifford Seyler, who gives a remarkably neat and clever performance of the irascible Frenchman, Comte Raoul de Cassignat. Some very attractive dances are contributed by Mr. G. W. Colman, who appears as Zaccary. Mr. Charles Brown, as the Hon. Guy Scrymgeour, both Mr. Donald Hall, as Dr. Ronald Faussett, both play brightly and with considerable spirit; and Mr. Ellis Ogilvie, in an excellent make-up, does all that is possible as Mr. Aubrey Chesterton. Miss Gwen Clifford, as Caroline Vokins, sings the excellent songs allotted to her with the best effect, and plays the part with a due appreciation of its humorous possibilities. Miss Rita Everard is a very charming and engaging Violet Anstruther; and a striking performance of the adventuress, Zelie Rumbert, comes from Miss Ethel Griffies. The Thisbe of Miss Amy Payne and the Josephine Zaccary of Miss Gertrude Gilliam are in every way satisfactory; and Miss Katie Leechman is a characteristic Lady Anstruther. A small part deserving of special mention is the Registrar of Mr. Frank Hector, whilst in other small parts Messrs. E. G. Woodhouse and E. Rutland do well.

GREENWICH THEATRE.

On Monday, Feb. 13, for the first time in London, the Drama in a Prologue and Four Acts, by David Muskerry, entitled

"THE POOR MUST LIVE."

Prologue.

The Earl of Marswood.	Mr. Pan E. Draco.
Captain Dick Harding	Mr. Charles Francis
Sam Sully	Mr. Arthur Trail
Countess of Marswood.	Miss Mary Mallalieu
Sal Darling	Miss Jenny Bostock

Characters in the Play.

The Earl of Marswood.	Mr. Pan E. Draco.
Donald	Mr. C. Brereton Borer
Clifton Manville	Mr. Charles Francis
Sam Sully	Mr. Arthur Trail
Dick Sully	Mr. Herbert Clifton
Hooker Holdsnitch ...	Mr. Dick Thomas
Bertie Miggs.....	Mr. Albert Spencer
Jack O'Moods	Mr. George Armour
James	Mr. J. Lea Hair
Dorothy Murdoch.....	Miss Mary Mallalieu
Sal Darling	Miss Jenny Bostock
Moya Darling	Miss Pattie Elliott
Ada.....	Miss Amy Roach
Olga D'Eyncourt	Miss Olive Fulton

The sufferings of the lower classes are of perennial interest to the popular audience, and, though the theme has served the purpose of the playwright many a time and oft, Mr. David Muskerry contrived, with the new drama which was introduced to the metropolis on Monday, to engross a large assemblage from beginning to end. Sensation and pathos commingle in the usual way with fun of the most farcical kind; but the sentiment is sound and wholesome, and the excitement does not transgress too far the bounds of credulity, while the humour of the piece has its justification in the laughter that accompanies its progress. As the main points of the story were outlined in our correspondent's account of the first production of the play at the Queen's Theatre, Longton, on Jan. 23, a reference to the episodes which the piece contains is all that is now required. One of the strongest scenes is that wherein the hero, bound and helpless in a wretched garret, is released by a young girl whose hands are tied behind her, but who succeeds in unlocking a door with her teeth and summoning assistance. Further excitement is provided when a gang of strikers attack the house of their employer, and when the hero gets safely through the ferocious mob by assuming the disguise which the villain intended for himself. That the scoundrel nevertheless escapes is only to be expected, for he has to pursue his evil path through two more acts, the dramatic significance of which is deepened by the machinations of the leader of the strikers—a lady nicknamed "The Vengeance." Poetic justice is in the end administered, and the young man who has loved and waited and the maiden who has nobly borne so much for his sake are united under the happiest auspices. The rendering of the play at the hands of Mr. Geoffrey Fulton's company surpassed the ordinary level, Mr. Pan E. Draco, as the Earl of Marswood, giving a vivid exposition of the aged aristocrat, despite the fact that a fringe of raven hair could be seen beneath the hoary whiteness of his wig. The fire and vigour of his passionate scenes were very pronounced, and nothing could be finer than his acting when the old man springs from his seat and declares his determination to face the attacking crowd of strikers. Mr. C. Brereton Borer gave a refined and polished rendering of the Earl's son, Donald, who prior to returning to his father's favour is known as Drummond Tredigar, and acts in the capacity of a servant. Mr. Borer's style and delivery are excellent, and his popularity throughout is manifest. The elements of tragedy were imparted by Miss Olive Fulton into her rendering of Olga D'Eyncourt, "The Vengeance," subtle effects being obtained by varied facial play and by the exercise of undoubted dramatic skill. Mr. Charles Francis suitably delineated the iniquitous nature of Clifton Manville, broadening the malice and vindictiveness of the part very cleverly. Refinement and tenderness marked the presentation of Dorothy, the Earl's ward, by Miss Mary Mallalieu, who has the enviable capacity for acting emotionally and speaking sympathetically without any morbidness or false sentiment. Mr. Arthur Trail extracted all possible effect from the part of Sam Sully, a "ne'er-do-weel," and the efforts of Mr. Herbert Clifton, as his son Dick, were devoted principally to the creation of laughter, of which he obtained a large quantity. He derived great assistance from Miss Pattie Elliott, a youthful and comely actress, who as Moya, a lavender girl, showed that she possessed gifts both of pathos and comedy far in advance of her age. For such an intelligent young artist a bright future is assured. Miss Jenny Bostock played admirably as the depraved Sal Darling, suggesting the effects of chronic alcoholism with unerring skill. The rest of the cast had good exponents, and the company enacting the play, which was realistically mounted, may look forward to a prosperous and lengthy tour.

THE MARLBOROUGH.

On Monday, Feb. 13,

"SERGEANT BRUE."

Once again Holloway and surrounding districts are indebted to Mr. Purcell for providing an entertainment at this popular house, which appeals to the great majority; in fact, he is to be congratulated upon his excelent bookings for the coming season altogether. For the first time in Holloway Mr. Purcell is giving his numerous patrons an opportunity of witnessing Owen Hall and Liza Lehman's successful musical comedy, Sergeant Brue, as played by Mr. Frank Curzon's large and efficient company. Mr. Edward Kipling looks and plays the part of Sergeant Brue with merit and distinction, keeping the house in continual laughter. Mr. Chas Hanbury rattles through the rôle of Michael Brue in a very humerous manner, keeping the attention of the house throughout. His contributions in the trio, "After all is said and done," and his song, "Daughters of Eve," are smartly rendered, and his capital dancing draws forth enthusiastic recognition. Miss Hilda Antony wins the hearts of her audience by her winsome and attractive portrayal of Aurora Brue, her admirably rendered sings being persistently encored, her most pronounced success being "In Lotus Land." Mr. Thomas Holding, in the rôle of Gerald Treherne, possesses a fine voice, which he uses to advantage in rendering "If I were to build a world for you." Mr. Campbell Bishop's assumption of Mr. Crank, the Magistrate, is in every respect an admirable character sketch, and Mr. Paddy Dupres successfully portrays the part of Inspector Gorringe, and, in addition, undertakes admirably the stage management of the production. Much credit must be given Miss Scott Lestelle for a pleasing impersonation of Lady Bickenhall. She also contributes some pretty and effective dances, and is vociferously encored for her rendering of "Instinct," an up-to-date typical song. Miss L. Zambray, as Daisy, Miss Gladys Desmond, as Mabel Widgett, and Mr. Archie Croft, as Matthew Habisham, all display ability in their respective parts. Our last word is for Mr. George Barrett, as Crookie Scrubbs. The ability of this actor is of a high order, his make-up is most natural, and he gives one of the cleverest impersonations of the evening. He is extremely funny, without in the least overdoing it, and his acting, especially in the police court scene, calls forth shrieks of laughter from the audience. Suffering from a severe cold on Monday, he was unable to render his number, "Put me in my little cell," but this was successfully undertaken by Mr. Walter H. Page, who impersonates Mr. Lambe. The remaining parts are well filled, and the piece is dressed and mounted in lavish style. We must not omit to mention the good work of the Marlborough orchestra, especially augmented for this play, and under the direction of Mr. Ernest Thurman, for Mr. Frank Curzon. The choruses throughout go with a delightful swing and dash, showing that much study and painstaking have been given to the rehearsals.

THE BRITANNIA.

On Monday, Feb. 13, the Drama, in Four Acts, by Ben Landeck, entitled

"A SOLDIER AND A MAN."

Next week this theatre will revert to the two houses nightly system, with popular drama and varieties. In the meantime, Mr. Ben Landeck's play, A Soldier and a Man, has been revived, and has had a most favourable reception at the hands of Hoxtonians, whose appreciation of the solid delights of the sensational drama does not appear to have diminished to any marked extent since the days when the late Mrs. Sara Lane held the reins of management at this old-established theatre. Possibly, however, the Hoxton patrons of the playhouse of to-day prefer a programme containing a larger proportion of "varieties" than was the case a few years ago, when the ill-luck which dogged the footsteps of the hero of the piece and the sorrows which befell the heroine seemed to be almost sufficient to engross the sympathetic interest of the audience. Be that as it may, A Soldier and a Man is an excellent specimen of a class of play that is never wholly out of fashion. The author can be congratulated upon the fact that Harold Sinclair is not the faultless hero that one so often encounters in modern melodrama. At one point in his career his conduct is open to severe censure, and he causes much pain and suffering to his devoted wife. From holding the rank of lieutenant in the Guards, he becomes a private in an infantry regiment; and his own father loses faith in him. The drink curse threatens to blight his life and prospects, but he is rescued by his faithful wife. The events in the third and fourth acts take place in South Africa during the Zulu War. Sinclair, falsely accused of supplying information to the enemy, is condemned to be shot, and while declaring his innocence, bravely faces the guns of the troopers told off to carry out the dread sentence. But at this critical moment a written confession is produced, and Sinclair's life is saved and his honour cleared. The first use he makes of his freedom is to lead a detachment of soldiers against the Zulus, who, under the direction of Hubert Walgrave, the villain of the play, are attacking the farmhouse where Harold's wife, Rose, is performing the duties of nurse to the wounded. The Zulus are quickly put to flight, and Walgrave is condemned to meet his fate at the hands of the hangman. Mr. James Aubrey, who last week was cast for the principal villain's part in Saved from the Sea, is entrusted with the important rôle of Harold Sinclair. His performance throughout reaches a high level of excellence; his spirited acting in some of the scenes arousing the audience to enthusiasm. Mr. Charles East is a fine, soldierly Colonel Sinclair, who is at last convinced that he has misjudged his son; and makes reparation for his injustice. Mr. Frank Harding plays exceedingly well as Hubert Walgrave; the man's abject terror at the prospect of an ignominious death being depicted with remarkable power and reality. Mr. John Willes gives an effective portrait of the old Devonshire farmer, David Melbury, whose wife, Norah, has an admirable exponent in Miss Emily Dowton. Miss Rose Ralph brings into due prominence the virtues of the devoted wife, who has to suffer the odious attentions of the villain Walgrave. Mr. Tom Wallace is a brisk and humorous Sergeant Wicks, whose daughter, known as "Sergeant" Jane, has a very smart representative in Miss Marie Wright. This lady in the last act takes pot-shots at the attacking Zulus with deadly effect; and Miss Wright's assistance throughout is invaluable. Mr. Alfred Holles does good work as Jake Harding, a South African farmer; and Jantje, a superstitious Hottentot, is capitally embodied by Mr. Richard Grey. Mr. Willie Scott is well placed as James Farrow, Harold's faithful servant, and other parts are safely entrusted to Messrs. James Manning, Charles Groves, jun., T. Teversham, Geo. Roberts, Paul Peters, Edward E. Granville, and Alfred Jones. The variety programme this week includes Miss Gracie Graham, the charming serio, who is singing the songs she so successfully introduced in the recent Britannia pantomime. The Imperial Girls, six in number, headed by Miss Marie Carteth, are first seen as smart drummers, with an appropriate song, and also score with a pleasing ditty and dance, "The Rustle of the Silk." The performance concludes with the farce, entitled Matrimonial Bliss, in which Mr. Willie Scott, Mr. Tom Wallace, Miss Marshall, and Miss Dowton appear with success.

KENNINGTON THEATRE.

On Monday, Feb. 13, the Comedy, by Brandon Thomas, entitled

"CHARLEY'S AUNT."

"Charley's Aunt is still running" is a well-known saying; she has been running very merrily this week at the above theatre with Mr. Brandon Thomas's capital company. Mr. Stanley Cooke, as Lord Fancourt Babberley, keeps the house in continual roars of laughter with his clever impersonation of the aforesaid aunt. Messrs. Arthur Soames and Richard Mason ably portray the two college chums, Jack Chesney and Charley Wykeham; and Colonel Chesney, Bart., is admirably acted by Mr. Brandon Thomas. Miss Lena MacNaughten is very pleasing as Donna Lucia d'Alvadorez, the genuine aunt. Stephen Spettigue, the Oxford solicitor, is very creditably played by Mr. Simon Ord; Mr. Sidney Compton does good work as Brassett, a college scout. Misses Violet Cooper and Geraldine Greville act in a natural manner as Kitty Verdun and Amy Spettigue, the solicitor's ward and niece respectively; and Miss Dorrie Roberts as Ella Delahay merits approval. All who love a good wholesome laugh could witness this admirable farce again and again. A curtain raiser by Mr. Brandon Thomas, entitled Fourchette and Co., proved an excellent hors d'œuvre, and was well received.

THE STANDARD.

On Monday, Feb. 13, Balfe's Opera, in Three Acts, entitled

"THE ROSE OF CASTILLE."

After the long run of Mr. Frederick Melville's successful drama, Her Forbidden Marriage, a pleasing contrast is being supplied this week by Mr. J. W. Turner and company in a series of English operas. The various ladies and gentlemen who appeared on Monday received a cordial welcome, and the enthusiasm displayed upon the entrance of Mr. Turner was something which cannot easily be forgotten, and was a sure proof of the hold he has over his Shoreditch patrons. The opera produced on Monday was The Rose of Castille, and the performance was one of great merit. The singing throughout was of a high grade of excellence, and the chorus and orchestra rendered some pretty and effective music under the able direction of Mr. T. Lawton. As Manuel, Mr. J. W. Turner was at his best. He rendered his music in an artistic and finished manner, and thoroughly deserved the applause which rewarded his efforts. Another performance of high worth was that supplied by Mr. Tom Griffiths as Don Pedro. He possesses an exceptionally fine voice, which he uses with good effect, and which earns for him a high place in the public favour. As the two conspirators, Don Sallust and Don Florio, Mr. Chas. Le Seuer and Mr. Richard Cummings were well placed; Mr. Cummings, as usual, acting with a considerable amount of humour. Mr. George Ridding made a favourable impression as Pablo, and sang with taste and skill. An admirable portrayal of Carmen was given by Miss Jessie Dennis, who always delights her audience with a sweet rendering of the music which falls to her share. Miss Maud Esdale was all that could be desired as the Duchess of Calatravas, and Miss Chrystal Duncan contributed largely to the success of the performance, and used her voice to great advantage as Elvira, the Queen of Leon. Other operas in this week's programme are The Bohemian Girl, The Lily of Killarney, Maritana, Il Trovatore, and Carmen.

THE WEST LONDON.

On Monday, Feb. 13, the Pantomimical Comedy, in Four Acts, entitled,

"THE SWISS EXPRESS."

This musical absurdity may truly be described as a carnival of laughter, and there is still no reason, that we can see, why it should not enjoy a prosperous run for many more years. This is an express that is always going at full speed on any line of route. Of course, the Brothers Charles and Frederick Renad are still the life and soul of it all as Dr. Gull's servants, James and John. Their energy and vitality never flag from the rising of the curtain to its fall. If possible, Mr. Wilford Bailey seems to extract more fun than ever from his part of Dr. Goudimar Gull, and Mr. George Power as Rhino is "good—very good." Mr. George Martin is a capable Bob Rollingstone; Mr. Alec Wylie a satisfactory Dudley Green; and Mr. H. Alexander an amusing Septimus Squeeze. Miss Nellie Fern is most whimsical in her efforts as Mrs. Squeeze; Miss May Hart, as Virginia, sings and dances in delightful fashion, her dainty rendering of "Navaho" being deservedly encored. The four Brighton girls infused plenty of gaiety into the piece by their singing and dancing and expert lance and sword drill.

DALSTON THEATRE.

On Monday, Feb. 13, the Musical Comedy, entitled

"KITTY GREY."

A return visit of the musical comedy, Kitty Grey, to the Dalston Theatre, this week, is attracting the attention of North Londoners, who appreciate a story the interest of which is heightened by the introduction of attractive music, variety of costume, and pretty scenes. Miss Hilda Guiver, who appears as Kitty Grey, brings the necessary amount of vivaciousness to bear upon the representation of a character that is a unique mixture of coquetry, sincerity, and seriousness. Miss Guiver also sings with expression, and, altogether, makes the good-hearted actress a most lovable personage. Mr. Wensley Russell is the embodiment of gallantry as Sir John Binfield, and Miss Eily Helene, as Lady Binfield, is an ideal wife in the matter of devotion. Her scenes with Kitty Grey, when, in the dressing-room at the theatre, she finds the popular actress a friend instead of a foe, are effective. Mr. Robert White, jun., invests the character of the King of Illyria with a fair amount of interest, and Mr. Leslie Harris is an effective Lord Plantagenet. The same remark will apply to Mr. Edmund Russell as Comte de Trenitz. Miss Emily Stevens is a sprightly Mrs. Bright; and Miss Hilda Scarisbrick presents quite a study of confident self-reliance as Sadie de Poulson.

EALING THEATRE.

On Monday, Feb. 13, the Drama, in Four Acts, by Walter Melville, entitled,

"A GIRL'S CROSS ROADS."

This strong sensational drama has received excellent support from enthusiastic audiences, who thoroughly appreciate Mr. W. Melville's successful play. Mr. Charles Franmore, an actor of no mean ability, is a capital representative of the old Farmer John Meadows; Mr. Cecil A. Melton is a capable Jack Livingstone; Mr. John Brooks submits an excellent depiction of Luke Ramsden; and Mr. Barry-Lewers is responsible for a fine piece of acting in the character of Cuthbert Lunney. The eccentricities of Toby Turvey are cleverly depicted by Mr. Fred Ingram, and the winsome Miss Lilla Norden acts well as Tilly Vane. A painstaking representation of Barbara Wade is given by Miss Hilda Beverley, who receives considerable applause, which is well earned; and Miss Nellie Oliver is to be congratulated on her powerful portraiture of the Farmer's Daughter, presenting a striking contrast to the charming young schoolmistress of Miss Grace Richardson. The minor parts of Joe Coyle and Dr. Weston, played respectively by Mr. David Borone and Mr. Charles Terry, are worthy of mention, and the remaining rôles are carefully handled.

GRAND, WOOLWICH.

On Monday, Feb. 13, the Drama, in Four Acts, by Hall Caine, entitled

"THE ETERNAL CITY."

A highly interested audience assembled here on Monday, and enjoyed an excellent representation of The Eternal City by the Ben Greet company. As Donna Roma, Miss Helen Haye proved herself possessed of genuine histrionic talent, her acting, earnest and capable throughout, rising at times to the heights of tragic intensity. The scene with Bonelli in the second act, culminating in the smashing of the bust of Rossi, could scarcely have been better rendered. Another admirable piece of acting came from Mr. D. Lewin Mannering, whose portrayal of Baron Bonelli was characterised by a lifelikeness very difficult of attainment in parts of this nature. The man's egoism, craftiness, and occasional gusts of passion were exhibited with fidelity and naturalness, and one felt that though a villain, he was still human. David Rossi found a capable exponent in Mr. Frederick Victor, whose forceful style and quick manner were exactly suited to the physical representation of the excitable demagogue. Mr. F. Vernon Travers submitted a clever and dignified study of Pope Pius XI.; Mr. P. L. Julian was well suited as Bruno Rocco, doing especially well in the trial scene; and Mr. E. Stanton-Sharp infused a touch of individuality into his rendering of the Chief of Police. The smaller parts were carefully handled, and the drama was mounted and staged on a scale of unusual elaborateness.

GRAND, FULHAM.

On Monday, Feb. 13, the Musical Piece, entitled

"PEGGY MACHREE."

The company at the Fulham Theatre this week is the original one from Wyndham's, in the new musical piece, Peggy Machree, in which the leading parts are taken by Mr. Denis O'Sullivan and Miss Marie Dainton. Peggy Machree is not a "serious play;" it does not harrow our feelings, for the villain is quite harmless, and is easily disposed of. The scene is laid in the Ireland of the eighteenth century, and the brogue is everywhere. There is plenty of fun and dancing, of repartee in the Irish mode, of bright music and pretty dresses, and all comes duly to a happy ending. Mr. Denis O'Sullivan acts admirably as the breezy and light-hearted Irishman, Barry Trevor, and his fine voice is heard to advantage in the songs belonging to the play, as well as in some interpolations, particularly Lever's famous "Widow Malone." An excellent performance is that of Mr. J. Graeme Campbell, as the Scotch Major-Domo, whose dignified disapproval of the "feckless" doings of the other folks is delightful to behold. Mr. Dan FitzGerald is amusing in a very Irish rôle, Michael the Piper, and sings a good song, "How I Lost my Place." As "Peggy Machree," otherwise "the Lady Margaret O'Driscoll," Miss Marie Dainton is the life and soul of the piece. Whether in the full enjoyment of youth and high spirits, or holding her own in the position of a great lady, or in her charming love-making, this brilliant little actress displays her gifts to equal advantage. She was ably supported by Miss Annie Brophy as Moira, Miss Dorothy Garden as the Hon. Emily Pryor, Miss Jenny Dawson as Madame de la Cour, and Miss Paula von Arold as Molly MacMahon. The piece was effectively staged.

SHAKESPEARE, CLAPHAM JUNCTION.

On Monday, Feb. 13, the Drama, by George R. Sims and Wilson Barrett, entitled,
"THE GOLDEN LADDER."

Miss Mary Austin and Mr. E. Vivian Edmonds's excellent company has been presenting this stirring play to enthusiastic audiences this week, moving them at will to laughter and to tears. It is difficult to say which affected them most, the fun, the patriotic allusions, or the pathos. Mr. Harry Cullenford gave a powerful rendering of the persecuted Missionary, receiving excellent support from Miss Conyers Radcliffe, who played the part of his wife in a sweet and convincing manner. Mr. J. Milne Taylor, as the villain, invested the part with all the necessary venom, and his partner in crime was well represented by Mr. Graham Winsford. Mr. Dan Mining gave a good rendering of the rôle of the drunken bank clerk Jim Dixon. The fun could not have been left in better hands than in those of Mr. John Owen, as Samuel Peckaby, and Miss Nellie Graham, as Mrs. Peckaby; while Miss Jessie Gillette ably assisted them as Victoria Alexandra. Little Vera, as the tiny child Lily, played prettily. Miss Jessie Wakeling rendered the song "Thy People" in Act 2 so sweetly as to win great applause. Mr. Edward Bikker gave a satisfactory embodiment of John Grant the banker, and the Noah Learoyd was vigorous and convincing as the Yorkshire manufacturer. Miss Alvina Mining, as the "Tearer," was highly amusing. All the other parts were in capable hands, and the scenery was appropriate. The Biograph made the waits between the acts pass pleasantly, and greatly added to the pleasure of the evening's entertainment.

COUNTY THEATRE, KINGSTON.

On Monday, the Musical Play, in Two Acts, entitled
"THE GEISHA."

Notwithstanding the long period it has been before the public, and the number of times it has been presented to Kingston audiences, The Geisha, which was played at the Royal County Theatre by Mr. Mouillot's chief company on Monday night and during the week, found a numerous audience awaiting it, who gave it a thoroughly hearty welcome, and seemed to enjoy as much as ever the now familiar witticisms and the bright and attractive music. Miss Violet Moore played with much acceptance the part of O Mimosa San; and Miss Florrie Saunders scored a great success as Molly Seymour, as well for her graceful dancing as for her charming singing, both of which were several times encored. Miss Violet Kenyon made a piquant O Juliette Diamente; whilst good work was done by Miss Aubrey Ashton, as Lady Constance Wynne; and by the Misses Florence Lake, Lucy Egerton, and Marie Gilbert, as her ladyship's guests. Mr. Arthur Cartwright was a breezy Reginald Fairfax, his singing being especially well received, and Mr. Edward Carlton created no end of fun by his very able and agile picture of the irrepressible Chinaman, Wun Hi. Mr. Lionel Braham was a majestic and amusing Marquis Imari; Mr. J. Hornby showed the possession of a fine tenor voice in the part of Captain Katana; and Mr. Bay Russell, Mr. F. P. Wilfrid, and Mr. H. Cullen ably acquitted themselves as the three officers of H.M.S. Turtle. The play was admirably staged. Last night The Greek Slave was presented.

"DICK WHITTINGTON" AT BIRMINGHAM.

(SECOND NOTICE.)

Dick Whittington, which is the second pantomime success that Mr. Lester Collingwood has achieved at the Alexandra Theatre in succession, is just now appearing at its best, and is attended by large crowds at every performance. Mr. Collingwood gauges the capacity of his public to the finest degree, and the pantomime forms a concatenation of popular, stirring songs and irresistibly funny situations, the merit of which is reflected in the happy faces of the audiences assembled. Among the potential stars in the cast are Messrs. Barrett and Knowles, two diverting comedians, dancers, and vocalists, whose assiduous efforts in the cause of mirth have aroused much favourable comment in the city, and who are bound to score wherever they may be placed. Mr. Will Letters, as Fitzwarren, is a fellow of infinite jest and facile movement, and also possesses a powerful and pleasant voice, which is heard with approbation in several telling numbers. Mr. Albert Darnley's humour as Idle Jack is effective, and Mr. C. L. Ludlow, as the Cook, contributes cleverly to the comic side of the pantomime. Mr. Alfred Clegg's amusing antics as the Cat give evidence of a careful and faithful study of the feline species; and Mr. Samuel Lockridge, as the Emperor, displays both vocal and acting ability. Miss Florence Burns, who is well equipped by nature for the rôle of Whittington, charms by her acting, while her singing is marked by good phrasing, and invariably scores. Miss Nelly Valentine invests the character of the Alderman's daughter, Alice, with many engaging qualities. Her appearance is prepossessing, and her voice sweet and effective, while her dancing is graceful. Miss Hilda Corelli makes a handsome young gallant, Sir Algernon, pleasing also by her clever singing and dancing. Miss Gertie Douglas, as the Captain, delivers her lines with distinctness, while her songs are capitally rendered. Miss Hattie Lind, as the dusky Princess, commands attention and respect with her rich and rare singing of "The Ugly Duckling," her acting of the rôle being appropriate. The Misses Vida Yorke, Nora Milton, Florence Steventon, and Hilda Greville (the latter as Good Fairy) also lend assistance to the production; and a smart nautch dance by Miss Essie Perrin wins much applause. The scenery, which includes, among other fine sets, a capital view of Highgate Hill, with London looming in the distance, is by W. Maughan and Son, and elicits admiration. The Edingall Trio go through their dainty and expert coon and acrobatic dances, and Mr. Arthur W. Parry leads the orchestra with ability.

"THE FORTY THIEVES" AT BIRMINGHAM.

(SECOND NOTICE.)

The Forty Thieves, which was produced at the Prince of Wales's Theatre on Christmas Eve, is bringing good fortune to everyone concerned, and Mr. J. F. Graham may point with pride to the production. Mr. Graham has had double duty to perform, as, owing to the lamentable accident to Mr. Wilkie Bard, he has undertaken that gentleman's part of Ali Baba. Mr. Ainslie Burton, as the wealthy, grasping Cassim, is unctuously humorous as well as dramatic. Mr. John Brabourne enacts the humorous Dame Cogia with complete success, also delivering an amusing ode to an errant tabby, to the great delight o fall. Mr. Phil Smith scores indelibly as the refractory Hassarac, his burlesque of an oratorio being one of the rare bits of the pantomime. Mr. Benedick Byron Bicknelle shines as Mustapha, also winning favour as an exceptionally clever clay-modeller; and Mr. Harry Zietz fulfils his arduous rôle as Ibrayhim, the donkey, with much success. Special praise must be awarded to Messrs. Ben Brown and Geo. Le Clerq for the fun they cause in the "juvenile" parts; and whether "killing Injuns," playing billiards, or on burglarious intent, are screamingly funny, and set the audience roaring with laughter all the time they occupy the stage. Mr. Charles Ninian, as the Slave Dealer, relieves the part with humour, and Mr. J. Stark acts impressively as the Magician. Miss Alice Oppitz is eminently qualified by voice, style, and physique to command as Abdallah, and her powerful acting and singing make her an ideal Captain. Miss Marie Campbell is gay and sportive as Ganem, and ranks among Birmingham's most popular principal boys. Her songs, which include "A Wise Old Owl" and "Have you seen my gird?" are rendered with much chic and charm, while her share of the work in the well-arranged scena, "In Arizona," wherein Miss Minnie Hunt takes a graceful part, is dainty and clever. Miss Hunt acts gracefully as Morgiana, and her singing of "Dreamland" and "The Airship" evokes numerous encores. Miss Nelly Stratton is well suited as Zoe, the poor girl devoted to Abdallah, and the Rosie Rice quartette of dancers are retained in their graceful and agile expositions of the art of Terpsichore. The excellent and effective orchestration of Mr. William Southworth, the resident conductor, is to be commended.

"THE DESIGNERS."

A Farcical Comedy, in Three Acts, by Fritz Zorn, Produced at the Brixton Theatre,
on Monday, Feb. 13.

John Huggins	Mr. W. Hargreaves
Mr. Currie	Mr. E. O'Grady
Wilfred Fry	Mr. William Luff
Percy Loraine	Mr. Arthur Dennis
Taddlebury	Mr. Frank Lester
Roodge	Mr. Herbert Lloyd
Walter	Mr. Gerald Clarke
Potter	Mr. Gus Edwardes
Dick	Mr. A. W. Barker
Mabel	Miss Dorothy Sidney
Bessie	Miss Mignon Hester
Miss Rachel Huggins	Miss Ina Rozant

Brixtonians had quite a happy evening on Monday, in company with The Designers, a farcical comedy in three acts, by Mr. Fritz Zorn, and the author is entitled to our hearty congratulations on the skill he has shown in construction and the succession of humorous incident he has devised. The piece was played to an uproarious accompaniment of laughter, and the difficulty of keeping up the interest during the third act—always a problem in plays of the kind—seems to have been fairly well surmounted, though the final section did not quite sustain the promise of the second. The company, which is under the direction of Miss Ina Rozant, played with considerable dash and verve; but there were one or two slow episodes that will no doubt be quickened with more representations.

"The Designers" belong to a firm of high art decorators named Delamere and Co., and the superstructure of fun is based on the subtle disguising of a pusillanimous lover named Percy Loraine as one of the temporary employees of the firm, so that he may the better press his suit for the hand of the romantic and novel-reading Mabel Huggins. Her father, John Huggins, has seen Percy without make-up, and has written him down a fool. "I know a fool when I see one, don't I?" exclaims the splenetic Huggins. "I had three sisters—all fools." Percy owes his disguise to Wilfred Fry, a clerk in the firm of Delamere, and an amateur actor with a soul that yearns for the footlights and the parts specially associated with Sir Henry Irving. Percy has told Fry his story, and the latter, with dramatic instinct, immediately sees in it excellent material for melodrama. Daughter immured and inconsolable, irate and obdurate father, despairing lover!—the only thing wanting is a heavy man as the rival lover and a moated grange. But, though given to high falutin' and Irvingesque attitudes, Fry has practical help to offer the unfortunate suitor. The firm has a contract in hand for the decoration of the Huggins's residence at Wickley, and, in the temporary absence of one of the chief and most valued employees, the temporary engagement of a certain Tattlebury—given to intemperance—is suggested. Tattlebury has not been seen, and therefore Percy, with a little grease-paint and a wig, can be easily substituted. No sooner thought of than done! The success of the plan is much facilitated by the arrival of Mr. John Huggins and his maiden sister. The old gentleman is peremptory. He has waited long enough for his new scheme of decoration, and he insists on taking the trembling Percy—disguised as Tattlebury—and a foreman named Roodge back with him in his motor. No sooner have they gone than the real Tattlebury arrives; and the manager Currie, furious at the "blunder" that has been made by Fry, whom he had previously sacked, takes measures to reach the residence of Huggins with the real Tattlebury before the false one arrives. But he is foiled by Fry, who sees his way to a little sweet revenge in return for his notice.

In the second act, which takes place chez Huggins, Percy finds his disguise a great hindrance to his ardent protestations, and Mabel not only fails to recognise him, but expresses an absolute loathing for the man with the red nose. Fry, who follows Percy, knowing that the real Tattlebury will soon arrive, artfully informs Huggins that several householders have been victimised by a gang of burglars posing as house-decorators, and that the police are searching for the notorious chief of the gang, named Donovan. Huggins, becoming alarmed, takes prompt measures for his own protection, and when Currie and Tattlebury arrive they are "surrounded" by the gardener with a pitchfork and the manservant with a Lee-Metford. Currie appeals to Fry, but the latter declares him to be Donovan, and insists on both intruders being gagged and bound.

In the last act things have gone quite far enough even for Fry's scheme of revenge, and he becomes really alarmed at Huggins's threats of punishment. By temporising with him, however, Fry is able to get a few minutes alone with the "falsely accused," and sets them free on condition that they forgive him the trick he has played upon them. Huggins, however, refuses to forgive anybody concerned—an example that is followed by the maiden sister, who roundly abuses the poor trembling lover Percy, for whom, through a misapprehension, she has been waiting alone for several hours in a four-wheeled cab, intended for the elopement of the young couple. Fry, after being denounced by all and sundry, makes everybody forgive everybody else (himself included) by threatening to put them all in the play (which he has been working into acts all through).

Mr. William Luff, in the part of the stage-egotist, Wilfred Fry, scored a popular success, though his imitation of our leading actor was in questionable taste. Mr. W. Hargreaves made the irritability of the splenetic Mr. Huggins exceedingly entertaining, and reminded the older playgoer very forcibly of that fine comedian, the late W. J. Hill. When Huggins spoke of the decoration of his interior, and expressed his determination to have no muddy greens or dirty drabs, but something a bit tasty, such as violet and yellow, artistic Brixton laughed, and laughed very heartily. Mr. Arthur Dennis will increase the humour of his impersonation of Percy Loraine with a few more representations; Mr. Frank Lester's Tattlebury was comically expressive, though perhaps a trifle too extravagant, and there was much merit in Mr. Herbert Lloyd's study of Roodge, a typical working-man, who does not allow his sense of duty to be drowned under "seven pints." Mr. Lloyd's drunken scene was very telling. Mr. Gerald Clarke made a typical cockney office-boy; and the small parts of Potter, the gardener, and Dick were effectively handled by Mr. Gus Edwardes and Mr. A. W. Barker. Miss Dorothy Sidney made an attractive heroine of Mabel, who, amid hysterical sobs, tells her father, "You rob me of my heart's love, and offer me wall-papers." Her style was instinct with grace and refinement, and she showed also that she possessed humour in her dialogues with Mr. Arthur Dennis. Miss Mignon Hester was seen to advantage in the small part of Bessie; and the fun was largely added to by the whimsical treatment of the rôle of Miss Rachel Huggins by Miss Ina Rozant, whose soulful yearnings for the unutterable were drolly accentuated. As we have already stated, the production was received with the heartiest laughter.

The Designers was preceded by a new play, in one act, by W. F. Downing, entitled

"THE HAPPIEST DAY OF MY LIFE."

Ted Plant	Mr. E. O'Grady
Harry Dash	Mr. Herbert Lloyd
Molly	Miss Ina Rozant
Lizzie Hemmings	Miss Clara Spillard

Mr. Downing is the author of Lady Tetley's Divorce, which, it will be remembered, was played both in English and German. In the above little piece he has treated with no little power and pathos a young wife's temporary disloyalty (only in intention) to her husband, and her repentance. Ted Plant, unworldly, unlearned, and intensely affectionate, was particularly well represented by Mr. E. O'Grady; Mr. Herbert Lloyd quite realised the idiosyncrasies of the character of the young cab proprietor, Harry Dash; and Miss Ina Rozant made a pathetic figure of Mollie, the young wife, the cast being completed by Miss Clara Spillard, a capable Lizzie Hemmings.

"HEART OF GOLD."

A Russo-Japanese Romance, in One Act,
by Beatrix de Burgh and Lawrence Grant,
Produced for the First Time on any Stage at the Coronet Theatre, Notting Hill. on Saturday, Feb. 11.

Captain Dimitri Korsakoff	Mr. Lawrence Grant
Lieut. Boris Dolgourki	Mr. Hugh Ardale
Asano	Mr. C. Leveson Lane
Sentry	Mr. W. Fletcher
O Hana San	Mrs. Mouillot

The authors of Heart of Gold are to be congratulated on having steered clear of anything likely to give offence or cause "strained relations" between ourselves and the two countries so unfortunately engaged in war in the Far East. Captain Dimitri Korsakoff, the Russian officer who is given the title of "Heart of Gold" by the mousmée in search of her lover, on account of his refusing to barter a trinket given him by his absent sweetheart for the bliss of a present liaison, is a fine type of manliness and good-heartedness. Nor can any exception be taken to the faithful O Hana San or her brave lover, the Japanese standard-bearer.

The scene is laid within the Russian lines in Manchuria. Captain Dimitri Korsakoff has just previously captured a Japanese outpost, and himself seized the standard-bearer and his flag. While he reads a letter from his lady-love, who is many versts away, and Lieutenant Boris Dolgourki, who is evidently a bit of a lady killer, gaily prattles of his conquests among the fair sex, and expresses the wish that someone in the form of womankind would appear, the sentry challenges a stranger who approaches their tent. On examination this proves to be O Hana San, who has braved the rigours of winter and evaded the lynx-eye of the enemy in order to seek out her lover, Asano, the captured Japanese standard-bearer. Lieutenant Boris tries to win her love with rich gifts, but the little Japanese blossom gently turns aside his raillery, and is not slow to recognise in Captain Dimitri, the faithful lover and noble-minded officer, the sympathetic soul she seeks. She pleads first for the life of her lover, and then to be allowed to see him. This boon is granted her, and she is also given the officer's trophy, the Japanese standard, and promised safe conduct to the Japanese lines at dawn, but she must answer with her life should her lover escapes through her medium. In her brief interview with Asano, she persuades him that the highest duty of all good Samurai is to return and fight for their country, and on her pledging her word to rejoin him at dawn, he goes out into the night disguised in her cloak, and escapes over the snow-capped mountains. O Hana San remains behind, and, her mission fulfilled, dies by her own hand, and thus keeps faith with the Russian officer. The captain and his lieutenant return to find her dying, but she is sufficiently alive to keep him to his promise to return her to her lover at dawn. This pretty little trifle ends with a tableau in which we see the officers reverently covering her corpse with the standard, and preparing to convey her to the Japanese lines.

Mr. Lawrence Grant is a thoroughly manly and virile Captain Dimitri Korsakoff, and contributes a telling and distinctive performance. Mr. Hugh Ardale, as the lively Adonis Lieutenant Boris Dolgourki, imparts a welcome touch of brightness to the piece. Mr. Charles Leveson Lane, in manner and make-up, is the dignified lover and single-minded soldier Asano (a Japanese standard-bearer) to the life, and is seen to advantage in this small part. Mrs. Mouillot is a very charming O Hana San (Blossom), and excels in her lighter moments, though she rises to emotional heights in her tragic death. Mr. W. Fletcher efficiently enacts the part of a sentry, and Russian songs are sung by a Russian male quartette. Viscount Hayashi and suite were present, and appeared to enjoy the performance and that of Joseph Entangled thoroughly.

"MASKERADE."

A Play, in Four Acts, by Ludwig Fulda, Produced for the First Time in England at the Great Queen-street Theatre, on Wednesday, Feb. 15.

Max Freiherr v. Wittinghof	Rudolf Leyrer
Karl Freiherr v. Wittinghof	Phil Lesing
Schellhorn	Johannes Körner
Johanna	Betty L'Arronge
Edmund	Heinz Passt
Ellen v. Tönning	Camilla Dalberg
Gerda Hübner	Else Gademann
Frau Schwalb	Ida Weiss
Klettke	Bruno Wiburger
Minna	Grete Langfried
Friedrich	Fritz Stern

Dr. Ludwig Fulda's latest play, Maskerade, gained a very favourable reception from Wednesday night's audience. The dialogue was bright, natural, and often witty, and the author has shown some courage in avoiding the conventional ending of the usual domestic comedy. The picture presented of a German family is not exactly edifying, but the peculiarities of its members excited considerable merriment. As we have said, the dialogue was good, but perhaps in places a little too redundant. The main interest of the story centres in Gerda Hübner, a young girl, the illegitimate daughter of Max Freiherr von Wittinghof, who, having for years occupied the post of Minister in South Africa, returns to Berlin with plenty of money and benevolent intentions towards his daughter. Gerda is earning her living as a teacher, and has, unfortunately, during her father's absence, committed the fault which her mother had committed before her, her partner being Edmund, son of Geheimrat Schellhorn. Von Wittinghof when he hears the story shows nothing but sympathy for the girl, and when he learns the name of her lover, he is well satisfied. "There will be no difficulty," he says, "once you are declared legitimate and a baronet's daughter, the young man will be in honour bound to marry you." Von Wittinghof calls upon the Schellhorns, and the head of the family is delighted with the idea of a union between his son and his friend's daughter, whom he has never seen. Consequently, he induces Edmund, who is a great cad, to explain by letter to his little friend the teacher that, owing to his prospect of a wealthy marriage, he will be compelled to discontinue his visits. The letter is delivered to Gerda just before Edmund calls on her father to complete his supposed conquest, and she denounces his conduct with scorn and contempt. Subsequently, Edmund delivers himself of any number of lies in the endeavour to retrieve his position, but is finally shown up by the most time-honoured of all devices—the pretence that she has determined to surrender her father's bounty, so that he will be marrying her for herself alone. A considerable portion of two acts is occupied by some scandal which has gathered round a certain Frau von Tönning and a "Ministerialdirektor," to whom we are not introduced. The acting deserves the warmest praise. Fräulein Else Gademann played exceedingly well the part of Gerda Hübner, the varying moods and feelings of the girl being portrayed with much skill and charm of manner. A clever and highly finished portrait was the elder Schellhorn of Herr Johannes Körner. The canting hypocrite was depicted in a manner that delighted the audience. Frau L'Arronge deserves every credit for her clever acting in the part of Schellhorn's spirit-broken, dejected wife, who, in the presence of strangers has to mask her real feelings towards her deceitful husband. Herr Heinz Pabst was natural and earnest as the caddish young man Edmund. Fräulein Camilla Dalberg acted with much spirit the part of the attractive widow Ellen von Tönning, and Herr Phil Lesing was a capital representative of the elderly and very worldly diplomatist, who tenders brotherly advice to Max. All the minor parts were carefully played.

REVIVAL OF "OUR FLAT."

At the Comedy Theatre, on Tuesday, Feb. 14, the Farcical Comedy, by Mrs. Musgrave, entitled
"OUR FLAT."

Reginald Sylvester	Mr. Charles Steuart
Clarence Vane	Mr. Henry J. Ford
Mr. McCullum	Mr. Walter Beaumont
Pinchard	Mr. E. Nainby
Stout	Mr. Edmund Gwenn
Foreman	Mr. C. Grose
First Man	Mr. Meurice Lock
Second Man	Mr. Clarence Morgan
Mr. Nathaniel Glover	Mr. Willie Edouin
Margery Sylvester	Miss Nora Lancaster
Lucy	Miss Dolores Maclean
Clara Pryout	Miss Maggie Bowman
Madame Volant	Miss Violet Loraine
Elise Claremont	Miss Ruth Savile
Bella	Miss Pollie Emery

It is only in very rare cases that the farcical comedies of the last century bear revival, and Our Flat is one of these. It has many touches that are supremely human; its cheerfulness is irresistible; its frank jollity is like a glass of the finest champagne; and there is a gaiety in every situation, in every line, almost, that acts like a tonic. One must sympathise, too, with the young couple who have started housekeeping, with an almost Arcadian forgetfulness of the prosaic demands of rent and the payment of the butcher and the baker. Another strong recommendation: it is irretrievably English. We have no intrigue, in which the husband, the wife, and the other fellow figure. The British matron may smile without an arrière pensée, and her bosom never be agitated with a sigh.

The success on Tuesday was undisputed, and it was well won. In the cast we have that prince of comedians, Mr. Willie Edouin, to take up his old rôle of Nathaniel Glover—Nathaniel, impregnated with the traditions of the legitimate, yet alive to the necessities of an up-to-date farce; Nathaniel, the shrewd entrepreneur; Nathaniel, the magnificent. He comes down to the footlights with the strut of the man who is used to the conquest of audiences, who is familiar with footlight triumphs—who, indeed, takes success as the sole result of his commanding genius. True it is that Nathaniel has a weakness for a pretty face, but he also possesses the diplomatic tact of an ambassador. Mr. Edouin's rendering has lost none of the cachet of genius, and one fails to see any other comedian in the rôle, so perfect is it in every detail. We need not enlarge on the reception given to the actor, whose amusing gag concerning a well-known school of acting set the house in a roar. Another immense favourite on Tuesday was Miss Pollie Emery, who has long since identified her career with the delineation of cockney slaveys. Her Bella is one of the most genuine bits of low comedy that has been seen on the London stage for many a day. The scene wherein Bella dons the tea-gown of her mistress and interviews Mr. Glover was exquisite, and the faithfulness and affection of the real good-hearted girl were never lost sight of in Miss Emery's fine impersonation. Miss Nora Lancaster, the pretty daughter of Miss Wallis, made a most favourable impression as Margery Sylvester, the brave and resourceful little wife. Margery is a typical English girl, and the refined and breezy interpretation of Miss Lancaster realised the character perfectly. She was simple, natural, and girlish, and despite an excusable nervousness, she completely captivated the house. Mr. Charles Steuart's Reginald Sylvester was charged with an invincible optimism that never wavered in its buoyancy, and in the love of fun that is a chief trait of the character of the young husband. Mr. Steuart has style, and he shared most unmistakably in the triumph secured by the comedy. Mr. Henry J. Ford, as Clarence Vane, did extremely well, the assertiveness of the hard-up artist never being overdone. Mr. E. Nainby's Pinchard has all the qualities of amusing grimness demanded from the indignant dairyman; Mr. Walter Beaumont was drolly irascible and testy as Mr. McCullum; and Mr. Edmund Gwenn's Stout, the porter at the flats, seemed to have caught exactly the manner of the discreet and wide-awake functionary, who is always on the look-out for a tip. Miss Maggie Bowman was quite a success as the mischievous Clara Pryout; Miss Violet Loraine played exceedingly well as Madame Volant, otherwise Jane Brown; and Miss Ruth Savile, as Elise Claremont, and Messrs. C. Grose, Meurice Lock, and Clarence Morgan completed an excellent cast. The furniture removal scene, and the rehabilitation of Margery's sitting-room with sofas made out of starch boxes, a bath for a lounge chair, and a plate rack for a book-case, created all its old success, and Our Flat seems to be in for another run. It is a delightful after-dinner piece, and is as fresh and ingenuous as ever.

It was preceded by a "farcical trifle," by Mr. Lawrence Sterner, entitled

"THE WATER CURE."

Harry Parr	Mr. Clayton Greene
Kitty Weedon	Miss Ruth Savile
Dorothy Derry	Miss Maggie Bowman

This trifle was produced at the Brixton Theatre on March 14, 1904, and it has also been seen at the London Pavilion. It is mostly written round the jealousy of Miss Dorothy Derry, the sweetheart of Harry Parr, a young solicitor. She regards Harry's sister Kitty as a rival in her affections, and with the purpose of watching his "little game" disguises herself as an office boy. Her suspicions of Harry's propensities for flirting are confirmed, and she makes up her mind to take poison. Harry, who has penetrated her disguise, substitutes water for the deadly drug, and her unworthy suspicions are eventually dissipated by the "water cure." Miss Maggie Bowman made all that was possible out of the part of Dorothy; Miss Ruth Savile was ladylike as Kitty; and Mr. Clayton Greene did all that was possible with the part of Harry.

"THE BLANCHARD DIAMONDS."

A New Play, by Messrs. C. Harvard Pierson and R. P. Oglesby, Produced for the First Time on any Stage at the Grand Theatre, Hull, on Monday, Feb. 13.

Sir John Blanchard	Mr. Walter Russell
Eric Blanchard	Mr. E. F. Kennedy
Richard Croall	Mr. Benson North
Larry Pullifer	Mr. Lancelot Usher
Joe Tregellis	Mr. Edward Rochelle
Nat Stearn	Mr. Albert Ward
Farmer Gammidge	Mr. Joseph Rowland
Jerry Bickerdyke	Mr. Joseph Hudson
Morris Goldstein	Mr. John Hartt
Steiglitz	Mr. R. Lines
Auctioneer	Mr. Edward Rochelle
Detective	Mr. Harry J. Morgan
Croall's Servant	Mr. F. Jameson
Bellman	Mr. Chas. Caunt
Yokel	Mr. W. Larkin
Boy	Master E. Dunno
Lady Blanchard	Miss Julie Kennard
May Sherringham	Miss May Congdon
Ruth Tregellis	Miss Maud Hildyard
Mrs. Gossett	Mrs. Richard Edgar
Phœbe Mercer	Miss Nellie Dallas
An Old Woman	Miss Hilda Holt

This new play is built on familiar lines, but not the less interesting on that account. The humorous side is strongly developed. The dialogue is wholesome and not extravagant; the situations cleverly worked out, and the interest sustained until the end. The Blanchard Diamonds is a type of drama ever sure to draw the popular portions of the house.

The first scene opens with a fête given by Sir John Blanchard to his tenantry to celebrate the home-coming of his son, Captain Eric Blanchard, who has won distinction at "the front." Goldstein, a Jewish money-lender, puts in an unexpected appearance, and presses for immediate settlement of advances to the extent of several thousands. Lady Blanchard enters, and explanation to her is inevitable. To shield her son Lady Blanchard pledges her diamonds—a necklace of some £30,000 value—with the Jew, as security for the debt. This fact comes to the knowledge of Richard Croall, a bogus company promoter, who resolves to use it for his own sinister purposes. Croall also learns of Eric's entanglement with Ruth Tregellis, a fisher-girl. Working on the girl's jealous nature, Croall mentions to her the probability of a betrothal between Eric and May Sherringham, a young heiress, who has won his heart. Ruth confronts Eric with a letter in which he had promised her marriage. A stormy scene ensues, attracting the attention of Sir John and others of the guests, and Eric is compelled to acknowledge to his father the truth of the fisher-girl's claim.

The final scene of the first act reveals a lonely part of the sea coast, known as "The Death's Head Rock," where the only sign of habitation is a rough cabin occupied by Ruth and her father—Joe Tregellis, a drunken fisherman. Eric, who has been shooting, calls to see and thank Ruth for her generosity, she having released him from his promise; when he is confronted by Nat Stearn, a young fisherman in love with the girl. Nat strikes Eric senseless to the ground, and then, fearing he has killed him, rushes off for aid. Meanwhile, Croall enters with Larry Pullifer (his satellite), and they lie in wait for Goldstein, who presently hurries along on his way to the station, carrying the precious diamonds in a bag. Nearly stumbling over Eric's senseless body, Goldstein stoops down to make closer examination, placing the bag on the ground. Croall is in the act of stealing it, when Goldstein detects him, and shrieks out for aid. Croall drops the bag on a bench beneath the cabin window, snatches up Eric's gun, and shoots Goldstein dead. Simultaneously, Joe Tregellis peeps out of his cabin window, and, unobserved by the others, abstracts the diamonds and replaces the empty bag on the beneh. Eric recovers, sees the murdered man beside him, and Croall is quick to point to him as the guilty man. For want of sufficient evidence, however, Eric is not arrested, but nevertheless a cloud of suspicion hangs over him.

Joe Tregellis has now to be reckoned with by Croall, who is forced to pay a heavy price for the former's silence about the murder. Joe speedily drinks himself to death; but ere he dies he writes a confession, which he places in the secret drawer of an old cabinet, where he also secretes the diamonds.

Croall, now thinking himself safe from discovery, tries to find the diamonds, the disappearance of which has puzzled him not a little. He leads Ruth to think that her father committed the murder; and induces her to promise to become his mistress, as the price of his silence. Subsequently she learns, from a letter written by her father just before he died, where he had hidden the gems, together with a "document" which would "do for Croall." The cabinet is to be sold by auction with Joe's other belongings. Croall realises the urgency of acquiring the cabinet, and a most exciting scene follows, he and Ruth bidding hard against each other at the sale—Croall in order to secure and destroy the evidence which would hang him, Ruth to regain the diamonds and so establish Eric's innocence. Ultimately the cabinet is knocked down to Ruth, who, after taking from it the case of diamonds, has it placed in a room at Blanchard Castle. Croall makes a final attempt to save himself from the gallows by burglariously entering this room. He is about to break open the cabinet, when he is interrupted by Ruth, and a fierce struggle ensues. The Blanchards and their guests enter hurriedly; Ruth reveals the letter which will convict Croall, who is promptly placed under arrest, and the play ends with the betrothal of Eric and May, while Ruth pairs off with honest Nat.

The members of Mr. John Hart's company acquitted themselves admirably. The success of the evening, however, was scored by Miss Maud Hildyard, who, as Ruth Tregellis, gave a clever portrait of a Glory Quayle type of woman. Mr. Edward Rochelle submitted a capital study as Joe Tregellis, also appearing as Hammer, an auctioneer. Mr. Albert Ward played with much vigour the part of the young fisherman, Nat Stearn. Mr. Benson North, as Richard Croall, was a most effective villain, and Mr. Edmund F. Kennedy was cast for the rôle of Eric Blanchard. Messrs. Joe Rowland and Joseph Hudson, as Farmer Gammidge and Jerry Bickerdyke, were amusing in their respective rôles, and Mrs. Richard Edgar was good as Mrs. Gossett. Miss May Congdon was well placed as May Sherringham, and Miss Julie Kennard scored as Lady Blanchard. Mr. Walter Russell appeared as Sir John Blanchard, and Mr. Lancelot Usher made the most of his opportunities as Larry Pullifer. Some appropriate scenery has been painted for the production by Mr. D. G. Hall, and the incidental music has been composed by Mr. C. W. Chambers, of the Royal, Bradford.

At the close of the performance, the authors, Messrs. C. Harvard Pierson and R. P. Oglesby, were summoned before the curtain to receive the congratulations of the house, as testified by its applause. There were also calls for the principals, and the veteran stage-manager, Mr. T. F. Doyle, who produced the play.

SCENE AT WYNDHAM'S THEATRE.

At Wyndham's Theatre on Monday evening, after the first act of Captain Marshall's farcical romance, The Lady of Leeds, the principal part in which is that of a wealthy daughter of a millionaire ginger-ale manufacturer, a man in one of the top boxes stood up and said, "Ladies and gentlemen, without wishing to interfere with this performance, I must mention that there is a real ginger-ale manufacturer bearing the name mentioned in the play, who protests in the strongest manner against his name being so freely used."

THEATRICAL GOSSIP.

Sir Henry Irving's unveiling yesterday of the tablet to the memory of Quin, in Pierrepoint-street, Bath, reminds us that the old Bath Theatre, under Mr. James Henry Chute's famous management, was a fine nursery of good actors and actresses. Amongst those in Mr. Chute's company were George Melville, Arthur Stirling, George and William Rignold, Miss Marie Wilton (Lady Bancroft), Miss Henrietta Hodson, and Miss Madge Robertson (Mrs. Kendal).

Amongst the audience at the performances of John Bull's Other Island at the Court Theatre this week have been Their Royal Highnesses the Prince and Princess of Wales, Marquis and Marchioness of Salisbury, Dowager Marchioness of Queensberry, Duchess of St. Albans, Countess of Carlisle, Lady Lytton, Lady Hamilton, Lady Enfield, Lady Barrington, Lady Jekyll, Lady Raynes, Hon. Mrs. Alfred Lyttelton, Right Hon. A. J. Balfour (Prime Minister), Right Hon. Alfred Lyttelton (Colonial Secretary), Right Hon. George Wyndham (Irish Secretary), Right. Hon. Herbert Asquith, Sir Oliver Lodge, and the Archdeacon of Westminster.

Mr. Alfred Sutro, who began life as a business man in Mincing-lane, had then no time for writing plays, but plenty of opportunity for the observation of humanity. Those early years of his he therefore regards as an excellent training for his work as a playwright. Mr. Sutro married a very clever woman, the sister of Mr. Rufus Isaacs, the well-known K.C. For years Mr. Sutro sent in plays to managers, and had them rejected. He is now quite overwhelmed with commissions, and can hardly comply with the many demands made on him.

Sir Lawrence Alma-Tadema, R.A., who takes the chair at the public dinner to be held at the Imperial Restaurant to-morrow, in aid of the Benevolent Fund of the Scenic Artists' Association, will be supported by Messrs. George Alexander, Oscar Asche, Dion Boucicault, Arthur Bourchier, Lionel Brough, Cyril Maude, A. W. Pinero, and Lewis Waller.

Nathaniel Glover, in Our Flat, with his colossal self-assurance, is at the moment the most amusing person on the London stage. Mr. Willie Edouin in giving him a Crummles-like rendering is quite entitled to make remarks on the stage of the present day, and he does so in a most diverting way. "You should go on the stage," says the admiring Nathaniel to pretty Margery Sylvester, who shyly confeses her ignorance of the histrionic art. "But you could be taught," replies the manager of the Star Theatre. "Indeed!" rejoins Margery. "I thought actors were born, not made." "Some of them are; some should not have been born; and some wish they had never been born!. Acting can be taught: it never can be learnt; but if you were taught you would soon be at the top of the Tree. When I was young we played romantic drama. Shakespeare, and farce—five parts a week; now we have two shows a night and a revolving stage!" On Tuesday night, at the Comedy, this amusing tilt at modern notions was punctuated by the heartiest laughter.

"The Admiral's Lady," the new Nelson play by Arthur Shirley, was to have been produced at Portsmouth this week; but in consequence of an unfortunate accident to the scenery the première is postponed until Wednesday next at the Brixton Theatre, where Mrs. Lewis Waller will also put on—for the first time in London—the comedy Miss Jack, on Saturday afternoon. The Admiral's Lady is, of course, Lady Hamilton, and the play, which is in a prologue and three acts, will open at Portsmouth. It will be remembered that during the run of Nelson's Enchantress, at the Avenue, in 1897, a question was asked in the Commons concerning the play, in which Mr. Forbes Robertson and Miss Patrick Campbell played the lovers.

Mrs. Beerbohm Tree contributed Tennyson's poem, "The Victim," to the entertainment on Monday, at Grosvenor House, in aid of the East London Nursing Society, at which Princess Victoria of Schleswig-Holstein was present. The entertainment also included songs by Miss Viola Tree, Miss Dorothy Foote, Miss Eva Dennison, Miss Thérèse Grabowsky, Mrs. Onslow Ford, Mr. Walter Kirby, Mr. Louis Bradfield, and Mr. Spencer Carpenter; recitations and musical sketches by Miss Nanny Price, Miss Janette Steer, Mr. George Giddens, Mr. Harrison Hill, and Mr. H. B. Irving; and solos on the pianoforte by Miss Tora Hwass, on the violin by Miss Alice Liebman and Herr Franz Meisel, and on the 'cello by Señor Rubio, Mr. Graham appearing as a marionette. It is expected that the East London Nursing Society will receive about £300 as a result of the entertainment.

Sir Henry Irving's farewell tour in America, under the management of Mr. Charles Frohman, will start in October, and will last twenty weeks. Sir Charles Wyndham, who sails for England on March 18, has also accepted Mr. Frohman's terms for a twenty weeks' tour in America in 1906-1907. Sir Charles and Miss Mary Moore terminated a brilliant three nights' engagement in Ottawa on Saturday. Full houses marked each appearance, the Thursday being a command night, while on the following day they had the honour of being entertained at Government House by Earl and Countess Grey. Sir Charles reappears in London on April 24.

Mr. Edward Terry has received some comments from English newspapers upon certain remarks and animadversions which he is alleged to have made about Mr. Pinero's play, A Wife Without a Smile, recently performed in America, during the course of an interview with him, published in one of the New York newspapers. Mr. Terry wishes to repudiate these remarks, and to state that, as a matter of fact, he never even referred to Mr. Pinero's A Wife Without a Smile, and immediately the interview appeared he wrote to the American newspaper in question, contradicting this statement of its interviewer—a contradiction, however, which the editor did not see fit to insert.

Mr. Roland Bottomley, the young actor-dramatist, whose farcical comedy, The Impertinence of Nancy, was successfully produced the other day, made his first appearance on the stage as one of the children in Sir Henry Irving's memorable production of Olivia. After some five years under the Irving régime at the Lyceum, Mr. Bottomley migrated to the Royalty, with Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Bourchier, with whom he appeared in several of his most notable successes. Other important engagements have been under the managements of Messrs. Forbes Robertson, George Alexander, Mr. and Mrs. Kendal, Frank Curzon, Mrs. Patrick Campbell, &c. Mr. Bottomley will appear in his new play, supported by a strong cast, at the Pier Theatre, St. Leonards, on the 27th inst., for a week, the business arrangements for which are vested in Mr. Hugh Fleming.

Mr. E. J. Odell has been very fortunate with the "Odell Birthday Souvenir," recently issued in his behalf, and containing an engraving of Mr. Edwin Ward's portrait of the veteran comedian. Sir Henry Irving, Sir Squire Bancroft, Mr. J. L. Toole, and Mr. Lewis Waller were amongst the earliest purchasers of the work, of which only a few remaining copies are on sale.

Mr. Eugene Bertram, recognising that a large number of people write shorthand nowadays, is advertising The Convict's Daughter by means of a large poster printed in phonographic characters.

The Lord Mayor will preside at a public meeting at the Mansion House on the 28th inst., to promote the movement for a national Shakespeare Memorial in London. Sir Henry Irving and Mr. Beerbohm Tree are members of the provisional committee, who aim at the establishment of a great Shakespeare House, to be devoted primarily to the furtherance of the study and interpretation of the poet's works, and also to serve as a centre for humane learning generally. A Shakespeare House, an institute, with a Shakespeare library, a lecture theatre, and a central hall to receive a fitting statue of the poet, with statues of other famous men, are also in contemplation. Committees will be formed in all parts of the Empire, and in other countries, to collect subscriptions, and, for the same purpose, it is proposed to organise a "Shakespeare Commemoration," to be observed in all parts of the world during "Shakespeare week." The London County Council has already offered to provide a site for the Memorial, and Mr. Richard Badger has promised to start the fund with a first subscription of £2,000, an additional sum of £1,000 for a specific purpose, and £500 for the working expenses of a public appeal.

At a meeting of the Great Northern Railway Company on the 10th inst. a memorial was presented, signed by 1,611 shareholders, protesting against the granting of facilities to parties, especially theatrical companies, for travelling on Sunday. If theatrical companies wished to travel on Sunday, let them, urged the memorialists, use the ordinary trains, like other people. Lord Allerton (the chairman) said the memorial would receive their careful consideration, but it was quite impossible for the directors to pledge themselves to stop running trains on Sundays. It is to be hoped that the memoralists, to a man, give all their servants a holiday every Sunday, never use their horses on the Sabbath, and never travel by train on this day of the week.

The death is announced of Mr. Horace Morehen, the well-known black and white artist, who passed away on Friday, Feb. 10. Mr. Morehen in his younger days was an actor at the Grecian Theatre, City-road, under the Conquest régime, and just before his death was playing at St. George's Hall in Mr. Nevil Maskelyne's production of The Coming Race, in which he appeared in the prologue as Jarge, a Cornish miner, and Seph-Lin, one of the new race.

Mr. Martin Harvey registered the sixth birthday of The Only Way at the Camden Theatre, on Thursday, the piece having been produced on Feb. 16, 1899, at the Lyceum Theatre. Mr. Martin Harvey, who is at present very busy preparing for his forthcoming production of Hamlet, in London, had overlooked the fact that The Only Way birthday was so close, and, much to his surprise, the intimation came from one of his many admirers, who sent round to the stage door a large bouquet of lilies of the valley, with a very courteous note, congratulating him on the age of The Only Way, saying that the sender was present when the play was first produced, and that the present visit made the 89th performance she had witnessed.

Mr. Lewis Waller will revive Romeo and Juliet at the Imperial at Easter or thereabouts, himself and Miss Evelyn Millard appearing in the title-rôles. The production of Othello, with which he will start his autumn season, bids fair to be an elaborate one, Mr. Percy Macquoid having undertaken all the scenery and costumes. Later is promised a new four-act play, written specially for the popular actor by the French authors, MM. Stany Orbier and Charles Martel, in which the part of Napoleon at a triumphant period of his career will afford Mr. Waller opportunities for the exercise of his finest dramatic qualities. The first and second acts are respectively concerned with Buonaparte immediately before and after his marriage with Josephine, and the authors claim that in the plot and incidents of their piece historical accuracy has been strictly preserved.

"Strongheart," an American comedy-drama, in four acts, by William C. de Mille, has scored a decided success at the Hudson Theatre, New York. The play might almost be called a dramatisation of a football match, that being the principal incident in the action. Remarkably well done is the reproduction of the noise and excitement attending an athletic contest between rival colleges. To hear the head coach deliver his harangue to the Columbia football team when the first half of the game has been played and the other side looks like winning, is in itself—as the showmen say—"well worth the price of admission." "This is not a game of ping-pong," he says to one, and to another, "this is a football game, not 'puss in the corner.'" He tells his men, referring to their opponents, that they must "kill 'em"; in fact, his appeal is profane and murderous, but very stirring.

The will of the late Mrs. Gilbert, the veteran American actress, who died last December, has been filed for probate. Her personal estate is valued at $10,000. The will directs the executors to see that the testatrix is buried in Greenwood Cemetery, next to her husband and son. To the Players' Club Mrs. Gilbert bequeaths a set of books, and the silver loving-cup presented to her on her seventy-eighth birthday. Also a silver set presented by her friends on the same anniversary. The other bequests include a parlour clock used by Mrs. Gilbert for twenty-five years, the gift of the late Augustin Daly. This is left to Mr. Charles Frohman. Mr. Daniel Frohman, Miss Annie Russell, Miss Ada Rehan, and Mr. John Drew are also to receive various gifts. The residue of the estate goes to a nephew, Mr. Thomas Hartley.

Mr. Arthur Bourchier and Miss Violet Vanbrugh achieved a triumph with their flying visit to Bristol on Monday, when they and the company from the Garrick gave a matinée of The Walls of Jericho at the Prince's Theatre. Enthusiastic cheers were accorded the eminent artists by a crowded house, the receipts of which yielded over £300; and Mr. Bourchier was obliged, at the end of the performance, to comply with repeated demands for a speech.

Mr. C. J. Coltson, the energetic secretary of the Actors' Benevolent Fund, tells us that the "Actors' Saturday" lists are coming in very slowly, and with poor results. One London West-End theatre, employing a large company, returned their collecting-sheets bearing the sensational statement that a total sum of three shillings and sixpence had been collected. Fortunately, however, the majority of the collecting lists do not bear too close a financial resemblance to this particular case. For instance, Sir Charles Wyndham's company, at the new Lyceum Theatre, New York, got together the sum of £77 1s. Most of our leading actors give a yearly donation to the fund, Sir Henry Irving heading with £100. Mr. Milton Bode and Mr. Edward Compton frequently send a percentage of the receipts from amateur performances held at the Opera House, Northampton, last week's share in this way being £2.

It is pleasing to know that Sir Charles Wyndham, who has now completely recovered from the effects of his recent accident, is doing wonderful business in the States and in Canada. At Toronto, he appeared at a command performance before the Governor. Sir Charles, in a letter to his general manager, Mr. Henderson, says he has never been so busy before in his life, what with crowded houses and crowded social functions.

The late Mr. Lewis Ball was the contemporary of Macready, Phelps, Creswick, Gustavus Brookes, Barry Sullivan, Henry Compton, Hackett, Buckstone, Dillon, and Chippendale. He first achieved success as a comedian when engaged on the York Circuit, under Pritchard. He became well known and very popular in Norwich as far back as 1841. An accepted favourite in the Hull Theatre, he played the Artful Dodger with much success years before Mr. Toole had made his début, and performed the part with considerable credit. Mr. Ball was with Phelps at Sadler's Wells, where he was engaged as first low comedian and Shakespearean clown, and from 1852 to 1861 he appeared there in the great revivals of Henry V., Henry VIII., Coriolanus, and Pericles.

Mr. E. S. Willard has shelved Lucky Durham, and has been appearing at the Knickerbocker Theatre, New York, in a play called The Brighter Side. This is an English version, by Louis N. Parker, of Alfred Capus's comedy La Chatelaine. It was performed for the first time in America at the Chestnut-street Opera House, Philadelphia, on Feb. 16, 1903, under the title of The Optimist.

Mr. Walter Emden, the ex-Mayor of the City of Westminster, has presented a handsome challenge cup to the Queen's Westminster Rifles, as a reward for excellence in an "accuracy and endurance" shoot. The competition will take place at Bisley on March 11. Mr. Emden is the architect of the Garrick, Terry's, Court, Duke of York's, Ipswich, and Southampton Theatres.

Theatrical companies on tour in Wales are, it is stated, being "hard hit" by the "revival." A touring company recently visited one of the Welsh towns for a day or two, and at the end of their stay found themselves £7 short of their expenses. Several of the members were "stranded," and two of them, a young married couple, are still in that condition, the husband, so a local paper says, breaking stones for the District Council at half-a-crown a day. Possibly, however, the revival is to bear the blame for ordinary misfortunes of theatrical enterprise.

Miss Margaret Parker, whose acting in the part of Smudgee, in The Never-Never Land, on tour, has added many laurels to those she already possessed, will give her sixth dramatic and musical entertainment on Thursday, March 2, when a good miscellaneous programme will include the comedietta, Good for Nothing, in which Miss Parker will play the rôle of Nan.

The Fairy Tale Society, who gave an entertainment at the St. George's Hall, on Thursday afternoon, in aid of the funds of the Society, have arranged to give another matinée at the same place of entertainment, to which poor children and orphans will be invited. The piece to be presented on this occasion will be An Hour in Fairyland, a masque to be played by members of the Society. Mr. J. N. Maskelyne, who is generously allowing the full use of the St. George's Hall, will render further assistance in the production by means of some of his wonderful monsters and inhabitants of Vril-land.

Two further performances of Ludwig Fulda's Maskerade will be given at the Groat Queen-street Theatre on Monday and Tuesday. On Wednesday Mein Leopold—a volkstuck by Adolph L'Arronge, with incidental musical numbers—will be produced, and will be played to the end of the week. Frau Rosa Bertens, of the Deutsches Theater, Berlin, will appear for two weeks beginning on Monday, Feb. 27.

The Drury-lane Lodge of Freemasonry, in the establishment of which, twenty years ago, the late Sir Augustus Harris was chiefly instrumental, held its installation meeting on Tuesday night at the Hotel Cecil, when Mr. Wilhelm Ganz, Mr. James Fernandez, Mr. Henry Neville, Mr. Gerald Maxwell, Mr. Luigi Lablache, and Mr. Harry Nicholls (the secretary) were amongst the notable company present. Mr. H. Nye Chart was installed, and the proceedings concluded with a banquet.

Miss Alice Lonnon, who appeared successfully as Filiberta in The Cardinal at the St. James's Theatre last season, has been re-engaged by Mr. Willard as his leading lady, in his new play, The Brighter Side (La Chatelaine) which was down for production at the Knickerbocker Theatre, New York, on Feb. 6.

Mr. Walter Bentley appeared at the Grand Theatre, Nottingham, last week, as Shylock, with the Osmond Tearle company. The large and enthusiastic audience included Mr. Leonard Rayne, who made Mr. Bentley a handsome offer to star in South Africa, which, however, he was unable to accept.

A matinée performance is to be given at the Tyne Theatre, Newcastle, in aid of the National Lifeboat Institution, on the 23rd inst. Mr. F. W. Wyndham, managing director of the theatre, has, however, stipulated that one quarter of the receipts shall be handed over to the Actors' Benevolent Fund.

Miss Fritzi Scheff is appearing at the Broadway Theatre, New York, in a revival of Lecocq's Girofle-Girofla. The dialogue has been brought "up-to-date," and Don Bolero introduces his awe-inspiring Dona as "the wife without a smile." Miss Scheff is delightful in the double title-rôle. In fact, her vivacious and attractive personality gives new life to an opera that would otherwise have little charm for the present generation.

The English, Colonial, and American rights in Heyermann's striking and thrilling piece, A Case of Arson, in which Mr. De Vries has achieved such a success at the Royalty Theatre, are vested in the International Copyright Bureau, Ltd. Mr. Ernest Mayer, the managing-director of the Bureau, was responsible for the management of the original performance in Dutch. The Bureau, which makes a speciality of supplying artistes with duologues and sketches, has disposed of the English right in Renaissance to Miss Tita Brand.

Mrs. Percy Humphreys, wife of the popular manager at the Theatre Royal, Glasgow, last week gave her third annual Cinderella treat to poor children of Glasgow. With the friendly aid of sympathisers, a sum of £40 was raised, and 500 poor children from all quarters of the city were given a hearty meal, an enjoyable entertainment, and, in addition, a pair of stockings was presented to each child at the finish. In the entertainment Mrs. Humphreys had the able assistance of the leading artistes from the Royal and Princess's pantomimes.

"Cinderella," the pantomime by Mr. Fred Bowyer, which was transferred after a prosperous career from the Crown Theatre, Peckham, to the Pavilion, has had the engagement at the Mile-end house extended to three weeks, so great have been its powers of attraction. An excellent company, including Miss Alice Lloyd, Miss Rose Hamilton, Miss May Mars, and Mr. Dan Crawley, is engaged in the representation of the pantomime, the artistic efforts of Miss Rose Hamilton, as Dandini, in which she introduces her songs of "The Smartest Boy" and "The Hoodoo Landlord," being particularly admired.

The King was present on Saturday evening at the performance of Lady Madcap at the Prince of Wales's Theatre, and on the same evening the Prince and Princess of Wales similarly honoured the performance of Lady Windermere's Fan at the St. James's Theatre.

Mr. Frank Curzon has engaged a strong company for his production at the Avenue Theatre on Tuesday of Mr. R. C. Carton's three-act farce entitled Mr. Hopkinson. The cast will include Mr. Frederick Kerr, Mr. Henry Kemble, Mr. Athol Stewart, Mr. W. Grahame Browne, Mr. Charles Allen, Mr. Hubert Druce, Mr. Henry Stephenson, Mr. James Welch, Miss Ellen O'Malley, Miss Annie Hughes, and Miss Compton.

Mr. Harry Liston, the "Royal humourist," has been in the habit of sending dated circulars announcing forthcoming entertainments, with prices of admission thereon, to the better-class people in the towns he visits. In two towns last week several persons, each armed with a circular, presented themselves at the theatre, and demanded free admission!

Miss Florence Nelson, whose work up to now has been principally in drama, has turned her attention to musical comedy, and is scoring a success as Lady Flippington in The Girl from Japan.

"Agatha," the play by Mr. Louis N. Parker and Mrs. Humphry Ward, will be given for the first time in England at a matinée at His Majesty's Theatre, in aid of the Princess Mary Village Homes, on March 7. The Princess of Wales has intimated her intention of being present.

Mr. George Musgrove's forthcoming production of The Prince of Pilsen at the King's Theatre, Hammersmith, is being awaited with considerable interest, speculation being rife as to the identity of the lady who, under the nom de theatre of Christine Rayinski, will appear in the part of the Gibson Girl. The fair exponent of the part, we understand, is possessed of considerable personal attractions, and at Buda-Pesth, where she was discovered, it is averred that she is the member of an impoverished noble Hungarian family.

M. Auguste van Biene and the Broken Melody company arrived in Melbourne last Tuesday, the 14th, and the same day his business-manager in England, Mr. Edward van Biene, received a cable from him, notifying his arrival, and also the fact that, owing to the excellent advance bookings, arrangements are being made to start the season to-day—one week earlier than was originally arranged.

Mr. Arthur Bertram has specially engaged Miss Dora Barton for the juvenile lead in Hearts Adrift, the new play which is to be produced at Birmingham, on Monday. His sister, Miss Celestine Bertram, should have played the part, but last week she had to undergo a very serious and painful operation, and though the operation was most successful, the doctors advised her to rest a few more days.

Mr. Lauri de Frece, who is playing Chambhuddy Ram in The Cingalee on tour, has just had to undergo an operation on his throat. He re-appeared on Wednesday at the Opera House, Cheltenham, and is progressing favourably. Mr. Vincent Earne, Mr. De Frece's understudy, played during his absence.

Mrs. Patrick Campbell, who continues to make satisfactory progress in Philadelphia, hopes to resume her American tour on March 6 at Chicago. She proposes to sail for London about the middle of May.

Messrs. Dan. F. Rose and F. B. Wolfe have purchased from Messrs. John F. Preston and Harris Fineberg the entire rights of Max Goldberg's new and successful drama, The Voice of the People, and are sending the piece on tour immediately, opening at the Grand Theatre, Walsall, on the 27th inst. A very strong company is being engaged, and the piece will be "produced" under the direction of Mr. Preston. It is well booked at most of the important melodramatic houses.

At the usual weekly meeting of the Council of the Actors' Association, held last Tuesday, Lillie Leroy, Frances Vine, Lindsay Fincham, and E. Stanton Sharp were nominated as candidates for election. The Secretary reported that up to the present, fourteen nominations for the Council had been received for the fourteen vacancies, which would take effect at the time of the fourteenth annual general meeting, to be held at the Garrick Theatre, on the 23rd inst. The Secretary also reported that a member had received the compensation she had asked for under a policy of insurance, and had expressed her satisfaction. Messrs. Arthur Bourchier, Arthur W. Pinero, and Edward Terry were appointed Vice-Presidents. The hon. solicitors reported progress in several matters. The Secretary reported that a dispute between a manager and an artiste had been referred to arbitration, and the hearing was fixed for the next day. The Secretary was instructed to place himself in communication with the Public Control Department in connection with the carrying of a Bill into Parliament by the London County Council, containing clauses affecting employment agencies. A former member was reinstated.

Mr. Samuel P. Swanton, musical director of the Theatre Royal and Palace Theatre, Belfast, has been seriously ill for the past ten days with pneumonia, and it is feared his heart is also affected. It is to be hoped that Mr. Swanton (whose popularity is unbounded in the Northern capital) will speedily recover from his dangerous malady.

Miss Flossie Hale-Daviss was suddenly called upon to play the part of Geoffrey in Becket, on the 8th inst., at the Theatre Royal, Plymouth, owing to the illness of Master Cyril Smith, and was so successful that she will continue to play the part until further notice.

Mr. Otho Stuart is so pleased with the result of his lesseeship of the Adelphi Theatre that he has exercised his option to extend his term to three years. On August 1 last year he took over the theatre, at a weekly rent of £240, with the option of renting it for three years at £11,000 per annum.

Miss Hilda Moody, we are sorry to hear, has had to undergo a severe operation, which, although successfully performed, will confine her to her house for some weeks.

M. Pierre Wolff's comedy, Le Secret de Polichinelle, which is to be adapted for Messrs. Harrison and Maude by Robert Marshall and Louis N. Parker, was played at the Coronet, on June 29, 1903, by the Gymnase Company, headed by M. Félix Huguenet, the original Jouvenel. Dear old Madame Jouvenel, the character originally represented by Judic, was presented by Madame Marie Laure, who had completely mastered l'art d'être grand-mère.

Although only last week we acknowledged the sum of £5 2s. 6d. which Mr. Lewis Waller had collected from the recipients of his autograph and sent to the Actors' Benevolent Fund, he has this week sent to that Fund a further sum of £4 4s. 9d.

Mr. D'Arcy Forbes-Winslow, the able advance manager for Mr. George Edwardes's Orchid touring company, will be married to-morrow at St. Marylebone Church to Miss Violet Marley, the clever young pianiste. After a brief honeymoon in the Engadine, Mr. Forbes-Winslow, who is the youngest son of Dr. Forbes-Winslow, the eminent brain specialist, will resume his duties with the Orchid company at Newcastle-on-Tyne.

The Carl Rosa Opera Company will visit the Shakespeare Theatre, Clapham, for next week, and will perform the following operas, in the order named:—Lohengrin, Faust, Cavalleria Rusticana and Pagliacci, Maritana, Tristan and Isolde, Don Giovanni, and Carmen. The company includes Misses Louisa Sobrino, Una Bruckshaw, Ethel Pender-Cudlip, Anna Hope, Augusta Renard, and Lizzie Burgess, and Messrs. Julius Walther, Henry Beaumont, Edward Davies, Arthur Winckworth, Chas. Victor, Lewys James, Frank Arthur, and E. C. Hedmondt, with Messrs. Eugene Goossens and Walter van Noorden as conductors. Amongst the newcomers this season, Herr Chas. Victor, who commenced his musical education at the Guildhall School of Music, has won great reputation in the characters of Don Giovanni, Rigoletto, and Tonio. It is interesting to note that this will be the first occasion that Tristan and Isolde has been played in London, south of the Thames. The cast will include Herr Julius Walther, Herr Chas. Victor, Mr. Arthur Winckworth, Madame Augusta Renard, and Miss Winifred Ludlam.

The triple bill which will form the second production of the Vedrenne-Barker matinées at the Court on Tuesday, Feb. 28, and following intermediate dates, will begin with A Pot of Broth, a farce by W. B. Yeats, in which Mr. George F. Tully, Miss Amy Lamborn, and Mr. Robert Pateman will appear; In the Hospital, by Arthur Schnitzler, translated by Christopher Horne, the cast of which includes Mr. J. D. Beveridge, Mr. George Trollope, Mr. Rudge Harding, Mr. Howard Sturge, Mr. Edmund Gwenn, and Miss Isabel Grey; and Mr. Bernard Shaw's "warning to playgoers," entitled How He Lied to Her Husband, in which Mr. Granville Barker, Mr. A. G. Poulton, and Miss Gertrude Kingston will figure.

Mr. Sam Shubert, the American theatrical manager, is now in London, intently engaged in the supervision of the erection of the new Waldorf Theatre, of which he and his brother are the lessees. The opening attraction has not yet been decided upon. The fire at the Casino Theatre, New York, was by no means so destructive as report would have it, and Mr. Schubert states that the house will reopen within a month with The Earl and the Girl.

Lieutenant-Colonel J. A. Winstanley, the proprietor of the Royal Opera House, and sole lessee of the Theatre Royal, Leicester, has gladdened the hearts of the members of the Poor Children's Institute in that town by presenting to them the scenic effects for the stage erected in the new building in High-street, which was opened by Lady Rolleston, who was accompanied by Sir John Rolleston, M.P. A special vote of thanks was accorded by the ladies and gentlemen present to Col. Winstanley for his kind gift.

Friday next will see the end of Sergeant Brus at the Strand Theatre. Mr. Frank Curzon is at present undecided as to what shall follow Mr. Owen Hall's successful comedy, but one of three novelties which Mr. Curzon has in hand may be confidently looked for, unless, indeed, he removes Our Flat from the Comedy to the place of its earliest production.

All Miss Emma Hutchison's and Mr. Percy Hutchison's companies have started out on tour again. Cousin Kate will be at Edinburgh next week; Saturday to Monday will be at Norwich; and a special company, with A Country Mouse, will open on Monday at Bath. This is the sixth tour of this successful piece. A second company will commence an eight weeks' tour at Easter.

The nineteenth meeting of the committee of the Scenic Artists' Association was held at their offices, 5, Robert-street, Adelphi, on Wednesday evening last. There were present, the Vice-Presidents, Sir Philip Burne-Jones and Mr. William Harford, Messrs. Walter Hann (in the chair), E. G. Banks, Richard Douglass, George R. Hemsley, W. T. Hemsley, R. C. McCleery, H. W. Owen, Harry Potts, W. Raphael, W. B. Spong, George Tweddell, H. Warner, and H. Woolls, and Mr. H. Lawrence Harris, secretary. On the nomination of Mr. George Tweddell, seconded by Mr. James Carl, Mr. Stanes Prem, scenic artist, was duly elected a member of the association. The committee having received the secretary's report as to the number of tickets sold for the Benevolent Fund dinner, drew up list of toasts, arranged the seating of the guests, and instructed the secretary to send out Press invitations, &c. The secretary reported the following donations as received since the last committee meeting, namely, from Mr. E. Fisher White, 10/6; Mr. W. H. Kendal, £2 2s.; Sir Henry Irving, £2 2s.; Lady Parker, £1; Water Valley Colour Company, £1 1s.; Ernest Carpenter, 10s.; W. E. Davis, £1 1s.; and Henry Neville, £1 10s. The secretary reported he had received letters from Messrs. Thos. F. Dunn, of Glasgow, Charles Renard, George Smith, Miss Graham, and others, offering loan to the exhibition at Grafton Galleries in April next, of pictures by W. T. Muir, W. F. Robson, Pitt, Clarkson, Stanfield, and other deceased scenic artists.

Mr. C. P. Levilly begins the seventh year of tour of his original London company with La Poupee, next Monday, at the Empire Theatre, Oldham. The company includes Mr. Eric Thorne and Miss Stella Gastelle, in their old parts of Hilarius and Alesia, and all the scenery, costumes, and effects, as used at the recent successful revival at the Prince of Wales's Theatre, will be carried.

The final competition for free open scholarships in the Royal College of Music took place on Thursday. The following are the names of the successful candidates:—Composition: Ernest B. Farrar (Leeds); James Friskin (Pollokshields). Pianoforte: Grace A. Humphery (London); Joan L. Powell (Bridgnorth); Winifred M. Gardiner (Chorley Wood); Florence E. Cotterell (Walsall). Singing: Bessie Bowness (Coniston); James H. Foster (Leicester). Organ: Harold W. Rhodes (Great Malvern); Eric W. Gritton (Reigate). Violin: Edith D. Devin (Hoylake). Violoncello: Felix A. N. Salmond (London). Hautboy: Horace Halstead (Heckmondwike); Job Jones (London). Trumpet: Eardley W. Morgan (London). The following candidates were highly commended by the examiners:—Violin: Lorna Downing (London) and Eleanor McCarthy (Portsmouth). Violoncello: Ellen Bartlett (Exeter). Singing: Alice Moffatt (London).

Mr. George Davey's benefit at the Grand Theatre, Islington, on Saturday next, will be a red-letter day in the annals of this popular theatre. The Playgoers' Club have bought the house for that night, and will entertain 3,000 local school children. The fund that has been inaugurated to present Mr. Davey with a memento of esteem is making good progress under the care of Mr. O'Connor (the Press representative of the theatre), who is acting as secretary and treasurer of the same.

The students of the Academy of Dramatic Art will present at their first public performance, at His Majesty's Theatre, on Tuesday afternoon, the 28th inst., the first act of The Schoolmistress, scenes from A Winter's Tale, and the first act of Caste, which have been rehearsed by Mr. Fred Kerr, Mr. William Haviland and Mr. George P. Bancroft respectively. There will also be played a new wordless sketch by Madame Cavallazzi.

Mr. J. Bannister Howard has arranged for Mrs. Langtry and her company, playing at Terry's Theatre, to give a special matinée of Mrs. Dering's Divorce, at his Ryde Theatre, on Saturday next.

"MOLLENTRAVE ON WOMEN."

A New and Original Comedy in Three Acts, by Alfred Sutro, Produced at the St. James's Theatre, on Monday, Feb. 13.

Schopenhauer—we apologise to Mr. Bernard Shaw, who, we understand, pleads a "previous claim" to all quotations from the depressing little philosopher—Schopenhauer, in one of his essays, emphasises the strength of Illusion in the passion of Love. He points out that, for all practical purposes, there is not so much difference between one woman and another as to justify the serious view which enamoured individuals take of their positions, "backing their opinions," at times, even to the extent of suicide. It is this over-mastering absurdity, this temporary insanity, which makes all plays dealing with Love so popular on the stage. We are in the position of lunatics, who have been cured, and are clothed and in our right minds; and who also have the privilege of visiting an asylum and amusing ourselves with the oddities of the inmates. This is the secret of the success of Mollentrave on Women, which was produced at the St. James's Theatre on Monday last. It appears to have been rather hastily written, and at times the author's hand seems to waver a little; but the piece is essentially amusing, and there is not a scene which does not produce a goodly crop of laughs. And laughter is, after all, the best proof of the merit of a comedy.

Mollentrave, the chief character in Mr. Alfred Sutro's new play, is a kind of genial Schopenhauer, vainly philosophising with the aim of reducing Love to an exact science. He is an erotic specialist, and has written a book with the title, "Mollentrave on Women." It is necessary, of course, for the other personages of the drama to be more or less puppets, or otherwise they would not be at Mollentrave's disposal for the purposes of the piece. They are: A rather diffident and doubtful lawyer, Sir Joseph Balsted; his young and pretty ward, Margaret Messilent; Lady Claude Derenham, a delightful widow; and Balsted's nephew, Everard Swenboys, who is hotly in love with Margaret. Balsted wants to get rid of the girl, whose presence in the house worries him; so he takes counsel with Mollentrave, who advises Balsted to encourage Everard, while he—Mollentrave—stimulates Margaret. This Much Ado method is put into practice; but unfortunately Margaret misunderstands Balsted's meaning, and thinks he is proposing to her. In his embarrassment, the lawyer consults Lady Derenham, who advises him to tell Margaret the truth. But Mollentrave takes command of the situation, and instructs Balsted to feign middle age—even, if necessary, to appear "paralytic." The result is exactly the opposite to that intended. Margaret loves Balsted the more for his alleged infirmities. Acting under Mollentrave's directions, Lady Claude attaches herself to Everard, in order to excite Margaret's jealousy; while, at the same time, her ladyship praises the girl to the young man very warmly. The plan works well. Margaret eventually realises that she loves Everard; and an outburst of rudeness on the part of Balsted—when he discovers that, by inserting a paragraph in the papers to the effect that his infirmities will lead to his giving up public life, she has done him considerable injury—disillusions her completely. She gives herself to Everard, much to Balsted's delight, as he is thereby left free to propose to Lady Claude.

Mollentrave on Women must be taken for what it is—a very agreeable and diverting fantasy. The only people who can possibly feel dissatisfied are the artists who have to perform the self-denying office of representing a number of "shadowy beings," who are not intended to carry conviction, but merely to be subordinate to the leading personage in the piece. Mollentrave dominates the work, and Mr. Eric Lewis, who enacts the self-complacent philosopher, is greatly to be congratulated. Mr. Lewis rose to the occasion, and triumphed. As the kindly but conceited counsellor, with his plausible theories, his ineffable confidence, and his polished manner, Mr. Lewis was in every way admirable. To all his known qualities—his delicate touch, his dainty delivery, and his smoothness and suavity—were added an amount of authority which we have seldom seen Mr. Lewis employ. He revealed a reserve of strength and energy which he probably always possessed, but may have judiciously restrained, owing to the exigencies of the characters allotted to him. Of the remainder of the personages, it can truly be stated that they were played as well as they could be. It is difficult to imagine a Balsted more intellectual and more undecided than Mr. Norman McKinnel's. The style of the performance at the commencement—the ease, the decision, and the finish of the technique, made it all the more difficult for the artist to convey Balsted's essential weakness. Yet Mr. McKinnel did this with striking success, and with a demure comicality which was very effective. Mr. Leslie Faber, besides coming within measurable distance of the "young Greek god" mentioned in the text, acted with commendable fervour and facility; and a remarkably clever sketch of Lord Contareen was given by Mr. Robert Horton, Mr. E. Vivian Reynolds being satisfactory as Mr. Dexter and Mr. Gerald Jerome doing well as Mr. Noyes. Mr. E. H. Brooke was quaintly natural as Peters; and Mr. Murray Carrington did useful and efficient work as Martin. Miss Marion Terry's Lady Claude Derenham was instinct with that actress's bewitching personality—an influence so subtle as to defy analysis, but very real and powerful, as the ardent reception and call at the conclusion given to Miss Terry proved. Miss Terry's "magic" is felt even in a part like this, which only calls for a fraction of her full strength. It should be mentioned, as a powerful factor of the impression she created, that she was particularly fortunate in her dressmaker and her coiffeur. Miss Lettice Fairfax hit the right note exactly as Margaret Messilent, acting with just the necessary superficiality, a quality very valuable in a production of this sort, in which over-emphasis is above all things to be avoided. Miss Nora Greenlaw gave a careful and well-considered performance as the melancholy companion; and Mrs. Kemmis was grimly resolute as the stern housekeeper. Mollentrave on Women "went with a laugh" from beginning to end; and Mr. Alexander, being called at the finish, made the usual announcement as to the author's absence from the house.

We cannot conclude without comment on the remarkable reception given to the first piece, A Maker of Men. The house listened to it with the hushed attention which indicates intense interest, and when the curtain went down on the duologue, the applause was so strenuous that one would have imagined the piece was being played for the first time. The warm feeling and tender humanity of the work were, of course, the principal causes of this enthusiasm; but the result could not have been attained without the co-operation of Mr. W. Graham Browne, whose Cuthbert Farringdon was vigorous, earnest, and expressive, and of Miss Edyth Olive, whose acting as Edith Farringdon was so intense and true as to thrill the audience to the core.

MR. EDITOR,—SIR, In your report for the Empire, Middlesbro', last week, you omitted to mention, Yours faithfully, MINNIE D'AUBYN. Burlesque Artist, Palace, Derby, Feb. 15.

HENRY IRVING AND QUIN.

At Bath, on Friday, Sir Henry Irving, who is playing there this week-end, unveiled a tablet to Quin, which the local Corporation have placed on a house in Perrepont-street, where he lived in retirement. There was a large crowd of spectators. The Mayor, in introducing Sir Henry, said the Corporation of Bath had been engaged for some time in placing tablets on historic houses in the city, and a list of them would show they had certainly been Catholic in their tastes and sympathies, and by no means too wide in their selection. Statesmen, artists, diplomats, and preachers who had lived in Bath had been thus honoured, the Corporation inviting appropriate gentlemen to unveil the tablets. They were in no way departing from tradition in asking the premier actor of their day to perform the ceremony of unveiling a tablet to Quin.

SIR HENRY IRVING said: The memorial which I have the honour of unveiling to-day is fitly dedicated by the Corporation of Bath to one of the most famous players of the eighteenth century. James Quin lived here for sixteen years, after his retirement in 1751. For five-and-thirty years he had been an actor, and for more than half that period he held his own against all competitors, until the advent of David Garrick, who reformed the affected attitudes and the stilted style of declamation then in vogue. When Quin retired, he was still in the vigour of his powers; and there can be little doubt that he would have remained to contest the supremacy of Garrick for some years more if he could have made his own terms with Manager Rich. There had been some disagreement between Quin and Rich, and when the actor had soothed a somewhat mettlesome temper with the charms of this city, he wrote to the autocrat of Covent Garden in these terms:—"I am at Bath. Quin." And Rich, who did not appreciate the healing balm of this message, wrote back:—"Stay there and be damned." This sounds harsh; but it was the colloquial diction of a rather careless generation. What is really remarkable is the totally unwarrantable implication that Bath was the place for a man's undoing.

After this Quin seldom appeared in London, except to play Falstaff for the benefit of an old friend; and he discontinued that when he lost two of his front teeth, and wrote:—"I will whistle Falstaff for no man." Falstaff was the part in which he had won the widest suffrages; and it had made the first great success of his career. There is a story that when he hinted to Rich his desire to play it, that oracle remarked:—"The character of Falstaff, young man, is quite another character from what you think; it is not a snivelling part that anyone can do. There is not a man among you that has any idea of the part but myself. No, never think of Falstaff; it is quite out of your walk." But the "young man" was permitted to make the attempt; and he achieved at once a popularity which he never lost. In other Shakespeare parts he was not so welcome. Some critics thought him unqualified for tragedy; yet he played Addison's Cato with much success, and there is a tale—which I hope is incredible—that Cato's soliloquy was encored, and that Quin declaimed it all over again. Theatrical audiences in those days must have been rather "fearful wildfowl," and often exacting more when they were pleased than when they were angry. There was always a danger that they would tear up the benches, or that some of them would rush upon the stage and deliver a general assault and battery. On one occasion, when Rich was attacked by a drunken nobleman, Quin saved his life by some vigorous sword-play. The actor's vocation then was full of stirring variety. Quin was a man of the readiest wit, and he is said to have employed it successfully in telling stories to an audience to keep them from rioting when the play was waiting for some royal personage who had forgotten the time. Horace Walpole tells us that Quin, when pressed to play the part of the ghost in Hamlet—a part he considered beneath him—would make no answer but, "I won't catch cold behind." "The ghost," says Walpole, "is always ridiculously dressed, with a morsel of armour before, and only a 'block' waistcoat and breech behind." I am happy to assure you that in this respect the stage has made some progress since Quin's day. I have known a number of ghosts; and they were all clad in "complete steel," and ran no more risk of catching cold behind than anyone else in the play. Here in Bath, then, Quin lived for sixteen years. We may picture him as a man who impressed himself on his contemporaries by force of character, and by a rather gruff independence, relieved by much natural kindness. The story how he befriended James Thomson, whom he found in prison for a debt of £70, is a worthy illustration of that. He ordered supper and claret—a good deal of claret—and when the bottle was going round he said with grim humour, "It is time we should balance accounts." The unfortunate poet, who was already alarmed at this burly visitor, took him for another creditor. "Mr. Thomson," said Quin, I can see him thoroughly enjoying the scene, and stretching it out with those pauses for which he was so noted on the stage—"Mr. Thomson—the pleasure—I have had—in reading—your works—I cannot estimate—at less than a hundred pounds;—and I insist on now—acquitting the debt." And then he put down the money, and walked out without another word. That was the heart of James Quin. I think we would rather dwell on that than on his undoubted fondness for good living. He made a considerable figure in an age full of considerable figures; and it is most fitting that he should be ranked by this admirable monument among the famous men who are associated with Bath.

Sir Henry Irving then drew aside a curtain, disclosing a tablet with the inscription: "Here lived James Quin. Born 1693, died 1766."

A vote of thanks to Sir Henry was moved by Councillor Plowman, who recalled reminiscences of Sir Henry's playing with the stock company at Oxford, in days when the 'Varsity authorities would not allow students to attend the theatre, and when magistrates only licensed acting occasionally, lest residents should be tempted from the paths of virtue. Nobody had done more to bring about the improved status of the stage of to-day than their guest.

SIR HENRY briefly acknowledged his affectionate welcome to his native county, and subsequently was entertained at luncheon by a number of leading citizens, receiving silver combination—a "smoker's companion"—as a memento of the occasion. The Mayor of Bath, Mr. Benjamin John, presided; and the company included Mr. Lewis Waller. Miss Wynne Matthison, the leading lady of Sir Henry's company, was prevented by the death of her father, Dr. Lionel Weatherly, from being present. Sir Henry's health was proposed and drunk with enthusiasm, and the presentation was made by the Mayor.

SIR HENRY IRVING, in responding, said:—Mr. Mayor, I thank you most warmly for the great honour you have done me, and for your very kind expressions about my career. Believe me, it touches the pride of an actor to receive such a welcome from the citizens of Bath, for it reminds him of the days when it used to be said, and said with truth, that the player who was applauded in Bath need have no fear of London. That is a tradition, Mr. Mayor, which puts us on our mettle. It was strongly in my mind this morning, when I was privileged to bear a part in the tribute your city has paid to the name and fame of James Quin. Quin has been dead nigh upon a hundred and forty years; and it says much for the good old theatrical views of Bath that you should remember him and honour him now. And the profession, in which he made a remarkable figure, is equally honoured to-day by this memorial. I must say it offers a great temptation, Mr. Mayor, to an actor like myself, for instance, who is nearing the end of his professional labours. When Quin settled here, he had small ideas, I fancy, that he was to be inseparably associated with your history, and to take his place among your civic worthies. But what a temptation, I repeat, to the strolling player to return to Bath, when he has taken leave of the footlights! I can imagine him coming every day to look at Quin, and saying to himself, "I wonder whether the Mayor and Corporation will put up a marble or erect a thing of me when I am gone!" The danger is that he might want to make sure of it, and might try to get himself elected as Mayor, so that he might secure honour in his own time. You can see how the temptation would develop. I am afraid that having exposed its character to you so freely, I should lay myself open to cynical surmise if I were to pass my remaining years in Bath. But at least, I can confess the very deep gratification it has given me to pay this visit, and I thank you once more with all my heart for your generous sympathy. This, Mr. Mayor, is not my first visit to Bath. A good many years ago I played here for a week with Miss Herbert's company in old comedies; they were all received with favour, especially The Rivals, which is so intimately associated with this city. There was no doubt that the public of that day liked the old comedies. Later on, I played another week, but this time with a new comedy, which had an immense vogue in London, Two Roses. We played, I remember, to literally empty benches, so that it seemed new comedy had not the same attraction as old. I suppose, therefore, I may take it that our own plays are deemed as old, for the audience we have had already, and those whom I am told are promised by the company, make a sort of high-water mark. And I think I remember playing here for a few nights with my old friend, Mr. J. L. Toole—a great favourite everywhere, and an especial favourite here in Bath. I hope that this may not be my last visit here, though when I come again it will have to be as a player who has had his hour upon the stage.

DEATH OF MR. GEORGE HONEY.

From New York comes news of the death of Mr. George Honey, the son of the well-known comedian of the same name, who died some years ago, and was famous as the original representative of Eccles, at the old Prince of Wales's Theatre. The late Mr. Honey was formerly a member of Mr. George Edwardes's Co., and appeared as the Lord Chancellor in the revival of Faust Up-to-Date at the Gaiety, in July, 1892. He also appeared in The Shop Girl and other Gaiety pieces on tour. He went to America with The Shop Girl, opening at Palmer's (now Wallack's) Theatre in October, 1896. In the company with him were Seymour Hicks and George Grossmith, jun. Honey's rôle was that of Singleton, and he proved so good a comedian that American managers retained him. He played engagements with numerous Broadway companies, after the end of The Shop Girl season. He was seen often in the musical productions at Daly's Theatre, and was then engaged by Charles Frohman for the rôle of the cockney thief in Sherlock Holmes.

An engagement of two years under Klaw and Erlanger's management came next. He joined The Girl from Kay's, taking the rôle of the porter, after A Clean Slate was withdrawn at the Madison Square Theatre. He had remained with that company ever since.

On Jan. 23, when the company was playing in St. Joseph, the comedian was attacked by what the physicians described as acute melancholia. He was taken to the State Hospital, and the members of the company, after making every possible provision for his comfort, continued their tour.

Before Mr. Honey had been many hours in the hospital, the physicians discovered that he was suffering from pneumonia. His condition gradually grew worse until the end came on Feb. 4.

The deceased, who was about forty years old, leaves a widow and two children in rather straightened circumstances. His body was brought to his home, 80, Linden-avenue, Jersey City, where the funeral service was held.

DEATH OF MR. LEWIS BALL.

Mr. Lewis Ball, the veteran actor, died at the residence of his son-in-law, the London Hotel, Teignmouth, on Tuesday. He was born at Builth, South Wales, in October, 1820, and made his first appearance on the stage when he was only three years old. He acted, as a child, with Madame Celeste and Ira Aldridge, the black tragedian. In his early days, he became well-known in the North of England, being a member of a company under the direction of Mr. Pritchard, of York. At Brecon, in 1841, he was associated with Mr. Henderson; and, five years afterwards, he was playing with such stars of the dramatic world as Macready, Madame Vestris, and Charles Mathews. "It was," he said, "a period of unmitigated happiness—that is, if there is such a thing as happiness in our profession."

After further valuable experience in the provinces, the young actor was fortunate to obtain an engagement at Sadler's Wells, during the memorable reign there of Samuel Phelps. On Oct. 25, 1852, Shakespeare's Henry V. was produced, with a very fine cast. Phelps played the title-rôle; Mrs. Marston was Mrs. Quickly; Mr. Bennett, Pistol; Mr. Knight, Bardolph; and Mr. Lewis Ball, Fluellen. In The Merchant of Venice, revived in February, 1853, he was the Launcelot Gobbo. On March 17, the same year, was produced the Second Part of Henry IV., and Lewis Ball appeared as Davy. He was Lord Sands in the revival of Henry VIII., Phelps being the Wolsey. In the autumn of 1853 The School for Scandal was played, Mr. Ball appearing as Moses. He also represented Grumio in The Taming of the Shrew, Touchstone, Trinculo, one of the Dromios, Flaminius (Timon of Athens), the First Gravedigger, The Second Fisherman (Pericles), Cloten (Cymbeline), and Costard (Love's Labour's Lost), Mrs. Warner being incapacitated from following her profession by a fatal malady, a benefit was given her at Sadler's Wells, in 1854, when Phelps, Miss Cushman, Miss Cooper, T. P. Cooke, Lewis Ball, and others took part. When Mr. Ball returned to the provinces, he still further enlarged his experience, acting many parts in many plays, amongst them being Cipher Cute, in Dred; McSwill, in The Vampire; or, The Bride of the Isles; Barabé Baracieux, in The Musketeer and the Queen's Diamonds; Gillman, in The Happiest Day of My Life; Valianto, in Joan of Arc; Marcel, in 'Twas I; Jemmy Jumble, a tailor, in The Ocean of Life; or, Every Inch a Sailor; Dicky Dean (Susan Hopley; or, the Trials and Vicissitudes of a Servant Girl), Birman (The Hut of the Mountains), Martin (The Maid and the Magpie), Pablo (The Torrent of the Valley; or, The Dumb Boy of Italy), Hector Homespun (Red Rover; or, the Hunting of the Carolina), Hafiz (El Hyder), and Pedrigo Potts, in the comic opera, John of Paris.

It is worthy of note that when, by Royal command, a performance of Henry V. was given at Windsor, the late Queen Victoria specially commended Mr. Ball's Fluellen; and, on Tuesday, Jan. 19, 1858, when Macbeth was performed before the Queen and the Prince Consort, he appeared as one of the witches, in company with Emery and J. W. Ray. In the production of Romeo and Juliet, at the Castle, in the following year, Robinson played the lead to the Juliet of Miss Heath (the late Mrs. Wilson Barrett), with Phelps as Mercutio, Henry and Mrs. Marston as the Friar and the Nurse, and Lewis Ball as Peter.

An engagement at the Olympic Theatre in 1858 again brought him prominently before London playgoers. While here, he created the parts of Mr. Breezely, in Wooler's Twice Told Tale, and Mr. Dotts, in Williams's I've Written to Browne. Subsequently, at the Marylebone, he played Jack Sheppard to Tom Robertson's Blueskin. As regards his association with Mr. Edward Compton, this began on Monday, Feb. 7, 1881, at the Opera House, Southport, when Mr. Ball was sixty years of age, and lasted some seventeen years. It is interesting to note that, the first time in his career he was persuaded by Mr. Compton, who always had the greatest faith in his powers as an actor, to take up old men's parts, and he commenced operations as Sir Toby Belch, Sir Anthony Absolute, Hardcastle, Adam, Sir Robert Bramble, and Lord Duberley. After this, he appeared as Sir Peter Teazle and Sir Harcourt Courtly. He also played with great success the parts of Old Thornton, in The Road to Ruin; Sir George Thunder, in Wild Oats; and Graves, in Money. No one regretted his retirement from the stage in 1898, or felt his loss more keenly as a friend and fellow-worker, than his seventeen years' manager, Mr. Edward Compton.

His funeral takes place to-day (Saturday), at the Teignmouth Cemetery. Beautiful wreaths have been sent from Mr. and Mrs Edward Compton, and another from the present members of the Compton Comedy Company, "In sorrowing memory of one of its first and most gifted pioneers."

THE magnificently-dressed turn contributed by La Jolie Titcombe at the Eastbourne Hippodrome last week was inadvertently omitted from the notice of this popular house.

THE DRAMA IN PARIS.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

PARIS, THURSDAY, FEB. 16.—The new work produced at the Variétés is a sort of half-way house between opera-comique and operette. The plot is slight, but the music is charming, and the novelty is likely to enjoy a good run. The scene is laid at Saint Cloud, in 1860, the most brilliant period of the Second Empire, which has afforded M. Samuel an excellent opportunity for the display of gorgeous costumes. The Dragoons are mortally jealous of the "Cent-Gardes" regiment, because the latter are more favoured by the ladies. Captain Agénor, alone, boasts of eleven victims; and Captain Saint-Gildas, of the Dragoons, therefore means to snatch away from him his twelfth trophy. As it happens, Agénor has been seen speaking to a lady at dusk in the Saint-Cloud Park, and the Dragoons are trying to discover who she is. But even Agénor does not know the name of the mysterious fair one, who is no other than Lucrèce, the wife of the Colonel of Dragoons. Unfortunately, Lucrèce has dropped the fan lent her by the Empress, and she implores her friend Cyprienne—married to Saint-Gildas the day before—to help her to recover the lost article, and poor Cyprienne then discovers that it is her husband who has undertaken to rob Agenor of his twelfth mistress. Agénor receives an anonymous letter, wherein he is asked to come to Mabille, and bring the fan with him. In Mabille he meets Cyprienne, carefully disguised, and Cyprienne manages things so cleverly that Saint-Gildas, who thinks he has secured his rival's mistress, meets his own wife, and becomes a model husband. Mme. Germaine Gallois and Mdlle. Mariette Sully impersonated Lucrèce and Cyprienne, and no better choice could have been made. Both ladies are accomplished artistes, and contributed a large share towards the evening's success. M. Prince was as amusing as ever, and made us forget that he does not possess any voice. The mounting, as usual at the Variétés, and the costumes were most luxurious.

AT the Chatelet they are busy rehearsing Tom Pitt, le roi des pick pockets, a spectacular play by MM. Victor de Cottens and Darlay. The management of that theatre, who reckon on a big success, have engaged a strong cast, among whom Max Dearly, who created The Country Girl in Paris. M. de Cottens, a fervent admirer of everything English, and whom one meets as often in Piccadilly as on the Boulevards, has taken his inspirations from England. The opening tableau shows Charing Cross Station; whence we travel to Wales, and, finally, are taken across the Atlantic to an imaginary Republic. As in his Revue des Folias-Bergère, which is drawing crowded houses, M. de Cottens has introduced in his new work for the Chatelet many popular English airs.

"CHERUBIN," Massenet's new opera, for which Frances de Croisset and Henri Cain have written the libretto, met with an excellent reception at Monte Carlo. Chérubin, a fickle youth, flirts with every woman he comes across, and nearly comes to grief over his intrigue with L'Ensoleillad, a dancer, and the King's mistress. He is, however, saved in time by Jacoppo, a philosophising old magister. In the end, Chérubin returns to Nina, the niece of a great duke, the girl who has always loved him, and whom the young Don Juan marries with the firm intention of not remaining faithful. The music, light and melodious, is well suited to the words; and in the overture and the intermezzo in the second act M. Massenet has shown himself a past master in orchestration. The interpretation was of a high order, with Madames Mary Garden, Marguerite Carré, Lina Cavalieri, and M. Renand in the principal rôles.

THE Ministry of Fine Arts have done a gracious act in granting a small subsidy to the "Théatre Idéaliste," founded by M. Armand Bour. M. Bour, an artiste in the highest sense of the word, has already produced at his small Theatre des Bouffes-Parisiens many literary gems; and the official recognition of his efforts is in every way gratifying. The Fine Arts Ministry has also increased the State subsidy granted to M. Lugné Poe, manager of the Theatre de l'œuvre.

"LA RETRAITE," Dramatic Comedy, in Four Acts, by M. Franz-Adam Beyerlein. French Translation by MM. Remon and Valentin. Produced at the Vaudeville, Feb. 15.

Volkhardt	M. LERAND
Lehdenburg	M. GASTON DUBOSC
De Baunnewiz	M. COLOMBEY
Helbig	M. L. GAUTHIER
Michalek	M. BARON FILS
De Hoven	M. MONTEAUX
De Lauffen	M. VINCENT
Hagemeister	M. DAUVILLIER
Spiess	M. VANDENNE
Claire Volkhardt	MDLLE. MATHE MELLOT

Plays by foreign dramatists take a long time before they reach Paris; and La Retraite, brought out at the Vaudeville last night, has already been performed pretty well in every other country. In Germany, where mediæval ideas about the "Sanctity" of the Army are still rampant, the work created a tremendous stir. In Prussia it was not allowed to be given; and in the other parts of the Fatherland officers were not allowed to attend the performance in uniform—much ado about nothing! The well-known plot need not be told again. The impression here in theatrical and literary circles is that it is a strong, well-constructed play, but with a decided melo-dramatic flavour. Much objection, too, was taken to the final scene in the last act. Old Volkhardt raises his revolver to avenge his daughter's honour. But he lowers the weapon, for he is not equal to the task of shooting his superior officer. The instinct of discipline, the result of thirty years' service, has smothered every other feeling. This is very human, and intensely dramatic. But why did he kill his daughter? This denouement has been considered here needlessly brutal, and, above all, illogical. If I am not mistaken, this ending was altered in America, but M. Parel, very wisely perhaps, has given us the original version. In the way of interpretation nothing finer can be imagined. On M. Lérand and Mdlle. Mellot's shoulders laid the weight of the piece, and these two admirable artistes showed us a father and daughter Volkhardt absolutely unsurpassable. M. Monteaux, as De Hoven, played with exquisite tact; and the episodical rôles were all in most able hands.

AT the Odéon M. Emile Fabre's Les Ventres dorés is now in active rehearsal.

THE Athenee announces for the 23rd inst. the première of La Petite Milliardaire, by MM. H. Dumay and Louis Forest.

M. GINISTY has just received a four-act play called La Robe Blanche, by M. Gabriel Trarieux.

WE stated last week that Mr. and Mrs. Henry Doughty (Miss Vera Leslie) wished to accept an engagement in a musical play. We are now informed that these artistes have no desire to stray from the fields of drama and legitimate comedy.

IRVING AT EXETER.

At Exeter, on Wednesday afternoon, over 250 guests accepted the invitation of the Mayor and Mayoress, Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Perry, "to meet Sir Henry Irving" in the Guildhall. At the entrance to the Guildhall the City Police and the members of the Fire Brigade formed a Guard of Honour. As the guests arrived, they were announced by the City Marshal, and they were then received by the Mayor and Mayoress, who were accompanied by the Sheriff. Behind his Worship stood the Sword and Macebearers with the Cap of Maintenance. Sir Henry, on arriving, in company with his secretary, Mr. Bram Stoker, was met at the entrance under the gallery by his Worship, and was escorted in procession to the Aldermanic Bench, where the distinguished guest was accommodated with a seat by the side of his Worship.

Mr. E. J. Domville, chairman of directors of the Theatre Company, said that on behalf of those connected with the theatre of the city, he had to ask the Mayor to give his official seal to the welcome that had already been accorded to their distinguished visitor by the city of Exeter and the country of Devon. (Applause.) They were glad, indeed, to welcome there, in his professional capacity, one who was acknowledged, not only by the public, but by his own profession, to be the head and chief of his profession, whose loyalty to his brother-artistes had been so marked at all periods by his career that, without any feeling of jealousy or hesitation, he was recognised throughout the dramatic profession which he adorned so highly, as the chief and head. (Applause.) It is not often in the history of a great profession that one was able to point to any one individual occupying this unique position, and, as the embodiment of the dramatic art of the country, they felt they were doing only what was right to that great profession in asking the Mayor to give an official welcome to a gentleman whose distinguished career had won honour from his Sovereign, honour from his fellow-citizens and countrymen throughout the Empire, and honour and loyal feeling from all the members of his own profession. (Applause.) He asked the Mayor to give, on behalf of the citizens of Exeter, the official seal to the welcome already accorded to Sir Henry Irving. (Applause.)

The Mayor, in welcoming Sir Henry, reminded him that Exeter was a city of great antiquity. That day the 706th Mayor welcomed to the historic Guildhall a great representative Englishman, who was honoured as one of the most distinguished actors of the 19th century. Wherever the English language was spoken the name of Sir Henry Irving would be imperishably connected with the highest and best traditions of the British stage. (Applause.) They had seen with what ability and perseverance he had surmounted the many obstacles that lay in the way of every actor's career; that he had reached the position he had because he had planted before him the lofty and noble ideals which he had all through his long career endeavoured to worthily maintain. (Applause.) He had done great service to his fellow-countrymen by lifting the whole tone of the stage, by elevating the public taste, which in these degenerate days was a matter of difficulty attended, sometimes, not with such financial success as the lighter and more spurious forms of amusements. But he had loyally and unflinchingly stuck to his ideals, and the world to-day was under a great debt of gratitude to him for it. (Applause.) It was not alone for the consummate ability he had displayed as an actor, but also for the marvellous stage pictures which his genius had put on the stage, and which would ever be remembered by his fellow-citizens with very great gratitude. He had displayed an organisation and ability in marshalling the various matters pertaining to his profession, that, had he adopted some other profession—say, for instance, the War Office—they might not have had quite so many disasters connected with that institution. He welcomed Sir Henry there, not as a Devonian, because he was not born within their county. He did, however, the next best thing—although, perhaps, he had very little to do with it—and that was to be born in the adjoining county of Somerset. (Laughter.) Therefore, they might claim him as a West of England man, and they wished to give him a West-country welcome. (Applause.)

It was with mixed feeling that they saw him there that day—feelings of pride at his career, but feelings, also, of great regret to understand that that visit was a preface and prelude to his retirement from the stage. (Hear, hear.) They trusted that when that retirement came he would long enjoy that rest which he so worthily deserved, and he was sure that in that retirement Sir Henry would carry with him the good wishes, love, affection, and esteem of millions of his fellow-countrymen.

Sir Henry Irving, who was heartily applauded, said:—"Mr. Mayor, Lady Mayoress, Ladies, and Gentlemen,—Such a gathering as this is more than courteous; it is gracious good-fellowship. It shows to me that life has many compensations. I am deeply sensible of the honour you have done me by presenting this address, and I accept it gratefully as a most generous recognition of the years I have spent in the public service; for the actor is a public servant, who may contribute, I believe, not a little to the well-being of his fellow-citizens. At least I take that to be the idea which has prompted the kindness you have shown me to-day. (Applause.) The theatre is a place of rational amusement; and amusement, in the best sense of that term, should employ the higher faculties, and especially the faculty of imagination. Many ill things in this country spring from the dulness of narrow life; and, when this can be brightened up by the agency of the dramatic imagination, the benefit is enormous. (Applause.) I am truly glad that the municipality of so important a centre as Exeter should give its support to the drama as a social influence. There is always a certain timidity to be overcome, and a suspicion that plays and players are incentives to idleness and dangerous company. I am not a particularly idle man. If I could have exchanged the working habit, and worry you for an eight-hour day I should have had quite a leisurely existence. (Laughter.) And the people who travel about with me might tell you that the opportunities for doing nothing are not numerous. As for dangerous company, there is Shakespeare. (Laughter.) I remember reading a letter from a gentleman in the Isle of Wight, who said that Shakespeare was our national curse. (Laughter.) It reminded me of the very earnest person in Sir Walter Scott's romance of 'Woodstock' who banged his fist on a copy of Shakespeare—probably the First Folio—I wish I had it—and denounced it as the root of the evil which had caused the Civil War. (Laughter.) Well, the gentleman in the Isle of Wight was in very good company. I don't know what he will say when he hears of your address to a play-actor. You may get a letter, Mr. Mayor, that will curdle your blood. You may never hold up your head again. But I am thankful to have in this address a proof of your cordial esteem, for which I wish to thank you very simply, but very gratefully, and I shall cherish the memory of it for the rest of my days." (Applause.)

MR. H. B. IRVING AND THE "O.P."

The fifth annual dinner of the O.P. Club, at the Criterion, on Sunday, at which Mr. H. B. Irving was the guest of the evening, was thoroughly successful. All the speeches were either bright or brief; and in the variety entertainment, which was interspersed with the toasts, there was not a weak place. The dinner was excellent, and the new arrangement by which the President's table was placed "the long way" of the room enabled more celebrities than ever to be gazed upon by the humble but no less happy two hundred in the body of the hall.

Mr. Algernon L. Collins, the President of the Club, occupied the chair, and amongst those present were Miss Dorothea Baird, Sir Francis and Lady Burnand, Mr. T. P. O'Connor, M.P., the Hon. George Goschen, M.P., Mr. Rutland Barrington, Mr. Lionel Brough, Mr. Oscar Asche, Miss Lily Brayton, Mr. George Grossmith, jun., Mrs. Craigie, Mr. J. M. Freshwater, vice-president; Mr. Carl Hentschel, hon. treasurer; Mrs. Hentschel and Miss Olga Hentschel, Mr. Algernon Lindo, Mr. Charles Sugden, Mr. Brinsley Harper, Mr. Alfred F. Robbins, Mr. W. Pett Ridge, Mr. Mostyn T. Pigott, Mr. J. T. Grein, Lieutenant-Colonel Newnham Davis, Mr. Harry Randall, and Mr. J. Davis Smith, joint hon. secretary.

Mr. Algernon L. Collins, in proposing the toast of "The Drama," said that though we were told that the drama in London was dead and buried, we found on looking back on the past twelve months that the record was not so black. The crop of new plays had not been very prolific, but a fair average had been maintained. We had had The Prayer of the Sword, a beautiful poetic drama, as well played as written. No transcendental genius had flashed across our horizon, but there was material in this country which, with a little fostering care, might produce great results. The foremost remedy proposed was the répertoire theatre; but in his (the speaker's) opinion, education was of chief importance. "The people," continued Mr. Collins, "must be educated to appreciate something better than they do at present, and I think that we should have no reason to be disappointed on that score, because it is only practically lately, say within the last thirty years, that education has been brought within the reach of the masses, and the taste of the playgoers of the present day is far higher than it was thirty years ago. The plays produced thirty years ago would not be tolerated in a third-class theatre of to-day. We must find the audience to appreciate the mental food provided for them. I think it will be admitted that what has been done for music is largely due to the establishment of schools of music, and it is the same with sculpture and painting. I give the toast of "The Drama," coupled with the name of Mr. H. B. Irving, a consummate artist and a great actor. So long as the name of Irving is connected with the drama, we need have no fear for it."

Mr. H. B. Irving, in responding to the toast, said:—

Ladies and Gentlemen,—To reply to the toast of the drama is not always an easy or gratifying responsibility. It may fall to the lot of a speaker to have to talk about this erring and erratic spirit, the drama, in one of its periods of stagnation and depression, and then he can do little more than add his individual wail to the general howling, and leave you with a feeling of uneasiness as to whether it was quite decent to have mentioned the subject at what should be primarily a festive gathering.

But to-night he is a happy man—if under such circumstances happiness be possible—who is called on to reply to this toast. At the present moment the drama, the serious drama, is in a state of animation, of activity—of almost morbid activity—that should rejoice the heart of the gloomiest of its many physicians. Revivals are in the air. Seemingly the drama has caught the infection, and is executing its own pentecostal dance, singing its own glory song. So long ailing and bed-ridden, it has apparently leapt from its bed, and bursting with suddenly acquired health and vigour, is prepared with all the recklessness of new-found energy to indulge in dangerous excesses that will not, let us hope, lead to a relapse. Look around you, and you will see on all sides signs of this singular animation. First and foremost, we have Shakespeare being played at three West-end theatres—a proud and happy circumstance. This dramatic season has produced, rarest and most precious of beings, a new dramatist, to whom I am sure we all wish every success to-morrow night; two repertory theatres are in course of institution, whilst a gentleman has generously offered £5,000 towards the establishment of a third. And, ladies and gentlemen, you are promised at no very distant date—I hope this may not be construed into a symptom of relapse—at least three male performances of "Hamlet," to say nothing of the delicious, I hope not delusive hope, held out to us by Mrs. Kendal that she is going to make us a parti carré. There was one other cause of elation to those who have so long fought to uphold the banner of the legitimate drama against the rivalry of fascinating competitors for the affections of the public, that I was going to mention to you with some satisfaction, and that was the fact that our friend Mr. George Edwardes, our most successful, shall I say our triumphant, rival, had decided in future to spend six months of the year in America. Well, that was in itself cheering intelligence; it gave the mice a little time to play in the absence of—the lion. But yesterday I read a far more exciting pronouncement from the lips of Mr. Edwardes himself, to the effect that musical comedy was doomed. Such a statement as this, so suddenly made, almost overturns the reason. Few of us could have ever hoped in our own lifetime to attend the obsequies of musical comedy. But there it is, on the highest authority; it is doomed. And in the face of so sudden and unexpected a termination to a glorious career, we can only express respectfully a pious hope that the successor to its inheritance, whatever form it take, may not chastise us with scorpions.

I am sure you agree with me that on the whole this is a very radiant, very ebullient state of things. Our only regret at the present moment must be that some of our leading dramatists are for the moment silent; but that is a merely temporary circumstance, one, we all hope, of short duration. I confess as an actor to a selfish desire that my friend Mr. H. A. Jones may find—has perhaps already found, some really absorbing, engrossing task, which will oblige him to inter that King Charles' head which, if one may apply the phrase to a mere head, has been the skeleton at so many recent feasts. We really cannot allow these skeletons of ours to be taken so frequently out of our cupboard by enthusiastic persons, and rattled in the ears of promiscuous public diners.

But, just as my imagination was luxuriating in the glories of our present state, I read that you had been hearing from a lecturer last Sunday the most dreadful things about us actors and yourselves. The actor, so I read, has become unmanageable; he has developed into a monster, and you playgoers are the luckless Frankenstein who has created him. Now, what are you going to do about this? Do you realise what you have done? Frankenstein created his monster, we are told, from "fragments of bodies picked from churchyards and dissecting rooms"; yours is apparently created from fragments picked up at lectures and banquets. It had, we are told, muscular strength—no indifferent quality in an actor—animal passions and active life; but—ah! how like an actor!—no breath of divinity. It longed for love and sympathy, but was shunned by all; and finally, it so harassed and tormented its creator that it drove him to an untimely and melancholy death. Well, this is a pretty business, if you playgoers have created by your indiscreet enthusiasm a being of this kind. Personally, ever since I read this lurid picture I have been earnestly examining myself to see how far your kind invitation to-night, and your hospitality and cordiality in the past, have induced in me symptoms of this monstrous development. Certainly, so far, it has not had the effect of perceptibly increasing my muscular strength or the activity of my life, and as I am not aware that I have had a breath of divinity in me, I cannot say that I have missed it. I do, indeed, long for love and sympathy, but though one can never have too much of a good thing, I cannot reasonably complain of the amount I am at present receiving. If you recollect the story, ladies and gentlemen, the monster would not be satisfied until Frankenstein had created for him a female companion in his own likeness. Well, so far I have felt no craving of that kind: the present conditions so far seem to satisfy me; but if this transformation is really overtaking us, I cannot describe myself as free from apprehension as to the future. Now, can you yourselves be free from misgiving? By the hospitality you extend to actors, by the prominent position you invite them to occupy on such a night as this, you are lending no uncertain hand to the creation of this monster—a grave, an alarming responsibility; but a matter you must settle among yourselves.

In the meantime, the subject of these distressing predictions, the actor, goes on his way—I will not say rejoicing, for that might aggravate the resentment of his critics; but shall I say, singing softly, whistling, if you like? For he knows these outbursts of old; he's heard it all before, many times; he knows what a fruitful and attractive topic he has been, is, and ever will be; but he is not unduly elated, he is serenely conscious that the bright ideals held out to him last Sunday can never be realised. Every actor his own manager, his own author! Oh! happy day! Oh! glorious hour! A consummation to be indeed devoutly wished, but, alas, one he can see no prospect of attaining, one that can never be more than a radiant dream. He knows this; he is under no misapprehension on the subject. People may say what they like, but he will have to put up with these wicked managers and these presumptuous authors, and, oddly enough, they'll have to put up with him.

It is really very childish to talk about the actor as a person who has been converted by your favours into a monster. His proportions are, and ever will be, those of other men. He will be neither vainer, pettier, more presumptuous than other men. And I am beginning to think, though it sounds almost unpatriotic, that he will compare even as an artist with his Continental brethren. For have we not that great actor, M. Coquelin, telling us, "You have many splendid actors and actresses in England, really artists. Indeed, I go so far as to say you have more stage artists than any other nation." Really, it seems sometimes as though the position of the actor was doomed to eternity to be one of violent oscillation between eulogy and detraction, between M. Coquelin on the one side and Mr. Jones and your recent lecturer on the other—a most uncomfortable predicament for any person, and one not to be too closely thought on after an excellent dinner. To-night, at your hospitable table, he is in a temporary haven of repose, wishing to enjoy himself, and wishing you to enjoy yourselves. With that desire uppermost in my mind, I will bring to an immediate conclusion my few remarks by thanking you, the members of the O.P. Club, for the cordial welcome you have extended to me to-night—a welcome which venture to take as an indication of your true feelings towards the calling to which I have the honour to belong.

Mr. J. M. Freshwater, the vice-president of the club, having proposed "The health of the Visitors,"

Mr. Rutland Barrington, in responding, said:—You will doubtless have gathered from the remarks of the last speaker that I am somewhat of an interloper here to-night. As a matter of fact, it was with great gratification that I received the invitation to come here. You will have also gathered from certain remarks that I am somewhat of a Methuselah. However, let that pass. There were two sentiments which I experienced on receiving this very kind invitation, and two points of view from which I attacked the situation. One was that I am one of the old style comedians, and it is somewhat of a trial for us to be called upon suddenly to make a speech. We are so much accustomed to speak what is put down for us that the word "gag" is hardly known. (Much laughter.) I must confess that when I was told that I had been relied upon to respond to this toast this year instead of next year, according to the original arrangement, I felt somewhat uneasy, because I am a very slow study, and twelve months more would have been very useful. Another point of view is that to get such a charming entertainment and such a delightful dinner a year before I could expect it, is very nice indeed. The last speaker has also mentioned my name in connection with Oriental polygamy. Anyone standing in the proud position in which I am to-night, is bound to admit that there is every argument in favour of it—I never saw so many arguments. (Laughter, in which the ladies joined). I will bring my oration to a close by saying how intensely I appreciate coming here to-night.

Mr. Alfred F. Robbins, in proposing the toast of "The Press," said:—In proposing this toast, I realise very forcibly the truth of the saying, "Set a thief to catch a thief." I have been asked to propose "The Press." The trouble to me to-night is that I have the toast to propose, when so many more distinguished Pressmen than myself are present—Sir Francis Burnand, in whose presence the ordinary Pressman can but bow his head and worship, and Mr. T. P. O'Connor, and also those appalling personages, the dramatic critics. I may say, in proposing the toast of "The Press," that what we owe to the Press can never be fully understood, because it passes comprehension.

Mr. Mostyn T. Pigott returned thanks for the Press in a most humorous and clever speech, which he wound up by reading some very pungent and amusing verses of his own composition.

The entertainment given at intervals during the proceedings was contributed to by Miss Mattie Kay, contralto; Mr. E. Gordon Cleather, baritone; Mr. George Grossmith, jun.; Mr. Robert Michaëlis, who gave "Bedelia" in French; Mr. Arthur Prince, the accomplished ventriloquist; Mr. R. A. Roberts, with a musical sketch; and Mr. Rutland Barrington, who contributed a "coon" song.

Mr. Sinclair Mantell and Mr. Algernon Lindo were the accompanists.

A PUGILISTIC HEROINE.

"Friquet," a play in four acts, by Pierre Berton and "Gyp," the French novelist, was presented by Mr. Charles Frohman at the Savoy Theatre, New York, on the 31st ult. Mr. Paul Potter is said to be the author of the English version. Friquet is a waif, who has been picked up on the highway by a circus clown, who has named her after the tree sparrows that hopped around her and pecked at the crust clutched in her tiny hand. Reared amid the squalor and hardship of the circus, she has grown into an irresponsible, capricious, and wilful girl. Jacobson, the manager of the "Great American Circus" performing at Saint Severin-sur-Mer, treats her badly, and she appeals to the Mayor, who takes her from the circus, and hands her over to the Baroness Schlemmer, with whom he is in love, and who is in love with him, notwithstanding that she has a jealous husband. The Baroness introduces Friquet into society, and, in her new sphere, the former circus rider catches and subdues a runaway horse, thereby incurring the displeasure of a groom, with whom the girl subsequently has a "set to" with her fists in the drawing-room, putting him hors de combat in the fourth round. She presently finds herself an unwilling witness to an amorous tête-à-tête between the Mayor and the Baroness, and when the Baron, prompted by the groom, interrupts the tryst, Friquet, who loves the Mayor, and is heartbroken to hear him avow his passion for another, shields the Baroness, and takes upon herself the disgrace of the discovery. Then the Baron, a man of vicious propensities, makes advances to her, and she returns to the circus, becoming a "star" in Paris. The Baron finds her, and bribes the manager to admit him to her dressing-room. When he tries to kiss her she stabs him. A moment later she is called to the ring, and seeing the man she loves in company with the Baroness in the audience, she falls from a trapeze and is killed. Miss Marie Doro, a piquant and pretty young actress, who has lately come to the front in America, was decidedly clever in the title-rôle. Miss Alison Skipworth, as Mariquita, a circus rider who has grown too fat and "lost her job," was capital. Mr. Frederick Perry successfully delineated the evil-minded Baron. Mr. William Courtleigh represented Hubert de Ganges, the Mayor, with proper dignity. Mr. Frank Losee gave a creditable impersonation of the circus manager; Mr. W. J. Ferguson did very well as the clown, Mafflu; Miss Dorothy Donnelly was charming as the Baroness; and Mr. George Henry Trader, as the groom who got the worst of it in the fistic encounter, was very good indeed. This feature of the performance proved very exciting.

THE ELEPHANT AND CASTLE.

On Monday, Feb. 13, the Drama, by Geo. R. Sims and Robert Buchanan, entitled "THE ENGLISH ROSE."

By special desire, a grand reproduction of the celebrated Adelphi drama, The English Rose, has been given at the Elephant and Castle Theatre this week, and a fine reception has been accorded it by the habitués of this popular playhouse. The artists, organised by Mr. Ernest E. Norris, the enterprising manager, work with a will, and succeed in giving a representation of the piece that is exceedingly interesting. Mr. Ernest E. Norris played Harry O'Mailley, the hero, with a manly and virile force that speedily brought him into prominence, and his portrayal of the character was replete with those artistic touches that stamp him at once as an actor of versatility and resource. Mr. Jo Monkhouse has a difficult part as Randall O'Mara, but he succeeds in giving a convincing and realistic study. Mr. Harry Paulton, jun., works hard as Sergeant O'Reilly, and his vagaries are decidedly amusing. Mr. Paige Lawrence seems eminently adapted for the part of Father Michal O'Mailley, and scores a great success. Nicodemus Dickenson is entrusted to the capable hands of Mr. Howard Templeton, and a polished and aristocratic rendering of the part of the villainous Captain McDonnell is given by Mr. Frank Stone. Mr. Dudley Hayes makes a dignified Sir Philip Kingston; and a natural piece of acting is vouchsafed by Mr. Edwin Bennett as the Squire of Ballyveeney. Miss Kathleen Russell is a charming Ethel Kingston, and her clever and intelligent impersonation evokes the heartiest applause. Miss Judith Kyrle sustains the character of Bridget O'Mara in an impressive manner; and Miss Edith Martin makes a piquant Louisa Ann Ferguson. The minor characters in the play are carefully enacted; whilst the scenery is very effective, particularly Scene 3, in Act 2, "The Devil's Bridge." Mr. Norris may be congratulated upon a most interesting and pleasing revival.

We regret to learn that Master Cyril Smith, who is playing the part of Geoffrey, in Becket, with Sir Henry Irving's company on tour, was taken somewhat seriously ill last week at Plymouth, and has had to remain behind in charge of Dr. P. Wilmot of that town. We understand, however, that he is making rapid progress towards recovery, and is expected to be able to resume his part with the company very shortly.

For Condolence.

Smith.—Mrs. Smith, 11, Buttemath-street, Rochdale, thanks all artistes for letters of condolence in her bereavement for the loss of her dear child Lena.

Mr. J. F. Graham presided over a meeting recently held of the artists engaged in the pantomime at the Prince of Wales's Theatre, Birmingham, with a view to consider what should be done this year by the members of the company in the direction of assisting the local charities. Mr. E. Lawrence Levy (hon. secretary) stated that as the result of sports, charity concerts, matinée, &c., the sum of £1,950 had been handed over to the local charities, and it was unanimously resolved that a matinée similar to that of last year should be held, and in addition a Sunday concert. The matinée was fixed for Wednesday, March 1, and the concert for Sunday, March 5.

The King and the Prince and Princess of Wales were present at the performance of Peter Pan at the Duke of York's Theatre last Monday evening.

Mr. William Greet's company, in The Earl and the Girl, will be at the Alexander Theatre, Stoke Newington, next week.

"The Talk of the Town," at the Lyric Theatre, will be played for the fiftieth time on Thursday.

"The Education of Mr. Pipp," a play by Augustus Thomas, was produced for copyright purposes at the Lyric Theatre on Thursday.

Miss Nellie Malcolm has joined Mr. Edward Terry to play lead during the balance of the engagement in New York city, and will continue with him for the remainder of his American tour.

Miss Anna Robinson, who, it will be remembered, appeared in The Undercurrent, under Sir Charles Wyndham's management at the Criterion Theatre, has returned to London after a long stay in America. Miss Robinson proposes shortly to appear here in a play which she has secured in America.

Mr. Heinrich Conried, the manager of the Metropolitan Opera House, New York, announces that the season of grand opera has cost in the last fifteen weeks 1,050,000 dollars. He does not give the receipts for the same period, but says that the most expensive single production resulted in a profit of 50,000 dollars.

Lien was registered on the Theatre Royal, Birmingham, Limited, on Feb. 2, for £300 five per cent. debentures, part of £35,000. The amount previously issued was £31,100. The trustee is the Midland Trust, Limited. A charge is made on the undertaking and all the property and assets, present and future, including the uncalled capital.

Death has just removed, in the person of Mr. Norman Kirby, a notable figure in the musical circles of the Hartlepools. Mr. Kirby, who was in his seventy-second year, commenced his musical career many years ago in the chorus of the Covent Garden Operas. He gradually rose in his profession, taking the leading parts in various London and provincial operas, until about thirty years ago, when, with his wife (Miss Edith Percy), he toured the country, the two being most successful as musical duettists. Finally, about twenty-six years ago they settled down in the Hartlepools, and have for a time taken a most prominent part in the musical life of the two towns, the late Mr. Kirby being especially identified in the two Catholic churches, for which he acted as conductor to the choirs, being Choirmaster at St. Mary's, Hartlepool, for over twenty years. His death took place on Monday last.

With the withdrawal of the pantomime, Cinderella, from Olympia, Newcastle-on-Tyne, the theatre will be closed. The present manager, Mr. Nelson Barry, has been appointed acting-manager at the Grand Theatre in the coal metropolis, taking up the duties of Mr. E. W. Bacon, who is retiring from the profession.

ROYAL COLLEGE OF MUSIC.

The programme of the concert on Tuesday was changed owing to the lamented death of that eminent musician, Mr. Edward Dannreuther, and opened with Beethoven's Cantata for chorus and orchestra, In Praise of Music, which, fine as it is, has one serious drawback. It is written so high for the voices that it becomes quite painful at times to hear the singers struggling with the music. It is the same with the soloists as with the chorus, and we sympathise with the vocalists who took part in the cantata. They were Miss Jessie Smither, Miss Beatrice Dunn, and Messrs. Ben Ivor Davies and Greeves Johnson, who did all that was possible to make the cantata effective, being well supported by the chorus and orchestra, and by Miss Vera Warwick Evans as solo violinist. The Variations for violoncello and ochestra, by Tschaikowsky, came next, and in the solo portion Miss Adelina Leon greatly distinguished herself. One vocal performance merits special commendation. This was Mr. Ben Ivor Davies's rendering of "Through the Forest," from Weber's Der Freischutz, in which fine music the singer achieved a complete triumph. Voice, style, and dramatic expression were exceptionally good, and should Mr. Ivor Davies contemplate studying for the lyrical stage his future success can hardly be doubtful. His fellow-students greeted him with the utmost enthusiasm. In memory of the late Mr. Dannreuther the "Tristria" of Berlioz, No. 3, and a choral Vorspiel of Brahms were given.

QUIN AND BATH.

Somehow, one always associates QUIN with Bath—not the Bath of modern days, with its peaceful calm, its Roman remains, and its mildly magnificent Milsom Street; but the Bath of the eighteenth century, of BEAU NASH and BOB ACRES, of SHERIDAN'S elopement, and of FOOTE'S "afternoons." Bath, as far as the principal streets are concerned, has changed very little since the "late seventies." The Crescent and Pulteney-street are still unspoilt by "jerry" building, and the Abbey, with its Jacob's ladder, on which decapitated angels are ever ascending from clean earth to dingy heaven, is only moderately "restored." Standing on the broad flags in its shadow, the imaginative man, in his mind's eye, may see ELIZA ANN LINLEY, standing at the door of the Pump-room offering tickets for her father's benefit concerts, winning all visitors by her beseeching grace, and refusing equally the offers of misers and earls. SAMUEL FOOTE is hurrying on his cork leg to the same centre, to present to his fashionable patrons his "Dish of Tea, artfully embued after only one infusion by the original"; and DODD, CHARLES LAMB'S ideal Aguecheek, is passing quietly to rehearsal at the Theatre Royal. PALMER, the manager, is mounting his horse at the kerbstone, to proceed on one of his annual riding tours to "pick up" new actors for his company, and Mrs. SIDDONS is strolling along, lost to actual considerations, as she runs over in her mind her part of Mrs. Candour in The School for Scandal, which has been suggested to SHERIDAN by the prattle of the gossips who come to "take the waters," or frequent the Baths, where

You might see the fair sex,
A-bathing, with gentlemen, up to their necks.

But prominent and predominant over all the visions of Bath is that of QUIN. Who does not remember his letter to RICH, the manager?—it would have been a "wire" in these days. QUIN, we are told, having taken umbrage at some offence offered to him by RICH, retired in a fit of resentment to Bath, although he was then under engagement to the manager. After QUIN'S spleen began to pass away, he wrote to RICH:

"I am at Bath.—QUIN."

To which the other answered:—

"Stop there, and be damned.—RICH."

It was this that made the actor resolve "never to engage again with so insolent a blockhead." So he remained at Bath, only coming each year to London to play Falstaff for his friend RYAN'S benefit. It was at Bath that an officer in the army, whose nose had been pulled, waited upon the actor for his advice, and had it embodied in the words: "Soap your nose in future, and then they'll slip their hold." For sixteen years QUIN lived at ease in the city of Bladud, holding his own with the wits and bullies of the day. He was "a child of his time," both in his good and bad qualities. He had killed two men in duels. When QUIN remarked unfavourably on BOWEN'S acting, the latter pursued his critic to a tavern, put his back against the door, and forced QUIN to draw in self-defence. Swords were crossed, and BOWEN, running in, was thrust through the body. When an actor named WILLIAMS was playing Decius to QUIN'S Cato at Lincoln's Inn Fields Theatre, WILLIAMS pronounced the name "Cato" affectedly; and QUIN, in answer to the speech of Decius:

Could he send it
To Cato's slaughtered friends, it would be welcome, said on the stage:

Would he had sent a better messenger!

WILLIAMS lay in wait for QUIN, after the performance, under the Piazza in Covent Garden, and fell, pierced by his sword. Under that same Piazza, QUIN himself was slightly wounded by THEOPHILUS CIBBER. On one occasion there was a riot at the stage door, and QUIN, going out, "pinked" a young fellow who had "drawn" upon him. The gallant subsequently came into one of the stage-boxes, and when the actor, as Macbeth, said, referring to the imaginary dagger:

"And on thy blade and dudgeon gouts of blood!"

the young gentleman bawled out: "Ay, reeking indeed—it's my blood!"

QUIN gave him a severe look, and replied in an audible aside: "Damn your blood!" In other characteristics QUIN was a man of his time. When at a tavern in Covent Garden, he "made it up" with MACKLIN, after a long quarrel, the reconciliation was moistened with many a bottle; until MACKLIN, having still the use of his legs, ordered a couple of waiters to put QUIN on his—MACKLIN'S—back, and triumphantly carried his unconscious friend to his lodgings. QUIN drank a bottle of claret the day before he died, and played young Chamont in The Orphan when he was sixty years old, and weighed twenty stone, in a suit of clothes heavy enough for Othello. He was a gay gallant and a bon vivant, and had always a neat epigram at the disposal of a pretty woman. He was generous, choleric, kind, "touchy," forgiving, polite—and proud. When, one day at Bath, a stupid nobleman said to him: "What a pity it is, QUIN, my boy, that a clever fellow like you should be a player!" the answer came quick as a flash: "What would your lordship have me to be—a lord?"

There is a strong contrast between the character of QUIN and that of the great actor who unveiled the tablet to QUIN'S memory in the City of Bath yesterday. For, if QUIN was a "child of his time," no less is Sir HENRY a thorough representative of the present age. He is the antipodes of QUIN in many respects. He fights no duels because he has no enemies; if he ever had them he has long ago turned them into friends. He is "clean built"—QUIN was corpulent; abstemious—QUIN was a gourmand, if not a glutton; sober—QUIN was a wine-bibber. In several points, however, Sir HENRY and the actor whose statue he unveiled yesterday are alike. Like QUIN, Sir HENRY is generous, almost to a fault; like QUIN, he will brook no slight on the profession to which he belongs. The present generation, with its keen sensitiveness, its intellectual activity, its moderation, its humanity, and its self-control, paid honour on Friday to the eighteenth century ideal of an actor: the three-bottle, or rather six-bottle man, the rake, the duellist, and the beau. How much humanity has improved and advanced since those days of limited ablution and unlimited paint, powder, and perfume; of foolish fighting, and intemperate indulgence; of heartless repartee and scandalous epigram, it is hardly necessary to note.

A CHAT WITH MISS BATEMAN.

IRVING, WHISTLER, AND WILLS.

Vivacious and—sixty-three! Truly, Miss Bateman has mastered the mystery of retaining youth and postponing age. But, then, the veteran actress acknowledges that in imparting knowledge to others she herself is constantly receiving refreshing lessons. "My pupils keep me young," she says.

Both of Miss Bateman's parents were connected with the stage, and to her father's careful training she owes much of the success of her historic career. "My father," she tells us, "was an extraordinarily energetic man, and a born entrepreneur. A man of considerable force of character and keen discrimination, he was the first to recognise ability in anyone, and he spared no effort to bring it out and nourish it. Carl Rosa was a struggling violinst in London, when my father took him in hand, and organised a concert party, which included Madame Parepa. The company went to America. Carl Rosa and Parepa were married in the States, and that was the beginning of the Carl Rosa Opera Company, which has since attained such a world-famous reputation."

Among others who owe to some extent their advancement to the late Mr. Bateman is Sir Henry Irving. When Bateman, in 1870, heard Irving recite "The Dream of Eugene Aram," he at once exclaimed, "This is the greatest English actor living," and, guided by his insight and firm convictions, he took the Lyceum Theatre in the following year. The first play Mr. Bateman produced there was a dramatic adaptation of a story by Georges Sand, and entitled La Petite Fadette. This piece, however, did not prove a success, and its withdrawal was quickly followed by The Bells, Charles I., and Hamlet. The latter ran for more than a year, and Irving's fame was established. Then came a répertoire of Shakespearean plays, which received the hearty support of audiences of all classes, and made a fortune for the enterprising and artistic-minded manager.

Miss Bateman made her début at the age of five with a sister who was a couple of years younger. The early stage experiences of the Bateman children—two brothers and three sisters—were concerned with the touring of stock "combines" throughout the United States. Miss Bateman recalls an incident which occurred during a visit to San Francisco. Her father offered a prize for the best play that was submitted to him. As, however, the dramatic genius of the town seemed at a very low ebb, and none of the manuscripts sent in were suitable for production, Miss Bateman's mother who possessed literary talent, "hashed up" a piece founded on an old story. On the night of production, the aspiring playwrights whose efforts had been unavailing turned up at the theatre, and indulged in an unmistakeable demonstration of their disappointment; so much so, in fact, that the members of the company, having heard threats of violence, were afraid to appear before the footlights. The situation was, however, saved by Miss Ellen Bateman, then quite a tiny child, pluckily walking upon the stage. Even outraged human vanity could not withstand the mute appeal for sympathy, and the truth of the old Biblical saying, "A child shall lead them," was strikingly exemplified. A roar of applause went up, and the "organised opposition" collapsed.

In 1851, the Batemans came to London, first appearing at the St. James's Theatre in the summer of that year. Miss Bateman was then eight years of age, and her sister Ellen was six. Together they performed in the fifth act of Richard III., and assisted in the production of a new comedy, entitled Le Marriage Enfantin, translated from the French of Scribe. A little later, they were seen at Drury-lane in scenes from Shakespearean plays. One of their favourites was Richard III., in which Kate (Miss Bateman) played the part of Richmond, and Ellen acted the title-rôle. It was Mr. P. T. Barnum who brought the Batemen children to this country. "He was a remarkably clever man," says Miss Bateman, "or he would never have made all the money he did. I recollect when he introduced Jenny Lind to American audiences in New York and New Orleans, and what a sensation she made. Mr. Barnum had a museum in New York, where my sister and myself gave dramatic performances twice a day. I well remember how we had to creep up to the fortune-teller's room, and try to restrain our laughter as we overheard the remarks of the various people who came to have their fortunes told. When I was fifteen I was sent to a school in St. Louis, but after little more than a year my father came to the conclusion that it was quite time I acted women's parts, and I appeared with my mother in a dramatisation of Longfellow's Evangeline, at the Winter Gardens Theatre, New York.

"What led up to my engagement in Leah? This. Augustin Daly at the time was a poor young newspaper writer in America; and he and another young fellow translated a German play called Deborah, by Mosenthal. I read the translation, and formed a good opinion of it. At the moment, I was acting in Boston, and my father suggested that I should produce it on my benefit night. We only rehearsed it twice; it was 'rushed' on the stage; and, oddly enough, it created a strong impression. I played in the piece for the rest of the year (1862), and up to the end of the following summer in New York. Being then advised by my doctor to go abroad, my father took me to England. We met Mr. Benjamin Webster, and he persuaded my father to let me open at the Adelphi Theatre, in October, 1863, in Leah. I was miserably homesick, and wanted so much to go back to America. But wiser counsels prevailed, and I performed in Leah for nine months at the Adelphi, after which we took it on a short tour. I became so strongly identified with the part, that people never wanted me to do anything else."

In 1866, Miss Bateman married the late Mr. Crowe, a son of the Mr. Eyre Evans Crowe who was for some time the editor of the Daily News, and a great personal friend of Thackeray. It was a very happy marriage, and there was a pathetically reminiscent ring in Miss Bateman's voice as she referred to the devoted Mr. Crowe.

In spite of the fact that playgoers were always clamouring for Miss Bateman to play Leah, she made a decided success in other parts. For instance, the actress appeared as Julia, in The Hunchback, at the Adelphi in 1865, and Bianca, in Fazio, written by Dean Millman; both of which are even now associated with her name by old students of the drama. Mr. Tom Taylor specially wrote for her a domestic drama, entitled Mary Warner, which was produced at the Haymarket in 1868, Miss Bateman appearing in the title-rôle, and adding one more to her long list of brilliant achievements. At this time Mr. Buckstone had the Haymarket; and during the run of Mary Warner and certain other plays Miss Bateman was the star, supported by a stock company. At the Lyceum Theatre, in 1876, she acted with Sir Henry Irving in Queen Mary, the first play written by the late Lord Tennyson. "I never cared for that part," says Miss Bateman, "nor very much for the piece, although I must say that Sir Henry Irving was magnificent as King Philip."

"Reminiscences? Well, is this very good? I remember going to Whistler's studio to see the portrait of Philip of Spain. Whistler would walk quickly up to where Irving was standing, and, going closely to him, stare hard at him. Then he would rush to the other end of the room, and put a few touches on the canvas in that wonderful impressionistic manner of his. The ultimate result was a very beautiful picture, and I can't tell you how much I enjoyed watching him paint it."

When, subsequently, Miss Bateman's mother took over the Lyceum Theatre to produce Hamlet, Sir Henry Irving enacted the title-part, and Miss Bateman that of Lady Macbeth. Every night I met Mr. (now Sir) Henry Irving, he used to say funny things to make me laugh, and he was always cracking jokes whenever the opportunity occurred for a minute's conversation.

A reference to the production of Medea, in which Miss Bateman took the leading character under her father's management, brought to the lady's thoughts a mental picture of the clever author of the play mentioned. "The late Mr. W. G. Wills was a most eccentric man," remarked Miss Bateman. "He lived a most peculiar kind of Bohemian life, with an utter disregard for the conventionalities or comforts of existence. He had a rooted objection to burnt-out ashes being removed from his fire-grate; and, rather than bear the place being kept tidy and comfortable, he would have the ashes piled up for many days. Another peculiarity of his was his affection for Spanish onions. But he was most tender-hearted and good-natured, and added much brilliant natural wit to no small talents as an artist. Princess Beatrice took a great personal liking to Wills, for she fully appreciated his fascinating manners and conversation, and his wonderful gifts.

For several years, during the long illness of her husband, Miss Bateman lived at Portsmouth, where she performed a good deal of useful work for the late Father Dolling, one of her greatest personal friends. "I knew him," says Miss Bateman, "before he was ordained, and all his sisters have been very intimate friends of mine. When he went to Portsmouth to take charge of the Winchester Mission, I went down, too, and we had a house there. I can assure you it was a great pleasure to me to render Father Dolling any little assistance in his work, such, for instance, as the cooking of dinners for hungry little children. I was very fond, too, of reading at mothers' meetings, and used to enjoy many an interesting afternoon when it was not necessary for me to attend upon my husband. On his death, in 1889, the loss of companionship was somewhat atoned for by the kindness and sympathy of Father Dolling and his family. As you will see, I was left practically to myself then, for my youngest sister, Isobel, was touring, and the one older, Virginia Bateman, became Mrs. Edward Compton."

Miss Bateman has had a school of dramatic acting for the last twelve years. Her house at 88, Philbeach-gardens, Earl's-court, S.W., is large, roomy, and stands by itself, so that it is particularly well fitted for the purpose to which it is now put. Some of the pupils who come from the country live at the house, and Miss Bateman laughingly remarks that she has a most interesting family. "We live in an old-fashioned, homely way. And here let me say this to you: Don't let a girl go on the stage if she has no home or natural protectors. She should have a father and mother or home guardian to look after her, and at the same time she should be so circumstanced that she can afford to wait until she can get an engagement. When young people come to me for advice, I tell them candidly that the stage is not a bed of roses, and if I see that a young lady has no natural ability with which to start the foundation of a future histrionic career, I tell her truthfully that she would be wasting her time to take up lessons. After all, you cannot teach acting, but there is a technique in every art; and it is as well to master that technique. I always study the voice of my pupils, and get them to speak nicely by helping them with their diction, and frequently I put a play into rehearsal so as to give each one a chance of playing a part."

One of Miss Bateman's most successful pupils is Miss May Reynolds. Mr. Powell, of the Shakespeare Society, saw Miss Reynolds in a scene from Richard II., and formed a high opinion of her acting, with the result that the young lady was the first to perform Everyman, in the old mortality play of that name. Another of Miss Bateman's students, Miss Rita Jolinet, went straight from Mr. Powell to become a member of Mr. Cyril Maude's company; while a third, Miss Gladys Vinderzee, who only received a year's training at Earl's-court, was engaged by Mr. F. R. Benson for small parts, and is now doing the entire lead, such, for example, as Athena in The Trilogy.

Miss Bateman is a believer in hard work. She herself stands four days a week—from 10.30 to 6.30 per diem—at Mr. Tree's School of Acting. On Wednesdays and Saturdays she gives the time to her own pupils at Philbeach-gardens, frequently working until late in the evening. Evidently Miss Bateman believes in the strenuous life; at any rate, she gives an inspiring example of consistent "hard labour" which other people of half her age might be well advised to copy.

THE DIPLOMATISTS.

A Farce in Two Acts,
By Sydney Grundy.
Founded on La Poudre aux Yeux,
By Labiche and Martin.
Produced at the Royalty Theatre, on Saturday, Feb. 11.

Dr. Prothero	MR. E. W. GARDEN
Mr. Peter Jocelyn	MR. GEORGE RAIEMOND
John Jackson	MR. CHAS. GROVES
Mr. Valentine Grayling	MR. E. H. KELLY
Arnold Jocelyn	MR. N. HOLTHOIR
Alphonse	MR. ALBERT SIMS
Mrs. Prothero	MISS MARIE ILLINGTON
Mr. Matilda Jocelyn	MISS FLORENCE ST. JOHN
Muriel Prothero	MISS LILY GRUNDY
Jane	MISS LAURA REYNOLDS
Susan	MISS DORA GLENNIE

The première at the Royalty Theatre, on Saturday evening, was "quite like old times." There was the pretty little playhouse, where in days gone by Selina Dolaro and Walter Fisher enacted La Périchole, and where Messrs. Gilbert and Sullivan mingled with the crowd on the stage on the first night of Trial by Jury; there was Miss Kate Santley in a private box; and there was an adaptation by Mr. Sydney Grundy of a piece by Labiche and Martin. Dear old Labiche!—for we may leave M. Martin out of the question—how well he "wears"! What sterling merit there must be in his old-fashioned work to stand the double ordeal of being ancient and of being adapted into English! La Poudre aux Yeux is esentially Labiche-ian. There is the workmanlike construction, the smiling sub-acidity, and the half melancholy, half humorous view of life—a view kept in the background, but always distinctly present. The style, it is true, is a trifle passé; but how enjoyable is the society of a woman who has bid farewell to her first youth and does not disdain to be amusing! Amusing The Diplomatists certainly is, as the constant laughter in the audience in the course of the performance at the Royalty on Saturday proved to the hilt. Everybody laughed—stalls, circles, pit, and gallery; for the wit is of the sort which is for all markets. It is not as wide as a church door, or as deep as a draw-well; but it serves to pass a couple of hours very pleasantly indeed.

The idea of The Diplomatists is characteristically simple. There are two suburban families who are "keeping up appearances." Dr. Prothero, who is naturally adverse from pretence, is induced by his wife to hire a brougham, and to drive about Clapham so as to lead people to believe that he has an immense practice. Mr. Peter Jocelyn, a retired tradesman, and his helpmate, have been so anxious to appear better off than they are that they have got into difficulties and have given a bill of sale on their furniture. The son of the Jocelyns and the daughter of the Protheros have fallen in love; and each couple of parents expects a handsome settlement from the other. In strong contrast with these pretenders is Mrs. Jocelyn's brother, John Jackson, a rich jobmaster, who intends to leave his money to Arnold Jocelyn, the fiancé of Muriel Prothero. The Prothero uncle, a broken-down, insinuating, "swell"—there is no other word so expressive—who occasionally acts as a bailiff, happens to "drop in" on a borrowing expedition just as Prothero is about to receive Jocelyn, who has called for medical advice; and some amusing satire on medical practice follows.

In the second act, the Protheros visit the Jocelyns; and Prothero, to his disgust, discovers that his wife's impecunious brother is actually "in possession," in connection with the bill of sale already mentioned. Prothero's aim now is to find an excuse for breaking off the engagement; and the scene in which this is done is bitterly cynical. In the end, the honest jobmaster "settles" the bill, Prothero decides to abandon diplomacy, and return to straightforwardness, and the two young people are made happy.

There was not a weak place in the cast, and the piece was played thoroughly well all round. Mr. E. W. Garden was most judiciously chosen for the character of Dr. Prothero; and Mr. George Raiemond had been selected with equal wisdom to embody Mr. Peter Jocelyn. Mr. Garden was honest good-nature and sound common sense personified; and Mr. George Raiemond's vacant, helpless gaze and plaintively funny expression were admirably natural and effective. The talent which has enabled Mr. Charles Groves to achieve so many triumphs in more important rôles was applied with the happiest results to the embodiment of John Jackson. With his neat side-whiskers and "horsey" get-up, Mr. Groves was the ideal of a shrewd, kindly, and humorous plebeian. Mr. E. H. Kelly, irreproachably garbed, hit off exactly the characteristics of Mr. Valentine Grayling, his style being just what was required, and his general appearance exactly appropriate. Miss Marie Illington was delightfully dignified and self-important as Mrs. Prothero. The part suited her thoroughly; and when Miss Illington gets an opportunity of this kind she is almost flawless in her method of handling it. Miss Florence St. John was no less fortunately supplied with a rôle, that of Miss Matilda Jocelyn fitting her like a glove. The character could hardly have been more naturally and comically sustained. Mr. N. Holthoir was alert and easy as Arnold Jocelyn; and Miss Lily Grundy, with delicate refinement overlying a quaint and dainty acuteness which she allowed to "break through" occasionally, was a most winning and agreeable Muriel Prothero. Miss Laura Reynolds made the most of her brief chances as the Protheros' stupid servant, and the smart "up-to-date" domestic of the Jocelyn ménage had a comely representative in Miss Dora Glennie.

A great contrast to The Diplomatists was the authorised version by Howard Peacey of a one-act piece by Herman Heyermans, played for the first time, and entitled

"A CASE OF ARSON."

John Arend	MR. HENRI DE VRIES
Ansing Arend	MR. HENRI DE VRIES
Thomas Blankert	MR. HENRI DE VRIES
Biesen	MR. HENRI DE VRIES
Putten	MR. HENRI DE VRIES
Post	MR. HENRI DE VRIES
Bik	MR. HENRI DE VRIES
A Magistrate	MR. H. VIBART
An Usher	MR. H. A. TONGE

The impression created by this slice out of Dutch life was so intense as to be at one point almost painful. It was a triumph of simple yet highly artistic realism. There are really only two personages in the play—an examining magistrate and a small cigar manufacturer who has set fire to his factory to get the insurance-money, and has accidentally burnt alive his own little girl. Step by step, by using the evidence of different witnesses, the magistrate fixes the guilt upon the wretched man. In vain he struggles against the fate which he sees impending. He defends himself desperately; but, in the end, he yields and confesses his crime, already over-punished by the loss of his dearly-loved child. This incendiary, his almost imbecile brother, his senile father-in-law, an asthmatic police-sergeant, a self-satisfied, "sniggering" inn-keeper, a timid and apologetic little grocer, and a sturdy, slow, and sullen house-painter, are represented in quick succession by Mr. Henri de Vries. Each impersonation is distinct, individual, and illusive. Voice, manner, and gesture are all carefully studied; and every little attitude and every minor movement is significant. It is Dutch art in excelsis, and the subject is one to which the Dutch method is well suited. The house followed the examination with silent, almost breathless, attention. Mr. H. Vibart was a handsome, authoritative, and boldly distinct Magistrate; and Mr. H. A. Tonge, with his strongly-marked features and a characteristic stoop, was every inch an Usher. The piece was received with enthusiastic applause; and, at the conclusion, Mr. de Vries was called and applauded very earnestly. A Case of Arson is certainly well worth seeing.

A STRONG AMERICAN DRAMA.

"THE WOMAN IN THE CASE," a drama in four acts, by Clyde Fitch, produced at the Herald-square Theatre, New York, on the 30th ult., proved to be a play of absorbing interest, with two very effective situations, and scored an emphatic success. It is the strongest play that Mr. Fitch has written since he produced The Climbers, and, although the story runs on melodramatic lines, it is developed without resort to the familiar methods usually employed in that class of theatrical writing. Julian Rolfe, soon after his marriage, is arrested on the charge of having murdered Philip Long, his dearest friend. Some years before, Rolfe was infatuated, for a brief period, with a chorus girl named Claire Forster, who proved a "bad lot," and whose plan to ensnare Long was frustrated by Rolfe, who thereby incurred the woman's hatred. Long committed suicide when he learnt the truth about Claire Forster; and, immediately after his death, the woman begins to carry out her scheme of revenge. She has in her possession several love-letters written by Rolfe some years previously; and the dates of these she alters so as to make it appear that he was desperately in love with her at the time of Long's death, and that he murdered his friend through jealousy. But Rolfe's wife is a woman of resource, and she believes in her husband. He is waiting trial in the Tombs Prison, and things look very bad for him, when Margaret Rolfe undertakes to prove his innocence by making the other woman betray herself. This she accomplishes by taking a flat in the same house with Claire Forster, acting like a woman of the "half-world," gaining Claire's confidence, and, at last, having dosed her with champagne, and planted two witnesses in an adjoining room, coaxing from her the story of Long's suicide. Then Margaret springs upon her foe like a tigress, and reveals her identity. In the last act husband and wife are reunited. The success of the play was due in no small measure to the excellence of the acting. Miss Blanche Walsh played the part of Margaret Rolfe with intelligence and discretion, and acted in the scene of the husband's arrest and that of Margaret's triumph over her enemy with fine effect, arousing great enthusiasm. Miss Dorothy Dorr's Claire Forster was a life-like representation of a dissolute and unprincipled woman. Mr. Robert Drouet gave a manly and sincere impersonation of the wrongly-suspected Julian Rolfe, and Mr. George Fawcett was excellent as Rolfe's lawyer, Mr. Tompson.

BIRTHDAYS OF THE WEEK.

We wish many happy returns of the day to the following ladies and gentlemen:—

Walter Gay—Saturday, Feb. 18.
Lydia Thompson—Sunday, Feb. 19.
Adelina Patti—Sunday, Feb. 19.
Ernest Dare—Sunday, Feb. 19.

LES FRASNETTIS have met with great success in Australia. They have played at the Tivoli, Sydney, for three months, and are now appearing at the Opera House, Melbourne. They return to London on April 17.

MR. JACK COLLINSON, whose name is a household word in the music-hall sketch world, has arranged with Mr. Tom Craven, the well-known author of The Stowaway, The Ballad Singer, and other popular plays, to write a sketch, entitled The Three Crows, which will be put on at an early date at an important London variety theatre.

MUSIC HALL GOSSIP.

Music of the higher kind is just now the fashion at the halls, and much attention is being devoted to operatic excerpts, both by Mr. Thomas Barrasford and Mr. Oswald Stoll. It is a noteworthy and cheering sign when the public applaud works that hitherto have been restricted to opera houses; but it may be well to remember, in the midst of common congratulations, that this is no new thing. Some forty years since the old Oxford made a feature of operatic music, under the management of Mr. Charles Morton, who was responsible for the first "recital" of Faust in this country, the prima donna being Miss Russell. Mr. Morton's example was not extensively copied, and opera gave way to acrobats.

Such a thing as an original operetta was, however, unknown in those days, and the composers of the period would have treated with lofty contempt any proposal of the proprietors to compose any lyrical work for the despised halls, even if they had not been prevented from doing so by the restrictive legislation of 1843. Sir Julius Benedict or Sir Sterndale Bennett would have been even more astonished still had they been asked to conduct any of their own works by Mr. Charles Morton.

His successor, Mr. Alfred Butt, lives in more artistic days, and his request to Sir Alexander Mackenzie to direct the first performance of the interlude, The Knights of the Road, which is to be produced on Monday, Feb. 27, has been graciously complied with. The period chosen is that of George the Second, when the exploits of Jack Straw, Dick Turpin, and other gentlemen of the road gave the travelling public and the Bow-street runners much uneasiness. The scene is to be a faithful reproduction of an eighteenth century inn, from the brush of Mr. W. T. Hemsley, and five principal characters, assisted by a picked chorus, will speak the dialogue, and interpret the music. Sir Alexander is the composer of an overture to Twelfth Night, and of the music to Ravenswood, The Little Minister, and Coriolanus.

Mr. H. A. Lytton, the old Savoyard, is responsible for the libretto. Mr. Walter Hyde, the well-known tenor, and Mr. Henry Claff, the baritone, from the Theatre Royal, Glasgow, sustain the chief singing parts. Mr. O. E. Lennon, who has just terminated a pantomime engagement at Sheffield, will be seen in the chief comedy part. Only two or three months ago Mr. Lennon was appearing in Brummagem Jem in Mr. Arthur Roberts's company at the same theatre. Mr. Lennon has played Mr. Edmund Payne's and Mr. Huntley Wright's parts on tour for the last few years.

Lady Haldon is announced as the latest recruit to the music hall stage, on which she will produce what is described as a comic interlude, written by Mr. Arthur Branscombe, the author of Morocco Bound. It is entitled The Sporting Duchess. As Mdlle Miska, Lady Haldon was engaged at Drury-lane by the late Sir Augustus Harris, and played the part of Rose Bouchon in A Life of Pleasure. She married in 1893 the Hon. Lawrence William Palk, who succeeded to the barony of Haldon (which was created in 1880) in 1903. Lady Haldon is the daughter of Colonel J. W. Maichlé, formerly of the Russian Army. Lord Haldon served in South Africa with the 8th Battalion of the Imperial Yeomanry in 1901-2. Lady Haldon appears on Monday, Feb. 27, at the Tivoli.

There is a report—only a report—that the late premises of Williams and Co., of Upper-street, near the "Green," Islington, are to be acquired by a powerful music-hall combine for the purpose of building another large variety house, to be conducted on the twice-nightly principle. One would think that Islington is already well supplied with "shows" of every kind, and that the houses of amusement already established are quite sufficient for the needs of the neighbourhood.

The "magic crucible" succeeds the magic kettle, and Mr. Frank Glenister promises some interesting and novel experiments at the London Pavilion on Monday evening next. We believe horseshoes can be manufactured in the most approved manner in the space of a few seconds in the former vessel.

My Fancy, who has been winning golden opinions at the Coliseum by the intricate steps and rythmic beauty of her sand dance, was presented on Saturday evening with a lovely bouquet by the octett of ladies supporting her. The charming little dancer was vastly pleased at the pretty compliment paid to her.

Mr. Bransby Williams will conclude to-day all his contracts with the Syndicate halls, and will open on March 6 at the Empire in a new production, written especially for him by the well-known actress, Miss Beatrix de Burgh. It is entitled The Last of His Race. The story is of a gambler, and the denouement is both original and startling, and turns on the idea of a fortune being found in a picture, of which the papers have been full this week. The production was accepted by the Empire directors a year ago. Mr. Bransby Williams is to star in an entirely new production of pantomime at Christmas—new book, new scenery, and new scenery—under the direction of Mr. F. Wyndham.

The death, at Hull, of Mr. Martin Chapender, will come as a great shock to the many London friends of that clever young conjuror, who passed away on Thursday, the 9th inst., after an operation for abscess on the brain. The deceased gentleman was the second son of Mr. Thomas Martin-Jones, manager of the Liverpool branch of Schweppes, Limited. He was educated at the Liverpool Institute, and on leaving school began his business career in the office of Messrs. H. B. Williams and Company., marine insurance brokers.

At an early age, Mr. Martin-Jones showed a remarkable talent for conjuring, and frequently performed at amateur concerts and for charities. So recently as December, 1902, he left business to enter upon a career as a professional conjurer, under the assumed name of Martin Chapender, and steadily rose to the front rank. At Christmas, 1904, he engaged the Egyptian Hall, Piccadilly, before its final demolition, for a four weeks' season, which was a complete success. Unfortunately his health broke down under the strain of performing, combined with the responsibilities of management. He was taken suddenly ill when on tour at Hull, and died there on the 9th inst. The remains were cremated at Hull on Saturday.

Miss Madge Girdlestone, who has won fame in Drury-lane drama, in Hippodrome spectacle, and in touring melodrama, is now ambitious of gaining distinction as an authoress for the stage. She has written a dramatic episode, entitled Two Men and a Woman, which will be produced at the Palace Theatre on Monday, by Mr. Alfred Butt. For the two men, Miss Girdlestone has engaged Mr. Cecil Morton York and Mr. Martine Sabine, both of impressive stature. As "the woman," Miss Girdlestone's majestic figure and statuesque beauty will be well set off by a dinner dress, which, we are given to understand, will be a positive dream of elegance and taste.

Mr. Harry Kilburn, who is successfully appearing as Alderman Fitzwarren in the pantomime of Dick Whittington (the Broadway Theatre, London, production) at the Queen's Theatre, Leeds, has been re-engaged by Mr. Frederick Mouillot for 1905, this making his third year with the same firm.

Mr. Albert Bushell, the popular manager of the Gaiety, Birmingham, will take his annual benefit at that house on Tuesday next. Owing to the large number of artistes who have signified their intention of appearing, there will be one performance only on the night—from seven o'clock until twelve.

The fall in the dividend of Moss Empires (Limited) to 10 per cent. caused an unusual amount of interest to be taken by shareholders in the annual meeting held at Edinburgh on Thursday. Mr. H. E. Moss (chairman of directors) was not present, but he sent a letter, which was read by the secretary, in which he regretted his inability to be at the meeting, as he had made arrangements to go to Egypt in January. In common with the shareholders he (Mr. Moss) regretted that they could not pay the usual dividend, but he considered there need be no ground for uneasiness. He had every confidence that in the opening of the new theatres at Liverpool and Glasgow, with an improvement in trade which they all looked for, and a saving which the board hoped for by the new system of management, the prospects of the company were extremely good.

Mr. Oswald Stoll (Cardiff), managing director in succession to Mr. Moss, presided, and moved the approval of the report and dividend. He also adverted to the causes of the fall in profits, and expressed the opinion that the worst was passed, and that substantial improvement might be expected next year. Mr. Frank Allen seconded. Mr. H. Abraham (Edinburgh) wished to know who fixed the directors' fees. The Secretary stated that the directors' remuneration was dealt with in the articles of association. Mr. Abraham did not seem quite satisfied, and another shareholder asked if any of the theatres just now were in a non-paying condition—a question that the chairman did not think it expedient to answer. The report was then adopted unanimously, and Mr. Richard Thornton (Newcastle) was re-elected a director.

Mr. E. H. Jones, the late manager of the Grand Theatre of Varieties in Manchester for upwards of fourteen years, died on Monday after a lingering illness of twelve months. He will be much missed in the variety profession, as he was a man of many parts, including song-writing and scene-painting. He was stage-manager for many years at the Grand Theatre, Liverpool, and also played in the principal London halls in the eighties.

Mr. Frank Cass has just given excellent proof of his capabilities. On Monday, at the Hippodrome, Ashton, Mr. Verno (of Verno and Voyce) was unable, owing to a severe cold, to appear with his partner, Mr. Albert Voyce. Mr. Cass, at a moment's notice, undertook the difficult task of playing Mr. Verno's part, and with most gratifying results. Mr. Albert Voyce was highly delighted, and the audience even more so ,judging from the vociferous applause.

One of the funniest things in Mr. Robert Arthur's pantomime, at the Royal Court Theatre, Liverpool, is the rendering, by Mr. Walter Groves, of the highly humorous song, entitled "Bed." The song has proved an immense hit, and the writers, Messrs. C. W. Murphy and Dan Lipton, have already received many applications for its use in pantomime next year. Mr. Morny Cash is also singing the song with remarkable success in the halls. Mr. Cash, by the way, will produce at the London Lyceum, in March, several new and special numbers from the pens of the same authors.

Mr. Tom Prichard, of the Empire, Dudley, has just presented Mr. Jesse Burton with a beautiful tobacco-pouch, made of morocco sealskin, attached to which is a silver shield, bearing the following inscription, "From Tom to Jesse."

At the Prince of Wales's Theatre, Birmingham, on Saturday last, the performance of The Forty Thieves was marked by an unfortunate incident. Towards the close of the Cave scene Mr. Wilkie Bard accidentally fell through the glass, which represents the water; his arm was cut, and he was also shaken. As the accident occurred while the scene was darkened, the audience only heard the crash and the fall. Mr. Bard immediately drove to the Queen's Hospital, where it was found that the arteries had not been injured. The limb was bandaged, and Mr. Bard subsequently returned to the theatre. In the meantime, Mr. J. F. Graham, the manager, took Mr. Bard's part for the remainder of the evening.

Mr. Wilkie Bard made his first appearance at the Prince of Wales's, Birmingham, since his accident, on Wednesday, when the Brum Rocket Club attended the Broad-street playhouse in a body. He was welcomed with a couplet, sung to a rousing tune. He carried his injured right arm in a sling. Despite this inconvenience, however, he was seen in his best form, entering into the spirit of the meeting with great zest. He was the recipient of a case of "make-ups," and suitable gifts were made to the other comedians and performers. Mr. J. H. Graham, the manager, was presented with a framed photograph of the members.

The Wolverhampton Hippodrome, formerly known as the Prince of Wales' Theatre, and perhaps more familiar under its old title of the Star Theatre, would have been burnt to the ground on Sunday morning, Feb. 5, had it not been for the prompt attention and smart work of the Wolverhampton Fire Brigade. As it was, damage to the extent of £1,100 was done. A short time ago the theatre was transformed by the present proprietors, Messrs. Benton and Little, into a hippodrome, the appearance of the auditorium having been completely altered for the purpose.

The King's Music Hall, Roscommon-street, Liverpool, closes to-night. Formerly it was known as the Roscommon, but on Boxing Day last was opened under new auspices. The management has decided to abandon the venture.

Mr. Henri Gros attended the Westminster Police Court, on Thursday, with his solicitor, Mr. Rutland, who asked his worship to re-open the case he heard a few weeks ago, when Mr. Gros was ordered to enter into his recognisances to come up if called upon for presenting The Fighting Parson, described as a stage play, at the Metropolitan Theatre of Varieties. Mr. Gros said he was very anxious to be heard. He felt that a stigma rested upon him, and although he was prepared to admit the commission of a technical offence, he would rather have the matter dealt with in another way, even if he had to pay a fine. It was somewhat of an indignity to be reminded that he was bound over to come up "if called upon," and, if possible, he would prefer to call himself up. The Fighting Parson had been produced at many London halls since the proceedings against him, and yet there had been no further prosecution. Mr. Curtis-Bennett could not agree with Mr. Rutland that under any circumstances Mr. Gros could have the case reinstated, but perhaps it would be as well if the other side could be asked to come to the Court and give their views on the matter.

Miss "Del" Levey, one of the majestic Sisters Levey, is proud of the fact that she was born in Glasgow. She was announced to sing at Mr. Tom E. Murray's benefit on Friday, at the Theatre Royal, and she will on Monday open at the Tivoli and Queen's there, afterwards going on to Greenock and Paisley. She is heavily booked, and in perfect health and spirits.

Miss Marie Lloyd, who is slowly recovering from serious illness, travelled to Brighton by train from Victoria on Wednesday, accompanied by a nurse. She is still very weak, but it is hoped that the fine air of the Queen of South Coast watering-places will completely restore her to health, and that soon.

Mrs. Kitchen, one of the St. James's Park milkmaids, is the mother of Mr. Fred. Kitchen, who has played with such success the part of Sergeant Lightning in His Majesty's Guests. Another son was associated with the late Mr. Charles Lauri in his celebrated speechless sketches, On the Roofs, The Sioux, and others.

"The Little Stowaway," Mr. Fred. Bowyer's sketch, which he is largely rewriting, will be produced, on March 25, at the Canterbury and Paragon. Miss Nellie Bowman will play the part of the hero; Mr. Clayton will be the captain, whose life is saved by the brave little lad; and Mr. Willie Scott, a favourite low comedian at the Pavilion Theatre, Mile End, and Lyric Theatre, Hammersmith, will be seen to advantage in a comic part.

Mr. Oswald Stoll is presenting Madame Alice Esty at the Coliseum in the famous "Miserere" scene from Il Trovatore, and that admirable vocalist's success has been very remarkable. She sings Verdi's music like the true artist that she is, and brings down the house by her execution of the lovely introductory air to the well-known scene. A short synopsis tells us of the death sentence passed upon Manrico, the hero, but we do not see him. We, however, hear him sing "Ah! che la morte," which is given with much charm and fervour. We are open to correction, but we believe Manrico is represented by Mr. Roland Cunningham.

"The Military Maids," a new scena, produced at the Coliseum, on Monday, was shorn of much of its attractiveness on account of the illness of Miss Millie Hylton, who was to have played the officer in command. The ladies of the company did their best on Wednesday afternoon to make up for the absence of their leader, and manœuvred and danced with rare vim and heartiness. Miss Extravaganza, another fresh interlude, has been introduced also at the St. Martin's-lane pleasure house during the week. Mr. J. C. Piddock sings the incidental song, in a beautifully-furnished drawing room, to elegantly dressed guests, who include Miss Mary Ambrose, an excellent violinist, and Mrs. Rocke, a pianist, who accompanies. "Miss Extravaganza" herself poses under a curtained niche towards the end of the song. She is prettily dressed in an outdoor summer costume of white, and holds a sunshade.

Mr. Will Oliver will celebrate his fifty-third birthday on Thursday next, and it is pleasant to know that he can congratulate himself on excellent health. Last year he suffered from an illness that caused great anxiety to his troops of friends, who rejoice to see "Spot" quite in his old form. He will entertain a select party at Brixton on the festal day, and will perforce have to sing once again the old refrain of "My father's face." "Will," we are told, is just as nimble and light on his feet as when he parodied the ballerina of the back row at the South London in the eighties. With his brother Rats, we join in wishing him "Many happy returns of the day."

We have also congratulations to offer to a much older veteran—Mr. George Washington Moore, otherwise known as Pony Moore, the "minstrel boy" of eighty winters. Since his retirement from the direction of the Moore and Burgess combination, Mr. Moore and his devoted wife, affectionately known among her intimate friends as "Ma," have been living a quiet life at their charming house in the Finchley-road, where to-morrow they will receive the hearty good wishes of a number of friends. Mr. Moore's constitution is simply wonderful: it was but a year or so ago that he went through a critical operation, and he is still very vigorous.

Mr. A. W. Deer, late of the Balham Empire, owing to failure in business and losses incurred through the closing of that house, is in great need of assistance. Arrangements have therefore now been made with Mr. Walter Gibbons to give a benefit performance at the Duchess Palace, on Wednesday, March 1. A committee has the affair in hand, and it is hoped that the special entertainment given will draw a large house.

Vasco, the "mad musician," while cycling near Windsor recently, ran over a fox terrier, which caused him to have a nasty spill, and put two fingers out of joint. With a quiet time at Brighton, he hopes to be again showing on Monday or Monday week.

The Twelve Aerial Wrestling Girls will give a unique performance in mid-air for the first time in London, on Monday, at the Oxford. The wrestling is conducted in the following manner: a girl has to keep the control of a swinging pole to which she is clinging, and is only defeated when driven off by her opponent. Regular competitions are arranged, and the bouts are of the most exciting description. This entertainment is most refined, and has a touch of daring which will commend itself to all admirers of athletic skill.

Miss Mina Marie, who is now resting and having a most enjoyable time at Berlin, is pleased to tell us that she is shortly going to appear in Germany and Austria with her new act, in which she is introducing two very clever little children. Miss Marie has had numerous offers to go to Australia and America this year, but she is unable to accept. She thinks of staying on the Continent for six months, then returning to England. Marie has met with some extraordinary experiences, having been nearly killed three times with "Hooping the Hoop."

At the Canterbury, on the 27th inst., Mr. Fred Miller will produce a new and original flying ballet invented by Paul Valentine. It will be seen for at least a fortnight at Mr. Payne's Westminster Bridge-road establishment, after which it will tour the syndicate and other halls.

Mr. Harry J. Baynton, musical-director of the Empire, Dublin, was presented recently with a bâton, in the form of a sjambok, mounted in solid gold, recently brought from South Africa by the donor, Mr. W. E. Holdom.

Miss Alma Curzon, in consequence of the loss of her luggage by the railway company between Liverpool and Wolverhampton, could not fulfil her engagement last week, and has been obliged also to cancel this week. Her popular song, "England for the English," has been secured by the proprietors of The People for publication. Miss Curzon will, however, retain the music-hall rights.

At the Bow Palace, on Monday, will be produced by Mr. Fred. Baugh a new and original dramatic sketch, entitled The Nihilist. The sketch, which is by Mr. Geo. M. Marriott, who is so well known in sketch work, is in five scenes, the last of which will be a most realistic presentment of an explosion in a Russian palace. There are six principal parts, and a strong company has been engaged.

We record with regret the death of Mrs. A. Webb (formerly Wilkinson), who passed away on Monday. Mr. A. Webb is one of the Brothers Webb, so well known in the music hall circles of London and the Continent as musical clowns.

Dr. Walford Bodie has been creating quite a furore this week at the Grand, Manchester, hundreds being turned away nightly at each performance. His demonstration of bloodless surgery has caused quite a sensation, the theatre being besieged daily by hundreds of cripples.

Miss Rose Hamilton has an original song scena in preparation, entitled Hunted Down, an episode in the life of Jack Sheppard. She will carry special scenery and effects for the same. The dialogue is by J. F. Lambe, and the music by T. Thurban.

Miss Dorothy Kenton, who is well known in the United States as "the Girl with the Banjo," is coming to the Tivoli on Monday next, when Mr. Arthur Roberts, Miss Ruby Celeste, and company will make their appearance in the trifle, Where's the Count? Other newcomers will include Mr. Harry Ford, Miss Amy Clevere, the Two Kings, Miss May Moore Duprez, and the Harry Alaskas.

Messrs. Walton and Lester, after their highly successful engagement at the Brixton Theatre, will return to the halls on Monday next, opening at the Palace, Chelsea. Their Chinese conjuring and magic kettle burlesque will be accompanied by a new Eastern polka, "Chow-Chow," composed by Ernest Lester, one of the firm, and effectively orchestrated by Mr. Frank Bradsell, the musical conductor of the Brixton pantomime.

Those who love the ring of true rollicking Irish comedy should listen to Mr. Pat Doherty singing "The Irish Dude," in the Palace Scene of Mr. George Davey's production of Babes in the Wood, at the Grand Theatre, Islington. Mr. Doherty is an "Oirish gintleman entoirely," and gives us just "an illigant taste of a jig."

Mr. David Day has secured for his firm Mr. Bert Dansie's Song, "I want to be a sailor," by Chas. Osborne.—Mr. Alfred Saker and Co. have secured contracts for Chris Richards to appear at Gatti's till 1908. Mr. Frank Leo has written and composed a comedy song-sketch entitled Mr. Watson, which will be produced at the Coliseum with Mr. Keino Johnson in the title-part.

Mr. Lennox Barry, the enterprising manager of the Battersea Empire, has this week been proving to his many patrons the energy which he exercises in order to supply them with attractions. "Living Battersea" is the subject of the animated pictures, which he is taking during the dinner-hour, and showing upon the sheet at the first house the same evening. This is exceedingly smart work, and Mr. Barry meets with an ample reward in an ever-increasing number of patrons.

Ameen Abou Hamad and his troupe of Arabian bounders are creating something akin to a sensation with their stupendous feats of tumbling and pyramid building at the Surrey Vaudeville Theatre this week. The "head" of the troupe, who is the "foot" of the human column, claims, with great reason, to be the champion "pyramid understander of the world," and, apart from the prettiness of the kaleidoscopic views which his companions present when held up in picturesque positions, the sight of ten men holding on tenaciously to the bearer, is sufficient to take one's breath away. The tumbling feats are expertly performed. One young fellow, encircling the whole area of the stage with a series of somersaults that would appear beyond human achievement, while a bewildering number of side springs, backward and forward tumbling, and Catherine wheels are indulged in to an accompaniment of frantic shouts, evidently intended for encouragement. The cries of the performers are supplemented by the cheers of the audience, whose exhilaration and delight at the feats of the clever Arabian troupe is boundless.

The Calcotts, who recently appeared in their new musical act at the Empire Palace, Portsmouth, made a notable success, and were immediately rebooked for an early date by the management. Mrs. Eric Calcott, by the way, was Miss Amy Leggett, who, until a few weeks back, had been playing in her father's combination in the well-known sketch, The Maid of Athens, and enacting the title-rôle.

Mr. Barney Armstrong has quite settled down to his business again. He is this week appearing at the London, Shoreditch, after an interval of nearly four years, and Mr. Chas. Hector has rebooked him six dates at the London and Collins's. Murphy and Lipton are responsible for the three new songs he is singing, and the comedy he puts into each one has been received with enthusiasm. Next week he opens at the Empress, Brixton, and Hammersmith Palace.

Miss Nellie Wilson, having completed a successful engagement at the Metropolitan and Canterbury, opens at the Paragon next Monday.

Miss Hetty Goff and Mr. Will Garland, two coloured members of the In Dahomey company, were married on the stage of the Grand Theatre, Swansea, after the performance on Friday, the 3rd inst. There were six bridesmaids and seven groomsmen.

It is evident that Georges Hackenschmidt has quite recovered from his recent injury, for, at Melbourne, on Saturday last, the 11th inst., before an assemblage numbering ten thousand persons, he threw two Indians—Buttam Singh and Gunga Brahm—in 41 sec. and 9 min. 45 sec. respectively. The style was catch-as-catch-can.

Mr. Hamilton Hill will essay, at the Hackney Empire, during the forthcoming week, a stirring song, entitled "I want to be a Soldier." It is by Messrs. Lawrance and Gifford, whose present songs for Mr. G. H. Elliott, "Ma Havannah Queen" and "Lazy Maisie," are becoming quite the vogue with lovers of tuneful coon ditties.

Mr. Fred Sinclair and Miss Gracie Whiteford met with such a tremendous reception in their comedy duologue, Getting Even, at the Middlesex and Cambridge, on Monday, that Mr. Graydon personally came to the dressing-room and complimented them upon their success.

Miss Millie Harris has successfully produced at Gatti's, this week, two new songs, entitled "Never let an old pal fall" and "My Standard Girl." The latter song has a rather unique chorus, bringing in, as it does, the leading newspapers. Both songs are from the pen of Mr. Eric Graham.

Mr. Alf Gibson opens at the Lyceum Theatre, on Monday next, for four weeks.—Lea and Lovell, American song illustrators, having just finished Palace, Hammersmith, are now on their provincial tour, including dates with Messrs. Barrasford and Willmot. Mr. Charles Relf has secured their services on their return to town.—Mr. Arthur Elvy, vocal comedian, who finishes this week a successful tour, opens at the Empire, Battersea, on Monday, with a new song, entitled "I've been out."

The 393rd meeting of the Executive Committee of the M.H.A.R.A. was held on Tuesday afternoon, Mr. Joe O'Gorman, chairman of the committee, presiding. The following were elected as additional members of the committee:—Messrs. Wilkie Bard, George Gray, and J. D. Humphreys. The secretary reported that twenty-two new members had joined during the week, making a total number enrolled since the commencement of 11,304. The hon. treasurer's financial statement was submitted, and was passed as read.

Miss Margaret Ashton, who recently met with an enthusiastic reception at Blackpool, is continuing her provincial tour. She has been booked for a two months' appearance at the Coliseum; and she has been busy arranging the details of what promises to be a most attractive item at this popular playhouse. Miss Ashton, who was the pupil of the well-known Italian master, Signor Carpi, has played in many of the leading light opera rôles in America, and it is probable that she will—in the not distant future—delight London audiences with a revelation of her operatic talent.

Miss Victoria Monks, who will sail for America with her husband in a week or so, will have a souvenir night at the Canterbury, on Friday, the 24th. Visitors to all parts of the house will be presented with a lifelike portrait of the accomplished singer of "Bill Bailey," which will be revived on the occasion.

At the Brighton Hippodrome, on Tuesday, by the kind permission of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Barrasford, a special matinée performance was given in support of the police-aided scheme for clothing destitute children. The police band performed popular selections, and, in addition to members of the Hippodrome company, artistes from the Grand Theatre and the Alhambra, by kind permission of the respective managements of those houses, submitted excellent turns. Several local performers also rendered welcome assistance. Among those who attended the matinée were the Mayor and Mayoress of Brighton (Ald. F. and Mrs. Blaker) and Mr. W. B. Gentle (Chief Constable of Brighton), the originator of the scheme.

Mr. P. Lest, tobacconist, Boompjes, 60, Rotterdam, writes as follows: "I want to know the address of Mr. John Johnson, whose music-hall name is Mr. Jacques Etherdo, of the Etherdo family. Ten years ago he travelled in the provinces with the sketch, The Chameleon's Glen. I was married to his daughter; but she died last autumn, and I therefore want to know his address. Another daughter of his travelled with her husband under the title of the Merry Muriels.

After causing an absolute sensation at the Theatre Royal, Leeds, during the run of Mr. Frank Macnaghten's enormously successful pantomime, Cinderella, Mr. Harry Weldon, the Swell Entertainer, opens Monday next, Feb. 20, at Stoll's New Hippodrome, Manchester, for one week, after which he reurns to town to the Tivoli, Oxford, &c., with some capital new songs from the pens of Murphy and Lipton, C. G. Coates, and Harry Castling. Mr. Weldon is fully booked till 1908, and Mr. Tom Shaw, who has his sole business in hand, is to be complimented on the smart manner in which he has brought this clever young comedian so rapidly into the front rank.—(Communicated.)

Sketches founded on cases of mistaken identity seem to be as popular as ever, if we may judge by the reception given on Monday at the Islington Empire to Mr. Cayley Calvert's playlet, The Fellow That Looks Like Me. It was played by Mr. Ralph Lynn and company. That gentleman appeared as Paul; Mr. Sydney Lynn (of Mr. W. S. Penley's Charley's Aunt Co.) represented Pete; and Polly found an attractive exponent in Miss Geraldine Holker (late lead with Mr. Milton Bode).

Miss Margaret Radcliffe asks us to correct a slight error in the description of the lace worn on her costume at the Manchester theatrical ball. It should have been point de Flandres.

Miss Rosee Heath, who used to dance so delightfully as a Dutch girl at the Empire during the eighties, occasionally shows signs of recovery from the mental affliction that keeps her a patient at Colney Hatch Asylum. At Christmas she was so much better that she came home for a month, and resided with her parents, but the improvement was not maintained, and she had again to be detained at the Asylum. Dr. Forbes Winslow, however, does not despair of her ultimate recovery. Miss Heath's mother is 76, and her father 87. They are Danes, and recently spent an enjoyable holiday in their native Copenhagen.

Mendel, the blind pianist, added fresh laurels to his fame during last week, at the Empire, Dublin, when Mr. Figgis, the manager, announced by printed slips that Mendel would perform by special desire, on Thursday, the overture to Tannhäuser, and on Friday the overture to William Tell, both orchestral scores. The house was packed on both occasions, and the audience was most enthusiastic in its applause. Many of the local musicians, and composers of Dublin, during the week, played him original melodies, which Mendel accurately, and to their great surprise, repeated after once hearing them. His wonderful memory enables him to retain nearly 2000 compositions, classical and otherwise. We trust to hear soon of the return to health of both his parents, who are now very ill at their home in London.

Mr. Edwin Brett and Miss Emmeline Orford, having concluded a most successful pantomime season as Abanazar and Aladdin at the Brixton Theatre and tour, resumed their music hall work at the Palace, Blackpool, on Monday, meeting with a flattering reception.

Mr. J. R. Horrocks met with a somewhat severe accident at the Grand, Manchester, on Monday. He had just left Dr. Bodie's dressing-room when he slipped and fell from the top to the bottom or the stairs, striking his back a violent blow. Dr. Bodie at once examined him, and found that no bones were broken. A cab was procured, and Mr. Horrocks was taken home. He was formerly the proprietor of the Theatre Royal, Darwen.

Miss Gipsy Woolf has deserted the cornfield amid which she has disported so long and successfully, and on Monday produced at the Paragon Music Hall a song-scena, of which a gipsy camp forms a picturesque environment. The little sketch, which is entitled "A Gipsy Encampment," serves for the introduction of a number of Romany children, who welcome with gladness the approach of their gipsy heroine, who has been on an expedition to the town, and by means of her fortune-telling and singing and dancing has obtained gifts in money and kind, many of which she distributes among her companions. Left alone, the maiden recalls fleeting memories of other days, and grows a little despondent over the thought of an "angel face" and a loving embrace, but she quickly revives at the thought of a sweetheart who is waiting for her, and breaks into a song of "Sunrise Sue," in which the joys of courtship are extolled. The children return to join in the chorus and in a mazy dance, a charming effect being obtained by the waving of branches and the beating of tambourines. Miss Woolf presents a pretty appearance in a scarlet dress glittering with threads of gold, and her sweet and flexible voice serves her well in the tuneful melody to which her song is set, while the rhythmic quality of her dance and its variety of movement are quite enthralling. She is supported by a number of young girls, who dance with great precision and neatness, and the audience at the Paragon gave, by their enthusiastic applause, evidence of their satisfaction.

Presentation.—Mr. W. Turner (who for the past four years has held the post of electrician at the Coronet Theatre) was, on the 4th inst., on leaving to take charge of the electrical department of the Palace Theatre, Shaftesbury-avenue, presented with a purse of gold, subscribed for by the whole of the staff of the theatre.

THE LONDON MUSIC HALLS.

THE EMPIRE.

There is a very agreeable variety entertainment at the Empire Theatre this week. We are often almost surfeited with athletics at variety houses, and it is a pleasure to find only one item of this kind in the Empire bill, and that of novelty and genuine merit. It is contributed by Carletta; and the mise-en-scène and arrangement of the "turn" are both remarkably effective. The trunk of an old tree forms a resting-place for a green dragon, with a movable jaw, and eyes which glare with electric brilliancy. In the interior of this "property" is Carletta, a contortionist of great flexibility. The "reptile" bends and twists itself in various ways, finally descending from the tree to the ground. There is something both original and uncanny in the attitudes the dragon assumes; and when Carletta removes the disguise, and appears in the ordinary garb of a contortionist, his achievements are still more striking and skilful. A very pretty performance is given by Mdlle. Marquis with her ponies. They are handsome and well-trained animals, and, after enjoying a see-saw, one of them plays at football by kicking a large sphere backwards with his hind legs. The well-trained little horses also do a "cake-walk" with spirit, box with the "droll," M. Dassie, and do some amusing things with a large and obedient bulldog. Mdlle. Marquis exhibits her equine pupils with grace, skill, and tact; and M. Dassie, a refined "clown," creates much laughter by his absurdities. Collins and Hart supply a screamingly funny turn, burlesquing acrobatic business. A vast amount of laughter is created, not only by their amusing tricks, but by their very diverting and eccentric byplay. Their business, in their barrel-jumping business, is exceedingly funny. Briano's performing monkeys are marvellously clever simians, their imitations of the exploits of human artistes being truly comic. Their somersaulting over horizontal bars is very adroit, and their acrobatic achievements are surprisingly skilful. One of them "goes through his arms" on the trapeze in a style that is quite human, and another does some neat tight-rope dancing. Bud Snyder, an accomplished cyclist, jumps his machine on and off tables, and up and down steps, concluding with the sensational feat of springing it from one to another of several platforms, high above the stage. Snyder is certainly a master of the art which he professes. Miss Anna Hickisch is an agreeable soprano vocalist, and her contribution to the programme is a very pleasing one. That delightful fairy divertissement, The Dancing Doll, is as successful as ever; and Mdlle. Adeline Genée, as Bébé, charms all by her elegance and grace, and by the accomplished skill which she displays in her dancing. Mdlle. F. Zanfretta's spirited Spanish solos are warmly applauded; and Mr. W. Vokes and Miss E. Clerc are very quaint as the Dutch Dolls, Mr. Tom Vincent being quite effective as Sambo. The "danse coquette," by Mdlle. Genée and Mons. Sundberg, is well received; and the corps de ballet work with unabated spirit. The views shown by aid of the Biograph are both interesting and attractive; and, altogether, the entertainment at the Empire is bright, varied, and very enjoyable.

THE CANTERBURY.

Mr. Jack Camp must have arrived at a very complacent frame of mind if we are to believe his song in which everybody seems alike to him. But what an upsetting of our social system would be occasioned if everybody and everything appeared the same to everybody. But, of course, Mr. Camp does not intend his remarks to be taken seriously, and certainly no one does, for the audience were in roars of laughter all the while he was upon the stage. He is equally entertaining in his verses about a policeman, a jolly jack tar, and other worthies; while his patter was extremely quaint in quality and performance. In Rejected Remounts, Messrs. Fred Ginnett and Co. reveal the humours of negotiations for the sale of a horse to a customer whose knowledge of animals is extremely limited, to say the least. Even the fine horses which are brought before the footlights for the purchaser to examine and select seem to enter into the fun of the situation. Touched is the title of the sketch presented by Mr. Joe Elvin, and "touched" accurately describes the behaviour of the audience who witnessed the comicalities of Mr. Elvin and his little band of comedians; roars of laughter followed almost every word of this screaming little farce, the antics of the different inmates of the lunatic asylum being enjoyed with great gusto by the spectators. Miss Nellie Wilson, to whom we have before referred in eulogistic terms, is paying another visit to the Canterbury this week, and her song, "If you can't buy a motor-car, buy a motor-cap," is briskly rendered by this charming and talented comedienne, and the chorus is very briskly taken up by the audience. The second time she comes upon the stage she is attired in a striking costume, in which black squares and broad, bold white lines, give an artistic effect. Her little ditty about "serenading Georgie" and her graceful dancing afford further testimony to Miss Wilson's versatility. A vocalist of no small ability, Mr. W. H. Downs, the popular coloured comedian, sings "Jenny Well" in a manner that entrances his audiences, by reason not only of its sympathetic vein, but also by reason of the charm of the rendering. "We see some funny things at our laundry," sings Miss Kate Carney, and everyone who witnesses her latest diverting musical episode is in full agreement with her. What with the writing on cuffs, "scorched" fronts, torn shirts, &c., Miss Carney has found a prolific field for the manufacture of merriment. The Collins-Stella troupe of dancers present an animated picture, the eight young ladies, very prettily attired in handsome dresses, and executing a variety of interesting movements in the direction of the poetry of motion, testifying to excellent training and natural capabilities. Boswell's educated ponies, cantankerous donkey, and performing dogs provide an attractive exhibition of the intelligent propensities of the lower animals under human influence. Mr. Tom Brandford is deputising for Mr. Phil Ray who has been unable to turn up this week. Mr. Brandford gave realistic imitations of the counds created by a train steaming out of the station, of the syren-like whistle of a steamer, and vocal representations of a mandoline and a brass band, the last-mentioned item causing no small disturbance of one's risible faculties. Miss Ray Wallace appears quite at home as Vesta Victoria, or Kate Carney with her now famous song "'Liza Johnson," Vesta Tilley in "Following in Father's footsteps," and Miss Victoria Monks in her coon song "Mr. Jackson," all of which were characteristic representations. Most eccentric of eccentrics, Mr. Will Evans, appears in his delightful pantomime skit of Robinson Crusoe, which is one of the most entertaining "turns" in the variety theatres at the present moment. Mr. George Gray and Company, in The Fighting Parson, Mr. C. T. Best (comedian), Miss Eileen Douglas (comedienne), and Mr. V. L. Granville in his character impersonations from various well-known plays complete the bill.

THE STANDARD.

That variety audiences can and will appreciate high-class singing of high-class themes has been proved this week at the Royal Standard Music Hall, Pimlico, where Mr. Hamilton Hill, the well-known baritone vocalist, is nightly getting encores for his splendid interpretation of "The Holy City." Going from this to a less serious subject, his "Good-bye, little girl, good-bye," has a delightful ring, and is rendered in a way which leaves no doubt as to Mr. Hill's talents. Mr. Leo Dryden gives us a touch of the present and the past with his two items, "For Freedom and Japan" and "An Actor and a Man." In the first he appears in Japanese costume and sings a few stirring verses anent the subject which has for the past twelve months taken up the attention of the world. His other number, "An Actor and a Man," affords him fine opportunities for his abilities as a character actor and a vocalist, and he cuts a very gallant figure as David Garrick. Miss Jessie Albini has not lost the dainty girlish mannerisms of speech and gesture and motion which we remember formed so charming a part of her performances a few years ago. She contrives to amuse her audinece by quoting from the leaves of the booklet she carries, and at the end succeeds in convincing everyone of the truth of her song, "My diary is a very interesting little book." Her other number, about the doings of one Sadie, a simple country girl, who, however, proves one too many for a London "Johnny," is introduced with such rare ingenuousness that one does not fully realise that there is, after all, an artful element in the thoughts of the aforementioned simple country "gel." The Matador is the title of an exceedingly well-written and well-played sketch, for which thanks are due to the Phillips and Jackson combination. There are three tableaux, the first being an admirable and picturesque scene depicting the exterior of what is called the Posado Pedro, Madrid. A bull-fighter, whose morals, to put it mildly, have long since become submerged, is using all the powers at his command to induce a young English girl, disguised as a Spanish strolling fiddler, to marry him. Incidentally it may be mentioned that he has previously betrayed a number of his own countrywomen, one of whom manages to defeat his evil designs in different directions. An English artist comes upon the scene, falls desperately in love with the English girl, goes through wonderful adventures, but, in the end, as becomes a hero, rescues the girl from the clutches of the matador, who is shot by the last of his female victims. By far the best-acted character in the piece is that of an old woman, played by Mrs. Stanislaus Calhaem. The tyrannous tactics of this hag, who for the time being has charge of the English girl, and is making her life as miserable as she can, and the old creature's subsequent attempts to secure the affections of Pedro, the innkeeper, are portrayed with just that degree of dramatic creative power which causes the onlooker to forget himself for the moment, and to imagine that he is seeing, not merely a study of life, but a living reality. We want more people like Mrs. Calhaem on the music-hall stage. The Matador should hold the boards for some time to come. Miss Flo Melville contributes a couple of songs, "My own sweetheart" and "You can tell a beautiful tale," both of which go far to prove that the lady is a comedienne gifted with a distinct style and pretty voice. Mr. E. J. Wilkes tells us, in a most entertaining way, how an Irishman, a Scotsman, and a London coster each make love, and in the second part of his "turn," he sounds the praises of his only friend, a performing dog, who does a number of smart things at its master's bidding. Mr. Will Poluski, jun., needs little recommendation at this hour. His latest songs, "Ohio" and "Hi, hi, tiddley hi" add to the general merriment, and are extremely well received. Royal Best understands the secrets of making oneself a "double," his impersonations of past and present celebrities being, for the most part, precise and accurate so far as impersonations can be. Marvels in melody might be an appropriate title for the different "improvised" instruments used by the Three Albions, who, without flattering themselves, are billed as "musical fantasts." The Three Alberts are to be commended for their agility and strength in the hand and wire equilibristic department; Mr. Charles Tempest is diverting with his eccentric comedy act; Miss Bertha Lennard sings nicely and dances neatly; and Mahatma, "the miracle worker," possesses wonderful powers of second sight, or thought-transmission, or by whatever other name it may be called.

QUEEN'S, POPLAR.

To cater for a community largely composed of working folk, with the fare good and at prices well within the limits of their resources, is a task of no little difficulty. That this is accomplished at Messrs. Tom Maltby and Wickes's long-established and favourite hall in High-street, Poplar, is evidenced by the patronage extended, and by the satisfaction everywhere expressed. The proprietors are fortunate in having the services of the experienced and astute Mr. Joe Haynes as first lieutenant, and the programme he has presented during the week has been varied, and from end to end most entertaining. Early in the evening Miss Lil Gorman, a serio with a pleasing style and good voice, has found plenty of admirers for her tuneful song and dance, "My Princess Zulu"; and Mr. Charles Bayman, a darkey comedian, has secured attention, and aroused some mirth for his humorous ditty, "I'm a Jonah Man," the lament of a most unfortunate individual, and another well-rendered item. Vastly amusing has been the duologue given by Violet and Frank Payte, called, we believe, Also Ran. The gentleman impersonates a newly-wedded husband, who has a strong partiality for "the turf" and late hours, and his partner plays his fond young wife, who is naturally indignant and hurt at his neglect, and determines to pay him out. So when he appears on the scene after a brief absence, she informs him she has also been to a race meeting, and with a gentleman! It is then the husband's turn to rave, and his anger is certainly most grotesque; but he soon discovers, by questioning his wife as to the winners and prices, that she has been only trying to make him jealous. Explanations and a promise of better behaviour on the part of the husband follow, and the trifle is merrily concluded with a much-appreciated sporting toast. The couple work hard, and with every success, in its presentation, the depiction of anger by the male being especially laughable. Original and wonderfully expert and eccentric dancing is contributed by Darden and Iris, the lady executing a clever toe dance, and her partner proving a smart tumbler and bender. The comicalities of Mr. Charles Austin call forth some of the loudest applause heard during the evening. His "Iddly-iddly-umpty-ay" and other nonsense song would certainly not raise a smile on their own merits; but embellished as they are with innumerable little bits of by-play and patter, and warbled in a grotesquely dismal fashion by Mr. Austin, they compel incessant merriment. Very funny also is the comedian's fragment of mock melodrama, and his originality and real ability to amuse are keenly appreciated in all parts of the house. Very enjoyable and loudly acclaimed also is the musical turn for which Sylvo is responsible. A concertina solo of much excellence is followed by the playing of "Good-bye, little yellow bird" and "The Holy City" on the bamboo bells and the silver chimes, two tuneful instruments, of which Sylvo is the inventor. Especially expert also is he in the manipulations of the musical glasses, his rendering of one of Leslie Stuart's pretty melodies and the popular "Hiawatha" being warmly applauded. A clever little transformation dancer is Princess Lulu, her Spanish, French, Japanese, American, Welsh, and Scotch dances all being smartly executed, particularly pleasing being her Irish jig and sailor's hornpipe. Her changes are all quickly accomplished, and are most complete, and her exhausting exhibition is applauded at its true worth. The sketch of the bill is of a military nature, and is entitled Woman and War, a romance of the great struggle between England and Russia, 1854-56. Mr. Eric Grant and company are responsible for its very able presentation; and also to be commended is the mounting, the illuminated picture at the conclusion, depicting the charge of the Light Brigade, being particularly admired. Also in the programme are Professor King, sensational manipulator of arithmetic on the decimal and metric system, an interesting exhibition to a large portion of the audience; Zaro and Arno; Condon and Preston; and the Two Sprays. The films shown on Lacey's Erascope always provide enjoyment to any audience; and the capable and hard-working orchestra, under the guidance of Mr. George Hatley, also contributes to the pleasure of the evening.

BATTERSEA EMPIRE.

The popularity of Mr. Lennox Barry, the new manager, is daily increasing in return for his energetic efforts to make the standard of excellence of his programme as high as possible. The Wednesday matinées, which Mr. Barry has commenced, are proving exceedingly popular, evidence of which is forthcoming in the fact that the house is packed at every one. The leading feature of the bill this week is Mr. Maurice H. Hoffmann and Co., in their mysterious sketch The Sorrows of Satan. The sketch has been cleverly adapted by Mr. Hoffman. The acting of Miss Ethel King, as Lady Sybil Elton calls for special praise, and that of Mr. M. H. Hoffmann, as Prince Lucia Rimanez, the Devil on Earth, is thrilling. One of the finest sketches on the variety boards is performed by Miss Dinah Morris and her company. Beautiful scenery and costumes, sweet singing of original and catchy coon ditties, and vivacious dancing combine in a successful effort to transport the minds of the audience from the worry and toil of their daily lives to the enjoyments of the light-hearted and contented workers on the cotton plantations of America. That the energy and heartiness of the company is conveyed beyond the footlights is proved by a look round at the beaming faces of a well-pleased audience. Mdlle. Roza is presenting here her wonderful dog circus. Trick walking on a rapidly revolving table, skipping and walking backwards upstairs are among the many clever tricks performed by these well-trained animals. Clever imitations of a few of our leading music hall artistes are given by Mr. Ted Saunders. His mimicry of John Lawson, R. G. Knowles, and Harry Lauder is enthusiastically received. Conway and Tindall, in their laughable duologue, Gooseberry Junction; or, Fun at a Railway Station, are appearing here this week. A duet describing the different people met with on the line is very good. The Sisters Oswald are performing their novel dancing act with great success. So well concealed are their false legs, and so naturally do they use them, that it is not until the sisters decide to give up the deception that the audience discovers the ingenuity of the trick. Miss Millie Harris contributes to the enjoyment of the evening by singing in a quiet and pleasing manner her ditty, "Don't strike a fellow when he's down." The songs and tales delivered by Harry Bradford, the diminutive comedian, take well; and Arthur Forrest, a comedian with a few droll yarns, is also appearing with success. "Living Battersea" forms the subject of a series of attractive animated pictures shown by Walter Payne's Bioscope. Pictures that are taken each afternoon are shown upon the sheet the same evening. "Soldiers Past, Present, and Future" are represented on the screen by the fine old Boys of Chelsea, the Royal Guards, and the Boys of the Duke of York's School respectively. The excellent little orchestra is ably conducted by Mr. R. Holman.

STRATFORD EMPIRE.

At this high-class variety theatre, which is so worthily fulfilling its mission to provide local pleasure-seekers with a light and bright entertainment of not too long duration, a capital bill is provided this week, and good business is the result. The chief interest attaches to the engagement of Nat Clifford and Claire Romaine, who, though they have not loomed largely in the Empire bill before, have been local pantomime favourites for three consecutive seasons. That Stratford has not tired of them was evinced when Mr. Clifford appeared in his first item, when, as a decayed and exaggerated masher, he sang "At the Grand Hotel," appearing afterwards as a mentally afflicted "ancient," and singing "When I'm Pierpont Morgan Number Two." His songs, however, only serve as a vehicle for his quaintly absurd patter, his oddly eccentric dancing, and his resourceful methods of getting into touch with his hearers. Most of Mr. Clifford's business was entirely new, and it was quite obvious that Stratford had not already seen the best of this droll comedian. On Miss Romaine's first appearance, charmingly attired in evening dress, she gave the well-known pantomime song, "Pennies," the chorus of which was taken up with avidity from every part of the house. Her other pantomime air, "They don't mind me," was next given, and, transformed into a spruce college boy, Miss Romaine gained great applause for the ditty. The twain next appeared in the duet "Prophets," a mock quarrelling burlesque scena, which proved as funny as ever. Mr. Clifford's pantomime gags were never heard but to the accompaniment of mirth, and at the conclusion of their fifty minutes' occupancy of the stage, finishing with another duet, the audience, like Dickens's workhouse boy, still "asked for more." Another popular entertainer was Will H. Fox, whose clever nonsensical performance at the piano remains as popular as ever, undoubtedly due to the combination of talented playing with original patter and comedy business which he employs. No method of extracting music from a pianoforte comes amiss to Mr. Fox, and his eccentricities are genuinely funny. It is easy to be deceived as to the sex of George Tacius on his first entrance, for to all appearances he is a handsomely gowned soprano vocalist, with golden hair to match. It is only when he concludes his first song in powerful baritone notes that the audience are undeceived, and their astonishment and laughter are blended. His second song, "Because I love you," is more familiar, and he receives plenty of applause at the conclusion of his turn. The daring gymnastic feats accomplished by Alf. Arnesen are watched with breathless interest, and his concluding item, that of placing a walking stick on a tight-rope, and balancing himself in the air by grasping the handle, must show the possession of wonderful nerve and skill. Swan and Bambard, a couple of knockabouts from "the other side," contribute a novel act, The Eccentric Recruit, and their deft movements and amusing sayings gained them a most cordial reception. Ryan and Hall received a warm welcome in their well-known acrobatic act, which is as expert and interesting as ever, and the Three Fortune Brothers, in their novelty comedy act, provide a turn which is greatly enjoyed. The Bioscope Pictures are always a considerable attraction at Stratford, and this week new and interesting subjects are being shown, including an exciting drama in several scenes entitled Wrongly Accused, which is watched with keen attention. The current programme opens with the overture "Poet and Peasant," admirably rendered by the Empire Orchestra, under Mr. Augustus Greco's skilful bâton. The front of the house is assiduously looked after by Mr. T. S. Mayne, who has quickly become popular in his managerial capacity.

RICHMOND THEATRE.

Mr. George Dance this week provides a variety entertainment of exceptional merit. Messrs Woodhouse and Wells, in a patter act, No Boots, contribute a popular item, and both artistes show ability as dancers. Miss Ethel Dunford is a pretty and engaging comedienne. Mr. Gus Garrick gives the most popular performance of the evening, and is a comedian who should "go a long way" in the future. A touching sketch of the degradation wrought by drink and gambling is portrayed in the dramatic sensation, Lord Harkaway, in which the characters are well played by Miss Lois du Cane and Messrs. Frederick Maxwell, Gerald Blake, Frank Carlisle, Sam Harcourt, and Burton Bars. The sketch ends with a capital exhibition of boxing by Messrs. Maxwell and Carlisle. Les Voces are operatic singers of much merit, and their contribution is much applauded. Miss Rose Elliott is a comedienne gifted with a voice that enables her to be heard in the most remote corner of the house, and sings a very amusing ditty as her second contribution. Messrs. Bradley and Warwick give a most amusing comedy sketch, The Advent of Venus, towards the success of which the Misses Warwick and Reid greatly contribute, and the programme ends with a capital series of pictures by Vernon's Bioscope.

BENEFIT TO MR. J. E. NOLAN.

At the Athenæum, Goldhawk-road, Shepherd's Bush, on Monday, a benefit concert was given to Mr. J. E. Nolan, the veteran theatrical and musical agent, for many years one of the partners in the well-known firm of Jackson and Nolan. Mr. Nolan's long and honourable connection with the dramatic and music hall professions has extended over a period of forty years, during which time he has introduced to the public many artistes now occupying prominent positions in the world of amusement. There was a very fair audience present on Monday, and it is to be hoped that the proceeds were substantially augmented by the sale of tickets to many of the bénéficiare's friends and former clients who were unable to be present. The Mayor of Hammersmith, Mr. J. M. Levy, and many other well-known gentlemen in the neighbourhood gave their patronage, and the splendid programme presented should have packed a hall twice the size of the Athenæum. Foremost amongst the volunteers was Miss Louie Freear, who kindly consented to appear for the benefit of her old friend, one of the first to discover the talent of the gifted little comedienne. Needless to remark, her reception was of the most cordial description, the audience being vastly entertained with the drollery of her two selections, "Twiddley Bits" and "She Just Walks On." Mr. Kelson Trueman's fine tenor voice was heard to the best advantage in "Within Your Heart" and "The Light of Ages"; and greatly appreciated also was the duet, "The moon has raised her lamp above," in which he was joined by Mr. Josef Claus. The last-named gentleman gave a fine rendering of the Toreador song from Carmen and Tosti's "Good-bye"; and Mrs. English was accorded a flattering reception for "Thady O'Flynn." The popular Savoyard, Mr. Richard Temple, contributed a couple of much appreciated recitations; and lavish applause was bestowed on Mr. Victor Buzian, of His Majesty's private band, for his finely executed violin solos. Other acceptable items were given by such well-known entertainers as Mr. Robert Ganthony (a humorous interlude), Mr. E. Storey Gofton (recitation, "Christmas Guests"), and Mr. Ben Nathan; and the programme was also contributed to by Miss Edmee De Dreux and Mr. Edwin Henry, in a musical sketch; Mr. H. T. Lea, Miss Violet Wolfe, Miss Bessie Coleman, and Miss Sydney Davis. Messrs. Bulbeck and George Turnbull Sinclair gave their valuable services at the piano; Mr. Charles Williams was the hon. general manager; and Mr. Guy Waller, by permission of Mr. Frank Curzon, saw to the arrangements on the stage. Mention must also be made of the valuable assistance given by Mr. B. Soane Roby, to whose exertions much of the success of the benefit was due.

THIS week a capital company has nightly amused good houses at the Empire, Wrexham. The Paolias provide a capital turn, and Mr. Charley Dixon (comedian), Miss Nellie Elder (comedian and Tyrolean vocalist), Mr. Dan Maxford (patter comedian), Miss Kate Lynd (comedienne), and Mr. Louis Kerno (comedian and dancer) also do well.

COUNTY COUNCIL AND AMUSEMENTS.

(SPECIALLY REPORTED FOR "THE ERA.")

The usual weekly meeting of the London County Council was held on Tuesday, at the County Hall, Spring Gardens.

DUKE OF YORK'S THEATRE.

The Theatres and Music Halls Committee reported that they had considered a plan, submitted by Mr. W. Emden, showing how it is proposed to give effect to Nos. 24, 31, 36, 39, and 47 of the Council's suggestions for the improvement of the Duke of York's Theatre, St. Martin's-lane. The suggestions in question deal with alterations in respect of the gallery entrance staircase, box office enclosure, ventilation of the lavatories in the pit, and the provision of conveniences for stage hands. The committee considered the proposals might be accepted, and recommended that Mr. W. Emden be informed that the Council has no objection to the arrangements shown on the plan, provided the following conditions be complied with:—(1) That the hinged barrier across the gallery entrance staircase be made to depend on an automatic fastening. (2) That the box office be constructed of non-flammable materials or of hardwood. (3) That it be understood that the proposed means of ventilating the lavatories in the pit are accepted only on the condition that they prove to be efficient in practice.—Agreed to.

LONDON COLISEUM.

The committee had considered a plan, submitted by Messrs. F. Matcham and Co., of a property room and scene dock proposed to be formed on the o.p. side of the stage at the London Coliseum, St. Martin's-lane. The committee recommended that Messrs. F. Matcham and Co. be informed that the Council has no objection to the arrangements shown on the plan submitted by them, provided the following conditions be complied with:—(1) That the doors to the property-room be made self-closing. (2) That the skylight over the property-room be made to open automatically to the full extent of the base on the releasing of a cord, and be glazed with sheet glass not more than one-twelfth inch in thickness, protected on the outside by stout wire guards. (3) That any alteration which may be made in the lime-light tanks and apparatus at present on the site of the proposed property-room and scene dock be to the satisfaction of the Council. (4) That a wicket escape door be provided in the doors to Lemon Tree-yard.—Approved.

EMPRESS THEATRE, EARL'S COURT.

The committee had considered two plans, submitted by Mr. A. O. Collard, showing the proposed arrangement of the Empress Theatre at the London Exhibitions, Earl's-court, during the exhibition season of 1905. The proposed arrangements were satisfactory, and the committee recommended that Mr. A. O. Collard be informed that the Council has no objection to the arrangements shown on the two plans submitted by him, provided the following conditions be complied with:—(1) That the emergency exit at the north end of the theatre be so arranged as to discharge towards the central hall. (2) That the scenery, awnings, woodwork, and all other materials be rendered fire-resisting to the satisfaction of the Council.—Agreed to.

LYCEUM THEATRE.

The committee had considered a plan, submitted by Mr. B. Crewe, showing the positions of two pass openings, which it is proposed to make at the Lyceum Theatre, Wellington-street, Strand. The openings are shown on the plan to form connections between the circle lounge and the o.p. gallery staircase, and between circle o.p. exit and the rooms above the stalls o.p. refreshment bar. The arrangements appeared to be satisfactory, and the committee recommended that Mr. B. Crewe be informed that the Council has no objection to the arrangements shown on the plan submitted by him with regard to the proposed pass openings at the Lyceum Theatre, provided the doors to such openings be made self-closing.—Approved.

THE STRAND SCHEME.

The Improvements Committee presented their report with regard to letting the crescent site of the Holborn to the Strand improvement, for a French exhibition and theatre. The proposals of the syndicate were, briefly, to erect on the middle portion of the site a fine stone building of commanding architectural features, which would contain galleries for art and industrial exhibitions, and a French theatre, restaurant, and café; also an open air theatre for summer use. The syndicate were willing to build the structures in accordance with plans approved by the Council, and were ready to pay the ground rent of £55,000 a year, which, as the chairman of the Improvements Committee stated last week, represented a capitalised sum of £1,550,000.

Mr. Davies, who moved the adoption of the report, said that there was an objection to letting this land to any but Englishmen, but the committee would fight strongly against such a narrow idea. The fact that the Council wanted the money, coupled with the certainty that the offer was a good and substantial one, that it did not involve the setting-up of public-houses, and that the whole undertaking would be under the complete control of the Council should, in his judgment, provide sufficient grounds for the Council accepting the scheme.

Mr. Radford, in moving that the report be referred back, said he did so because of the unsatisfactory nature of the information given to the Council.

Mr. Russell Spokes seconded.

Mr. John Burns strongly condemned the proposal. He protested against this fine street being relegated to theatres and casinos, and urged the Council not to superimpose upon the churches in the Strand Paris in London—nothing like the real Paris, but what might be another Moulin Rouge and a Jardin Mabille, with visions of the Palais Royal. They were told that the building would be used for art exhibitions. Let them remember the history of the Royal Aquarium, which was instituted by a Royal and learned society. There were, he declared, already more places of amusement in London than were necessary.

Sir William Richmond deplored the "inflated and undignified" speech of Mr. Burns. He hoped the Council would not reject the scheme because of insular prejudice against the French people, who could teach them many things.

Other members having spoken, the debate was closured; and, upon a division, the amendment was carried by 77 to 28, which is a virtual rejection of the whole scheme.

"THE FIGHTING PARSON."

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—Our client, Mr. Chris. Davis, has called our attention to Mr. George Gray's advertisement in your issue of the 11th inst.

In this advertisement the sketch called The Fighting Parson is described as "by George Gray." This is not the fact, as Mr. Gray is not sole author, having written the sketch in collaboration without our client, who suggested all the main incidents of the plot, and is responsible for the greater part of the sketch as now played.

When recently at the Oxford, the sketch was advertiser as "by Chris. Davis and George Gray," and it was for many months so described on the programme of the Royal Music Hall, and in the synopsis of the sketch distributed there while it was being performed.

Yours faithfully,

WILKINSON, HOWLETT, AND WILKINSON.

MR. PERCY ELLIS.

In a letter which we have received from Mr. A. F. Henderson, general-manager for Sir Charles Wyndham, Mr. Henderson requests us to open our columns to an appeal on behalf of Mr. Percy Ellis, the late assistant-manager of the New Theatre, St. Martin's-lane, and, after having enquired into Mr. Ellis's circumstances, and having assured ourselves that his is a genuine case of distress, we have much pleasure in acceding to Mr. Henderson's charitable wishes.

Mr. Ellis is in an advanced stage of consumption, and, having been unable to follow any employment for nearly twelve months, his finances are completely exhausted, and he is, as Mr. Henderson points out, in actual want. Mr. Ellis's career is interesting. Educated at St. Mark's College, Chelsea, he was, on leaving school, articled to a Brighton firm of auctioneers and estate agents. At the age of nineteen he had the sole charge of the important estate department of the Banner Sanitation Company in Craven-street, Strand. In his spare time he engaged in odd journalistic work, and later secured an appointment on a weekly newspaper, the affairs of which he managed for a period of five years. His journalistic activities brought him into close contact with the dramatic profession, and in 1900 he was offered the position of acting-manager at Wyndham's Theatre for Mr. Frederic A. Stanley's season of Little Lord Fountleroy. Mr. Ellis's business capabilities and his honesty of character and purpose were quickly recognised, and he became the acting-manager during Mr. Martin Harvey's season at the Avenue, as well as for the run of The Little French Milliner at the same playhouse. Later he was seen in a similar capacity at the Shaftesbury and Terry's Theatres. His association with the Strand house was co-incidental with the production of Mrs. Francis Hodgson Burnett's play, A Little Un-Fairy Princess. When this piece was withdrawn from Terry's Mr. Ellis was secured by Mr. A. F. Henderson as acting-manager at Sir Charles Wyndham's New Theatre in St. Martin's-lane, then about to be opened, and he remained there during Mr. Forbes Robertson's season of The Light That Failed, and Mrs. Patrick Campbell's seasons with The Joy of Living and The Second Mrs. Tanqueray, as well as during a run of Mr. John Donald's Christmas fairy play, Alice in Wonderland.

Least of all men does Mr. Ellis deserve to be so sorely stricken by the "slings and arrows of outrageous fortune." For seven years he was the sole support of a widowed mother and a young sister. In the direction of charity and self-sacrifice Mr. Ellis has a fine record for so young a man. One of the saddest features of a sad case is that his marriage, which had been arranged to take place towards the end of 1903, was postponed owing to his having, in the October of that year, contracted double pneumonia, which was followed by pleurisy, from the effects of which he has never fully recovered. He was well enough to return to the New Theatre for Mr. Donald's season with Alice in Wonderland, shortly after the conclusion of which he was compelled to keep to his house. For a time he was an out-patient at the Brompton Consumption Hospital; but the medical officers of that institution expressed themselves unable to find him accommodation as an in-patient on account of the fact that he was in too advanced a stage of the terrible malady to permit of any improvement being effected in the hospital itself. Latterly Mr. Ellis has been under medical treatment at his own home, for he is too weak to walk more than a few yards. His doctor does not believe his case absolutely hopeless; but, although he gives no definite promise of complete restoration to health, he is of the opinion that a sea voyage and residence in a climate such as that of South Africa would at any rate be the means of prolonging his life for a few years. Wonderful things have happened before now in the case of consumptive persons who have defied death, even after the despair of friends has given way to calm resignation, in face of what seems to be the inevitable, and it is with the idea of adding one more to the list of unlooked-for cures that we appeal to the generous hearts of members of the profession for funds to enable Mr. Henderson and Mr. Frederic A. Stanley, who is also interesting himself in the matter, to carry out their kindly intentions of sending Mr. Ellis to South Africa, or to some other country where the atmospheric conditions are less exacting than those of this country. In consequence of Mr. Ellis's sad condition, whatever is done must be done with the least possible delay.

All subscriptions for the above deserving appeal, which will be duly acknowledged in these columns, may be forwarded to Mr. F. H. Pedgrift, Hon. Treasurer to the Fund, care of "The Era" Office, or direct to Mr. A. F. Henderson, New Theatre, St. Martin's-lane.

PRESENTATION.—At the Empire Theatre, Southend, on the conclusion of a most successful production of The Yeomen of the Guard, by the Amateur Operatic Society, Mr. J. M. Gordon, who staged and conducted the performances, was presented by the ladies of the society with a handsome silver cake basket, in token of their appreciation of his services during the present and past productions he has assisted them in. Mr. C. Bonnett, their enthusiastic business-manager, was presented with a charming silver cigarette case by the gentlemen of the society.

MR. EDITOR,—SIR,—In your issue of the 11th inst., in a notice of Mr. James Kiddie's pantomime, Aladdin, at the Queen's Theatre, Keighley, you state that "Prince Pekoe is artistically interpreted by Miss Mina Marie." This is incorrect, as I left the above pantomime three weeks ago by doctor's orders, and am now resting in Germany.

Yours faithfully, MINA MARIE, Hotel Stadt London, Berlin, Germany, Feb. 12.

BERLIN, THURSDAY, FEB. 16.—Herr Hirschfeld's new play was received—if we except a few dissentient voices—with much cordiality. The author, who is one of our youngest and most thoughtful dramatists, was called and re-called, and warmly applauded by his friends and admirers. It may, however, be stated at once that the faultless cast had unquestionably a great deal to do with the success of the evening. Herr Hirschfeld, belonging to the most modern German "school," naturally treads in Ibsen's tracks; his plays are of the domestic type, still, effective, and problematical, and if we cannot always sympathise with his ideas we are always sure to be interested in them. In the present play he brings before the public notice two couples; one lives "nebeneinander" (near each other), the second "füreinander" (for each other). Herr and Frau Hellwig are the exponents of the title. They are on the eve of their silver wedding, and the man loves his wife as devotedly as he did in their young days, while she returns his affection. Hellwig is on the brink of ruin; he has speculated, and to cover his losses has defrauded the firm of manufacturers of whose Berlin branch he is the manager. All these cares and troubles he has hidden from his wife, feeling instinctively that her love is of the fair-weather type, and caring too deeply for her to ruffle the calm. When it is too late to prevent exposure, the wretched man takes poison, and leaves his beloved wife to face the blow alone. This—we are to believe—is all the result of living merely "nebeneinander." The lovers who are held up for our admiration are Theodor Hellwig and Anna—young Hellwig's wife in all but name. Theodor is a sculptor by profession, and has lived long in so-called Bohemian circles. Anna is a young Norwegian violinist, who had the misfortune to lose her right arm. She lives on in the memory of her music and in her love for Theodor, and does not feel her loss. The girl eloped with the young sculptor, who dominated her life, and is the happy mother of his child. Now, there is no reason whatever why these young people should not marry, except that each is a devout disciple of unfettered love, and they are not ashamed to own their creed before the world. Some of the scenes are—in spite of the doubtful moral—very effective, and the acting of Fräuleins Lehmann and Triesch, Herren Bassermann, Grunwald, and others was masterly in its adherence to life.

It is not often that a play is practically a picture of the life of its author, but that is said to be the case with Die Brüder von St. Bernhard, which was produced last week at the Deutsches Theater, Berlin. The author is Herr Ohorn, a schoolmaster in Saxony, who was formerly a monk. In Austria and Bavaria the public rose with one accord, and hissed the piece, which offended their religious feeling. As a literary work, Herr Ohorn's drama possesses little merit; it is the novelty of the scenes and a certain dramatic development that interest. The hero is a certain Brother Paulus. His father and mother, simple-minded bigots, insist on their son and daughter adopting the religious life. To save his sister from her fate, Paul agrees to become a monk; but after his novitiate he has enough of a life of seclusion, and goes back to the world. Thus runs the plot. The author, it appears, was educated by the Fathers of his monastery, sent to a University, passed his doctor's examination, and was raised to a position of standing by the aid of the funds of the establishment, so his satire on the monastic life seems somewhat unkind.

"DER GRAF VON CHAROLAIS," Herr von Hofmannsthal's very successful adaptation of Messager's play, is still proving a draw at the Neues. It is in the bill four or five times every week, the remaining evenings being filled by Shakespeare's Sommernacht's Traum.

AN old play, full of innocent mirth and healthy sentiment—Frau Birch-Pfeiffer's Dorf und Stadt—has been revived at the Luisen. It met, as it deserves to do, with an exceedingly cordial reception, and was very well acted. It is a matter of regret that the present-day authors do not take a small leaf out of Frau Birch-Pfeiffer's book; the majority of theatre-goers would certainly appreciate it.

A WORTHY Berlin citizen, a master-tailor by profession, Bruno Stephan by name, has recently written a play entitled Die Brüder von Steinhof, which was acted in some public assembly rooms with much success. The plot is reported to be interesting and out of the common, in a problematic style; the dialogue is said to be good, and the characters well-drawn and natural. The author tried his luck first of all with a comedy called Haus in der Falle, that had a long run some time ago at a minor theatre.

THE sudden death of Herr Otto Erich Hartleben has created a sad impression everywhere. One of the most promising of German dramatists, Herr Hartleben had scarcely passed his fortieth year, and had at the time of his death a number of works in hand. Rosenmontag was his most successful play, but several others were equally meritorious. The deceased had been suffering from nervous affections for some time past, but was up and about again when the heart's action suddenly and unexpectedly failed.

DEATH has been busy lately, and not the least regretted victim is Frau Moran-Olden, who expired last week at the age of forty-nine. Frau Moran-Olden was the daughter of a Court physician, and only gained her wish of becoming an operatic singer after much opposition. Her career was a brilliant one; possessed of a fine voice of most unusual compass, she sang the rôles of Brunnhilde, Isolde, Ortrud, Norma, Carmen, and Azucena with equal ease. Frau Moran-Olden was married to Herr Bertram, one of the members of our Royal Opera Company. For many months the unfortunate lady had been an inmate of the Maison de Santé—a home for mental sufferers here.

THE charming opera, Die Neugierigen Frauen, will reach to-morrow its 25th performance at the Theatre des Westens. The composer, Herr Wolf-Ferrari, is coming from Venice to be present on the occasion.

THE "sleep-dancer," Mdlle. Madelain, held a séance or gave a performance—there are people who use both terms—at the Theatre des Westens on Sunday, after a preliminary display in a private house some evenings before. This remarkable dancing aroused varied feelings among the audience; some were delighted, other declared it to be revolting and painful in the extreme. In any case, it is interesting and—perhaps fortunately—a highly exceptional display.

AT the Conservatoire of Music in Cologne, under the direction of Herr General-Music Director Fritz Steinbach, the summer term will begin on April 3rd. The Conservatoire supplies complete training in all branches of music. In the theatre and dramatic school are 540 pupils and 46 teachers. The examinations for admission will take place on Thursday, March 30. Applications should be made in writing, until March 27, to the Sekretariat, Managing Committee, Conservatoire of Music, Cologne.

A STAGE STAFF SUPPER.

The third annual supper in connection with the stage staff at the King's Theatre, Hammersmith, was held recently at the Rose and Crown Hotel, when about forty sat down to a capital spread.

Mr. Frank Carlyon, the popular acting-manager, occupied the chair, and was ably supported by Mr. F. L. Schmitz (president), Mr. Sydney Stevens (hon. treasurer), Messrs. J. Sheer, A. G. Goddard, and E. Leslie (committee), Mr. Frank Hersey (hon. secretary), Messrs. Russell Wallett (Dame Durden), Arthur Laceby (the Wicked Baron), and others.

After ample justice had been done to the good things provided, the CHAIRMAN submitted the toast of "The Heads of Departments, and the Stage Staff of the King's Theatre," and in doing so thanked those assembled for their loyal support and assistance during the short time he had been amongst them. He had had five years' managerial experience of suburban theatres, and during that time he had never had a better staff to deal with than that of the "King's."

The toast having been enthusiastically received, MR. SYDNEY STEVENS responded, and said that every man had done his work extremely well since he (the speaker) had been the master carpenter, and he hoped they would continue to do so.

MR. SCHMITZ intimated that Mr. J. B. Mulholland was unavoidably absent, and regretted his inability to be present, but wished they would all spend an enjoyable evening. Other toasts followed.

The programme of vocal and instrumental music was contributed to by Messrs. Ben Stirling, Roberts, Russell Wallett, Charles Barton, J. Sheer, Arthur Laceby, Gwyer, W. Hersey, and Armstrong. Mr. A. J. Blackmore being the accompanist.

On the stage, during the interval, Mr. Sydney Stevens presented Miss Isa Bowman (Boy Blue) with a beautiful basket of flowers of various hues, on behalf of the stage staff, and the pleasant gathering concluded with a vote of thanks to the chairman, the committee, and secretary.

CINEMATOGRAPH RIGHTS.

TO THE EDITOR OF "THE ERA."

SIR,—Our attention has been drawn to an advertisement appearing in "The Era," in which a cinematograph exhibition company claims to have acquired certain sole exhibition rights, "including film productions of other manufacturers, which are controlled by the said company."

As this claim appears to us to be liable to misinterpretation, we write to say that, whatever film manufacturers' productions may be controlled by the said company, on which point we know nothing, the "Elge" films, and the other productions of this firm, are not so controlled.

On behalf also of our friends, the Clarendon Film Company, whose agents we are, and the British and Foreign Biograph Companies, whom we also represent, we have to say that their productions are similarly free from any outside control.

We trust this will remove any false impression which may have been created; and we close with the final assurance to exhibitors, managers, friends, and customers generally, that no rights of any nature whatsoever have been acquired on Elge, Clarendon, or Biograph films by the company in question, and that there is no probability of the same being granted.—Yours truly,

Per pro. L. GAUMONT AND CO.,
A. C. BROMHEAD, Manager.

MR. PERCY ELLIS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—I have to thank you most sincerely for the paragraphs you were good enough to insert in your last week's issue anent Mr. Percy Ellis. May I still further encroach on your kindness, and ask you to make an appeal on his behalf?

Mr. Ellis's connection with the profession fully entitles him to assistance from its members, who are ever ready to help in a case of absolute necessity such as this is. I would remind you that Mr. Ellis is suffering from rapid consumption, very little hopes are held out that he will ever recover, and his condition is aggravated by great pecuniary embarrassment. Bad as his condition is, it is the wish of some of his personal friends that further medical opinions should be obtained, in order to ascertain whether a voyage to South Africa would, at any rate, prolong his life. In any event, subscribers to this fund may be sure that every shilling is urgently needed, and that Mr. Ellis will be most grateful for the assistance.

A few personal applications I have made have resulted in the following donations being sent:—E. W. Hemingway, £2 2s.; George Ashton, £2; H. M. Ross, £2; H. J. S. Booth, £1 1s.; Miss Carlotta Zerbini, £1 1s.; "In Memoriam," £1 1s.; Charles Carey, £1 1s.; Henry Squire and Co., £1 1s.; Peter Davey, 10s. 6d.; F. Stevens, 10s. 6d.; J. J. Calder, 10s. 6d.; Topical Times, £2 2s.; T. Harris, £1 1s.; J. Moy, 10s. 6d.; District Messengers, 10s. 6d.

Yours faithfully,

A. F. HENDERSON,
General Manager for Sir Charles Wyndham.
New

THE SHOWMAN WORLD.

A very gratifying sign of the times is given us in the report of the local meeting of the Cumberland County Council. It is evidence full and complete that a better state of public opinion is making itself felt with regard to Corporation control of fairs and pleasure fêtes.

Under bye-laws made in the year 1897—just one year before the Showmen's Guild took up the important work of opposing unjust enactments—the County Council passed the following bye-law:—

No. 8.—(1) No person shall in any street or on any land adjoining or near thereto, use or play, or cause to be used or played, any steam organ or other musical instrument worked by mechanical means, to the annoyance or disturbance of residents or passengers.

(11) No person shall in any street or on any land adjoining or near thereto, keep or manage, or cause to be kept or managed, a shooting gallery, swing boat, roundabout, or any other construction of a like character, so as to cause obstruction or danger to the traffic in such street.

Now, such a law made it possible for anyone so minded to hinder, if not prevent, the holding of customary fairs and feasts—for there was no saving clause limiting the exercise of such drastic powers.

After eight years' operation of this bad bye-law the County Council (to its credit, be it said) has changed its mind, and now proposes to amend the bye-law by adding the following words: "The bye-law shall not apply to any pleasure fair or on occasion of public rejoicings, or on any such days of the year as should be defined by such local authority on a list in a schedule to be deposited with the Clerk of the County Council."

We sincerely congratulate the show people travelling the Cumberland round on this removal of vexatious power of obstruction and annoyance, and earnestly trust that the good example set by the County Council of Cumberland will be followed by other councils and local governing bodies having inimical bye-laws. The time is coming when the United Showmen will have to contest some of these old and bad bye-laws passed into law at a time when the travelling showman was without any organisation or means of defending his lawful business or making his voice heard in the councils of the Empire.

Another most gratifying fact is that the Guild began its new sessional Parliamentary work with only one Bill to fight—namely, the Colne Corporation Bill. Two petitions have been lodged at the Private Bills Office against the Bill. We give the full text of the Petition, which tells its own tale.

COLNE CORPORATION.

PETITION AGAINST THE BILL PRAYING TO BE HEARD BY COUNSEL.

To the Honourable the Commons of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland in Parliament assembled.

The Humble Petition of the United Kingdom Showmen and Vandwellers' Protection Association sheweth—

1. That a Bill (hereinafter referred to as "the Bill") has been introduced, and is now pending in your Honourable House, intituled "A Bill for making further and better provision in regard to the Markets and the supply of Gas, Water, and Electricity by the Corporation of Colne, and the Improvement, Health, and Good Government of the Borough, and for other purposes."

2. The promoters of the Bill are the Mayor, Aldermen, and Burgesses of the Borough of Colne (hereinafter called "the Corporation").

3. Your petitioners are an Association founded in 1890 with inter alia the following object: To watch any attempt at legislation which is calculated to affect or interfere with the rights or business of Showmen and Vandwellers in general, and to take such proceedings in Parliamentary and other matters as may be deemed advisable.

4. The members of your Petitioners' Association are showmen, stall-holders, and others carrying on business at fairs throughout the United Kingdom. The property, rights, and interests of the said members are injuriously affected by the Bill, and your Petitioners object thereto for the reasons hereinafter stated.

5. By Clause 31 of the Bill it is proposed to be enacted as follows: "It shall not be lawful for any person to permit or suffer in any street or streets within the borough any obstruction to the ordinary traffic from the standing of carts, caravans, or other vehicles or from any booths, shows, stalls, or otherwise, and the Corporation shall have full power to prevent any such obstruction under any public Act."

6. The fairs held within the Borough of Colne are, and always have been, held in the streets, and showmen, stall-holders, and others have a right at common law to obstruct the ordinary traffic in such streets when attending the fairs customarily and lawfully held therein.

7. Your Petitioners humbly submit that the effect of the said Clause 31, if passed into law, would be to prevent the fairs now held within the Borough of Colne from being held in future, and that the Corporation should not be permitted to abolish fairs in an indirect manner, but should be left to take such action as they may think needful under the Fairs Acts, 1871 and 1873.

8. The Preamble of the Bill in so far as it relates to the matters aforesaid is unfounded and incapable of proof.
